PREMIER'S PARTY HOME FROM MOOSE FACTORY

Says Further Extension of T. and N. O. Railway Will Depend on Results of Thorough Exploration

AIRPLANE RETURN.

TORONTO, Sept. 28.—"We had breakfast yesterday morning at Moose Factory on James Bay, and we breakfast this morning in Toronto," said Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Prime Minister of Ontario, on his return yesterday morning from his trip to the northern boundary of the province. Then he proceeded to give an account of what he termed a marvellous, interesting and delightful trip to the northernmost portion of the province. Mr. Ferguson's sentiments were repeated by Lieutenant-Governor Cockshutt, Rev. Canon Cody, and Col. Alex Fraser.

Commencing from the end of steel on the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway extension, 44 miles north of Cochrane, at Island Portage down the Abitibi river, the party went down the Abitibiti to the Moose river; down the Moose to the Hudson Bay Company's post at Moose Factory on James Bay. This far was by canoe and portage, occupying five days.

Return By Airplane.

The return journey by airplane, followed the Moose river to the Metagami, more or less to Moonbeam, on the National Transcontinental Railway, west of Cochrane, and occupied a little less than two and a half hours. The Lieut.-Governor, the Premier and Dr. Cody, with Capt. Maxwell of the Laurentide Forest Patrol services, comprised the party which left Moose Factory a few minutes after 7 a.m. The distance was about 180 miles. Moose Factory is about 700 miles north of Toronto.

"We went down on the face of the waters; we came back on the wings of the air," was Mr. Ferguson's terse summary of his experiences.

T. & N.O. Extension.

"One of the purposes of this trip," said Mr. Ferguson, "was to see the character of the country and the possibilities for development, as well as to inquire into the immediate necessities for further extending the T. and N. O. Railway beyond Abitibi Canyon, 70 miles north of Cochrane, which is now under contract.

"The province is already under a tremendous burden of debt, and to carry the railway through to James Bay would mean the expenditure of millions of money, not only for the railway itself, but for terminals and dredging. I do not want the Government of the Provinces to find itself in the same position as the Dominion Government, having built a railway far in advance of requirements and the treasury paying interest on a non-productive investment.

Not Decided.

"I have an open mind regarding the further extension of the railway, and, before coming to any decision, we will require much more information. The country will have to be thoroughly explored, its resources and possibilities better and more clearly understood, and then the government will decide what is best to be done. As a matter of fact, there is no need for a hasty decision. The present work will not be completed for nearly a year, and the contractor is now asking for an extension of time."

As soon as conditions would permit, exploration parties will be sent out next spring and be kept out all summer. It is not improbable that he himself may take another trip for the purpose of getting more information. At any rate, the parties which will go into that country next year will investigate the timber wealth, the extent of the agricultural land, the possibilities of establishing a fishing industry, the extent of the mineral deposits and available water powers.

Strictly Business.

"We do not propose going ahead with any large expenditure in connection with the railway until I know if the province is going to get something equivalent in return," explained Mr. Ferguson. "This must be a strict business proposition. The present extension of the T. & N.O. to Tin Can Portage was largely a piece of guess work. They may have guessed wrong. That remains to be seen. So far as the present Ministry is concerned, there will be no guess work. We intend to do the thing right."

Enjoyable Trip.

The trip itself passed off without a mishap. After embarking at the end of steel a week ago last Saturday morning in six freight canoes, the party made good headway. On two or three days there was a little rain, and one day they paddled most of the time through rain. With one or two exceptions the portages were not very heavy. Each day as they went down a cache of provisions was made, so that on arriving at Moose Factory the canoes were only carrying sufficient food to maintain the crews to James Bay and one day's journey on the return.

Timber Prospects.

The country for 90 or 100 miles beyond the Transcontinental is what is known as the northern clay belt. It is in this tract, and especially along the banks of the rivers that most of the merchantable timber is found. The area farther north and extending to James Bay is called the coastal plain, and in this district there are immense areas of swamp, muskeg and dwarf timber. Only a small portion of this timber is of commercial value and the cost of operations would be high.

From an operating standpoint, Mr. Ferguson said the problem was where mills could be most advantageously located. Logs will not float up-stream, and as these waters all drain into James Bay it means that the wood must be floated north to a central point and there manufactured and the finished product brought out by rail. The fact that all the foliage, except evergreen, had turned color owing to the frost, enabled the party to size up the timber situation better than if the trip by airplane had been taken earlier in the season.

September Berries.

Speaking generally, Mr. Ferguson thought that three-fourths of the timber beyond the Transcontinental was in the northern clay belt. In this tract there were immense areas of good arable land, similar to that seen along the line of the railway as far as it is now extended. For dinner the night before leaving Moose Factory, the party had cauliflower, cabbage and new potatoes grown at the Factory, and last night they had fresh strawberries grown in the open at Englehart.

At Abitibi Canyon there was a heavy showing of rock, the canyon being about 200 feet deep, but for the most part there were not many signs of rock or mineral deposits. While at James Bay a man brought in some good samples of iron ore from the Belcher Islands, 250 miles down the bay.

FORMER CLERGYMAN ON BIGAMY CHARGE

Wife Unaware of United States Divorce Decree.

MONTREAL, Sept. 27—The case of Maurice Day Baldwin, former Anglican clergyman and son of the late Bishop of Huron commenced in Enquete here to-day. Baldwin is charged with bigamy and the case was adjourned to October 11 in order to give the prosecution time to secure the certificate of the accused alleged marriage. Counsel for the defence said he was ready to admit that the second marriage had taken place but Chief Justice Decarie refused to accept this and insisted on the certificate being produced.

Mary Alexandera Margaret Stevenson gave evidence. She said she had been married to Mr. Baldwin for several years and was not aware her husband had obtained a divorce in the United States and was never served with any papers to that effect She had been informed that her husband had contracted a second marriage at Newport, Vermant, on July 31 last.

It was at this point that the chief justice adjourned the trial and insisted on production of the accused's second marriage certificate.

IMPORTANT MEETING OF ATHLETIC UNION

VANCOUVER, B. C. Sept. 27.—"This promises to be one of the most important sessions in the history of the Canadian Amateur Athletic Union,' declared Judge J. A. Jackson, of Lethbridge, president, on his arrival here this morning for the annual meeting which commences to-morrow morning. The president's statement was in reply to a question about the application of the Dominion Football Association. Judge Jackson would make no forecast as to the way things will go but he suggested that there might be stormy sessions.

This morning a large delegation from the east arrived including Secretary N. S. Crowe, Toronto; W. E. Findley, Winnipeg, first vice-president and S. A. Smith, Toronto secretary of the Canadian Amateur Baseball Association.

LIBERALS PLAN FALL CAMPAIGN

LONDON, Sept. 28.—(Canadian Press Cable.)—Independent Liberals were present in force at the National Liberal Club last night when former Premier Asquith and leader of the independent wing addressed the gathering and inaugurated the party's autumn campaign which will embrace about three thousand meetings to be held throughout the country.

Mr. Asquith painted a dark picture of present day political and domestic conditions and declared that the domestic situation was of as great delicacy and perplexity as any he in his long expjerienece could remember. Compulsory idleness everywhere was reducing industrial efficiency.

Referring to foreign affairs Mr. Asquith said the league of nations had already more than justified its existence but if it was to continue respected and trusted by the world it would not let the settlement of the Janina affair between Italy and Greece rest with the decision of the Ambassadors' Council which he described as astounding. The Ambassadors 'Council had not enhanced its reputation in this connection and he hoped "we have seen the last of it." He strongly emphasized the view that two things of vital importance at stake were the sancity of the covenant and the authority of the league itself.

Mr. Asquith reminded the agriculturists of the lessons of the 1906 general elections. He strongly sympathized with the difficulties confronting the agricultural interests, but suggested that they tackle the middlemen who were intercepting a large portion of the profits.

Liberals, said Mr. Asquith, were as desirous as anybody for the growth of inter-imperial trade, but he did not think that an imperial preference tariff would bring about the desired aim of doing more business inside than outside the Empire. Defining imperial preference as an ideal of a self-sufficient and self-sustaining Empire he described this as a mischievous chimera which if brought into existence would have no real value to Great Britain or the world. "We do not want fences. They do as much harm to those supposed to be protected by the fence as those supposed to be obstructed."

Developing his free trade argument, Mr. Asquith said it was the financial stability of free trade Britian as compared with the relative instability of all other competing countries which had enabled the allies to finance the war and carry through.

Hogs, receipts 27,000; uneven; desirable grades mostly steady; others dull; unevenly lower; bulk good and choice 180 to 325 pound average, $8.05 to $8.30; top, $8.30; desirable 140 to 160 pound average, $7.60 to $7.90; packing sows, $7.00 to $7.25; better grades weighty killing pigs, $6.50 to $7.25; estimated hold-over, 18,000.

Sheep, receipts 24,000; killing classes slow, uneven, few early sales fat lambs to city butchers steady to strong at $13.50 to $13.75; packers bought of natives liberally at $12.00 to $13.00; sheep very scarce around steady; feeding lamb strong to 10c higher; bulk, $13.25 to $13.35.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, September 28 (Canadian Press). — Largely as a result of assertions from Washington that no emergency change in the wheat tariff appeared probable, wheat yesterday averaged lower in price. The market closed unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to 1-2c down, with December $1.051-4 to $1.05 1-4 to 3-8, and May $1.10 to $1.10 1-8.

Corn finished 1-8c to 1-2c higher; oats 1-4c to 3-8c to 1-2c up; and provisions showed 2c to 15c gain.

In addition to bearish advices about the tariff, the fact that Liverpool quotations made only a poor response to yesterday's advance on this side of the Atlantic was a depressing influence on the wheat market here. However, unusual strength in corn and oats tended to check declines in the value of wheat and even enabled the wheat market to score temporarily slight gains.

Would Increase Duty.

At yesterday's top figures, wheat was 3 3-4c to 5 5-8c above last week's lowpoint, with corn and oats up respectively 5 1-8c to 9 1-2c and 2 5-8c to 3 3-4c. One result of the advance was considerable profit-taking sales of all gains. Upturns in the price of wheat though failed to hold, notwithstanding gossip that regardless of Washington despatches formal application would be made to have import duty on wheat raised to 50c a bushel, from the present rate, 30c.

Nearly all deliveries of corn reached a new high price record for the season, and so, too, did May oats. Further frost damage talk, especially from Iowa, was largely responsible. Scantiness of corn receipts here gave a special upward swing to quotations on September delivery, with the market for that month closing at the day's top, 91 1-2c.

Oats were aggressively bought as being cheap compared with corn.

Provisions reflected corn strength as well as better German demand for lard.

SIR THOMAS WHITE DEFENDS HIS FINANCING OF THE WAR

Replies to Premier King's Statement in Quebec Speech—Canada's Position Strong—Her Loans Raised at Home.

Methods of Taxation.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept., 28. —Sir Thomas White, Minister of Finance during the war period, to-day gave the press the following statement:—"In a recent speech at Quebec Right Honourable Mr. Mackenzie King, Prime Minister of Canada, is reported in the press as follows:—

"The tremendous increase in the uncontrollable expenditure has been due in the main to the vicious policy of the late government in financing the war by loans rather than by aaxation during the war of those who did not go on active service. It is true that the debt of the country is enormous: that the interest payable on the lebt is larger than the entire cost of Government only a few years ago: that the taxes are high. But why is this? It is because we are now trying to meet obligations arising out of the colossal expenditures of the four years of the war, not a dollar of which was met by the government of the day out of the taxes of the people. This is an appalling statement and one which the people of Canada cannot take too much to heart, in viewing the burdens which they are being called upon to bear, but it is none the less true."

Defends His Regime.

Commenting on this, Sir Thomas White continued as follows:—"It is clear either that the Primer Minister was misreported or that in making the statement he was wholly misinformed as to the facts concerning our war-time finance. As I was Minister of Finance during the entire period of the war and as the statement in question is a serious reflection upon my administration and upon the Government of which I was a member, I feel that I must place the facts as to taxation and expenditures from 1914 to 1919 before the Canadian people.

"In my budget speech of June, 1919, I made the following statement "Leaving capital expenditures aside and applying the surplus available from our revenues (from April 1, 1914, to March 31, 1919) over and above the amount required to meet current outlays, it will appear that we have met the principal cost of the war from taxation to a total aggregate amount of $275,943,977.00. If we take into account the amount contributed during the five year period for interest upon war debt, and for penison charges, the total paid from revenues on account of the war to March 31, 1919, is $438,293,248.00.

"Our war expenditure to March 31. 1919 was $1.323,793,200.00.

"From the official Year Book of the Government it appears that the total revenues of Canada rose from one hundred and seventy-three million dollars in 1924 to three hundred and twelve millions in 1919; to three hundred and forty nine millions in 1920 and to four hundred and thirty four millions in 1921.

New Modes of Taxation.

"In addition to raising the customs tariff in 1915, the Business Profits and Income Tax were imposed in 1916-17. The latter were entirely new modes of taxation in Canada. During its currency the Business Profits Tax yielded over two hundred million dollars and the Income Tax to date about two hundred and twenty-five million dollars.

"The Year Book also shows what was done during the war to reduce the ordinary expenditure of the Dominion. Public works expenditure in 1914 was nineteen million dollars in 1915 nineteen millions; in 1916 twelve millions; in 1917 eight millions; in 1918 seven millions; in 1919 six millions. Capital expenditure was reduced from forty one millions in 1915 to twenty-five millions in 1919. Large works such as the Welland Canal were suspended but we felt we must proceed with the new Parliament buildings.

Successor's Problems.

"I fully realize that my successors have had heavy responsibilities — Sir Henry Drayton with the enormous expenditures arising out of demobilization and Hon. Mr. Fielding with greatly increased interest charges upon the public debt and the large yearly expenditures for pensions. Both have also had to meet heavy railway deficits and engage in financing on a scale unknown before the war. My purpose in making this statement is not to minimize in any way the burdens which they had to assume."

"It is true that our national debt has been greatly increased by the war but it is also true that if we exercise strict economy in our public administration it need cause no grave anxiety to the Canadian people. It is about half the sum which she is now engaged in liquidaing, principal and interest by annual payments. Moreover, the domestic debt of Britain is fifteen times that of Canada, and she is reducing it annually. In comparison with other Dominions of the Empire and other countries engaged in the war with the exeception of United States, which was a belligerent for only fifteen months our public debt is by far the least burdensome of all. Our public issues during the war were made principally to our own people, and, as to maturities, spread over periods which make refunding comparatively easy. If our national debt had been incurerd to foreigners and we were consequently obliged to pay the annual interest upon it abroad, there would indeed be cause for anxiety. As it is, it is principally owed by the nation as a whole to millions of individual citizens Payments on account of principal and interest are made to Canadians and are thus available for the ordinary trade and business of the Dominion.

Canada's Strength.

"Of all the nations engaged in the war (not excepting United States) Canada has, I believe, enjoyed the most favorable conditions since the Armistice and has the least cause for anxiety as to the future. For this fortunate position I believe our wartime finance to have been in no small degree responsible. We appealed to the Canadian people to produce and save their money for our war loan issues the proceeds of which were largely used to finance our agricultural, commercial and industrial production which otherwise would have failed of a market owing to the almost complete breakdown of international exchange due to the war. If we had stifled enterprise by crushing taxation we should have been unable to participate to the extent we did in the war and our after condition would have been very different from what it has been."

LATE HARVEST OFFSET BY GRAIN LOADINGS

WINNIPEG, Sept. 27.—Despite the lateness of harvest and the prevailing wet weather of the past week grain loaded on the prairies since the opening of the crop year, Sept. 1, shows a decrease of only approximately 3,500 cars as compared with the corresponding period of 1922. This is less than the average loadings for one day. From September 1 to 26, inclusive, railway report 41,356 cars loaded, representing 56,995,200 bushels as compared with 44,870 cars and 59,981,495 bushels last year.

QUACK DOCTORS THRIVE

VLADIVOSTOK, Siberia, Sept. 28.—(Associated Press)—Quack doctors have made their appearance in almost all the villages of Siberia, offering to cure any of the ills flesh is heir to, and some of their alleged remedies are marvellous.

In the Nikolsk district a doctor has appeared who undertakes the cure of consumption in all stages. As consumption is rather widespread in the district his patients are many, and the man is rapidly making a fortune. His remedy is a concoction of cabbages and milk boiled together for some hours by a special "secret process."

Other and more dangerous quacks are making fortunes for the moment, but the situation is such that the authorities have decided to step in and protect the credulous people.

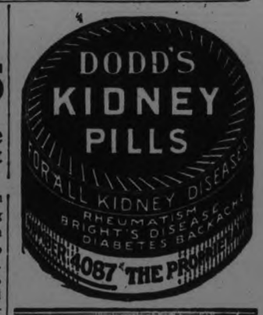
SHAREHOLDERS HEAR REPORTS

Plan to Deal With The Great West Permanent Loan Company.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 28.—(Canadian Press).— Shareholders in Winnipeg of the Great West Permanent Loan Co., the Imperial Canadian Trust Co and the Canadian National Fire Insurance Campany met last night to consider the propostion submitted to shareholders by a proposed holding company organized by what has been called the "Opposition group" of shareholders and chartered under the the name of the Shareholders' Securities, Limited.

Explanations were made by E. L. Taylor, K. C. vice-president of the Great West Permanent and W. T. Alexander, manager and while no resolution was passed there was no opposition expressed to the present management of the companies.

Mr. Alexander explained that the Shareholders Securities Limited asked shareholders of the group of companies to exchange their stock for prior preference shares of the holding company, the value of the shares later to be established by an appraisal board and on the established value dividends to be paid up to eight per cent. Earnings above this figure would be divided equally between the prior preference shares and 10,000 shares of common stock, par value $1 per share issued by the holding company. Mr. Alexander said the companies were financial sound and while about $1,000,000 had been written off from the assets of the Great West Permanent by the federal superintendent of insurance yet the company still possessed these assets, $750,000 of which was in the Marlborough Hotel here.



CANADA CAR DECLARES DIVIDEND ON ARREARS

MONTREAL, Sept. 28.—(Canadian Press)—Director of Canadian Car and Foundry at their meeting here to-day declared a dividend of seven per cent on account of preferred arrears now totalling close to 14 per cent. The dividend will be paid half in October and half in January. While the dates have not been officially announced, the customary dividend dates are the tenth of the month in which the payment falls due.

70 PASSENGERS KILLED TRAIN JUMPED BRIDGE

Appalling Tragedy When Express Plunged Into River Swollen by Floods —Score are Injured.

CASPER, Wyo., Sept. 28.—(Canadian Press.)—At least seventy persons are believed to have lost their lives and more than a score of others suffered injuries, some of them seriously, when the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy passenger train, No. 30, plunged through a bridge fourteen miles east of Casper late last night into Big Muddy river. The wreck occurred at an isolated spot near Lockett and it was not until hours afterward when some of the details of the accident became known here.

The train plunged into Big Muddy river, swollen to many times its normal depth because of cloudbursts and heavy rains. The wrecking crew sent from Casper found, upon arriving at the scene of the tragedy, that the work of attempting to rescue those caught in the crash was practically impossible during the night because of darkness and flood conditions. Early this morning no list of those who perished had been obtained.

EDUCATION BOARD OF CAMPBELLFORD

Voting Increased Salary In August Creates Embarrassing Situation—Progress of New High School.

CAMPBELLFORD, September 28. — When the members of the Board of Education at their August meeting voted Miss Mary Watson a $100.00 increase in salary, they created for themselves an embarrassing situation. At the meeting last night five of the other lady members of the teaching staff applied for a similar raise, each urging in the communication sent to Secretary Stephens, that if the schedule was increased in one case, the new rate should apply to all who were possessed of equal qualifications and who had the same, or more, number of years of experience.

Miss Watson is teacher of the Junior IV. class, and the increase was granted her as a recognition of the excellent work she has done since taking over the department. Part of her duties consist of teaching entrance class literature. At the late entrance examinations, ten pupils from her class were candidates, and all were successful.

Chairman Douglas explained that the teachers were for some reason or other not disposed to take Miss Watson's room. When the latter was appointed to the position, the place had been offered to some of the members of the staff who are now asking an increase, but all had declined to accept it. Whether this was due to the fact that the work in that room is considered heavier than in other departments he was not prepared to say.

Request Turned Down.

When the application for the increases came up for final discussion, Trustee Benor moved, seconded by Trustee Birmingham, that no action be taken. This motion was not put, but another brought in by Trustee Irwin, and seconded by Trustee Benor, was carried unanimously.

This provides that Secretary Stephens shall write to each of the five teachers, explaining why a distinction was made in the case of Miss Watson. It was also suggested that she be made assistant principal by resolution of the Board, as she already is acting in that capacity.

New High School to be Insured

Architect Coon of Toronto, who is supervising the construction of the new High School reported that he had recently visited Campbellford and inspected the progress of the work, finding everything satisfactory. The only trouble Contractor Brown is having is in getting the necessary material.

Architect Coon called the Board's attention to the fact, that the new building should be insured. Just as soon as the joist is laid for the first floor, he wrote, the trustees are personally liable for the loss in case the building should be destroyed by fire.

The building committee was authorized to ascertain the rates for placing iusurance of $20,000 on the building, this to be divided equally among the four insurance companies in town.

John Nancarrow who is watching the construction of the building on behalf of the Board, submitted a written report in which he stated, that everything was being done by Contractor Brown in accordance with the specifications.

Truant Officer's Report

J. R. Wilkinson, school attendance officer, submitted a report of his work for the past month. A number of pupils who are irregular in their attendance at the Public School are giving him considerable trouble but he hopes to have all the delinquents eventually rounded up.

A girl of 14 who passed the recent Entrance examination has not attended the High school and Mr. Wilkinson asked the Board for a ruling on this point. The girl's father, who was present, said that he cannot afford to send his daughter to High school at this time and, besides, her services are required at home. After a while she hopes to be able to take a course in a business college.

It was decided to leave this matter to the judgment of the truant officer as the law authorizes him to issue a permit for non-attendance if, in his opinion, the circumstances warrant such a course.

Writing a Lost Art.

Principal Haig, of the Public school, reported that he was making an effort to improve the writing of the pupils. Some of those who come into his department are so deficient in this branch that he finds it impossible to read their writing. No particular teacher is to blame for this condition, but the fault can be distributed among the heads of all the rooms. Not only should the theory of writing be taught in the time allowed for that subject, Principal Haig said, but the teachers should insist that all the exercises of the pupils should be properly written.

Trustee Arnold, a former teacher himself, asked Principal Haig if the bad writing for which, according to the latter, the schools of Campbellford are noted, was not largely due to the use of scribblers and lead pencils instead of the slates used in the past. The Principal could not, however, answer this question in the affirmative.

The trustees in attendance last night were: Chairman Douglas, Benor, Birmingham, Hoover, Arnold, Lynch, Free and Irwin.

Everything Indicates Very Successful Fair Today—Cattle Barn Filled—Enjoyable Chicken Supper

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 28. — The grounds of the Seymour Agricultural Society was a busy place all day Thursday, exhibitors being in and placing their entries in preparation for the annual Fair to-day. Everything points to a successful show. Last night there were over 125 pure bred cattle on the grounds, all of them Ayrshire except a herd of Jerseys belonging to Dan Kerr, of Seymour. The large cattle barn was filled to capacity early in the afternoon and those who arrived during the evening were obliged to put up their stock in the outside sheds. The Holsteins, Durhams and Herefords have yet to arrive. This is the largest number of cattle ever shown at a Fair in Campbellford.

Some of the exhibitors of Ayrshires are Alex. Hume and Son, whose herd of 16 won a number of prizes at the Toronto Exhibition; Fred Howes, of Rawdon, 6 head; Ernest McCook, of Seymour West, 11 head; Fred Rutherford, of Rawdon, 11 head. All of thes cattle are in prime condition.

Fine Show of poultry.

The large poultry house is filled to overflowing with handsome birds of aristocratic breeding and of all classes. There is a double row of pens around the four sides of the building, and down the centre. Judging in this department started early yesterday and a number of prizes were awarded before the place was closed for the night.

In the Main Building.

There is a fine display of various articles in the main building. The exhibits of home cooking would tempt the appetite of a dyspeptic, and the fruits and vegetables, grain and corn are particularly good for this year. Turnips as large as ordinary pumpkins are shown and there is fodder corn that stood 12 feet high in the field.

Some Good Race Horses.

Some of the noted race horses already in town are Polly Stout and Bucko from the Elmhirst stables in Keene, Turley's South Dakota Maid, Roy Mack, Herman E, Lazy Mutt, winner of the 2.30 race at Colborne, Lady Manor, Mack R., Harry H. and Prince R. Among the others that have entered and are expected to arrive to-day are Cy. Mack and Cy. Winger.

Display of Flowers.

By some oversight no prizes were offered for flowers this year. However visitors to town are not to be denied the pleasure of seeing what the gardens of Campbellford can produce. There is a fine floral display in the windows of J. B. Ferris and Company, flowers that were raised in the gardens of J. P. Archer and Mrs. J. B. Ferris. Mr. Archer gathered several clusters of beautiful white roses intending to show them at the Fair and dahlia's of every hue were taken from the garden of Mr. Ferris for the same purpose. When it was found that there was no floral department at the Fair it was decided to exhibit the flowers in the windows of the store.

Chicken Supper.

A chicken supper under the auspices of the Hilton Ladies Aid was held at Hilton on Thursday night. The tables were decorated with red white and blue bunting flags and astors, and fairly groaned with the weigth of good things to eat. Everything in the form of chicken pies, potatoes, jellies and salads was provided. After the sumptuous supper, the guests were treated to an excellent programme in the church. An eight piece orchestra furnished music between the musical selections, were the following:

Hymn, followed by prayer and chairman's remarks.

Recitation by Miss Davis of Salem.

Reading by Frank Foley of Salem

Solo by Mr. Brown of Brighton.

The address of the evening was given by Rev. Mr. Wilson of Brighton, who by his wit and humor pleased the audience. He spoke on the blunders of life. After the closing selection by the orchestra and God Save the King, a very enjoyable evening was brought to a close. The proceeds amounted to $140. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the Ladies' Aid and all those who in any way contributed to the success of the evening.

Heaps who was nominated by the Independent Labor party will contest the seat and it is expected that Dr. M. R. Blake will be selected at a Convention next week.

MISSION RALLY AT BAILIEBORO

Wheat Crop Satisfactory—Farmers Selling Cattle.

BAILIEBORO, September 28. — On Wednesday the Women's Missionary Society of the Bailieboro Methodist Church entertained the ladies of the Anglican and Bensfort Methodist Missionary Societies, the entertainment commencing at three o'clock p.m.

There was a splendid representation of members from all of the three churches. Rev. R. M. Patterson presided.

The programme included a duet by Mrs. W. Bateman and Mrs. N. Thompson.

The district superintendent, Mrs. J. K. Moore ,of Peterborough, was present and addressed the meeting, speaking on the success of the Bensfort Auxiliary and the Bailieboro Auxiliary and Mission Band, also reminding the societies of the W. M .S. District Convention, which is to be held in Bethany on Tuesday, 2nd October.

Miss Bertha Bradley, of Peterborough, formerly deaconess at All People's Mission, Winnipeg, Man., then gave a thrilling address, which was exceedingly interesting and helpful. She referred to the work of teaching the boys and girls to pray, and inspiring them with a desire to become missionaries as a work involving not sacrifice but pleasure and profit.

Readings were then rendered by Mrs. J. Jewison and Miss Edna Dawson, and the girls of the Mission Band sang a missionary chorus.

While the ladies were busy preparing supper, the visitors spent a social time together in the church, afterwards retiring to Mr. Bateson's hall, where a bountiful supper was served.

In the evening Rev. Baird, pastor of the Methodist Church, Port Hope, was present, and gave an illustrated address on scenes in Japan, the majority of the slides being taken from parts of Japan where our Methodist missionaries are posted. The address and slides were very interesting, and much enjoyed bu a churchful of attentive listeners. A fee of twenty-five cents was charged for the evening's programme, and afterwards everyone partook of a delicious lunch in the hall.

Altogether a most profitable afternoon and evening was spent, and there was no one but who could go home feeling that their presence at the meetin ghad been time well employed.

Personal Mention.

Miss Lettie White, night supervisor at the Ross Memorial Hospital, Lindsay, is holidaying at her home here.

Mr. Eddy and son Floyd, of Buffalo, are guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Hibbard, and while here have been very successful in catching several large specimens of the finny tribe.

Mr. Gordon Reynolds, of the Bank of Toronto staff, Millbrook, has taken Mr. Goheen's place in the bank here.

Mr. E. Jackson and Miss M. Jackson, of Ewan with Dr. Irvine, and Miss E. Ford, of Lindsay, spent Sunday as guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Barnard.

Crop Report.

Threshing is now general throughout the country. The wheat crop in Cavan and South Monaghan has turned out fairly well. The majority of the crop has gone about 25 bushels to the acre, and some wheat off summer-fallowed land has gone as high as 30 and 35 bushels per acre.

Alsike and red clover are both yielding good crops to the acre. In one instance a farmer in Cavan had a yield of 70 bushels of alsike from 6 acres of ground.

The oat crop varies anywhere from 15 to 40 bushels per acre.

The farmers are busily engaged doing their fall ploughing. There has been very little fall wheat sown in this vicinity, the farmers claiming that they cannot produce wheat at the present price, and so a very small acreage has been sown.

Corn and roots are a small crop on account of so much hot, dry weather.

It is the general opinion of the farmers that there will be very few cattle fattened in the stable durin the winter, as most farmers are shipping their cattle before winter sets in in earnest.

FIRE WORKS FADE AT OKLAHOMA CITY

Long, Dull Court Battle Seems To Be The Prospect Now.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla, Sept. 28.—(Canadian Press.)— The pyrotechnics that have kept Oklahoma aflame since Governor Walton opened his war on the Ku Klux Klan, and State legislators in turn instituted a drive to impeach executive, began to fade out last night with a long, dull court battle in prospect.

The first move to test the legality of the special session of the Legislature called by members who held they had a right to investigate actions of the Governor was taken yesterday when sixty-seven members applied for temporary injunction restraining the National Guard from interfering with meetings of the house. The court made no order.

WEDDING BELLS

MILBURN—WEBSTER.

A pretty autumn wedding took place at the home of Mrs. Adelaide Webster, Peel Street, Lindsay, on Wednesday, 26th September, when her younger daughter Ruby was united in marriage to Mr. Elmer Milburn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milburn, of Smith Township, Peterborough.

The bride, who was given away by her brother, entered the drawing-room to the strains of the wedding march, played by Miss Canada Whiteside. She was becomingly attired in white georgette over white satin, with the conventional wedding veil, and carried Ophelia roses.

The bride's niece, Miss Marion Yerex, of Toronto, made a charming little flower girl, gowned in white point d'esprit over white satin, and carried a basket of cyclamen and fern.

After the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. Barraciough, a sumptuous luncheon was served.

The groom's gift to the bride was a string of pearls, to the flower girl a gold necklace set with amethysts and pearls, and to the pianist a beautiful bar pin.

On their return they will reside near Peterborough.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Collins—O'Shea

A very pretty wedding was held in St. Mary's Church, Tuesday morning at 7.30 when Miss Laura O"Shea became the bride of Mr. Leo Collins both of Campbellford. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Phelan, in the presence of the immediate friends of the contracting parties. The bride wore her travelling suit of brown tricotine with hat to match and carried ophelia roses. The young couple were attended by Mr. Fred O'Shea, brother of the bride and Miss Ina Collins sister of the groom. After the ceremony and signing the register, a dainty wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents. The happy couple left on the 9.45 train for Toronto and other western points on their honeymoon. On their return they will reside in Campbellford.

Duncalfe—Armstrong

Miss Arthenia Armstrong and Mr. Claude Duncalfe went to Belleville, yesterday and were quietly married by Rev. H. B. Kenny, formerly of Campbellford. On Tuesday evening Mrs. C. W. Turner gave a shower in honor of Miss Armstrong, who was a member of Mrs. Turner's Sunday School class. Both young people are highly respected members and active workers in the Methodist church and a large circle of friends join in wishing them many years of happy married life.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Duncalfe left on a visit to the bride's parents in Perth. They will spend part of their honeymoon in Montreal and on their return will reside in Campbellford, where the groom is a valued employee of the Bell Telephone Company.

Boy Breaks Arm

Bernard, the young son of Mr. and Mrs Albert Hollings, while playing with some companions on a heap of crushed stone, fell and broke his right arm.

Personals.

Mrs. Lockwood, of Belleville, is visiting Mrs. Earl Williams.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred. McMullen, Mrs. R. MacDonald, Mrs. F. Bailey and Mrs. W. J. Abernethy attended Colborne Fair on Tuesday.

Mr. George Green, of Toronto, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Green, Sebastapol Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Adams, of Trenton, visited Mr. and Mrs. Earl Williams this week.

Mr. C. A. O. Connor and Mr. Bert Beavis, of town, had a booth on the Fair grounds at Colborne on Wednesday.

Mrs. James Corkery, of Toronto, and Mrs. John Corkery, wife of the Postmaster at Peterboro, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Corkery.

Helen, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Douglas, is seriously ill, and the attending physician holds out no hope of her recovery. About a week ago Mr. and Mrs. Douglas were bereaved by the death of their infant of six months.

Mrs. A. C. Wallace has returned from a visit to Syracuse and other points in New York State.

W. J. Meiklejohn motored to Toronto, accompanied by his daughter, Miss Lillian, who will attend the Normal School in that city. Miss Meiklejohn is numbered among the most successful graduates of the Campbellford High School.

DEATH REMOVED VALUED CITIZEN

The Late Garthorn Jopling Led Successful Business Life, Highly Esteemed.

The late Mr. Garthorn Jopling, who died at his residence, Bridgenorth on Sunday, Sept. 23rd., 1923, was born in Michigan in 1852. In the year 1857, he with his parents, removed to Bletcher's Corners in the township of Hamilton, Northumberland County, where he lived until he was twenty-one years of age. At this time, 1873, he moved to Bridgenorth and became engaged as carpenter's apprentice under the late Mr. James McColl. After successfully serving his time of apprenticeship he was married to Miss Isabelle McEwen and commenced his chosen trade in his own interests.

His success as a general carpenter is known county-wide and is evidenced by the many barns, houses, school-houses and churches still standing as monuments of his ability, both as a designer and a practical and efficient workman. Among some of the many public buildings erected by him are churches at Bridgenorth, Gilmour Baptist, Bethel, Warsaw, Indian River, Scotch Line, Rockcraft and Red Rock near Bobcaygeon; while he also built the Eastwood House at Hall's Bridge, and two hotels at Young's Point.

He also was engaged for some seasons with an expensive plant and a small army of men in railroad construction work on the Toronto Suburban Line between Weston and Woodbridge; and on the C.P.R. line between Port Hope and Cobourg. He also spent two summers on the New Welland Ship Canal grading and building water-tight banks. But the war of 1914 breaking out, interfered with construction work in general, and he turned his attention to lumbering and the wood business. He held contracts with the Cavendish Lumber Co., and also spent several winters stripping his own farm and ranches of wood and timber in conjunction with his other business interests.

Seven and one half years ago, he removed to Peterboro and started a butcher business on George street known as G. J. Jopling & Sons. This venture grew and prospered as that in 1920 another meat store on George street north was purchased and added to the parent business.

But the active and strenuous life, which he had lived from his early manhood began to tell on his vitality and in February 1920, he was suddenly stricken with paralysis, from which he never fully recovered, although he indomitably fought his way back to partial health and activity. Two years ago he built for himself and Mrs. Jopling, a new brick modern home at Bridgenorth, where they have since lived in retirement.

He lived a consistent Christian life, and was ready for the call of which he gave clear evidence during his long-drawn but patient sickness, not only to his friends but also to his visiting minister.

If the wealth of floral expressions of sympathy and the widely spread number of people at his obsequies, are the measure of the popularity and respect one holds in his community, then one can truthfully say, that he was held on the pinnacle of esteem by his associates.

He is survived by his wife, four sons and one daughter, James, Fred Harry and Walter and Mrs. (Dr.) Pettersone of Bridgenorth, one son Gilbert died in 1899.

The funeral was held on Tuesday, Sept. 25th., to Little Lake Cemetery, Peterboro, Rev. P. H. Neville officiating assisted by Rev. Mr. Edgar of Gilmour church.

Judge Lindsay Discusses Schools, Ministers, Marriage and Divorce

(By Judge Ben B. Lindsay).

DENVER, Colo., September 27 (United Press). — The trouble with a good many preachers and so-called reformers is that they do not know society as it is, and naturally they cling to their ideas of society as they think it is or as they would like to have it. In this Court, with its confidences, I know more about members of some congregations of our ministers than the ministers themselves know.

The ostrich-like habit of refusing to know or pretending not to know things as they are is one of the causes for conditions as we are beginning to find them in society. The question of WHAT IS is just as important as the questions of what is immoral or moral or what is right or wrong.

If marriage is turning out to be such a failure—whatever may be the cause—it would seem to follow that the natural and instinctive relations of people are to continue to exist in many cases regardless of marriage. A young woman who has lived in such a relation, notwithstanding she has had all of the best in home, school, and church, recently said to me:

"The great majority of all the girls I now who have been married in the last two years have been separated or have been divorced, with some of the usual scandal and publicity that follows. If Bill and I don't get along together we will just separate without the annoyance of a divorce. What is the use of marrying?"

What of the Result?

I am not saying this attitude is right. I am not trying to make clear that it is the attitude of mind that is much more common than it used to be, and I am asking what is going to be the result?

So long as a young woman maintaining such a relation, is subject to the blights of convention if she is found out, I say she is not going to be the mother of children. She is the type that is wise enough never to be embarrassed with motherhood or, if she is, that consults the shady physician whose illegal operations are mounting into the millions annually in this country.

I am asking if this condition is not going to lead, for example, to a standard of recognising the unmarried mother as entitled to respect if she has a child; such a standard might prevent thousands of child murders! I do not know if such a standard will come about, but I do say that all of those things portend some changes in our standards, so that that which is now concealed—except as known to small groups—may eventually be boldly revealed without the blight of society, and consequently with the acceptance of the course of nature.

Schools and Churches.

Schools, as a rule, do not teach youth about life, the importance of parenthood, and, until very recently, schools did very little to teach the laws of health and that reverence and respect for the physical body and its functions to which it is entitled.

The teach[illegible] too many of the churches is [illegible] much mere cant and platitude [illegible]th are getting on to that, and consequently they do not take them seriously any longer. The church depends too much upon artificial restraints. They are trying to prepare the path for youth instead of preparing youth for the path.

I am only speaking generally—and not of some magnificent exceptions in both church and school. But the exceptions are too few and the general condition is too general. I have no doubt at all that our conventions, customs, and standards right under our noses are undergoing a big change.

Palms Greased

The late President Harding's trip to Alaska is bringing that remote territory into the focus of the general vision. Those whose vacation plans offer no excuse for perusing the attractions of the far-famed voyage up the Pacific coast to the land of glaciers and snow capped mountains are becoming interested readers of the charms and the problems of our northwestern territory.

Histories record the purchase of Alaska from Russia in 1876 under the presidency of Andrew Johnson for the sum of $72,000,000. What they do not record are some inside details on the financial side of the transaction, says the Springfield Republican. As written by John Bigelow in his "Retrospections of an Active Life," they assume the proportions of astonishing graft. Quoting from his father's diary dated Ebbitt House, September 23, 1868, it is written: "On leaving the dining room he (Seward) showed me a picture hanging behind the door representing Stoechl, pointing out the boundaries of Alaska on a globe, Seward seated, holding a chart in his lap. Chew bringing a draft of treaty and Sumner and Fred Seward sitting a little aside talking it over.

Graft Was Needed.

"Do you wish to know how that treaty was consummated?" said Mr. Seward. Of course I answered I did. 'Then,' he replied, 'I must put you under oath. Before that money could be voted, $2,000 had to be given to Robert J. Walker; $10,000 to his partner, F. K. Stanton; $10,000 to two members of Congress, and $20,000 to Forney, who had lost $40,000 by the defalcation of his clerk. One thousand more was to have been given to poor Thad Stevens, but no one would undertake to give that to him, so I undertook it myself. The poor fellow died, and I have it now.' This statement gave me much food for reflection on my way back to the hotel.

"I had been struck by the ocular manner in which Mr. Sumner though hostile to Mr. Seward and opposed to the Alaska purchase itself, had stated in my hearing and in a mixed assembly, that the appropriations for the purchase of Alaska would be made the following day.

"He could only have said that, knowing that at least some of these grafted gentlemen, whose lead the House was in the habit of following, were in favor of the purchase. Though speaking so confidently of it, Sumner said nothing to indicate his own approval of the measure. Whether he learned how Thad Stevens and company were going to vote, from themselves of from Seward or from Stoechl, are problems of great interest which are not likely ever to be solved.

"There was something too that seemed strange in the figures representing the amount to be paid to Russia. If it had been $7,500,000 or $8,000,000 because more casual; but it is difficult to imagine any basis for estimating the peculiar value of Alaska then, that would exceed $7,000,000 and stop at any intermediate figure before $7,500,000.

"The presumption is that Stoechl was the lubricator of the appropriation."

So much for political scandal connected with the acquisition of Russian America, as the area of land that bows to Siberia across the Bering Strait was called. A queer coincidence existed in the fact that on the same day that Russia retired from the American continent the last French soldier sailed from Vera Cruz. In commenting upon this on the day the Russian Treaty was signed, which was March 30, Seward is recorded to have said: "This is the most remarkable coincidence of this half century and will produce a corresponding sensation."

No items in the press of that time dwell upon its sensationalism, yet it is worthy of comment that the retirement of two foreign powers from these extremities of the American continent should be coincided. Whereas more than half the corps of France and Egyptian forces, which originally numbered 8,000, were left behind buried under the sod of Mexico, the Russians left behind them the more peaceful heritage of trading posts and missions.

The region was first explored in 1741 by Russian officers, Capts. Vitus Bering and Chrikov, whose preliminary expedition was followed by many private parties of traders and trappers. A settlement at Kodiak was discovered in 1784. Spanish expeditions followed in 1774 and '75. Owing to excesses and general abuse of the native Indians by private trading companies, the trade and regulations of the Russian possessions were in 1799 confided to a semi-official corporation called the Russian-American company for a term of 20 years, afterwards twice renewed for similar periods. A monopoly of the American trade had previously been granted in 1788 to another private company, the Sholikof.

In 1821 Russia attempted to exclude navigators from Bering sea and the Pacific Coast of her possessions, which led to protest from the United States and Great Britain. This led to a treaty with the United States in 1874 and one with Great Britain in 1825, by which excessive demands of Russia were relinquished. The last charter of the Russian-American company expired December 31, 1861. In 1864 authority was granted to an American company to make explorations for a proposed Russo-American company's telegraph line overland from the Amur river in Siberia to Bering Strait and through Alaska to British Columbia. The success of the Atlantic cable rendered this unnecessary and the project was given up after three years' work.

But during this time important explorations had been made. In 1854 a California company began importing ice from Alaska. Soon thereafter the first overtures for its purchase by the United States from Russia were made. The treaty was consummated March 30, 1867, and on October 18, 1867, the formal transfer of the territory was made at Sitka.

Rapid Strides

During the 55 years that Alaska has been in the possession of the United States it has produced from its mines and sea and fur trades the aggregate sum of $1,100,000,000 at a total cost to the Government, including the $7,200,000 purchase price, of only $200,000,000. There have been periods of inflation and stagnation of Alaska's exports. In 1912 all imports totalled $19,980,730 and exports $22,788,136. Last year imports amounted to $27,648,733, and exports $52,454,485. The natural assumption that Alaska has been doing well of late is offset by a comparison of the figures of 1922 with those of 1918. While the 1922 figures were about double those of 1912, they were only two-thirds of those of 1918, when a new record of $74,057,884 for exports was set up and fell $10,000,000 short of the 1919 total.

The year 1921 saw the greatest reversal, when exports tumbled to $33,361,966, close to half those of the preceding year and the imports dropped to $30,209,238, back to the level of 1912. Consideration of these facts and figures and the belief that Alaska in years to come can be made what the West has become in the last half century decided the President and members of his cabinet to conduct a personal tour to the territory to see why Alaska is apparently being strangled.

Some believe that Alaska has been neglected and is a sick child. It is a matter of fact that since its acquisition from Russia in 1867, its care has been in the hands of first one branch of the government and then another. Today its jurisdiction is divided among 35 different departments, commissions and bureaus dealing with about 135 activities.

Population Declines

The matter of varying population of Alaska has probably brought the territory into more public notice than the varying monetary value of its exports. In 1880, when the government took the first census, the population totalled 33,426, including all races and colors. Ten years later it was 32,052. The great gold rush in the Klondike in 1896 brought the census of 1900 up to 63,592 and the figures for the next 10 years showed an increase to 64,356. The 1920 census registered the reversal a decrease to 54,899, the falling off largely among the whites and confined to workers. All of which led to the opinion that "there's something wrong with Alaska."

Before investigating the resources of Alaska's material wealth, the presidential party will be treated without effort on their part to the sights of her scenic wealth, whose value remain constant. To speak of Alaska as the "Switzerland of America" is, in the opinion of travellers thence, like comparing a banquet to afternoon tea. All of Switzerland could be parked several times over in this vast territory of 590,884 square miles. A world-wide traveller has declared that Mt. McKinley presents "a mountain view which cannot be equalled in the Alps, the Andes or the Himalayas.' Its glaciers are surpassed in magnitude only by those of Greenland and the Antartic.

Alaska's superlative scenery is so accessible, that the presidential party may view its greater portion from the steamer's deck. The region of highest grandeur lies near the southern coast. From the ocean level one may see peaks of from 17,000 to 19,000 feet elevation rising in all their sublimity, the full sweep of their height hidden by no lesser peaks, a sight scarcely seen elsewhere on the earth. This accounts for the popularity of the steamship excursion, which usually includes a program of five meals a day, such is the stimulation of the tonic air, when one is Alaska bound.

TWO-MINUTE TOURS

The great bronze Buddha of Kamakura, the escape of which from damage by the recent earthquake is reported to be the subject of much rejoicing among pious Buddhists of Japan, is one of the truly wonderful statues of the world, says the National Geographic Society.

Huge as the statue is—fifty feet high in a sitting posture—it is faithfully proportioned and its features show a beauty and calm serenity that could hardly be excelled in a carefully modeled small image. This is seen to be an accomplishment, indeed, when it is realized that the eyes alone are four feet long. The eyeballs are of solid gold, and a large jewel-like boss in the centre of the forehead is made of a thirty-pound lump of silver.

The Great Buddha, or the Daibutsu, as the Japanese call the image, has sat in its present position since 1252 and in its nearly seven centuries has looked out upon more than one great catastrophe. It has itself been endangered on several occasions. It was originally inclosed by a great temple structure, but this was destroyed by tidal waves in 1369 and again two years after Columbus discovered America. Since then the titantic figure has sat unsheltered, towering against its background of green trees and hills.

The Kamakura Daibutsu, like most bronze statues, consists only of a shell of metal and is hollow inside. A passageway leads to the interior, from which one may climb on ladders to the level of the shoulders and may peep out through tiny windows.

NEW SPORTS ARENA.

STIGES, Spain, Sept. 27.—(Associated Press.)—The new motor race track of Stiges, 24 miles from Barcelona, will be inaugurated early this autumn. Automobiles, motorcycles and horses will be accommodtaed, each on a specially prepared circle. The turns are scientifically banked, and in addition to the grandstands, the surrounding sloping hills provide points of vantage for many thousands of spectators.

There are also athletic grounds, football fields, lawn tennis courts, swimming pools and golf links. Airplanes are provided with hangars. On the sea, only 50 yards away, there will be rowing and sailing, and a fine building will shelter boxers and fencers.

DIESEL TYPE ENGINE USED IN MOTOR CAR

Comparative Tests Made by French Auto Company Show Economy—Burns Heavy Oil.

Development of super-compression engines of the modified Diesel type for use in motor vehicles is quite active. These engines are being designed to use heavy oils that can be bought at prices far below present gasoline costs; such fuels are inexpensive principally because they do not pass through costly refining processes. Large slow-speed oil-burning Diesel engines have reached a state of efficiency and reliability in marine service superior to the steam engine; but the small, compact, high-speed Diesel engine has never reached the state of perfection represented by our modern automobile engine.

Use Two-stroke Principle

The present status of high-speed oil engines was the subject of a recent paper by J. L. Chaloner, read before the Institution of Automobile Engineers of Great Britain. He stated that the main obstacle in the way of the engineer is the perfection of a satisfactory device for injecting the heavy oil into the cylinder in atomized form and the necessity of large cylinder capacity to provide sufficient aid for the combustion of the heavy oils. The latter condition almost demands that the two-stroke or two-cycle principle be used and this injects additional complications into the problem. To visualize the difficulties confronting the designer of a suitable atomizing device, one need only realize that in an engine of 8 horsepower running at 1,500 revolutions per minute, the few drops of fuel used at each stroke must be atomized and injected in four-thousandths of a second.

One of the most recent high-speed oil engines, known as the Tartrais type, is being developed by the Peugeot engineers in France. The fuel is sprayed in at the centre of the head, meeting the charge of compression-heated air as it swirls around in the peculiarly shaped cavity in the cylinder head. Air enters the cylinder through ports at its base, being pumped under slight pressure from an air-pump cylinder; when further compressed by the piston, the air reaches a high temperature, which is raised still further by the uncooled walls of the cylinder head cavity, finally attaining a temperature where combustion starts without any electrical ignition.

Equals 7-cent Gas

In a recent test, described in The English Autocar, two Peugeot passenger cars of equal size and weight, but using a conventional gasoline engine and the Tartrais oil engine, respectively, were given a comparative road test of over 200 miles. The oil engine showed a 75 percent. saving in fuel cost for the entire test, averaging 28.3 miles per gallon. There was little difference in the speed of the two cars over a normal road, but the gasoline car accelerated better. The oil-engined car seemed slightly superior in climbing grades, but could not attain as great a maximum speed as its rival. There was little difference in noise, but some slight objection might be made to the odor of the gas oil used in the test. The fuel economy may be appreciated when it is stated that it is the equivalent of using gasoline at 7 to 8 cents a gallon.

WILL PREVENT BURNS.

A felt pad for your ironing board, the exact size of the board, is most practical when ironing embroidered linens and it eliminates the possibility of scorching one of your good towels.

The increased cost of fine teas has tempted some to try cheap, inferior teas to their sorrow. It is real economy to use "SALADA" since it yields to the pound more cups of a satisfying infusion and besides has such a fresh, delicious flavor.

Salt Water Lilies

WHEN the "Merry Rounders" called it a season and closed after enjoying a full theatrical year—from Labor Day to Fourth of July—the troupe disbanded and returned to New York, whence and whither all the merry rounders and bon ton girls and gay masqueraders and other orthodox and orderly burlesquers tour. Shakespearean mummers, vaudeville specialists, musical comedy luminaries' film flickerers may come from anywhere, but burlesquers come from New York—mainly from Brooklyn. That school of art is indigenous to Broadway and Forty-seventh street and its nickel carfare radius.

Burlesque is a world of its own. It is firmly established, solidly substantial, thoroughly organized, a closed corporation. One may not operate burlesque successfully except through a franchise on the "big wheel," the theatre-owning circuit, which has a monopoly of the field. And, while it is a stepping stone to stardom in all other theatrical branches, the more dignified and more lucrative, it is also a career within itself, and many, many clever and ambitious and earnest men and women start and finish there.

Burlesque has its casts and outcasts, its stars and its nobodies, its famous triumphs and its mere durable so-sos. Burlesque has its rules and its traditions and its ethics. One may be famous or notorious within burlesque and be utterly unheard of outside it. The word itself is a trade name and a trade mark, and its following knows about what it is going after. Those who shudder at the word above a theatre usually have some mistaken notions about what they are shuddering over. Burlesque is rough, but it is clean as a rule; it is low, but it is honest fun.

It thrives mostly on broad "hokum" comedians and pretty girls. Pretty? Yes, after the molds preferred by the patrons of burlesque. One burlesque producer grew rich advertising his girls for years as a "beef trust," and making capital of their poundage. Others have been equally successful at picking the types that ravish the teamsters and shoe salesmen and schoolboys and naughty married shipping clerks—not the ethereal, fragile, dainty models who intrigue the jaded financier or jolt the heavy-sugar society men off the straight and narrow, but the plump, freckled, stable and staple article in chorus girls. In the parlance of the profession, then—the "hicks."

And of these the "Merry Rounders" had about the choicest herd, and of that herd the two acknowledged pips were Aggie Billings and Frankie Jerome. Aggie and Frankie had roomed together (to split expenses) all season, and were pals. they had both signed up for the forthcoming parties as fate had provided them along the route, and had cast their artistic, social and financial fortunes into partnership. When the season ended they had both signed up for the the forthcoming Fall in the same company. They had laid by a fourth of their weekly pay faithfully, as all provident performers do all Winter against the long, cold Summer, and they were now ready, equipped and eager for a vacation.

After debating the economic, geographic and atmospheric potentialities of the mountains (Catskills), the farm lands (New Jersey), the wilds (Sullivan County), and the suburbs (Long Island), they decided on the seashore (Atlantic City).

They "located" in a little hotel near the Boardwalk, convenient to the beach and within their means. Many a girl can live at a $9-a-week hideaway and outshine the $9-a-day (European plan) aristocrat when she steps out on the sifting and shifting sands between the promenade and the breakers. And Aggie and Frankie bowed their rubber caps to nobody's daughters when the snappy breezes flapped their natty two-piecers down where the ocean breezes blow.

They ate in a cafeteria, took in the movies nights, spent most of the daylight time getting discreetly sunburned, behaved themselves and asked favors of no strangers. They were flirted at hourly, but they could tell the soft impeachment from the coarse work at long range, and they were neither hostile nor easy. They liked masculine company, auto rides, deadhead dinners in the Boardwalk cafes, wheel-chair junkets, even a bit of hand-holding.

But no rough stuff, mind you. Aggie and Frankie were respectable girls. They didn't advertise it nor feature it, but they never forgot it.

I think it was on the third day—it may have been the fourth—that they met Jerry Capper, of Philadelphia, and Max Albright, of Pittsburgh. Jerry and Max had teamed up at the resort, where they had joined hands and wits in what early revealed itself as a common preference for that ancient sport, hunting.

It was the open season for the sort of game they were desirous to stalk. The beach was alive with it, so was the boardwalk. Scanning the field and wasting no ammunition until they saw the whites of attractive eyes, the two devotees of Atlantic City's foremost outdoor amusement tried the very simplest decoys, waiting to get specimens worth their heavier artillery within range and with the wind.

As they saw Aggie and Frankie, Jerry's arm slid significantly over to Max's ribs, and Max nodded just the least bit to answer that the nudge had been duly received and noted. After another survey, Max nudged back—O. K. There is no need here to expand on just how they approached, hovered, maneuvered, closed in. Those who know how need no memorandum; those who don't—let them go out and learn the technique for themselves. There is some information too valuable to give away for the price of a Sunday paper.

Anyway, the gentlemen hunters had gotten in their finest endeavors and were getting to the last delicate touches when Aggie, who had been observing the campaign with the critical eyes of the expert, said:

"If you birds are tryin' to get acquainted, save your big league material. It's wasted here."

"You mean," asked Jerry, realizing there was no further call for subtlety and finesse, "that it's no use?"

"No use at all," answered Frankie. "Let's go over in those canvas chairs an' talk it over. You win."

The foursome strolled to where a gap of vacant lounging seats faced the surf, and sat (as the etiquette of such situations dictates) alternately: Max, Frankie, Jerry, Aggie.

"Thanks," said Aggie. "Twenty-five c's an hour to take a load off my dogs is my cue for a standing view o' the horizon. As a guest, o' course——"

"Oh, come—you're kidding me," said Jerry. "You don't shape up like two bits an hour'd worry you—much."

"Well, you see, we forgot our purses—that's why," chimed in Frankie.

"Sure," added Aggie. "What a dumbbell a dame'd be to bring a purse to the beach—in Atlantic."

"Why, it's a pleasure," Max cut in. "Don't talk of it. Let's discuss something more—more——"

"Yeh. Let's get to the point," Frankie helped him along.

"Point? You—well, I——"

"That's right," said Aggie. "We'll save you a lot o' Christopher Columbusin'. There're a lot o' open questions in your minds. It might take you days to get the answer, an' when you get it you might not only of burned up a lot o' stylish time an' high-class diplomacy, but you might be nursin' a sore jaw, or somethin'. So, bein' as I'm your guest, I'll give you the lowdown:

"We're nifty, but not wild—friendly, but not foolish—sociable, but not simple—speedy, but not swift—poor, but not broke—gay, but not giddy. An' we're from Noo Yawk, not Noo Brunswick."

"I see," said Max.

"If you do, you got an eyeful," answered Frankie.

"But—why this warning?" asked Jerry.

"Warning?" piped up Aggie.

"Warning?" repeated Frankie. "We ain't a set o' twin lighthouses. The idee is just to save a flock o' thick doubts on your part. If our report on ourselves ain't encouragin' or we're bum risks, gen'lemen, there's a long stretch o' nice yellow beach both ways from here, an' the sea air is fresh an' inwigoratin'. But, if you don' mind, we'll sit out the hour—you got to pay for that much, anyways."

"Who's talking about leaving?" demanded Max. "What made you think we had any false notions about your—what you——"

"Most men have," said Aggie. "'Specially when they get hep to our p'sition in s'ciety."

"Ah," responded Jerry. "And it's what?"

"Well, where we travel most o' the year, we're c'nsidered very extra. In our set, so to put it—eh, what, Ag?"

"Oh, yes. We have no bananas," twittered Aggie. "Miss Van Dusenbury an' I, you see, we mingle. Yes, we positively hobnob."

"Fifth avenue?"

"Oh—how vulgar — Seventh avenue—that's two more than Fifth—in the locality o' Forty-seventh. On that corner there's a famous theayter—the C'lumbia. Ever make it on your visits to our willage?"

The Philadelphian knew.

"Burlesque?" he asked.

"Oh, no," shuddered Frankie. "Refined stage art—in the chorus o' the 'Merry Rounders.' We display our—our talents—twicet daily, includin' Sundays."

"Well—then I can speak freely," laughed Jerry. "What you babes got on to-night?"

"A lot of important sleepin' was what my social sec'etary had penciled in on my plat'num calendar. Why? Got any better hunches?"

"Oh," hunched Max, "we were talking of getting a car—after dinner—and maybe burning it up out to a roadhouse—the car seats four besides the driver."

"You oughta have no trouble fillin' it—along here," Aggie assured him. "Of all the hungry janes dyin' to be ent'tained, I guess this stretch from the Ritz to Heinz's pier can spot any other two-mile track on earth eighty-seven gold diggers an' four hundred an' nine gasoline hounds an' still keep the championship in America."

"Yes? And how about you two?"

"We don't mind the purr o' the twin six," admitted Frankie, "an' the odor o' porterhouse steaks ain't exac'ly offensive to my well-shaped nostrils. But — you've heard all the gags about the girls walkin' back?"

"H'm — yes, but why suggest such things? We didn't."

"No. But it's just as well to have a thorough understandin'. To be open-an'-shut about it—we never walk back."

"You mean—you—well, what DO you mean?"

"I mean we ride back. Nothin' but return trip tours, p'fessionally or persnally. No bein' stranded stuff."

"If you mean what you think you mean, you're a couple of wise girlies. You're right. Why walk, when riding is so much easier—and pleasanter."

"You're right, we're right. We p'fer ridin', an' when we get out past the city limits, we insist on it. BUT——"

"Oh—there's a but?"

"I'll cable the King o' China there is. We don't get out an' hoof; we stay in an' battle."

"Oh!"

"Uhum. I thought that might knock some o' the wind out o' you. We're a couple o' husky American queens. Doin' sixteen dancin' numbers mat'nee an' night ev'ry day for forty weeks each season ought to keep a girl in good c'ndition—if she don' break trainin'.

"We went out joy ridin' with a couple o' wicked bull merchants in Ind'anap'lis—or was it T'ledo, Ag? Well, wherever it was, they got us out where a cry for help from a woman in distress wouldn't o' stirred up as much as an echo.

"Then they pulled off the road an' started to remember they'd known us for years—WELL! I wouldn't o' never dragged back my boy friend out o' the ditch if it hadn't o' been that he had to drive the car. I don't drive, myself. You see, at home we always had the chauffeurs."

"Max," said Jerry.

"Yes, Jerry," answered Max.

"Let's—"

"I—I think you're right, Jerry."

And they rose.

"May we wish you female pugilists a very pleasant—if lonesome—good evening?" asked Max.

"You cert'nly may. An' may we express our sincerest hopes that you find a couple o' shetramps from the city who won't fight or saps from the tanks who can't?" asked Jerry.

But by that time the two hunters were well on their way, tracking along to make good use of the time that daylight-saving still allowed them. Nothing like getting sunlight shots, where one may see the color of eyes and the expressions in them.

"Funny," observed Aggie, "how as soon as a man busts away from home an' mamma he gets to be a sheik. Now those may be a couple o' nice, quiet boys in their home towns."

Frankie dragged her toe through the moist sand up and down, ruminatingly, then said, out of the corner of her mouth:

"Come to go back over all that was said, I'm beginnin' to think maybe we were a little hasty. I can't remember a single out-o'-the-way crack out o' those parties. It was us—how'd we get that way all of a sudden, crabbin' our evening amusements in advance by fightin' for a chance to tell them and the world that we're a couple o' lilies?"

"There's somethin' in what you say. I guess it's better politics not to block an' duck till somebody leads at you. They might of been just mild, easy-goin' lads, down here to get a lungful o' the fresh sea air, an' not a pair o' sharks with a spotlight out after helpless minnies at all."

"The more I think of it, the more I think you're right—maybe. The way we got 'em between us an' started readin' the riot act, you'd o' thought they was yankin' us by the neck into their cave or somethin'. We better put on another record if we expec' to have any fun down here."

"Right. We ain't takin' no more chances than what other girls are. An' we're wiser'n most of 'em—an' there's two of us. We been playin' together all season, so our team work oughta be worth somethin'. I can't see where we come off to unleash the police dogs before a stranger starts to pull somethin'. Say—we didn't even ask their names."

"No, we didn't. We slipped 'em a hatful of dope about ourself—without bein 'asked—an' we run 'em out. For what? As far as I can think back, they were perfec' gen'lemen . . . and we were a pair o' sap high-school chumps, all fussed up an' ready to fight or run the minute a couple o' nice boys stopped to pass the time o' day."

"Never again, partner. After this, I'll sit by an' let the man release all the bright lines an' not show my teeth till I feel his hot breath on my neck. A girl can't be too partic'lar, no; but she dassen't be too previous, neither."

"That's gospel. An' it looks like we'll be poundin' the dear old boardwalk t'night with our twinkling tootsies when we might of been burnin' up the Noo Joisy turnpikes hereabout in a joy buggy."

Aggie and Jerry sat out the hour. The collector came around.

"A dollar, please," he requested, with hand outstretched.

Aggie jumped up. So did Frankie.

"Well—for a couple o' boobs, I guess we take the ras'berry," whined Aggie.

"Can you beat this?" yammered Frankie. "We gave those welfare workers a lot o' valuable information, an' let 'em take the gate an' stick us for the price o' the sit. Not only ours, but theirs. For a couple o' big-burg bimbos I guess we're just the Dumb Dora sisters."

"Well, you run over to the hotel an' dig up a buck. I'll stay here as hostage to this Chinese bandit till you scamper back with the ransom."

"What's the matter with you takin' a little exercise? Got a broken leg or somethin'?"

"All right—I'll go."

"No—wait. There's a man from our hotel. I saw him in the lobby, writin' a letter. He looks like he's got a kind disposition. Maybe I can pluck a ruble out o' his system."

Frankie walked over, addressed the stranger, who was sitting on the sand, and told him of their predicament.

"Certainly," he said. "I was watching you. What made those fellows walk off like that—so sudden?"

"Why—well, you see, when we told 'em——"

"When we told 'em we didn' care to go walkin' up an' down the main stem with a couple o' them wheel chairs—well, they got upstage. A couple o' necktie clerks on two weeks' absence with leave, I guess. We told 'em we wasn't used to that kind o' pikers."

"And I should say we ain't, either," Aggie supported her.

"Oh, you like auto rides, eh?"

"Like 'em? That's our middle name."

"Well, how about—h'm—to-night?"

"Great," chirped Aggie. "All together, of course?"

"Certainly. I know a place down the road where the liquor don't blind you, where they got a jazz band that makes you forget eight of the Ten Commandments, and—how about it?"

The girls nodded.

"See you at the hotel—at nine."

"At nine," confirmed Frankie. "Now we're gonna take a Kellermann in the drink. Thanks, brother. See you later."

When they came up out of the briny and started drippingly back for the underground exit to the bath house, Frankie said to Aggie:

"Will we go—t'night?"

"Will we? Two against one, ain't it?"

"You bet it is. So we won't have to walk home—like we did that time in T'ledo, or was it Ind'anap'lis?"

SPENT $15,000 ON BOOKLETS TO ADVERTISE THIS COUNTRY

Joint Authors Well Paid

TORONTO, September 27. — At an expense of some $15,000, plus a few extras, the Board of License Commissioners for Ontario, under the direction of the late U.F.O. Government, and in conjunction with the famed Hotel Commission of that regime, issued 40,000 copies of a pamphlet entitled "Ontario, Canada's Premier Province, the Lakeland Playground." The booklet is of 72 pages, lavishly illustrated on toned paper, and with a Provincial road map attached.

According to James Hales, K.C., chairman of the License Board, and author of an introduction to the booklet, the Board undertook issuing the pamphlet, because no other branch of Government seemed interested in the matter, and in spite of the fact that the work of advertising this Province's beauty spots does not fall within the statutory jurisdiction of the machine devised by the O.T.A. for the enforcement of that Act.

"This publicity work does not come naturally under us," said Mr. Hales, "but we undertook to do it because no one else was taking hold of it. We did not scruple to go to some expense in connection with the booklet because we wanted to make it a worthy production.

"At first we ordered only 20,000 copies, but this was later increased to 40,000, the bulk of the copies being distributed in the States. We had an original appropriation of $10,000 to finance the work, but upon explaining the need for a large issue and improved typographical features, the late Government gave us authority to go ahead and spend as much more money as we needed.

Cost $15,000.

"The total spent runs into about $15,000 exclusive of some special expenditures which were incurred in connection with introducing the book advantageously in the States.

"Frank Yeigh, who, with Rev. R. E. Knowles, prepared the editorial matter and illustrations, was engaged for an extra two weeks to visit the United States. While there he gave illustrated lectures upon our scenic beauties, and arranged for the distribution, through motor leagues, hotels, etc., for the booklet.

Mr. Yeigh's expenses were very high for this trip, admitted Mr. Hales, adding that these expenditures are not included in the $15,000 which the production of the book cost.

Mr. Hales denied a report that Mr. Yeigh and Mr. Knowles were paid $5,000 each for their literary labours, saying they received only $750 apiece, plus expenses to cover travelling, researches, etc. The printing was done by the King's Printer.

Additional expense in printing the book was incurred through the use of a green coloured ink, and in the preparation of the cuts used. He said the Government could have stayed with the appropriation of $10,000, but deemed the extra expense justifiable.

Report Didn't Please.

Incidentally Mr. Hales let it be known that he "was not very much enamoured of the report of the Hotels Commission."

"I continually impressed upon them," he sad, "the necessity for concentrating upon the tourist traffic and its obvious advantages to the Province. My view was that the larger hotels did not matter as much as the small town accommodation for tourists."

Rev. R. E. Knowles was employed by the Hotels Commission, of which Rev. Edgar Watson was chairman, to collect data for the Ontario booklet. Mr. Yeigh was later called in and subsequently commissioned, along with the House Committee's secretary, Mr. Lane, to do some exploitation work in the States.

WHY CHILDREN TELL WHAT WE CALL LIES

CHICAGO, (United Press.)—Lies told by children are often the deductions of infantile logic with no intent to deceive, and deserve the study of a psychologist rather than a reprimand or a whipping, according to Professor A. N. Farmer.

"Mendacity in children recently has been the subject of investigation in France," said Professor Farmer. "The result has been clearer understanding of a child's mode of reasoning. A French psychologist says the mind of the adult operates in five ways, classified as follows: Deductive reasoning; inductive reasoning, in which an accumulation of facts furnishes proof; cursory induction based on facts which justify a theory but do not constitute proof; belief founded upon association of ideas, and perceptive belief.

"The logic of the child is concerned only with the last three processes. A little girl said she had met the Virgin Mary, who had given her a peach. It turned out that she had met a woman in white with a blue belt who reminded the child of an image of the Virgin she had seen. A little boy said that on a journey he had seen people and houses no bigger than toys. The explanation was that from a high hill he had seen people and their homes in a valley diminished to toy size by distance."

SUCCESSOR TO KITCHIN.

WILSON, N.C., Sept. 28—(United Press).—Voters of the second North Carolina congressional district will go to the polls October 6 to name a successor to the late Claude Kitchin, for many years a leading Democratic figure.

The three candidate for the place are Judge John H. Kerr, of Warrenton, Richard Allsbrook of Tarboro, and N. James Bouse of Kinston.

A second primary before the election in November may be necessary, political experts believe. The general election in November will merely ratify the action of the primaries. There has been no indication of Republican opposition.

Representative Kitchin's father was in Congress before him and an effort to name a son of Claude Kitchin to the late floor leader's seat was stopped by the younger Kitchin.

keep your hands up." Oke hesitated about obeying the command with the result that before he was able to raise them he was felled with a blow across the head, and lay stretched out on the floor while the robbers proceeded to herd the remainder of the staff into the office of the manager, which is just inside the main entrance to the bank. At this time Miss Switzer and Miss Armitage were behind the open end of the counter balancing their ledgers. With the manager stunned, this was the signal for the other two robbers to work with all haste. And they did. Rolly Ball of Tamblyn's was compelled to take a chair near the manager's office at the entrance to which stood one of the men with a revolver ready for action. Knowing that the vault was locked the robbers made no attempt to open it. Leaping over the counter the two men advanced towards the front door backing up with their guns levelled, remaining in that position until joined by the chief lookout and guard, who also took precautions to back out of the building.

Reaching the street the robbers made a wild dash for Biggar Avenue where the Overland car, with engine running, was in readiness to transport them to parts unknown. As the car whizzed away Manager Oke grabbed his revolver and fired a shot in the air to attract attention. Bystanders say the three men who carried out the attack were wearing blue suits. One had a peaked cap, and the other two soft hats. The car in which they made their escape had a new top. Several license numbers were reported but these on investigation proved to be numbers of cars which in no way had any connection with the travelling robbers.

STRANGE SPIDERS.

DENVER, Colo., Sept. 28.—(Associated Press. — A new species of spiders, with bodies shaped like footballs and eight long legs, pink and striped with black, have made their appearance in Denver, according to A. E. Craig, who has captured many of them. The insects have wide nostrils, slit eyes, small mouths and ears, and were discovered in a shed owned by Craig.

The spiders are belived to have been brought here in tropical fruit and escaped to make their home in the shed. The web formed by the insects is thick and in the shape of a maple leaf. The spiders have sharp jaws and long feelers. When in danger, itis said, they emit a poisonous steam-like substance which forms a moisture on glass or any hard, smooth surface.

THE WEST'S BIG CROP.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 28.—(Canadian Press).—Western Canada will have a crop of 920,089,000 bushels, including wheat, coarse grains and flax, according to a report issued by the North-Western Grain Dealers Association here this morning.

The most extraordinary monumen t in Illinois is in the rural cemetery at Allerton Vermillion county. Erected by a grief-stricken father over the body of his 15year-old daughter, it shows a reproduction of the old homestead, farm animals, and many of the childish expressions of the dead child.

PASSING OF THE WEEKLY NEWSPAPERS

Trend Of Public Opinion Turns To Wide-Awake Dailies, And Bows To The March of Progress

A striking illustration of the trend of public opinion toward daily newspapers to rall, and away from the once popular weekly newspaper is contained in the passing of the Thrice-a-Week- World, the weekly edition of the New York World, which recently passed out of existence, following in the wake of weekly editions of numerous other city dailies.

To use the words of its management in the last special notice to subscribers, this former favorite of thousands of scattered American home was forced "to bow to the march of progress" and "to the insistent demand of the public everywhere for the daily newspaper. "Reasons for discontinuing were summed in its swan song:

"For people in the county are now beyond the reach of the daily newspaper within 24 hours of its issue. Fast railroad transportation and rural mail delivery have opened up remote regions to the daily newspapers of the cities with latest news and literature of the whole world.

"Twentieth century progress, amazing alike in its development of newspapers and of eager reading public, has relegated to the background one notable institution of the nineteenth century—the weekly newspaper, more particularly the weekly issues of large city dailies that formerly circulated throughout the country.

"Their sun has set; their day has passed. One by one they have dropped quietly, unnoticed, out of existence. Their place, even in the farmhouse, is taken by the daily newspaper. Whether in city or country, the public wants the news of today, not that of yesterday. Only a few weekly or semi-weekly issues of Western and Southern dailies remain, but they are changed completely in character to form speciality publicatons of a new and distinct type."

When published as a weekly, the paper boasted from eight to ten pages regularly. The Thrice-a-Week had six pages, but at the start of the War, due to the scarcity of paper, it dwindled to four pages, continuing this size until its last edition. At one time, it had a very large circulation, the peak being reached in 1896, an election year, when it had more than 130,000 subscribers. After 1902 this total decreased, until at the time of its passing, it had a circulation of about 50,000. One of the chief features was the exceedingly low subscription rate of $1 a year.

Among the last weekly editions of metropolitan newspapers to cease publication before the World was that of the Springfield Republican. The Boston Globe stopped its weekly about ten years ago. The Tribune Farmer was perhaps the most popular New York weekly. When the building of the Los Angeles Times was blown up in 1911, the subscription list of the weekly of that paper was destroyed. The management took this opportunity to quit publication of the edition.

In Peterboro, as elsewhere, the change in public opinin is apparent. More and more district readers, their routes opened up by rural free delivery, are turning to the daily newspaper with its up-to-the-minute supply of the world's news.

WON AIR TROPHY.

COWES, England, Sept. 28. — (United Press).—The United States won the Schneider Cup, the world's chief air trophy, here to-day.

The 700 horse-power Navy Wright racer covered the course in 72 minutes 26 4-5 seconds. It was the first time the United States has won the cup.

HONORS MEMORY OF AUTOMOBILE VICTIMS

RIO DE JANEIRO, Sept. 28.—A special Memorial Day for the victims of automobile accidents was celebrated in this city recently with such popular interest and support that very probably it will become an annual event.

The idea of an automobile victims' memorial day grew out of a proposal, probably made by some wag, to celebrated a "chauffeur's day" in homage to the powerful labor organization which protects the interests of the automobil drivers But owing to the large number of automobile accidents, with their toll of killed and maimed, the automobil drivers, as a class, are not beloved by the people. The public protest that was immediately and loudly raised was organized into a day of homage to the auto drivers' victims.

Mass for the souls of the automobile victims was celebrated in the church of Sao Francisco de Paulo, one of the largest temples in the city and the crowd which attended, consisting for the most part of relatives and friends of those who had been killed by automobiles, filled the great building to overflowing.

Wreaths of flowers were spread on the graves of automobile victims and other flowers were placed on some of the "death corners" of streets where automobile accidents have been frequent.

All of these ceremonies were viewed with great public interest, and called forth much press comment.

Although official statistics concerning automobil accidents have not been published, it is estimated than an average of five persons are killed or injured by automobiles in this city every day.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH HARVEST FESTIVAL

Featured by Appropriate Decorations, Good Music and Inspiring Sermon

The annual Harvest Festival service of St. John's church was held last evening, when the edifice was appropriately decortaed for the occasion with flowers and fruits of gardens and fields.

The service was conducted by Canon L. R. Sherman, of Holy Trinity church, Toronto, assisted by Dr. Blagrave, Vicar, St. John's church, Rev. R. B. Grobb of All Saints', and Rev. W. R. Courage of St. George's church.

Preceding service the chimes played appropriate hymns and the processional number by the choir was "Come Ye Thankful People, Come," to organ accompaniment by organist and choirmaster, F. G. Mann.

The whole service was peculiarly fitting to the occasion, rejoiceful and inspiring.

Canon Sherman's discourse, based on the text, "Lift Up Your Eyes and Look on the Fields,' 'was deeply interesting throughout and exceedingly impressive. Stressing the significance of Christ's invitation to the woman of Samaria to ask for the living waters which he would give, and emphasizing the disciples' criticism of their Lord's talking and walking with such a woman as she of Samara, the speaker applied the incident to modern conditions. The Lord's reply to his disciples was, "Lift up thine eyes and lookover the fields; you are not prepared for your work." And the speaker invited his hearers to follow the Master's injunction to look over the fields of present day labor— at home and abroad —and thank Him for all His blessings. Visualizing the lives of hardship, relieved by but little sunshine, suffered by workers in the various fields of labour in all lands, the speaker urged Christian co-operation to lighten those laborers' burdens and extend to them Christ's invitation to drink of the living waters, which he offers freely.

The music rendered by the choir last night, entirely new to St. John's church, was sung with good effect under the capable leadership of the new choirmaster, Mr. Mann.

FIGHT TAX PLAN.

By John O'Brien.

PARIS, Sept. 28.—(United Press). —Deputy Taittinger's proposal to tax foreign residents of France, on the ground that their presence causes the value of the franc to drop still further, as they consume foodstuffs and other products which the country is obliged to import from nations whose exchange rate is higher, brings sharp criticism from the semi-official Temps.

It points out that the contrary is true. The foreigner brings to France money of a higher value than the francs and spends it here, thereby making up in part for the adverse trade balance which is the direct cause of the depreciation of the franc.

It is, of course, impossible to make an exact computation of the amount so brought into France but, taking into account the millions of dollars spent every year here in the tourist season by Americans, the Temps is of the opinion that the monthly adverse balance, estimated at about one hundred million francs (or about $6,000,000) is more than compensated by the expenses and purchases of the foreign visitors.

Moreover, the newspaper retorts to M. Taittinger that while many wealthy foreigners would undoubtedly pay his proposed tax, the greater number would refuse on the ground that they would not stand to be penalized for helping France to recover her pre-war position.

Furthermore, it warns of possible reprisals on the part of the countries whose citizens are so taxed. It sees not the slightest chance of the deputy's bill being favorably viewed by the Chamber.

TOWNS CAPTURED

LONDON, Sept. 29.—(United Press).— Bulgarian communist insurrectionists have captured the towns of Ferdinandova and Berkovista, in the Vrasta district north of Sofia, dispatches from the Bulgar capital said to-day.

The colonists shot or hanged many prominent Conservatives and looted both towns.

Government forces were reported surrounding the area.

BRITISH LABOR AT BIRTHPLACE.

PLYMOUTH, Sept. 28.—The essence of British Trade Unionism assembled here. Why at Plymouth? Maybe it was the lure of the sea in combination with business, with the fact that nearly all other prominent places have had their turn. Be that as it may, Plymouth turned out to greet the emissaries of labor, and labor in return at the fifty-fifth annual congress, explained to the good citizens how it is going to bring the millennium nearer.

Apart from its actual historic interest and its intimate contact with sea-faring matters, Plymouth combines trade with entertaining. It is a popular coastal resort—popular as distinguished from fashionable. The metropolis of West England, some call it, and its main glory is "The Hoe" which means "hill" or "height." It is a lofty plateau overlooking the sea at the northern end of Plymouth Sound; a pleasure ground, edged with memorials of Elizabethian times. Boehm's statue of Sir Francis Drake, and the monument by which the Armada tercentenary was celebrated.

The Pilgrim Fathers

Plymouth is a name to conjure with. It is associated as indelibly with the history of America in its relation to the Pilgrim Fathers, as it is to Britain in its application to events which followed the exploits of Drake.

Latterly, yet another link, which is peculiarly reminiscent with the Lady Nancy Astor, daughter of Chiswell Dabney Langhorne, comes of old Virginian stock, and is, maybe, a lineal descendant of one of the Pilgrim fathers who three centuries ago embarked on the Mayflower at Plymouth. It seems fitting, therefore, that in deciding to contest a seat for the British House of Commons in 1919, she should have come to this historic seat, and it is, perhaps, equally appropriate that the Sutton division electors should have returned her. Unknowingly they established history. Lady Nancy Astor was the first woman to enter the British House of Commons as a member.

From the point of view of trade union development, Plymouth holds associations. Here, in 1899, the leaders in the movement arrived at the conclusion that progress industrially would co-relate to the progress they made in the political arena, so it was decided to establish a political wing—Labor. The Labor Party has recognition as His Majesty's Opposition. This year also has seen yet another departure which synchronizes with the return of the congress to Plymouth. For the first time in its existence it's president is a representative of the professional classes. J. B. Williams, general secretary of the Amalgamated Musicians' Union.

Joe Williams, or "J. B." as he is frequently called, is a typical "John Bull" type. Big, bluff, more than six feet tall, ever ready to amuse one with humorous yarns—and he has never yet been known to exhaust his stock—he is difficult to picture in the role of a deep, and in some respects advanced thinker in British Labor. Nevertheless he is, and an exceedingly popular leader at that or he never would have been elected president of Trade Union Congress. He is not shy, but has a retiring disposition, which is the reason why he seldom figures in the limelight.

But Mr. Williams is a stalwart in the movement.

Unions Played Out?

In session he's earnest; out of session, gay, the last person in the world one would believe to be leader in a working class movement. "Speech is silvern, silence is golden"—when applied at the appropriate moment—he has been heard to declare, and his homely professional analogy when commenting on the labor situation was: "There are some who hold that trade unionism is played out. I do not think it has ever yet been played in."

One can almost picture Mr. Williams sitting amid a theatrical orchestra behind his big bass viol, helping to swell the volume of music heralding the entry of a hero in a play.

The congress got a sample of Mr. William's application of music and song to matters industrial as well as international, and at the same time he revealed one of the dominating elements in his sunny nature. He was discussing the settlement of international and industrial disputes. He was declaring his astonishment at the trait in the character of militarists who would advise arbitration and conciliation in trade disputes where the matter at issue was one of wages and profits, but refuse to apply the same methods to international disputes. Where the shedding of blood and the infliction of untold misery is involved, arbitration, he holds, is a human necessity. He unhesitatingly declared that there are people ready to enter with lighter hearts into warfare, where other human lives are at stake, than they do when it is a case of profits being at peril, and to them he quoted the words of the old song:

"Oh, if I were Queen of Spain,
Or still better Pope of Rome,
I'd have no fighting men abroad,
No weeping maids at home.
All the world would be at peace,
And if Kings would show their might,
Let those who make the quarrels
Be the only ones to fight."

That Corfu Affair

Clearly, he would find none who would hesitate to back this ideal as a solvent of international troubles, though it might not work. Can you imagine Mussolini, for instance, in a bout with the Greek leader, with Poincare and Baldwin standing by anxious to get in a jab because an old commitment in relation to Corfu drags them in?

In the increasing expenditure on aricraft, Mr. Williams sees a disquieting feature. He declares that the expense and burden placed on the people under the guise of preparedness could be equalled by doctors deciding to innoculate a nation with typhus germs so to prevent it getting the mumps. Thus he repudiates the proposition that to ensure peace is to be ready for war. Financial exhaustion, he declares, will one day find an unpleasant solution, but to wait for such a day is not a sane proposition. If every nation must prepare for war because it is afraid of other nations, he says it is clear that the easiest way out is for some nation to show its confidence in the people of its own and other nations, by taking a bold step on its own.

The British, Mr. Williams says, have made marks in history. Is it too much to ask that they should rise now to the great height of setting a glorious example to the rest of the world by reducing to the lowest possible minimum, if not the entire abolition, of all the expensive trappings of the preparations for war? Opinion declares the height greater than glorious, but Mr. Williams is optimistic enough to believe that if Britain did this other nations would follow suit.

FAMILY GOODS AND DOG ESSAY ROAD JOURNEY TO PEACE RIVER FROM EAST

FRIENDS TOLD HIM IT COULDN'T BE DONE

His friends told him he was "crazy." Even the agent of the particular make of car which he owned advised him earnestly that it couldn't be done. But the motorists one R. Servant was adamant. He started out on his original plan and completed the task he had set for himself namely that of transporting himself and wife and a family of three children plus camping equipment a dog and a large portion of their worldly goods in an old model of a light car ordinarily comfortably filled with five mediumsized persons from Toronto to Peace River. The trip was undertaken early this summer. It was completed entirely by road so long as the roads into the Northwest lasted and it occupied a period of several weeks.

Into New Country

Stories of transcontinental tours are not unusual now but the trip essayed by Servant was considerably different in that it crossed the greater part of the continent in Canadian territory. Moreover it took him into a country little used by automobiles until the recent oil discoveries directed the attention of the world to Peace River.

Now he has located a farm some distance south of the Peace River Crossing and the interesting details of his journey there have been published. The family left Toronto last April but it was well on into the month of May before they left the Province of Ontario behind them at Sarnia and followed State roads to the Manitoba boundary.

Good Highways at First

"We travelled over the splendid highways from Toronto to Sarnia and Port Huron (186 miles) thence to Detroit (60 miles) to Kalamazoo (141) to St. Joseph (52) on to Michigan (39) arriving at Chicago a total distance of 478 miles. Leaving Chicago we went to Milwaukee (91) Fond Du Lac (67) Stevens Point (97) Eau Claire (130) St. Paul (94) then to Minneapolis (10) and onto Alexandria (147) and Fargo (238). From Fargo we went on to Grand Forks (91) and then into Winnipeg (135) a total distance of 1,550 miles from Toronto to Winnipeg over roads that were excellent." Thus he gave his description of the initial portion of the journey. The real adventure of the trip came afterward on the journey through Canada. Incidentally he makes an illuminating commentary on the difference between touring in the more sparsely settled section on the Canadian West and the comparatively thickly populated sections of the Middle Western States.

Troubles Commence

"At Winnipeg" he continued "our troubles commenced for we were unfortunate in the day we arrived there which was the national holiday May 24. The offices of the Manitoba Motor League were closed and rather than stay on we foolishly trusted to other sources for road information and regretted it. We had arrived in the midst of stormy weather and following the unofficial information we received we started but got very few miles on the road before we were compelled to return to Winnipeg. On the second start we took the precaution to consult the local automobile headquarters and they directed us to make a long detour to the south which eventually brought us to Brandon safe and sound although the roads had considerably 'dinged' us up. From Brandon we went on to Regina then on to Moose Jaw and the Hat finally arriving by way of Cluny at Calgary. From Calgary we came up over the Calgary-Edmonton trail which we found improved as to condition the farther north we drove. From Olds up the roads were excellent although coming into Edmonton itself we found that rains had made the end of our long road rather bad.

"It's a great trip" added Mr. Servant "and along the road we found excellent camping facilities at every point until we reached the Canadian border where conditions for the reception of tourists are not as good nor do the towns seem to realize the value of better direction to the wayfarer but taking everything into consideration it's quite an experience and I for one am not at all sorry I made the trip.

"We burnt $74 worth of gas on the trip and spent $13.45 on repairs to the car which stood the racket fine heavily loaded as it was but that detour in Manitoba sure put some dents into the frame. However we got here and the car which we started with is the car we have landed here."

Count to a hundred before fighting or you are liable to count to a hundred stars after fighting.

HOMES WITH REPLACEABLE PORTS PLANNED BY GOVERNMENT EXPERTS

One Thousand Dollars' Worth of Government House-Building Advice in Five-Cent Pamphlet—Plenty of Variation For Individual Taste in Series of Designs.

By WILLARD M. KIPLINGER

Every man who thinks of buying or building a home, or selling one and buying another, or acquiring a lot, or getting a Summer cottage, has a head full of puzzlements. He needs the expert advice of a real estate dealer, an architect, a banker, a builder, a carpenter, a building and loan association, a landscape gardener, a plumber, an electrician and a city building inspector. He needs the guidance of a dozen men who have been through it all before and who know how to think in terms of a house, what to look for, how much to spend and the pitfalls to be avoided.

He ought to have at least a thousand dollars' worth of counsel, and he can now get it for five cents. The Division of Building and Housing of the Department of Commerce in Washington is about to publish a handbook for prospective home owners entitled "How to Own Your Home." It is written by John M. Gries, head of the Housing Division, and James S. Taylor, both of whom are specialists with years of experience in the practical problems of building homes. They have gathered in condensed form a quantity of serviceable information on the scores of subjects relating to home acquisition.

The price of the book is a nickel, the bare cost of printing. A coin enclosed in a letter to the Government Printing Office, Washington, with a letter, will bring it. Preparations have been made for printing the handbook by the hundreds of thousands. Advance orders for hundreds and even thousands have been placed by savings banks, building and loan associations, building exchanges, architects, real estate boards, chambers of commerce, and other interests, for distribution to home seekers. No other Government publication has ever attracted so much attention in advance of publication. The handbook promises to become the year's best seller.

Its preparation is the latest of a series of undertakings by the Division of Building and Housing of the Department of Commerce during the last two years, in co-operation with architects, commercial bodies, builders, banks building and loan associations and other interests, to establish better and more uniform standards for house construction, and to disseminate information on good housing facilities. Already dozens of standards for building materials have been set up and recognized by the building trade. The architects, in cooperation with the Government, have worked out standard plans for small homes and made these plans available to home builders at nominal prices.

Now the architects are planning a series of unit houses. Following standard plans, a family can build an attractive four-room house, which later may be expanded into a six-room dwelling without having the appearance of a series of afterthoughts common to many houses with "additions." All the plans have the merit of attractive architectural features, good arrangement, and the economy which comes from adopting standard specifications for materials and equipment. As a result of this movement, home owners in future years may extend or repair their homes by ordering "parts," or "units," following the practice of automobile owners. Even within the standards, plenty of variations are allowed for individual taste in matters of style.

It is planned ultimately to make America a nation of families whose homes are fitted to their individual and particular needs, rather than of families adapting themselves to houses containing plenty of brick or lumber, nails and plaster, but too little nice planning.

Prominent Builders Aid

In this movement the Government has enlisted the co-operation of hundreds of prominent builders and architects and of organizations interested in promoting better homes. This large group of interests is really behind the effort which has now resulted, as one phase, in the publication of the Government's hand-book and plans for its wide distribution. Here are some of the subjects discussed in the book:

How Much to Pay for a House—Percentage of income to devote to payments; range of safe expenditure; where money counts for most; importance of written agreements.

Financing—Amount of savings required; where not to put savings; speculation in lots; unwisdom of insurance policy loans; use of first and second mortgages; discounts on second mortgages; financing during building; borrowing from building and loan associations; paying off the loan by instalments.

General Considerations— Location; transportation facilities; low or high land values; character of the neighborhood; proximity of schools, parks, playgrounds; how much to spend for the lot; examining the title.

House Plans—General arrangement; living room and fireplace, dining room, kitchen, bedroom and closets, bathroom, stairways, baths, basement, exterior of the house, setting.

Building a House—Complets house plans; getting a building permit; contracting with one or many builders; selecting the contractor; paying the contractor; checking on things which cannot be seen.

Buying a House—New or old house; points to be examined, including condition of plaster, woodwork, plumbing, heating, painting and roofing.

Maintenance Costs and Expenses of Home Ownership—Renewals and repairs; property tax and special assessments; insurance; water tax or rent; accessories improvements.

One of the first questions arising in the mind of the prospective home owner relates to the amount which he can afford to pay. The housing specialists of the Department of Commerce have made extensive researches on the subject and have tempered their findings by consideration of various aspects of the family income. Their conclusion is that the value of house and lot ordinarily should be between one and two-thirds and two and a half times the family's income. This makes the usual proportion twice the income. This rule is subject to many fluctuations because, out of a number of families with the same income, it is unlikely that any two picked at random will wish to spend the same amount for shelter. The size of the family, its preference as to location, the wages and number of children, varying conditions between cities and other circumstances make the problem one that each family must solve for itself. A family living in a small town and able to have a vegetable garden and keep poultry might afford a more expensive home than a family with the same income living in a smaller city or suburb with higher taxes and with street-car or railway fares added to the cost of living.

The housing specialists advise paying off the principal of a mortgage debt within fifteen years or less. This does not mean, however, that mortgages should not run for a shorter period and be renewed when due. This may be best if interest rates are high at the time the loan is made.

Most people while paying for a home spend between 18 and 35 per cent. of their income in house payments and the other expenses that accompany home ownership. No definite rule or recommendation in terms of percentage of family income can be laid down for the guidance of general classes of prospective home purchasers, the housing men believe.

There are general considerations, however, to which weight should be given. Before buying, the head of the family is advised to ask himself these questions:

What is the family's annual income and what will it probably be next year and the year after?

If business slackness, will my position be lost or have its earnings reduced?

Will any one else in the family be able to earn an income?

How much income is being saved?

How much could the family afford to pay out each year for a house and the expenses that go with it?

If a family pays a sixth of its income for rent it may be able to devote a fourth or more to buying and maintaining a house, for the amount thus used may include both rent and savings. In addition to interest payments and instalments on the principal of a loan, allowance must be made for renewals and repairs, taxes, special assessments, insurance, water tax, and various accessories and improvements. Families accustomed to living in apartments sometimes fail to allow for the cost of fuel for heating purposes.

The housing specialists have much to say about how to finance the construction or purchase of a home. They urge that the initial cash payment be as large as possible, but they add—

"Borrowing money to buy a home is no disgrace. On the contrary, it is a normal occurrence and in many ways desirable. Many families in meeting payments on a loan have learned the habit of saving and have continued it as a step toward financial independence. Usually it is desirable to possess, free from obligation, at least one-fifth, or 20 per cent., of the value of a house and lot in cash. While arrangements often are made for a purchase with less, a larger cash payment helps to insure a loan at a low rate of interest and one that can be comfortably paid off."

"One of the most common ways in which savings are lost is through speculations in real estate. Buying a lot in an improved section when one is ready to build is far different from buying a city or suburban lot where streets have not been put through and where no water, gas or sewer mains have been laid. Such a purchase is always in the nature of a speculation. It is well to remember that taxes must be paid on every lot, and sometimes special assessments. The outgo in holding a lot is certain—profits are uncertain. Money in a savings account, on the other hand, keeps on earning interest for the depositor."

The placing of first and second mortgages on home property is discussed in detail and advice is offered concerning the commissions which are properly chargeable. Building and loan associations are especially recommended as a source for loans.

"Building and loan associations in many cases will prove the best means of financing a home," says the home-seekers' handbook, "for they are often able to loan as much as 70 or 80 per cent. of the real value of the home, which is generally above the limit allowed by law for savings banks and insurance companies. Such a loan may avoid the added complications, disadvantages, and expenses that may be involved in case both a first and second mortgage are required."

The question of how much to pay for the lot itself depends largely on whether or not it is "improved." Where streets, curbing, sidewalks, water, electric, gas and sewerage improvements have not been made, a lot may sometimes be obtained for less than 5 per cent. of the total cost of the house and lot, and 10 per cent. probably should be the limit. If all improvements have been made the cost of the lot frequently runs up to 20 per cent., but it should rarely exceed 25 per cent. A fair appraisal of a lot or a house should be obtained from a disinterested third person. An appraisal by a building and loan association is usually safe. If a financial institution will not loan more than 40 per cent. of the price asked for property, it may be assumed that the price is too high. The judgment of dependable real estate dealers is always worth while, says the handbook. Purchasers of homes are advised to look carefully into the zoning regulations of a city to ascertain whether there is safety from intrusion by factories, public garages and scattered stores. Private restrictions relating to the individual property also should be considered in advance.

Shoppers for houses should endeavor to establish common-sense standards in judging properties and to picture the family going through its daily routine in the new house—cooking, cleaning, going to work, school, play, etc., at all seasons. This warning against misleading of "trinkets" is offered:

"The mere fact that a showy mantelpiece is displayed, that a radio set has been installed or that several French plate-glass mirrors are built in doors should not determine the choice or induce a man to pay an additional $500 for the property."

A detailed list of critical tests to which a purchaser should submit a piece of property is given in the Government's guide.

"The buyer of a finished house or the builder of a new house," says the handbook, "can safely judge many of the points of design and construction for himself. But he may well test his conclusion by consulting a disinterested architect or builder. He should be willing to pay a small fee for this service, as it will be worth it for his own guidance.

"In building a house one should be sure to know the family's requirements, to have plans, to have building operations well supervised and to have explicit contracts duly signed and drawn with regard to lien laws. The best insurance for having a house built right is to build from plans that are complete and insure good construction throughout. House plans should be so complete that the home builder, once his contract is signed, will not have to make extra expenditures which may seriously upset his financial arrangements.

"Plans should be designed by some competent person or bought from some organization that provides a complete plan service, such as the Architects' Small House Service Bureaus, which are non-profit-making organizations controlled by the American Institute of Architects and endorsed by the United States Department of Commerce."

National headquarters of the Architects' Small House Service Bureau are at 1,200 Second Avenue South, Minneapolis, Minn., and regional bureaus are maintained in New York City, Denver, Milwaukee, Portland, Ore., Indianapolis and Pittsburgh. Each regional bureau specializes in plans for small homes especially adapted to its local territory. For homes of more than six rooms the bureau does not function, but advises dealing direct with architects.

Government housing officials say that home builders frequently make the mistake of selecting some "very nice man" and assuming that he will build the house at the lowest possible figure. They advise getting bids from several dependable contractors and the acceptance of the one which is most satisfactory, not merely from the standpoint of the lowest rate but also with consideration for the dependability and reputation of the contractor.

If a family wants to cut the corners on cost, these suggestions are offered for effecting economies:

"1. It has been estimated that on a five or six room house, $50 to $150 may be saved by omitting basement partitions.

"2. A porch may be added at any time and by leaving it off $300 to $600 may be saved at a time when the cost is eating into ready funds.

"3. Stock sizes of doors, moldings, fittings and sash cost less than special mill work and there is less waste. There are plenty of good styles in the stock sizes and the architectural effect is often better than when unusual and unique shapes are used.

"4. Wide siding may be more attractive than the narrow, but the price at times is about twice as much.

"5. Planting of the yard may also be deferred."

The Government's handbook for home owners also gives a detailed record of mechanical features which should be scrutinized carefully before purchase. These refer to cracks in plaster, squeaking floors, judging of woodwork, condition of plumbing and heating plant, paint, roofing, proper fire protection, sheathing, weather stripping, ease of heating, date of construction, dampness in cellar and similar matters.

A Test for the People

The handbook contains a foreword by Secretary Hoover, which says in part:

"Maintaining a high percentage of individual home owners is one of the searching tests that now challenge the people of the United States. The present large proportion of families that own their homes is both the foundation of a sound economic and social system and a guarantee that our society will continue to develop rationally as changing conditions demand.

"A family that owns its home takes a pride in it, maintains it better, gets more pleasure out of it, and has a more wholesome, healthful and happier atmosphere in which to bring up children. The home owner has a constructive aim in life. He works harder outside his home, he spends his leisure more profitably and he and his family live a finer life and enjoy more of the comforts and cultivating influences of our modern civilization. A husband and wife who own their home are more apt to save. They have an interest in the advancement of a social system that permits the individual to store up the fruits of his labor. As direct taxpayers they take a more active part in local government. Above all, the love of home is one of the finest instincts and the greatest of inspirations of our people.

"Today, in the period of post-war recovery, when our national productivity is increasing, we have the opportunity to make definite progress in the right direction. Moreover, the development of the automobile has given a great impulse to suburban life and an increasing possibility of home ownership. Happily, a large section of the people is awake to the problem, and an increased number of business groups have publicly acknowledged their responsibility and interest in it. They realize that unnecessary barriers which may encompass a man determined to own his home are hindrances to good community spirit and to good business. They see that taking a neighborly interest in developing sound financing and other machinery for the use of home seekers, and insisting on the observance of honest, straightforward methods by those who deal with home seekers, is not paternalism but good business and good citizenship. It is the 'square deal'—and it is not only right but essential that the cards should not be stacked against the home seeker."

Laughs In The Shadow Of Hangman's Noose

WILLIAM J. CRAMER

CHICAGO, Sept. 27—"If it comes to the worst, I'll try to take the rope just as I did that $25 prize check—with a big smile."

And William J. Cramer shows a sample smile to prove that dread of death penalty hasn't yet affected his cheerfulness or sense of humor. Sir Walter Raleigh jesting at the headsmans ax had nothing on him.

He forgot the shadow across his path the other day long enough to think up a funny picture title for a contest conducted by a Chicago newspaper, sending it in from the address, "Room 421, 440 N. Dearborn Street." The title won first prize.

And now in "Room 421," a cell in "murderers' row" at the Cook county jail, Cramer doesn't see anything unusual in his present ability to forget care and think up jokes.

Sorry for "Unfortunates"

"When any of the fellows in here get blue, I try to cheer them up; I feel sorry for some of these unfortunates," says Cramer, emphasizing the "unfortunates" to distinguish them from himself.

He himself is merely under sentence to die, and unless his attorney, Harold P. O'Connell, wins his pending effort before the supreme court his life will "come to the worst."

At his trial and ever since Cramer has steadfastly asserted his innocence. That assurance, he declares, is at least half the battle in preserving his cheerfulness.

"The 'Jail House Blues' haven't been giving me any seranade," says this prison Pollyanna.

"Always I have considered myself a rolling stone. I don't mean a wanderer, because I have stayed at home But whatever turned up next, I was ready for it. The big thing is never to give up or make a fuss over what happens.

"Time Does Fly"

"Everyone gets blue sometimes, of course. The tough time here is on Saturday night, when fellows on the outside are going to see their girls. When you get to feeling that way, though, don't give way, but start thinking about something else. The men in here don't seem to mind it so much.

"The months go fast, fast," he adds with emphasis.

"In the old days at home I worked on newspaper puzzles and contests to put in the time with my younger brothers. It just came natural to try it again here. The youngsters and I used to win prizes every now and then before. Everything goes on here just about as it does on the outside, a mixture of good and bad.

"Yes, when I get out I'm going back to the old job as shipping clerk.'

WARMTH

Theater managers say that mystery plays and comedies make the audiences' blood circulate fast by stimulating the heart which in turn makes the bodies of the watchers generate more heat. Some managers even claim that this increased heat radiates into the air sufficiently to raise the temperature of the theaters several degrees.

No one minds cold when excited.

In a pinch maybe we could use Nick Carter and the funny paper as coal substitutes.

Magical Beautifiers For Women

Women everywhere are trying all kinds of beautifiers, only to find that their effects are transitory. The first requisite of beauty is health. Without it the steps lag, eyes are lusterless, dark circles appear beneath them, the complexion becomes sallow, and almost invariably the underlying cause is some ailment peculiar to women. There is a very inexpensive remedy for this condition in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which for nearly fifty years has been relieving women from some of the worst forms of female ills. Why not let it restore you to health and beauty and the joys of living?

COAL

Sixty days ago the president of a large coal company said to us: "There's a surplus of 100 million tons of soft coal in the United States. An anthracite strike would cause a lot of hard coal consumers to turn to soft coal thereby eating into this surplus. With no strike the price of soft coal to consumers should drop considerably this coming winter."

One result of the average coal strike is to create a fat and prosperous market for the coal industry.

Maple syrup is being made from prune juice instead of brown sugar.

WHEN WINTER COMES TO BERLIN

By CARL D. GROAT.

BERLIN, Sept. 27. — (United Press).—Germany looks down the winter months ahead with despairing forebodings.

1. Freezing, since coal vastly above the world market price, is beyond their reach and many apartments have not even a bucket of coal in their cellars and can buy none.

2. Cold food, for gas prices are now in the luxury realm and will be unpayable by thousands this winter. This statement is based on experience and upon the authority of no less an expert than Berlin's burgomaster, Herr Boesz.

3. Milk shortage, since many bloated estate owners are holding back the milk to make butter wherewith to profiteer.

4. Transportation difficulties, since a number of the trolley lines are being closed completely and there is even talk of shutting down the whole Berlin surface system.

5. Clothing scarcity, since men's suits and women's dresses are now beyond the world's market prices.

6. Unemployment—already setting in—and with more in prospect as big business claims it cannot operate with present taxes and with the handicap of costs exceeding those of other producing nations.

The food prospects for the moment, do not appear as dire as often pictured. Germany has this year the best harvest in many seasons. The only difficulty is marketing it, since many grain growers are holding back their products for higher prices.

However, with any sort of luck, Germany ought to be able to squeeze through the winter on her home supplies, plus what she hopes to be able to buy after the industrialists have disgorged the foreign currency fund under the new currency ordinance.

THREE GREAT MARKETS

Canada's Finance Ministers have from time to time secured their Loans in GREAT BRITAIN—our oldest market, in the UNITED STATES—now a large creditor, and in CANADA.

When the Rt. Hon. W. S. Fielding, the present Finance Minister, had completed his previous term of office at the same post in 1911, neither he nor any of his predecessors had placed any bonds in Canada. Now Dominion Government Bonds are held about as follows:

In Great Britain . . . $336,001,469
In United States . . . $210,933,000
In Canada $1,935,931,576

Pending maturity of other Bond issues, Canada's Finance Ministers will make refunding loans (such as the present issue) in whichever market will, just prior to such maturities, be in the best position to absorb them. We are now in the proud position that, for this great loan of any country in the world. This means that Canada is prosperous and well able to finance her own needs. An abundant success for this loan will be a fine advertisement for Canada and a logical stimulus throughout our whole business fabric.

We shall be glad to serve you in all matters relating to this loan free of charge to you.

The Million Dollar Doll

By C. N. and A. M. Williamson
Authors of "The Lightning Conductor"

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY

Miles Sheridan, made wretched by his wife's infidelity is attempting to facilitate her obtaining a divorce by creating a scandal about himself. To this end, he offers $20,000 to

Juliet Divine, a beautiful show-girl known as the Million Dollar Doll if she will take a yacht trip with him. Juliet is unable to go, herself, but greedy for the money she persuades

Teresa Desmond (Terry) her lovely and unbelievably innocent half-sister, an exquisite counterpart of herself, to go in her stead, masquerading as the Million Dollar Doll. Ever since a kindness Miles did her in her childhood, Terry has made him her Dream Prince, and now she is grateful for the opportunity of serving him.

Paul di Salvano, a handsome Italian.

Eustace Nazlo, a wealthy Greek, who does not know of Terry's relationship to Juliet, is in love with the younger girl.

Mrs. Harkness, Miles' old servant, prepared to hate the "Million Dollar Doll" is won over by Terry's sweetness and charm. Miles has stipulated that he will have nothing to do with the girl, on the voyage, but already his resolve is wavering. He does not recognize the little girl whom he befriended so long ago, but he is surprised to find the notorious Juliet Divine so girlishly charming. In order to make the scandal known, he appears at Monte Carlo with the girl.

Miss Caroline Sheridan, Miles' aunt, is surprised to meet her nephew in Monte Carlo.

After leaving Miss Sheridan, who is horrified when she learns the truth, Terry and Miles continue their walk. Terry gives a start as she sees approaching, Eustace Nazlo.

Miles snubs Nazlo, but the latter is convinced the girl is Teresa Desmond and not Juliet Divine.

CHAPTER LII.

A "Royal Memory"

"I hope I did what you wished me to do," said Miles when he could be certain that the Shoe King was out of earshot.

"Yes. And I thank you very much," Terry answered.

This, Sheridan felt, was the monent to drop the subject of Nazlo, but he could not let it go; in the last three of four minutes he had become conscious of a burning interest in Juliet Divine's past. It was morbid as well as foolish. But there it was, like fire in brushwood.

"Yet you say you do know him?" something within Miles burst forth with the question.

"I met him—twice."

"You didn't like him?"

"No."

"He's very rich."

"I don't care a bit about that!"

The protest seemed so sincere that Miles stared at the downcast profile. He remembered how Juliet had refused his money. Could it be that she meant her refusal to ge permanent? If so, why on earth had she come away with him? No character had ever puzzled and intrigued him so much.

"Did Nazlo offend you?" he persisted.

"He—oh, I hated him!" the girl broke out.

"Of course I've no right whatever to ask," Miles said, "and you needn't answer unless you like. But I can't help being curious—I don't know why, except that I don't admire Nazlo as much as some men do—I can't help being curious as to—the way he offended you."

"He tried to kiss me, and I was angry," Terry confessed; because, what harm in telling a thing that might have happened to Julia?

"Then I ran away. And I never saw him again till today. That's why I—was silly when we came on him just now. I suppose I was—a little nervous already after—"

"After the affair of my aunt?"

"Yes. I know it was stupid of me!"

"If it was stupid, I was stupid, too. So Nazlo tried the same game I tried the other night? You would have run away from me too, I expect, if you could without jumping into the sea?"

"If I'd run away, it would have been for a different reason." The truth slipped out before Terry had time to snatch it back.

"How, different?"

"I hated Mr. Nazlo to kiss me because I disliked him, and felt he was—horrid. But with you—I feel—I feel you ought to be very good, too good to—oh, please, I can't explain!"

"Don't try," said Sheridan. Just for the moment he let himself take the girl as she wished to be taken; sweet, sincere. He thrilled with the joy of believing in her, though it could be only a brief play—a tragic comedy.

"Thank you for not classifying Nazlo and me under the same category. I'm glad I helped you out of a scrape—since it was a scrape. I must say I imagined at first that you'd arranged to meet him here. And I was rather cross."

"You must think very bad things of me if you thought that. It's not fair!" Terry said.

"I won't think such thoughts again. But, why did the fellow call you 'Miss Desmond'?"

Sheridan looked straight at her as he fired this question, and she was submerged by one of her blushes. "I—was introduced to him by that name," she answered after an instant's hesitation. "But—I don't want to tell you any more, if you don't mind."

"Forgive my imperitnent curiosity," Sheridan said. A short time ago he wouldn't have supposed that he could be "impertinent" to Juliet Divine.

He loathed all men who had not only tried to kiss her, but had succeeded. The difference between what she seemed, and what she must have been, tortured him, as jealousy tortures a man in love. Yet he was not in love, of course, so could not be jealous.

"Let's go into the Casino," he proposed.

They had turned off the terrace and come round in front of the big white building which, in the bright sunshine, glittered ornately like a Titanic wedding cake. They walked up the steps together, and Sheridan—who had been to Monte Carlo twice or thrice before—led his companion to the Bureau, for their tickets of admission.

"I suppose you have a visiting card," he suggested, taking out one of his own with the name of a famous club upon it.

"No, I've never had any visiting cards," replied Terry. "Must I have one, to get in?"

"It will be all right without," said Miles.

The frock-coated Frenchman whose word was law for aspirants wishing to enter "the Rooms," glanced from one to the other. Like all employees of the Casino, he had a "royal memory," it being part of his job never to forget a face.

He remembered seeing Miles Sheridan of New York a year or two before the war, and thought that he recalled a wife—a pretty, blonde girl older than this one, and of a less remarkable type.

He understood English, and was amused by the scrap of conversation between the two.

QUINCES

Perhaps you have a quince bush in your back yard. If so, you are lucky for quinces are used for all sorts of delicious sweets. Canned they make quite as good salads as pineapples or pears. Many people like them for "sauce."

And quince honey rivals the real product and makes the bees look to their laurels.

Quince chips are a homely sweetmeat that were much favored in the "Mid-Victorian" period. But quinces are not a delicately flavored fruit and require some care in working up.

Quince Honey

Pare and core quinces. Crate or put through the fine knife of the food chopper. To three cups of grated quince add one cup of water and cook until tender. Add four cups of granulated sugar and cook 15 minutes. Pour into jars and seal while hot.

Quince Chips

Six pounds quinces, 10 cups sugar, 1-3 pound crystallized ginger, 3 lemons.

Pare and cut quinces in very thin slices. Wash lemons and cut in very thin slices. Remove seeds and as much of the skin-like intersections as possible. Cut ginger in paper-thin slices. Cover quince slices with water and cook until water is evaporated. Add lemons, sugar and ginger and cook until thick. Pour into jelly glasses and seal with paraffin when cold.

Quince Marmalade

Three pounds quinces, 1½ pounds apples, 2 cups sweet cider, sugar.

Pare quarter and core apples and quinces. Put in a baking dish and add cider. Cover and bake in a slow oven until tender. Add more water as the cider thickens and is absorbed. The mixture should be solid but there should always be enough liquid to prevent burning until tender. Measure fruit and add one and onehalf cups sugar to each cup of fruit. Cook, stirring constantly until thick and jelly-like. Pour into sterilized jelly glasses and cover with paraffin when cold.

Canned Quinces

Wash fruit. Dip in boiling water for five minutes. Dip in cold water and drain. Pare, quarter and core. Pack in sterilized jars, adjust rubbers, pour over medium thin syrup, half seal and process 40 minutes. Finish sealing and cool quickly. If the quinces are not too large cut in halves and remove cores. Halves are nicer for salads than quarters.

Medium thin syrup is made by boiling three parts of sugar with two parts of water for five minutes.

Everything comes to him who waits—and advertises.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

ANDY ANTELOPE LEAVES HOME

Little Andy Antelope was the most curious person you ever knew.

He was so curious that the two funny sharp horns just beginning to grow on top of his whitey brown head looked almost like two question marks, his shiny eyes being the dots underneath.

And he was as pretty as a picture, too, with two broad white stripes across his throat, and white spots on his back beside his wee nubbin of a tail, which was really no tail at all.

One day he deliberately walked off from his mother, who was very careful of him, and started on his travels.

"I'm going to see the world," he said to himself. "I want to see what it's made of, and who lives on it, and what they know. I've got a hundred questions to ask."

So off he clattered on his four neat little hoofs. He followed the creek till he came to the plain. Then he went along and along and along.

By 'nd by he came to a puddle pond, which was sometimes there but mostly wasn't.

Just now it was there and it had company, the puddle pond had. It had a nice little frog that wandered over from the creek.

"Hello" said Andy Antelope. "Who are you?"

"Taddy Frog," croaked the little green fellow.

"Oh, we must be cousins," said Andy Antelope, "for neither of us has tails and we've both got spots and you look as though you were getting horns."

"Perhaps we are," croaked Taddy in a friendly voice. But he looked doubtful.

"Well, goodby; come and see me sometime," said Andy. "But I must be going. I'm on my travels."

And away he went to the next place.

That was a swamp spot near the creek where a lot of reeds grew.

Andy was thirsty and took a long drink. When he looked up there was long-legged Mister Crane looking at him.

"Oh, hello" called Andy. "What's your name? And what's your horn growing on the front of your face for instead of on top of your head, and why have you two legs You can't be my cousin for we aren't a bit alike."

"I should say not," declared Mister Crane haughtily. "I couldn't talk as much in a year as you do in a minute. Say, did you see Taddy Frog around"

"Why, yes," said Andy pleasantly. "He's over in that puddle-pond. Wait and I'll go and get him."

The Twins were watching.

BRAIN WORK

No matter what age you have attained, you don't have to halt and mark time on life's highway just because you are 35, 40 or 75 years old.

The brain is a mass of wonderful cells, capable of unlimited development. Supposed age limitation has made many men and women failures because they feared to try or trust their own brains.

We have arteriosclerosis, loss of real power in the arteries. Also locomotor-ataxia, which interferes with our powers of movement. In a far greater degree we have brain fag and atrophied cerebrums.

When we 'know it all" we stop growing.

A few moments' conversation with a person who has stopped his mental growth and activities, will reveal the situation clearly to one who is in the middle of his mental channel and not looking to either shore.

The brain cells may lie dormant for five or even ten years, but they are capable of recuperation beyond almost any other vital organ. They can stage a comeback if provided with mental food.

Food excess will overload the system with poisonous waste products. This is taking blood supply from needed cells and it brings mental laziness.

Beware of psychic apathy. It is easy to drift into physical reaction through a depressed state of mind. Don't look backward and count the years. If you look forward to renewed mental growth, even though you are sixty, you may be much younger than your neighbor, who is only thirty.

POWER OF LEAGUE A VEXED QUESTION

Géneral Aspects of Body's Competency Goes To Court at The Hague.

GENEVA, Sept. 28. — (Canadian Press).—The Council of the League of Nations, after two hours' debate last night, agreed to submit two questions covering the general aspects of the League's competency in international complications to the permanent Court of International Justice at The Hague. This was brought about by the action of the smaller states, who sent a collective note to the Council relative to an interpretation of the covenant.

The Council also provisionally decided that two others questions shall go before a special commission of eminent jurists, rather than to The Hague Court, because they are deemed to be of political rather than a legal nature. One concerns the right of the states to adopt coercive measures, while the other endeavors to secure the fixation of a country's responsibility for crimes committed in its territory.

Members of the Council last night tried to induce Signor Salandra, the Italian member, to consent to The Hague Court's passing upon whether other matters, such as incidents affecting national honor, are also to be excluded, but Signor Salandra was obdurate. He said he did not want such incidents to go before a permanent court, and was not sure that he wanted them to go anywhere.

SECTIONAL MEETING OF PETERBOROUGH PRESBYTERIAL W.M.S.

The sectional meeaing of the Peterborough Presbyterial W.M.S. held in Millbrook, Thursday afternoon, was a decided success. The weather was ideal and nearly every district was represented. Mrs. Ewart of Cobourg, president, was in charge. Reports from all branches of the Mission work were heard and discussed. Bringing out many splendid ideas and suggestions for carrying on the work. Vocal numbers by Mrs. Gervan and Mrs. Johnson of Millbrook, were beautifully rendered. In every way the meeting was most helpful. Refreshments were served by the ladies of Millbrook at the close of the meeting.

Fourfold Protection for a Family Man

THE Mutual Life of Canada has acquired an experience of over half a century of life insurance. It has studied the results of thousands and thousands of policies. Our experience convinces us that for the average family man the most useful and economical form of insurance is the profit-participating, long-term, endowment policy. This policy matures at a specified advanced age, but is of course payable at prior death if that age be not attained.

Annual dividends are paid to holders of these policies and results will surprise those who have not realized what Mutual profit-participation can accomplish towards lessening the cost of life insurance. On some of these long-term endowment policies, taken out in youth, policy-holders at maturity have actually received in cash 100% more than they have deposited with the Company as premiums!

Accident and Disability Clauses

For a small additional premium, the Company will add the provision that should the assured at any time be overtaken by total permanent disability no further premiums shall be payable, and furthermore, the Company will pay the assured a monthly income during the continuance of total disability. And if desired a still further privilege may be secured—namely, a double indemnity in the event of death by accident—that is, the Company will pay double the face value of the policy.

Mutual Long-Term Endowment thus furnishes fourfold insurance protection—first against death, second against old age, third against disability, and fourth against accident. At the same time profits so reduce the cost of insurance as to make this policy an investment yielding not only all that it costs, but all the way from 25 to 100% more according to age and length of the endowment term.

HAMILTON COUNT ON A WIN HERE

The Hamilton Spectator says:—To-night at 5.30 o'clock at Eastwood park, the 2-in-1's will have their last workout before going to Peterboro to-morrow night. In all the pracices this week the boys have displayed great form and are confident of a victory in the Quaker city on Saturday. It is likely Whitney will pitch this game, though it would not be a surprise if Manager Beemer sends Gordon right back. Both Whitney and Gordon are confident of a win, regardless of who pitches. The hitters, better known as murderers' row, are all tuned up ready to see the Pets back financially through lost balls in the outfield and those knocked over the fence. Harley, who bats fifth, is certainly taking care of his war club, and it is said that he takes it to the collegiate with him, not trusting the bat boy. All players are asked to turn out to this practice, as it will have an important bearing on the success of Saturday's game.

SHUN "MODERN" WIVES

FRANKFORT-ON-THE-MAIN, Germany, Sept. 27. — (Associated Press). — Germans do not want their wives too modern. That is quite clear from the advertisements for wives appearing in the best German newspapers.

A German wholesaler who has a flourishing business in Portugal, wants a wife between 18 and 22 who is able to adopt herself readily to the different conditions of life she will find in Portugal, but who is "not too modern" in her ideas. She must not have bobbed hair, must be companionable, beautiful, good-natured and "thoroughly domestic" in her tastes.

Many of the advertisement for wives are in the name of relative of the prospective bridegroom. They frequently say that the negotiations are being conducted without the knowledge of the man in the case, and will be completed between the two families before the principals are presented to each other.

DR. MAYO MAKES EXACT STATEMENT CURE OF CANCER

ROCHESTER, Minn., Sept. 28.—At a meeting of the general staff of the Mayo clinic, held a few days ago, Dr. W. J. Mayo referred to recent newspaper comment on his remarks made with regard to the present status of the cancer problem, quoting him as declaring, in substance, that there was no cure for cancer. In the course of a lecture in London in July Dr. Mayo said, "There is no medical cure for cancer," in other words, no medicine taken internally will cure the disease. Continuing, he said that a great deal of experimental work was in progress in all parts of the world, all of which gradually was adding important knowledge concerning this serious disease, but unfortunately, these investigations, which have been made on animals, have, not, as yet, any direct application to human subjects.

Dr. Mayo, in his talk to his staff, said that the cure of cancer depends on diagnosis and removal at the earliest possible time. In some manner, the laity must be taught to understand these truths. Experience in the Mayo clinic has been that 71.8 per cent of patients operated on for cancer when the disease is still localized, that is, has not extended beyond the primary focus, are cured by operation, and the large majority of the remainder greatly benefited, and many have been cured even when the disease had extended beyond the focus.

Surgical operation is the only method of removal to be seriously considered, Dr. Mayo continued, because it permits removal, with the growth, of surrounding tissues and glands that may have become involved in the disease. The X-ray, radium and other agents have a field of usefulness in connection with surgery, but a patient should not be subjected to X-ray, radium or other treatment without careful surgical consultation since, if such agents are used while the disease is still local, and fail to cure, the resultant tissue changes delay dependable surgical operation and may perhaps prevent it. Radiotherapy and other treatment in the hands of untrained persons or those whose knowledge is limited to one type of treatment, do an enormous amount of harm. Lacking knowledge, these practitioners are not able to differentiate and apply the method which experience would show to be the best method suited to the individual patient.

Dr. Mayo now permits these statements to be made public in the hope of correcting an unfortunate impression which has been spread by many newspapers in this country. Since his return from Great Britain he has had an enormous number of letters from persons suffering from cancer, the letters containing clippings from newspapers in all parts of the United States purporting to quote him as saying, "There is no cure for cancer," without reference to his basic statement that surgical removal does cure the disease. What Dr. Mayo actually said was, "There is no medical cure for cancer.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Voice of the people

To the Editor of The Exminer:

Sir,—As the man who wrote the letter demanding that the Ministerial Association clear itself of what appeared to me to be serious charges against it, I would like to say that since Rev. Pogue and Chief Newhall do not appear to me by their letters to have known what they were formerly talking about, I must have got into the same box. I rejoice that it was all a mistake. It is the first time I ever knew a mistake to be not a mistake. It reminded me of the old Scotch woman who was reminded in the present prohibition campaign in Scotland that Christ was not a prohibitionist. She replied: "I ken it weel and I can tell ye we do not think any the more of Him for it." All's well that ends well.

WOMEN PIONEERS FOR PUBLIC HEALTH IN NORTHERN ONTARIO

Three Notable Women on 3,000 Mile Auto Tour Carry Gospel of Social Hygiene Into Remote Parts of North Ontario.

(Written for The Canadian Press by Anne Perry.)

TORONTO, Sept. 28.—After motoring nearly 3,000 miles through outlying parts of Northern Ontario, addressing twenty-two audiences and many thousands of people in summer resorts, towns, hamlets, pioneer settlements and agricultural districts, three intrepid women workers for the cause of social hygiene have just returned to Toronto from a five weeks' unique journey, during which they conducted an intensive and highly successful campaign for better standards of private and public health.

The women gospellers were Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, one time suffrage leader in Great Britain, Mrs. R. A. Kennedy, prominent war worker and clubwoman of Ottawa, and Miss Estelle Hewson, Ontario Secretary of the Canadian Social Hygiene Council, which was sponsor for the trip. Travelling alone, with Miss Hewson at the wheel and in charge of arrangements, these three apostles of child welfare, racial improvement and the highest standards of public health brought to the remote parts they visited what was in many instances an absolutely new message of social regeneration. It was given to rich and poor alike and there was no mincing of words or trifling with facts. Audiences included town crowds in the more southerly centres, fashionable, cultured gatherings in the big summer hotels, French-Canadian lumbermen in the mill towns in Parry Sound district, scattered groups of pioneering settlers on the north shore of Lake Superior and farmers on Manitoulin Island. Getting across to the latter place meant squeezing a suffering sedan into a ferry unaccustomed to motor cars or women gospellers, but the thing was done and nearly a week was spent among the habitants of the big island, where meetings were addressed daily.

Over five thousand people throughout a widely scattered region hears, it is estimated, the subject of social hygiene discussed frankly by Mrs. Pankhurst and her companions, who unwearied by the wear and tear of almost continuous travelling, faced interested and often wondering audiences almost every evening. In the town halls, the schools, the churches—numbers of these in the newest towns being Union Churches—the hotels, in fact, anywhere that room could be had or a crowd gathered, they delivered their message and distributed literature. At Sault Ste. Marie an audience of 800 filled the auditorium of the Technical School, while across the river the American "Soo" greeted the Canadian visitors with an attendance of over 500. This was the only time during the trip that any point outside Ontario was touched, though many interested American tourists in the summer hotels and colonies of Muskoka turned out to the meetings. At one well-known hotel the proprietor had reserved choice quarters for the social hygiene missionaries, entertained them as guests and saw that their highly successful meeting was well advertised in advance.

Contrary to all expectations the summer guests in the Muskoka resorts, among whom were many notable persons from many parts of the continent, displayed unusual interest in the Pankhurst party and its message, deserted their bridge table and ballrooms to attend their meetings and exhibited both personal and practical sympathy with the objectives of the mission. Less illustrious gatherings in small towns or settlements along the route were not less responsive and the social hygiene gospellers felt that the main object of the tour had been accomplished.

This was, to bring to the people o the remoter parts of Northern Ontario a clearer realization of the menace of venereal diseases as a race destroyer; the urgent need for open-eyed, uncompromising, common sense and courageous dealing with a social plague which thrives on secrecy in all communities big or small; and to outline the necessity for the better education of old and young alike in the way to attain not only personal but community health.

Results of this efficiently conducted tour include the formation of three new social hygiene councils to link with the national body, the arousing to interested action of groups of prominent citizens in almost every locality touched and the offer of co-operative individual effort from mayors, magistrates, ministers, judges, doctors, health officers, large employers, business men, clubwomen and mothers of growing families.

Defining social hygiene propaganda as "The great crusade of the twentieth century and perhaps the greatest reform movement of all time," Mrs. Pankhurst on all occasions and to all audiences based her appeal for good hearing and hearty help on the slogan, "Every child in Canada ought to be assured of its three-fold birthright of physical, mental and moral health." People who came to see a belligerent militant leader typifying rebellious womanhood, remained to hear a softly spoken, gentle lady with a forceful message. The essential motherliness of herself and her constructive message carried conviction everywhere.

Mrs. R. A. Kennedy, the second member of the party, contributed largely to the success of the crusade by her knowledge of war and after-war conditions. During the war she was treasurer of the Canadian Women's War Work Committee at Folkestone, and in charge of the Maple Leaf I. O. D. E. Club in Connaught Place, London, an institution which did such commendable work that she was decorated by the King and Queen. As President of the Women's Club of Ottawa she has a wide acquaintance all over Canada, touches the national life at many angles, is a gifted speaker and thoroughly good "mixer." During the trip she met many boys who had been entertained in her hostel and in every town was able to offer practical advice concerning after-war social conditions. As one of a family of five, all of whom served in some capacity at the Front—her husband as a doctor, both sons in the army and her daughter as a V. A. D., and Mrs. Kennedy herself as a nurse—she speaks as a veteran and thinks as a genuine patriot. She has now enlisted as a volunteer in the army combatting venereal disease.

Practical evidence of the sympathetic reception accorded the health campaigners lies in the fact that the entire expenses of the trip were paid from collections taken at the meetings or personal donations offered by individuals.

Great credit is due to Miss Estelle Hewson, Ontario Secretary of the Canadian Social Hygiene Council, who acted as chaffeur and general manager of the tour. Miss Hewson's management of the car and the tour were equally efficient. In the whole three thousand miles covered by the party only one delay was caused by car trouble and it came from a trifling tack on the road. But the message and its messengers went marching on despite hindrances and over all obstacles, such as rocky trails, narrow passages and unknown territory. The gospellers in many cases found that local practitioners and health officers were warmly grateful for a public exposition by trained speakers of conditions with which they had to deal every day and disease they have to combat without the support which publicity gives or any clear understanding by the public of the alarming ramifications of venereal disease in all communities. In a few cases, however, the old animosity of prejudiced medical men was encountered and resentment at the intrusion of lay performers into what used to be exclusive medical territory. One of the great victories of the trip lay in meeting and conquering this prejudice, where it existed, and in lining up those who held it to do battle with the old, common enemy. The missionaries were greatly helped by the assistance of various women's clubs at points on the tour, and the Provincial BoWrd of Health.

AT THE ROYAL.

"THE TOWN THAT FORGOT GOD" PLEASES A LARGE CROWD AT ROYAL.

You recall with satisfaction "Over the Hill," because of its human interest appeal. Here we have another made by the same director, and he has hits the mark again as surely as he did with his masterpiece. In addition it presents the greatest of all storms yet to reach the screen. It is a picture that will command reverence, gratify admirers of thoroughly clean entertainment and satisfy followers of worthwhile motion pictures. Incidentally it introduces a truly wonderful boy actor. Bunny Grauer. It will be shown for the balance of this week, with usual daily matinees.

"THE PRODIGAL SON."

Sir Hall Caine's Biggest Story in a Gigantic English Film Masterpiece.

Beginning on Monday, 1st October, Peterborough will see the premiere of the biggest English film to be released for some time, namely Stoll's "The Prodigal Son," directly adapted from Sir Hall Caine's powerful story. This film created a furore in the Old Country, where it was run in seventeen reels and played in two different parts, an admission of $2.00 being obtained for each part. For Canada, however, the film has been re-edited and condensed to a powerful ten-reel version, and presents one of the biggest and most gripping motion pictures ever seen.

The locale of the story takes place in Iceland, England, Paris, and Monte Carlo, and concerns the drama of two brothers, one Oscar Stephenson, the spectacular, reckless, daring son, who breaks all the laws of God and man, and yet withal retains the personality and redeeming quality that stamps him as a man and wins for him the sympathy of the half-million readers who have read the famous book and the million of photoplay fans who will see the picture.

The other brother, Magnus Stephenson, is the stolid, stoic elder son, a commonplace figure who suffers, endures, and sacrifices for the sake of his spectacular brother, and still this man, after forty years in the paths of righteousness and service to God and man, suddenly bursts all bonds of continence and restraint, and steals in the dead of night to the room of the stranger with intent to rob and kill—which supplies one of the greatest climaxes that has ever been presented in motion pictures.

"The Prodigal Son" has been praised during its English runs as surpassing in power and interest "Over the Hill," "Way Down East," and "Hearts of the World," and is now at the very greatest height and pinnacle of its popularity in the Old Country.

Furthermore, this film was exhibited at trade shows in New York and other American cities, and the American critics have been unstinted in their praise, classing this film as one of the greatest masterpieces of all times, and the picture is now in the act of being bid for by all the biggest American producers for its American distribution.

AT THE CAPITOL.

"Be Young Again!" is the sentence under the advertisement for "The Eleventh Hour" at the Capitol Theatre now, and that describes pretty well the effect of the feature picture. It is an up-to-date thriller, sensational, melodramatic in the extreme, "packed with suspense." The old Nick Carter favorites had nothing on this picture, that speeds a dim-novelish way through a series of terrific episodes that include an "Octopus" hero, who indulges in little diversions such as a secret pit, where hungry lions wait for the unwary who have irritated their master. The hero, with a sword, battles among these lions for sundry exciting moments, and escapes by the skin of his teeth, while the dwarf who guards the big cats chuckles with glee. The keeper endears himself to his audience when he manifests the same degree of mirth at the villain's downfall and subsequent devouring, for the master mind falls finally into his own pit, to make a meal for his own pets.

In the meantime, there are numerous incidents of a highly exciting and entertaining nature of the sort that made a young boy, coming out of the theatre yesterday, remark, "Gee! that was a great picture!"

One of the most interesting portions is the part which shows the inner workings of a real submarine, speeding along under water, then rising to engage in a race with a flying motor-boat and an aeroplane. The motor-boat sinks, the aeroplane is brought down by guns, and the submarine claims its victims, the heroic man and maid who act as central figures in the melodrama, Charles Jones and Shirley Mason doing some real good work in this picture.

Then the young people get themselves shot out of the torpedo tubes, a gaspy interval during which the audience holds its collective breath. There is a wild finish, where the hero effectually disposes of his two chief enemies, one to the lions, the other hurled to a pit of boiling metal, and the explosive which has caused all the trouble is finally located in a perfume bottle.

As a welcome antidote to a long-continued diet of society and sex films, this comes like a breath from long-ago days when anything might happen between the covers of the dime novel, and when the impossible thing became the possible, just by the wave of the magician's wand of a lively imagination.

The inclusion of the modern elements of a submarine and an aeroplane take the curse, to a certain extent, off of the serial-picture like intervals which depict the machinations of the master villain and his octopus-emblazoned henchmen.

FOOTBALLL NOTES

The De Laval Juniors will play the C.P.C. Juniors on Saturday afternoon, September 29 at King Edward Park. Kick-off at 1.30 p.m. Referee Mr. F. Keller. This match will decide which of the above teams will retain for one year the handsome trophy donated by the Mayor.

The Point of Contact

THERE'S a simple catch in the familiar phrase that tells how the world beats a path to the door of the man who makes a better mouse-trap.

The maker of anything, if he is to win the plaudits of the world, must not only manufacture a superior product, but must also let folks know of his achievements. He must point out just why his mouse-trap, his automobile or his shaving cream is better than his neighbor's. He must advertise.

Advertising is the point of contact between the man who makes something and the man who wants something. Through an advertisement, a manufacturer can tell you in a few short minutes all you want to know about the article or the service he has to offer.

This newspaper is constantly full of ideas that other men and women have thought out for your personal benefit. Fail to read the advertisements and you remain in ignorance of countless products that would make life easier, happier and more interesting for you and your entire family.

Advertising gives you news of the latest and best things made—with word as to what they will do, what they cost and where to get them. Think of all you miss when you overlook the advertisements

C. G. E. TEAM OUTHIT BY BROCKVILLE TEAM IN FIRST OF SERIES

Locals Expect to Have No Difficulty in Redeeming Themselves at Return Game Here.

FEATURES OF GAME

The Canadian General team took an awful walloping from Manager Rider's heavy-hitting Brockville crew in the Island City, yesterday afternoon. The Electricians were unable to collect many hits off Whitings benders, twelve of them being retired on strikes. The principal feature of the game was the great collection of hits made by the Brockville team off Frost and Galbraith, all the team but Simon sharing in the slug-fest. The Easterners secured at least one hit in every inning but the eighth, bagging in all 1 home run, 3 doubles and 11 singles. The fielding on both sides was remarkably good the feature being McCarney's throw from deep centre to retire Simon, Brockville's fast centre-fielder at the plate in the first innings. Generals had men on the bases in almost every inning, but snappy fielding nipped these rallys in the bud, MacLean at short-stop being especially prominent.

Brockville wasted 4 hits in the first 3 innings, but were able to combine two hits with the first error of the game for a pair of counters in the fourth. A double, two singles and MacLean's long homer were good for four in the fifth.

They got 2 unearned runs in the sixth from 2 hits and an error and two more in the seventh from 3 hits and an error. The eighth was the only inning when Brockville went hitless.

C. G. E. scored their only run in the eighth, when Dugan, who had walked came home on Rose's triple to centre.

First Innings.

C.G.E.—Barrie grounded to Taber. McCarney doubled to left and took third on Dugan's infield out. Taber to Reilly. Rose struck out.—No runs, one hit, no errors.

Brockville—Hunter rolled to Rose. Taber singled, Frost knocked down Simon's hard liner and forced out Taber at second. Lane singled to right centre and McCarney threw out Simon trying to score on the play. No runs, two hits, no errors.

Second Innings.

C.G.E.—Ross struck out. MacPherson walked and moved up on Jackson's sacrifice. Hall struck out. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Third Innings.

C.G.E.—Frost struck out. Barrie lifted to Oakey. McCarney and Dugan singled, but Rose grounded to first. No runs, two hits, no errors.

Brockville.—Whiting singled over first. Hunter lifted to MacPherson and Ross took Taber's high foul. Simon grounded to Barrie. — No runs, no errors.

Fourth Innings.

C.G.E.—Ross lifted a high one to Hunter and MacPherson repeated to Taber. Jackson struck out. No runs, no hits or errors.

Brockville—Lane rolled to Barrie. Oakey chose a wild pitch for his third strike and stole second. Frost's throw to catch Oakey off the bag went to centre field, the runner taking third, to score on MacLean's grounder to Barrie. Lesperance doubled over the short left field fence and scored on Reilly's single to right. Whiting forced Reilly to end the innings. Two runs, two hits, one error.

Fifth Inning

C.G.E.—Hall was out, MacLean to Reilly. Frost flied to Simon and Barrie hit over second for two bases McCarney grounded to MacLean. No runs, 1 hit, no errors.

Brockville—Hunter doubled and went to third on Taber's roller to Barrie. He was held while Frost threw out Simon but scored on Lane's single to centre. Oakey singled sending Lane to third and both scored on MacLean's crashing drive over the cars in deep right for the circuit. Lesperance ended the session by striking out.

Four runs, 4 hits, no errors.

Sixth Innings

C.G.E. —Dugan and Ross struck out and Rose lifted to Taber.

No runs, hits or errors.

Brockville—Galbraith now pitching for Peterborough. Reilly rolled to Rose. Whiting and Hunter dropped. Texas leaguers in right and moved up when Galbraith fielded Taber's tap to first instead of third. Both runners scored when Barrie dropped Simon's pop fly. Lane walked and Oakey struck out.

Two runs, 2 hits, 1 error.

Seventh Innings

C.G.E. —MacPherson grounded to MacLean. Jackson singled and stole second. Hall and Galbraith struck out.

No runs, 1 hit, no errors.

Brockville—MacLean singled and stole second. Lesperance beat out a tap to Galbraith and took second when the pitcher threw over Dugan's head, MacLean scoring. Lesperance scoring. Whiting struck out. Hunter singled past second but was stranded when Taber lifted to Hall

Two runs, 3 hits, 1 error.

Eighth Innings

C.G.E. —Barrie rolled to second and McCarney flied to Simon. Dugan walked and scored on Rose's three bagger to centre. Rogers batting for Ross struck out.

On run, 1 hit, no errors.

Brockville—Simons and Lane sent up high ones for Barrie and Jackson. Oakey walked and MacLean struck out.

No runs, 1 hit, no errors.

Ninth Innings,

MacPherson struck out, but reached second when Lane droped the third one, and threw to right field. Jackson rolled to Reilly. Ranger, batting for Hall, struck out, and Galbraith ended it by rolling to short. No runs or hits, one error.

Rogers, the recruit catcher from the junior league, was given an opportunity in the last two innings and handled himself nicely.

The return game will be played at Riverside park on Monday, Oct. 1st at 3 p.m.

Notes on the Game.

The Brockville Rifles band was out in force and enlivened the proceedings by continuous reiteration of the fact that the "Gang's All Here" and that they had "No Bananas To-day."

The gate in the Brockville ball park is in deep left and the players were considerably hampered by late arrivals in the first few innings. Walter Jackson in particular got a nasty bump when he collided with a spectator in fielding a high foul back of third base.

The C.G.E. team were splendidly entertained by the members and supporters of the Brockville Club. Mr. A. J. Potvin, an old Peterborough boy, business manager of the team, and Mr. Hunter, the hard-hitting right fielder, arranged a motor boat trip among the islands of the St. Lawrence in the morning. After the game the members of both teams were guests of the Brockville Board of Trade at a banquet, which was addressed by the Rev. Canon Shatford of Montreal on his impressions of conditions in Europe during his extended journey through Western Europe during the past summer. Both ball teams weer complimented by President C. E. Bissel, of the Board and Mayor Reynolds, on their sportsmanlike conduct on the field, and Mr. Bob Ross tendered the hearty thanks of the C.G.E. team for their kind reception.

BALTIMORE WINS FROM THE GIANTS

Reading Held Athletics to a Tie — Both Games Extended.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 27.—Lefty Groves pitched the Baltimore Orioles junior world's champions, and pennant winner of the International League this year, to a 4 to 3 victory over the world's champion Giants in a 10-inning exhibition game here to-day. Jack Bentley, former Oriole star, was in the box for New York. Score:

DE KALB, Ill., Sept. 28. — When nature was handing out rivers to this town, her generosity proved a total loss. Everything to make it a residental paradise, except a river, was taken care of.

True, there was the Kishwaukee But at freshet time of spring it was only waist high and this quickly dwindled to knee-deep just when the boys and girls wanted to go swimming.

So a plan to defeat nature was born. When the local ice firm changed over to modern sanitary and scientific methods it abandoned the big cement pool which it had built some years before.

A pump was installed and lo! a pool created. At first the children used it exclusively. Soon their dads and mas came around, and now everybody in town may be found cooling themselves during hot days.

SATURDAY'S GAMES.

O.B.A.A. Junior Finals.

Lakeviews vs. Niagara Falls at Niagara Falls.

O.B.A.A. Juvenile Finals.

Hamilton vs. Maple Leafs at Riverside Park.

* * * * * * *

How about a record crowd of supporters for the Maple Leafs at Riverside Park tomorrow afternoon? The youngsters put up a very creditable game at Hamilton a week ago in the face of big odds, and it is now their turn to receive support from the home crowd. What have the fans to say about it? The Juvenile championship of Ontario is at stake, and the Maple Leafs are out to win.

* * * * * * *

It is Welland in the West for the Intermediate title. In the East the battle is on between Brockville and the local C.G.E. team. That 10 to 1 score at Brockville yesterday may mean nothing. Canadian Generals are good stickers and the series is a long way from being setled.

* * * * * * *

Peterborough will enjoy another spread of free advertising at Niagara Falls tomorrow afternoon, the second game of the Junior finals being advertised as one of the big contests of the season. Reports on the progress of the game will be announced at the Hamilton-Maple Leafs battle at Riverside Park. Here's to the Lakeviews.

* * * * * * *

* * * * * * *

The city championships at Exhibition Park tomorrow afternoon should not be overlooked in all the baseball interest. Doug. Loomis usually puts on a lively four-ring attraction in the contests for the four trophies.

* * * * * * *

The major rugby series of the Province opens tomorrow. Ottawa open the season at M.A.A.A. grounds and the Hamilton Tigers play Argos at Varsity Stadium. Advance reports intimate that both the Eastern teams are stronger than last year, especially the Senators, who are reinforied by St. Brigid's of last year's senior O.R.F.U.

Meanwhile, the local rugby squad and its friends should decide as early as possible the course it will follow this season.

BOB MEUSEL AND PIPP OF YANKEES INJURED

Heilman's 18th Homer.

BOSTON, Sept. 27.—New York defeated Boston, 8 to 3 to-day, but in the eighth inning Right Fielder Bob Meusel injured his left leg sliding into home plate and had to be carried from the field. He succeed in scoring from first on Schang's single, but the daring hit of baserunning may cost the champions dear.

When the New York team arrived in Boston this morning, First Baseman Pipp stepped off the car and because there was no porter's step in place, sprained his ankle and could not play to-day. X-ray photographs of both injuries will be rushed through to determine whether any bone, were broken.

Pipgras' pitching today was effective. Boston bunched four hits in the sixth and made three runs. Recruit Outfielder Donaghue played a remarkable game at bat and in the field for Boston. Score:

New York .... 303 000 020—8 10 0
Boston..... ..000 003 000—3 8 3

Pipgras and Schang; Fullerton, Piercy and Picinich.

Closing on Cleveland

DETROIT, Sept. 27.—The Detroit Tigers advanced a game nearer second place to-day by winning from the Cleveland Indians 5 to 4. To-day's victory places the Tigers within two games of second place held by the Indians. Heilmann in four trips to the plate got but one hit, a home run in the sixth inning. It was his eighteenth homer of the season. Score:

Cleveland .... 102 001 000—4 11 1
Detroit.. .. 000 041 00x—5 9 1

Shaute and Myatt, O'Neill; Cole, Dauss and Bassler.

CHAMPIONSHIPS AT EXHIBITION PARK

Entries Close at 10 To-Night—Four Trophies.

The City Championships will he held on Saturday, September 229, at the exhibtion grounds, starting at 1.30 sharp.

Entries will close tonight, Friday, September 28, at 10 o'clock. Send your entries into the Y.M.C.A.

LIGHTWEIGHTS MATCHED

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—(Canadian Press)—Charley White, of Chicago, and Paul Moran, of New Orleans, two prominent lightweight title contenders, have been matched for a 15-round contest at Madison Square Garden, October 5. In a 12-round semi-final match, Harold Smith, Chicago bantanmweight, will box Danny Lee, of New York.

CHAMPION ROTARY TEAM GUESTS OF MAPLE LEAFS

The members of the champion Rotary team will be the guests of the Maple Leafs at Riverside Park tomorrow afternoon, when the Leafs play the second game in the O.B.A.A. juvenile finals with the 2 in 1 team of Hamilton. If the Rotary youngsters can root as well as they can play ball, the Leafs will be given some valuable assistance.

WANTED

The Help of 1,000 Fans to Root For the Maple Leafs To-Morrow.

The Maple Leafs want one thousand fans to turn out at Riverside Park tomorrow afternoon and help them register a win over the invaders from Hamilton. It is the second game of the final series, and a win for the Leafs will mean a play-off on neutral grounds, the Juvenile championship of Ontario.

Hamilton fans to the number of twenty-five hundred were on hand to support their favorites at Hamilton last Saturday, and they helped a whole lot.

The Leafs are in good shape for Saturday's contest, and the fans should see them going at top form. Bradley will do the hurling for the locals and will be opposed by Gordon, a southpaw, or Whitney a right hander.

ONLY TWO GAMES IN THE NATIONAL

Home Run Counts in the Defeat of Pittsburgh.

PHILADELPIA, Sept. 27—Boston took the opening game of the series from Philadelphia to-day, 7 to 2.

Jimmy Ring, the local star, weakened in the fifth when Boeckel hit a homer with two on. Score:

Philadelphia.. 000 002 000—2 11 0

Pittsburgh Loses

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—O'Farrell's home run drive with two on bases gave Keen a winning margin in the first inning, and Chicago won from Pittsburgh here to-day by 8 to 2. Miller also poled a homer, with the aid of Outfielder Cuyler, who touched a high bounder off Miller's bat, and sent the ball to the bleachers. A man was on base. Score:

Pittsburgh ..010 010 000—2 6 1
Chicago .....300 002 30x—8 11 0

GOLF "PROS." DOWN TO SEMI - FINALS

Sarazen's Defeat of Long Jim Barnes a Feature.

PELHAM MANOR, N. Y., Sept 28.—Gene Sarazen the black-haired youth, who stood the golfing world on its head in 1922 with his amazing game, stepped to the fore to-day in the professional Golfers' championship and won his way to the semi finals over "Long Jim" Barnes. The match, ended on the 36th, and last hole, rather dramatically.

And to-day, Sarazen, who won the professional and the Open championships last year, will meet "Wee Bobby" Cruickshank, of Westfield, N. J., who triumphed yesterday in an extra hole match, with William MacFarlane of Tuckohoe. Cruickshank won at the 39th. In the other half of the semi-final, Walter Hagan victor over Fred McLeod, of Washington, 5 up and 4, will play "Dapper George" McLean of the Grassy Sprain Club, Bronxville, whose uncanny putting eliminated Joe Kirkwood, the Australian, 5 and 4.

Tenser moments than some of those in the match between Sarazen and Barnes were probably never experienced in a golf match. "Long Jim" was playing his home course, a course on which he knows every roll in every green, the soft spots on fairways and the trickiness of the traps. Yet Sarazen took the lead on the very first hole and was never down to Barnes.

BAD FOR BASEBALL

The Yankees' successful defense of the American League championship may be another financial blessing to Colonel Jake Rupert, but it is a curse to baseball generally and one which hardly can be repeated indefinitely without serious damage to base ball and the ultimate enstrangement of thousands of the game's well-wishers.

The Giants, too, appear to have won their third consecutive pennant. Every prospect is for another world series in the metropolis. This will rouse no authentic enthusiasm outside of Manhattan and the contiguous hinterland. It may be asked whether in those parts the burden of sustained success has not begun to pall. Fans from other cities doubtless will attend the series, but their enthusiasm will be temperde with the suspicion that, if pennants are not bought, at least the combination of money and a spirit of commercialism is producing a very rotten condition in base ball, reducing the game to the level of professional fighting and a considerable stratum of the theatrical business.

Base ball today is, in fact, organized entertainment with a calculating eye on receipts. No one wants the base ball investor to fail. But patrons old enough to compare the legitimate whole-hearted enthusiasm of other days with the present abundant but apathetic attendance at ball games will ask whether it is not possible to restore profitable base ball to a place where defeat for the local team is an outrage and victory a signal for thanksgiving.

Base ball applause today is like applause for an actor. There is no local pride in it; it is simply disinterested recognition of talent. The red hot base ball partisan is a disappearing type and the loss is base ball's. No one feels like shouting three resounding cheers for the firm of I. P. Morgan or Standard Oil or the Vanderbilts or of Jake Ruppert. The Yanks' success this year [illegible] amount of enthusiasm it is bad for base ball.—Detroit News.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—Baseball fans have a keen interest in the big stars of the game.

After every contest in which some of the leading lights appear, there's always a big following outside the dressing room door to get a closeup of the favorites.

What kind of a fellow is So and So? That is a common question asked about the famous men of the diamond.

Perhaps no player in the game has had a more spectacular career than Walter Johnson. Coming to the American League an unknown rookie pitcher, inside of a month he was the sensation of the circuit.

Until the coming of the lively ball most of the glamor of the diamond centered around the pitcher. He was the big hero.

But the lively ball and Babe Ruth have changed things. The slugger is the hero of today in baseball. The player with the healthy wallop in his bat gets the loud applause.

Johnson Is Big Favorite.

What kind of a fellow is Walter Johnson?

That question has been asked me hundreds of times after Walter would perform some brilliant pitching feat.

"No finer fellow ever graced the major leagues."

In one short sentence that sums up the feeling of every player and umpire in the big show.

"They don't make 'em any better," is the way I have heard scores of players size up Johnson, in discussing the great pitcher.

During his long career in the majors Johnson always has won and lost on his merits. Never has he stooped to unsportsmanlike methods in order to increase his effectiveness.

When at the height of his career, Johnson could have made himself practically invincible if he occasionally resorted to the "bean ball," thereby intimidating the batsmen.

A Real Sportsman.

"I don't want to win ball games," Johnson once replied in answer to why he never resorted to such a method, "and I would never forgive myself if I injured some one in that way."

"As a result batsmen always faced Johnson, possessor of more speed than any pitcher in the history of the game, without the slightest fear. Blessed with good control, they also were aware that he would never throw at them.

No umpire can ever recall Johnson making a serious kick and no doubt we have slipped many a tough one against Walter.

"Fussing with the umpires never helped any pitcher. The umpires like to do their work well, just as I like to pitch a good game. I have always felt that the less you fuss with the umpire, the better he works."

Johnson Settled Dispute.

In the ninth inning of a ball game with two out and the winning run on third, the batsman hit to the first baseman. Johnson went over to take the throw. He beat the runner to the bag but overstepped it six inches, in such a way that no one on the infield could really see the slip.

I ruled the runner safe, the decision allowing the winning run to cross the plate and defeat Washington. Immediately I was surrounded by every player on the infield, all insisting I had missed the play.

"Bill was right. Get on me, boys, I missed the bag," said Johnson. Then he walked off the field.

Of course that ended the dispute. Perhaps only an umpire can appreciate what a big thing that was for Johnson to do.

Walter Johnson is one of the grandest characters in baseball. If all pitchers were like him I would work for half salary. I wish he could go on pitching forever.

Johnson, despite the many records he has established, is the same modest unassuming fellow he was the day he arrived from Weiser, Idaho, back in 1907.

THE ARGENTINE ENTERS SPORT

It is impossible to exclude longer the Argentine from international sports competition. Three incidents, happening within the last three months, have established this fact:

FIRST, the invasion last autumn of the representative Argentine polo team, coming to this country after a successful trip to England and, carrying Argentine mounts, captured the national polo title of the United States.

SECOND, A Senor Enrique Tirabocchi, a Italian descent and from the Argentine, swam the English channel and established a new record in accomplishing the feat. Senor Tirabocchi on Aug. 12 of this year crossed the turbulent strip of water in 16 hours and 23 minutes, breaking by more than five hours the record made by Capt. Webb back in 1875.

THIRD, a Senor Luis Angel Firpo came within an eyelash of defeating Jack Dempsey for the world's heavyweight crown and taking the most coveted of boxing titles back to his home on the other side of the equator.

The challenging nation in sports today is Argentine and the Anglo-Saxon finds menace in the challenge. Not alone in boxing and in swimming at various distances, in polo and in rowing does the Argentine defy the old established order in sports, but in track and field events, where the Americans, British and Finns have almost held a complete monopoly for years, the Argentine now threattens to take a controlling hand.

For the first time since Rome was bathed in athletic glory have the Latins lifted their voice in the circles of the mighty in soprt. For the first time since the gladiators of ancient Rome made holidays memorable by fighting with metal gloves to the death in the arenas of the conquerors, have the Latins aspired to regain world supremacy and the challenge that is being sounded by them now must be observed as the events of the last 12 months so well illustrate.

In polo the Argentine demands world competition simlar to the Davis Cup play in tennis. The Argentine, confident in its powers in mallet wielding, wants America, England, Irleand, India and other countries where polo is played, to join in a world tournament and establish the supreme polo nation.

During the summer of 1922 the crack polo squad of the Argentine traveled to England, carrying a string of 50 ponies, bred and developed for polo use in the Argentine. After a successful campaign in England, half the string was sold and the Argentine four invaded the United States, bringing the other 25 ponies to this country. After winning the national title here the Latin-Americans sold the remaining 25 ponies to Americans.

It was suggested at the time that the Argentine was going out of polo. On the contrary, the Argentine was going into polo stronger than ever. The Argentine is breeding hundreds of polo ponies each year and it is certain that while 50 ponies were sold to England and America there were probably twice that number just as good or better left in the Argentine.

Polo was introduced there by T. E. Preston, an Englishman who learned the game in India. That was many years ago. The Argentine took to the game and immediately set about breeding on a huge and scientific scale. They can breed magnificent horses in the Argentine and they were highly successful with polo ponies. Also, they developed good players. While it is true that two of their stars are Miles and Nelson, English by birth and Argentine by adoption, still the great national polo star of the country is Luis Lacey, native born.

The Argentine men are larger than the Latins of Southern Europe. They are more aggressive, stronger and they have many of the traits of the Anglo-Saxon, chief of which is probably a grim determination. They have the spirit that close physical combat demands.

Tirabocchi, who swam the English channel, is a wealthy manufacturer. He took up swimming. Having accepted it as his favorite sport he decided to go as far as possible in competition. He trained and practiced. He broke every long distance and endurance record in his native country and then invaded Europe to try the most difficult of endurance feat in swimming. Twice he tried to cross the channel and failed. He succeeded in his third attempt, not alone succeeded but smashed a record that had stood for 48 years.

These athletes from Argentine are a determined lot. They have the stuff of which champions are made and they can be ignored no longer.

Yankees Play Poor Ball at Home; Make Remarkable Showing on Road

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—The New York Yankees won another pennant and they won that honor on foreign field rather than at home.

Most ball clubs do their best work on the home grounds. The Yankees of 1923 have been a decided exception to this rule. Their showing in the sectional series has been far better on the road than at the Yankee Stadium.

The Yanks are a peculiar aggregation. The team can look like the greatest ball club in the world when going at top speed. When it is in a slump no club could possibly look worse. It so happened that in each world series with the Giants, the Yanks looked their worst. The result, easy wins for the Giants.

On the first trip through the west the Yankees lost only one game during the invasion of Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland and St. Louis. It was one of the most remarkable road trips ever made by a club in the majors. The first road trip including several eastern series in addition to the sectional clash, resulted in 17 victories and 3 defeats.

Coming back to the old home grounds after such a great trip, Yankee fans expected their favorites to run rough shod over the opposition. It was just the opposite. In the 21 games played at home during the month of June, the Yanks were able to just break better than even, winning 11 and losing 10.

On the second long tour made by the Yankees, 16 games were won out of 22 played. While the Yanks didn't flash so brightly through the west on the final trip, the team broke better than even.

Work of Untried Rookie Features Giants Play

There you have the opinion of Hughey Jennings, assistant to Manager John McGraw of the New York Giants. It is some compliment, coming from so able a critic as Jennings.

Travis Jackson is the young infielder who has proved such a valuable man for the New York Giants this year. To Jackson perhaps, more than any other player on the club, should go the honor of keeping the Giants in the race.

When Dave Bancroft, star shortstop of the Giants, was forced out of the lineup for over two months because of illness, it was figured the Giants were out of it. No position is harder to fill. To ask some youngster to plug up the gap made by the departure of a star like Bancroft from the lineup, seemed to be asking too much.

Jackson stepped right in and filled the bill, despite the fact that he has had only about a year's experience in professional ball. While he didn't do as well as Bancroft probably would have done, still he played a great game for an untried recruit.

Since the return of Bancroft he has filled in at third for the ailing Groh, and also has played second in a number of games. His work for the Giants in a pinch certainly bears out the nice things that Jennings says about him.

FRANK CHANCE QUITS BOSTON

Red Sox President Determined to Rebuild His Team.

BOSTON, Sept. 28.—(Canadian Press)—Frank Chance will not manage the Boston Red Sox in 1924, Robert Quinn, president of the club, announced tonight. The announcement followed a conference between the two earlier in the day. In his announcement Quinn stated that he intended to build from the ground up in restoring the Boston Club to its former place of prominence in the American League.

Quinn has two men under consideration for the managership, he said, but added that he would approach neither of them until after the world's series had been played. It was stated that the announcement that Chance wouud severe relations with the Red Sox was made because he wished to be free to negotiate with any other big league team that contemplates a change in managership. Chance will finish the season as the Red Sox pilot, however.

Surprise To Fans.

The announcement that Chance would leave Boston came as a shock to Boston fans, who have admittedly fallen off in numbers during the last two years while the Red Sox have occupied the cellar.

The signature of Frank Leroy Chance was attached to a Red Sox managerial contract on December 11, of last year, while H. H. Frazee owned the club. When Quinn and his associates of Columbus, Ohio, acquired the club this season, Chance retained the reins.

Welcomed Back.

The return of Chance to the diamond was hailed by fans with glee and his popularity has increased since he re-entered the baseball picture. As first baseman and "peerless leader," more than a decade ago, of the famous Chicago Cubs—National League champions four times and world's champions twice—Chance established a reputation as a brilliant field strategist, as well as a player.

Twice since he left the Cubs after 15 years as manager and played and retired to his California orange groves, Chance has succumbed to the lure of baseball. The first time was to accept a reported $40,000 contract to manage the New York Yankees, and the next time was to manage the lowly Red Sox. That he has not abandoned baseball and may be back next year with another legue club was intimated in President Quinn's announcement. Who will succeed Chance will be decided when the big league leaders congregate in New York during the world's series. While many names have been whispered as possible successor, little seems to be known as to the intentions of the new owners.

SHOCKER WANTS RELEASE.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 28.—(Canadian Perss)—A petition charging breach of contract and asking that Urban Shocker, star pitcher of the St. Louis Americans be a free agent, was served today upon Bill Friel, Business Manager of the Browns, by Jerome C. Duggan, attorney for the pitcher. A copy of the petition, it was announced, has been sent to Commissioner Landis.

GRAFTON & CO. AN ATTRACTION

The Enterprising Clothing Firm Would Not Be Denied at Lakefield Fair

It was hard to tell whether you were coming to a Grafton display or to the Lakefield Fair. Approaches and entrance as well as the grounds, were a blaze of streamers and banners all relating to Grafton's Maker to Wearer clothing. Graftons have been a feature of Lakefield Fair for over thirty years, and when they come they take possession. In their tent they had a very bright and effectively displayed exhibit of fall and winter clothing, with the caption, 'Values Bigger Than Ever" given special prominence. In addition to the clothing display, Grafton's have provided an attraction by having the celebrated Highland dancer, Annie Logan, give a number of appreciated dances, accompanied by Canada's greatest piper, Dave Grant, on the elevated platform of a truck provided for the occasion.

Some of the special advertising carried by the exhibit, refers to the big Surplus Stock Sale now going on in their store in Peterborough, and no doubt the publicity will be made more effective, backed by the attractive display at Lakefield. Grafton's evidently believe in supporting, as well as making use of the fairs, maintaining that the fairs are in the best interests of the community.

Peace in Europe is making almost as much noise as war itself.

FOOTBALL NOTES

A very interesting soccer league game will be played on Saturday afternoon at King Edward Park between the Canadian Woollens and the Thistles. Kick off at 3.30 prompt. Referee, J. Russell.

No doubt this league game will attract a good number of fans, because, if the Canadian Woollens defeat the Thistles, they will have no chance whatever of winning the league, but if they win, will place them in a good position. Therefore, a good clean game will be played.

The Canadian Woollens have to play the G.W.V.A. yet in the league, and if they win, they will compel the Thistles and Vets in a sudden death game for the league championship. If they defeat either team they will give the championship to either Thistles or G.W.V.A.

Last Monday evening, Mr. Fred Sutcliffe, local soccer representative in the O.F.A., gave a very interesting talk on his visit to Hamilton to settle the Inter-City vs. Toronto F. A. dispute, that was brought before O.F.A.

Mr. Harry Mann was a visitor to general meeting on Monday evening last and gave an account of his visit to the old country. His suspension was only talked over, not lifted. He is expected at next meeting when his case will be dealt with, if he so desires.

A representative of the press visited Bob Ralston, the well-known soccer Thistle full-back, who got his leg broken early in the season, and he looks well. Asked about his broken leg, he said, "Doing extra well and put on my shoe to-day for the first, but I still need the crutches yet." He mentioned playing with his native team in one season to the tune of 55 games and only missed one game, which was the last one. Bob was in France during the war and never received an injury while with the artillery.

A move in the right direction was made by the Ontario Junior Association when they became affiliated with the Senior Association. This will be an excellent chance for local junior association to get into the proper channel of legislature, also would be able to compete in Ontario junior championship.

The following rules are taken from local constitution, which reads thus: "Applications for membership must be in the hands of secretary and fees for the season must be in the hands of the treasurer before the date fixed for the annual general meeting. Each team admitted shall pay an entry fee of two dollars ($2.00) per season.

The Canadian General junior team defaulted their game last Saturday afternoon to the fast-going De Laval in the Taylor Cup tie, but a picked team between Packers and C.G.E. played the champions, who were defeated 4-2 This is a heavy score against Frick, who has played a good game all season in goal.

Woollens' Team.

The following players will represent the Canadian Woollens on Saturday, September 29, at the King Edward Park in their league game with the Thistles. Kick off at 3.15: Griffin, Cridland, Chambers, Sayers, Read, Bramhall, Mitchell, Warman, Gaskell, Shaw, Roberts, Reserves, Lee, Lauchlan.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Are left-handed batters superior to their right-handed brethren? The batting averages of the two major leagues make it seem so. While left handers are in the minority as to numbers, still they always make a most imposing showing at the top of the batting averages.

Since the opening of the major league seasons the left-handed batters have been showing the way. In the first ten batters of each league, there have always been six or more left-handed batters.

In a recent issue of the swat figures in the National and American Leagues a persual of the leading hitters showed that in the first ten in each league, eight were left handers and two right handers.

For years the batting championships in both majors leagues have been hogged by the left handers. In the American League Ty Cobb has been the bright particular batting star. Speaker and Sisler, also left handers, have held the premier batting honors. It has been very much the same in the National.

Hans Wagner, Larry Lajoie, Rogers Hornsby and Harry Hielmann have been a few of the right handers to win the batting honors in the majors.

SOMETHING ABOUT BONDS
British and American investors hold millions of Canada's Bonds because Canada's credit is second to none.
But—Canada is able and Canadians should be willing to refund her debts at home. It is good policy and it is even better business to have interest on Canada's debt paid to Canadians.
—then the money stays at home
Every person with $100, $500, $1,000 or more to invest should subscribe immediately for these Bonds. The Dominion of Canada itself is your security. The interest return is high. The Bonds will always have a wide and ready market. —Reg. H. Turner, 543 George street, 'phone 501

All Motor Drivers Should Be Forced to Try Rigid Exam

DETROIT, Sept. 28.—(Associated Press)—A locomotive engineer must spend years as an engine wiper and fireman before he is permitted to drive an engine over a private right of way, but any person may drive an automobile down a public street used by millions of people with no experience whatever.
This comparison was used by William P. Rutledge, chief of Detriot police and president of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, as the explanation of his edict calling for rigid examinations of all applicants for motor car drivers' licenses, which are required under a state law enforcement of this law a resolution adopted at the recent convention of the International Association in Buffalo.
"It is time for the police departments of the country to take the initiative in such matters, without waiting tob prodded into activity by civic societies," said Mr. Rutledge.
Carrying out the spirit of the resolution, the Detroit police department is requiring each applicant for a drivers license to demonstrate that he is physically fit to drive a car; that he can read and understand traffic signals, and that he understands thoroughly all traffic ordinances. As result of these examinations the police have found that only about a third of the applicants for licenses meet the requirements of a safe and sane driver.
It has been found necessary, Mr. Rutledge said, to establish police schools where prospective drivers of motor vehicles may learn how to handle a car. Classes are held two days a week, morning, afternoon and evening, and two lessons complete the course, after which the "students" may re-apply for licenses.

E. P. RANCH, Pekisko, Alberta, Sept. 28.—(Canadian Press.)—"Fellow Albertans you are welcome, and I hope you will enjoy the outing. My ranch is open to you to-day, go as far as you like." This democratic greeting uttered by Edward, Prince of Wales, served to put three hundred persons who attended the annual picnic of Alberta Shorthorn Breeders' Association at E. P. Ranch yesterday at their ease, and incidentally they took the Royal rancher at his word. They inspected the buildings, cattle and horses, talked live stock with the Prince and then concluded the proceedings by asking him to pose for snapshots, which he did with unyielding good nature.

57TH CHAPTER I.O.D.E. FIRST MEET OF SEASON.
The first meeting for this season of the 57th Regimental Chapter I.O.D.E. was held yesterday afternoon in the officers' quarters at the Armouries, the Regent, Mrs. E. B. Clegg, in the chair.
It was decided to donate the sum of ten dollars to Japanese relief work, this amount to be sent through the Provincial Chapter of the I. O. D. E. The ladies also made arrangements to hold an Armistice Tea, in aid of the National Educational Fund, and plan to ask all the local Chapters of the I.O.D.E. to co-operate with them in this undertaking, which will be held on the Friday, November 9th, immediately preceding Thanksgiving Day, in the officers' quarters at the Armouries.
It was also decided to hold a tea at Mrs. R. Neill's house on October 9th.
Mrs. R. E. Birdsall, of Birdsall's, who acted as delegate from the Chapter at the recent annual meeting held in Quebec, gave a report on the proceedings of the convention.
At the close of the business session, tea was served, Mrs. Clegg pouring, assisted by Mrs. C. S. Stapleton and Mrs. A. Stevenson.

CANADA IS ON THE WAY BACK TO PROSPERITY

Production and Trade Again Running High Declares Premier King in England.

GRAND TRUNK DEAL

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 29.—(Canadian Press). — Premier Mackenzie King on his arrival here greeted the press with a general review of the situation in Canada. The Premier declared that after a period of readjustment Canada now had well turned the corner. Production and trade were again running high, although, "we are still some distance from the goal we hope to attain."

As to his attitude with reference to the coming Imperial Conference Premier King made no statement. This he is reserving for the conference itself, but it is thought likely that when defence problems are under discussion he will favor rapprochement between Britain and France, and extension if possible of Washington treaties for the limitation of armaments.

In his appeal for consideration of investment of British capital in Canada, Hon. Mr. King declared that Dominion was very desirious of obtaining more capital from Old Land.

"Whatever may be said from point of wider British interests as to value of labor, distribution and investment," he said "we believe to be true of capital investment. Two, indeed should go together. Canada is land of opportunity for investor of capital as well as for man whose only capital is his skill and readiness to work. It is understood that Canadian delegates to Imperial Conference will take an opportunity to see that Dominion Goverment's side of case with reference to acquirement of Grand Trunk Railway property, is made known to investors in this country.

Pamphlets have been prepared for distribution reviewing charges made against government by Grand Trunk shareholder, in England with "material errors corrected."

HEALTH SEEKERS LIVE IN WAGGON

Out near Wallace's Grove, just inside a neighbouring fence, there is a caravan where a family have lived through the summer months, and where they will remain until cold drives them into a home in the city for the winter. As far as is known, this is the only caravan, with one exception, which has been used in this stationary way in Peterborough this year. The other vehicle drew up near Wallace's Grove for about a week, then moved on its homeward way to Newmarket.

In search of health for the mother, the family bought this big conveyance last year and lived out in the open, down near Brighton, from 3rd April to 18th November. Their start this year was made on 18th June.

They live outdoors all day long, and practically all night, as the caravan has plenty of air space about it. A one-horse affair, it swings high above the ground, entrance being furnished by means of a short ladder.

In cold days, the family lives inside, and uses an oil heater for comfort. In the warm weather, an iron stove cooks their meals, with the exception of pastry and a small table with chairs forms an outdoor dining-room. The lady washes outdoors also and presses her clothes beneath the mattress.

The father and mother and two young sons occupy the vehicle. They are early to bed and up at 6 o'clock, and the mother reports an increase of good health from the moment she begins to live out of doors in the summer.

Two dogs, Brownie, with a mixture of bulldog in his blood, and Shorty, a cranky Pomeranian, guard the caravan and its occupants.

A visiting daughter-in-law and her two little girls formed an interested audience at a visit recently. The eldest little thing has bright gold, curly hair, and the little one goes about constantly with her straight hair done up in rags, in a vain attempt to induce her dark locks to ripple up like her sister's fair ones.

WAS ELECTED TO-DAY.

LONDON Sept 29— (Canadian Press)—Sir Louis Newton was elected to-day as Lord Mayor of London for ensuing year. Sir Louis was senior sheriff of city in 1916, 1917 and was knighted in latter year. He was born in London December 17, 1867, son of late Reuben Newton, of Macclesfield.

Gasoline Prices Are Lowered Now To Pre-War Level

MONTREAL, Sept. 29.—Government price statisticians call attention to the fact in connection with the recent fall in gasoline prices that "gas" is one of the few things that is as cheap or cheaper than it was before the war.

As long as oil continues to be sold at existing prices, there is little inducement to develop new fields that are distant from centres of population.

This means that development generally on such oil lands is confined to primary operations. This puts off for a while the incoming of important wells in Alberta, while it makes quite remote the development of the Mackenzie River Oil fields.

BRIEF REVIEW WORLD EVENTS OF PAST WEEK

Chancellor Admits Germany Beaten by France —Will the British and English Entente Stand?

BALKAN SITUATION

BY CHARLES P. STEWART.

Chancellor Stressman admits out-and-out that France has beaten Germany in the Ruhr. He agrees to practically everything France wants. But he adds a few "ifs." They're unimportant but fall slightly short of unconditional surrender. The trouble is, terms with France threaten a revolt in Germany—by workers or royalists, or, in various places, both.

France and England.

Premiers Baldwin and Poincare of England and France have met and agreed, it's announced, on a policy enabling their countries to work in harmony again. Their relations have been strained for some time. Unfortunately, few believe they can co-operate long. Their interests conflict.

In the Balkans.

Greece has knuckled down to Italy but an Italian indemnity bill outstands against the Greeks. Italy and Jugoslavia have come to no settlement yet over Fiume. All Europe is worried over recent signs of irresponsible ambition on the Italian premier, Mussolini's part.

Bulgaria In Revolt.

A counter-rebellion's reported in Bulgaria, where the present miltarist cabinet recently overthrew Premier Stamboulisky's farm bloc regime. The militarists profess to have put it down, but their version isn't fully believed. It's rumored soviet influence is at work.

Russian Aid Refused.

Right after the Japaneses earthquake a Russian soviet ship entered Tokyo Bay to offer aid. But the captain said he came to help "workers" — nobody else. The Japanese sent the ship on her way, declining such relief. The Russian account is that the Japanese authorities were helping influential people mostly and bothering little about the rest. They say that's why the captain specified "workers"—he thought they NEEDED help.

Order Went Unheeded.

The Japanese government forbade American warships to cross Tokyo Bay's fortified lines, dire though the need of thousands on shore. Japanese destroyers crossed these lines but not to relieve general distress. They did it to get the body of an imperial prince who'd been killed. They disregarded even stretcher cases among others. So the Americans ships crossed the fortified lines anyway, did much good work and took off several hundred foreign refugees.

Friction in Ohlahoma.

Martial law prevails in Oklahema. It was as an anti-Ku Klux measure that Governor Walton called the militia out. Opponents of his course say this was unnecessary and that he's violated the state constitution, besides. A majority of the members of the state House of Representatives have signed a call for a special session to deal with the situation. Walton has threatened to put them in jail if they meet and adds that it will be an illegal session anyway.

Wets and Drys.

Statistics show government agents seized 5000 moonshine still in the past year. Also 2,000,000 gallons of wash. There's nothing to indicate how much the agents didn't find. Mayor Dever of Chicago is waging an anti-beer fight and 3300 barrels of beer were confiscated in one day. A dry paper complains that while Chicago has many citizens who usually "are eager to help in a warfare against crime," "we miss this activity in the present campaign."

LLOYD GEORGE LEAVES TODAY FOR NEW YORK

First Lap of Trip to Canada Was Occasion For Impressive Farewell.

MADE A SPEECH

LONDON, Sept. 29. — (United Press).— Hundreds of admirers of ex-Premier David Lloyd George were at Waterloo station to-day to bid him bon voyage.

The war time premier, accompanied by Mrs. Lloyd George, and their daughter Megan, left for Southampton, whence they were to sail later to-day for New York aboard the Mauretania.

Dressed in a new suit of blue serge, a light greyish helitotrope overcoat and a grey fedora hat, his face ruddy and grinning like a school boy off for the holidays, the diminutive statesman was in high spirits. He made a brief speech ending: 'look after the old country while I'm away." Lloyd George leaves England at a moment of internal political crisis. He is prepared to cut short his American itinerary and return at any time in the event of a serious turn in general European affairs at home that might call for his leadership. The former premier does not anticipate any such crisis at the moment and is looking forward eagerly to his first visit to the United States.

With his long, patriarchal white hair, his bright lavender ulster that touched the ground, and his weather beaten bowler hat, former premier presented striking figure as he was escorted to train by Sir William Sutherland and others who will accompany him to America

Dr Thomas J McNamara of Lloyd George cabinet spoke to the former prime minister in Welsh, whereupon Mr. Lloyd George jokingly remarked to newspapermen, "my colleague doesn't know Welsh very well."

Besides Mrs. Lloyd George and Megan Lloyd George was accompanied by his secretary A. J. Silvester, his former secretary, Sir William Sutherland, and a secret service man who will guard the British stateman closely throughout the trip.

NEW LECISLATION COMES INTO FORCE ON MONDAY.

OTTAWA, Sept. 29. — (Canadian Press).—Monday next, October 1, is the date chosen by the Dominion Government to bring into force three pieces of legislation which closely affect the business world, one of them particularly touching the frequently average citizen.

The three laws referred to are amendments made last session to the Bank Act, the revision of the Bankruptcy Act, and the withdrawal of the privilege of using postage stamps for payment of most taxes undr the War Revenue Act.

TOURS TO SEE RACE

LONDON, Sept. 29.—(United Press).—Special Cook's tours to Belmont Parkforth Papyrus-Zev race are being advertised for £117. ($533) The well known agency will transport one to New York and return with a seven-day stay at the Pennsylvania or McAlpine.

TREMORS AGAIN THREATEN JAPAN

Osaka and Kobe, Which Escaped Quake of September, Shaken Today.

PEKIN, China, Sept. 29. —Osaka and Kobe, leading cities of Japan, which escaped destruction in the quake of Sept. 1, were shaken to-day by earth tremors of moderate intensity.

The new shocks caused no damage and were not felt in other cities. The tremendous earthquake which destroyed Tokio and Yokahama, early this morning drove thousands of refugees to Kobe and Osaka. And the latter cities have taken over much of the economic and official life of the devastated capital and its port city.

FORMAL NOTICE TO FRANCE OF GERMANY'S SURRENDER

Official Advices That Passive Resistance Has Ended Expected Early Next Week—Critical Situation in Germany May Follow.

PARIS, Sept. 29.—(United Press.)—Germany will give formal notice of her surrender to France early next week.

Contrary to expectations, however, French troops in the Ruhr will be increased, upon receipt of official advices that passive resistance has ended.

Germany's internal situation, it is felt here and in Paris, will become critical immediately the order to resume work is given. The occupational forces will take no chances by premature withdrawal, but will be pushed up to the border lines between occupied and unoccupied Germany, ready for any eventuality.

When the internal situtaion clears, a movement for reducing the stringency of the occupation is in order from France. This is understood to be the semi-official British view of what will happen, based on intimations from Paris.

An Inter-Allied conference will follow.

NEW LEVEL ON STOCK MARKET

Selling Resumed on the Stock Exchange at Week-End Close.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Sept. 29.—(United Press)—Selling was resumed on the Stock Exchange at the week end following a brief spurt of improvement in the early dealings. Prices among the Industrial Stocks moved to new low level on the current reaction and in many instances such as Studebaker, Kelly Springfield and American Woolen into record low territory for the year. News developments had no discribable influence in staying the renewal of the decline. While the Mercantile reports were cautious in tone emphasized the point that the slow expansion still marked the general business field. But professional operators were so exasperated over the markets failure to follow through on Friday's rally, that they vigorously espoused the Bear side.

Short covering put in its appearance before the close and the general list scored some recovery in the final dealings. Studebaker, American Can, Dupont Corn Products and other active industrials rallied about a point on the average while the selling pressure noticeable most of the session in several sections of the list abated. The rails, too showed a better tone but the demand through out the list appeared to come largely from Professionals desirous of balancing their accounts over the week end.

Despite the heavy selling in the last hour of Friday's session of the Stock Market, the Industrial average held three cents above the previous low point on the movement made on Sept. 25.

This resistance and the fact that the weekly mercantile reviews reported unmistakable though slow expansion in Commercial and Industrial activities gave an improved tone to the General list in the early dealings. Heaviness continued in the General List about 11 o'clock while some issues steadied somewhat, other sections continued under pressure, giving an irregular appearance to the market as a whole.

The oils showed a relatively good tone. This group started to decline long in advance of the rest, and the best opinion for weeks has been that it is at least ninety per cent. liquidated. Good buying has come into Cosden lately. Interests which sold out at much higher levels have been replacing their holdings around 25. At this price Cosden shows a decline of 37 1-2 points from the year's high

Two Western Widows Obtain Heavy Damage.

REGINA, Sask., Sept. 29.—(Canadian Press). — Judgments for $14,000 each were given in King's Court yesterday to Mrs. Helen Masten, Regina, and Mrs. Lenna Purvis, Saskatoon, for the deaths of their husbands in a train collision at Openshaw, Sask., February 10, 1923. Settlement was made by the defendants, the Canadian National Railway, before the cases went to trial.

Canada's Premier And Party Arrive In England Today

LIVERPOOL, Eng., Sept. 29. — (Canadian Press Cable). — Right Hon. MacKenzie King, Premier of Canada, and his party arrived here this morning on their way to the conference of Premiers of the British Dominions.

A pleasant trip was reported on the steamer Montcalm.

In his interview with a British journalist the Canadian Premier took opportunity to appeal to British capital to consider the opportunitiess of investment in Canada. Mr. King also pointed out that unemployment in Canada had fallen to its lowest level in three years and the country desired in the largest measure that her farm and industries absorb men and women of British stock. Capital as well as settlers was needed, however, said the Premier.

LEGAL COMMITTEE OF COUNCIL MET

Will Report on Several Claims for Damages Against the City.

The city's legal committee met last evening and prepared their report for council Monday night on several claims for damages against the city.

Committee took no action on Mrs. W. H. Howard's claim of $75 for injuries to her wrist, when she slipped on a piece of ice on a sidewalk, March 27.

Albert Roe, who complains that back in June or July his car ran into a hole in the road somewhere in the north end considers, he is entitled to $30 damages. But Committee thought otherwise and took no action on his demand.

W. A. Graham, whose bicycle was badly damaged in collision with a motor car at the corner of Hunter and Burnham streets on September 11, is seeking compensation from the city. Graham holds his accident was due to the road being blocked, but committee, not admitting the city's liability, merely received the application.

George Edwards, whose car and Sanitary dce Company's truck came together on Engleburn avenue, claims $100 damages. Complaint contends that the accident resulted from a pile of sand obstructing the road, but committee did not admit the city's responsibility and took no action in this matter.

On motion by the Mayor and Ald. Stocker the engineer will be instructed to send in a report on all accidents as soon as they occur.

There were present Chairman Ald. Holloway, Mayor Taylor, Aldermen Maher, Crowe and Stocker and City Engineer and Joseph Wearing.

TO DEFINE CONDITIONS GERMANY MUST FULFILL

PARIS, Sept. 29. — (Canadian Press).—Premier Poincare, in his speech at Ailly to-morrow, will define conditions which he declares Germany must fulfil before France enters into reparation negotiations with her and before effective cessation of passive resistance in Ruhr will be recognized, it is learned in semi-official quarters close to Government.

The first of these conditions is that work in occupied territory be put on preoccupation basis. The second is that deliveries in kind be resumed.

MOURNERS AND BODY IS WASHED INTO TORRENT

Seventeen Known Dead And Much Property is Damaged as Result of Tornado & Cloudburst.

TOWN INUNDATED

OMAHA, Neb., Sept 29.—(Canadian Press)—Seventeen known dead, three missing, more than a dozen seriously injured and property damage estimated at more than half a million dollars, was the toll of a tornado and cloudbursts which visited Western Iowa and Eastern Nebraska last night.

At Council Bluffs, Iowa, where Tornado struck shortly after 9 p.m. Five persons are known to be dead, three missing and five seriously injured, and property damage is estimated at more than $250,000.

Eight mourners were drowned at Louisville, Nebraska, when the house, where the body of Mrs. Mary McCraver lay, was washed into a mill creek which had become a raging torrent after the cloudburst.

Houses Levelled

In Council Bluffs, twelve houses in row were levelled by tornado and the Strand, one of the leading theatres, was almost demolished when the rear end caved into Indian Creek. No one was injured when this building gave way.

Fire Followed Tornado

Fire followed Tornado and several homes and warehouses were destroyed.

In Omaha the rainfall approximated that the cloudburst. Several trains out of Omaha, Kansas City and Chicago remained here because railroad officials feared that many of the bridges might give away.

Water early to-day was running from three to six feet deep in the business section of Council Bluffs, and buildings were coated with a foot of mud.

A SPECIAL ORDER COMPLETED HERE

William Hamilton Company Provide New Equipment for Hollinger Mine.

The William Hamilton Manufacturing Company is at present engaged in the completion of an order which, when completed, will involve the manufacture of five of the largest crushing machines in the world, designed for the use of the Hollinger Gold Mines in the Porcupine district, who purpose using each of the machines to replace forty stamp mills, in use at present. Four have already have been shipped, and the fifth is nearing completion.

Each of the machines is 7 feet in diameter, 15 feet long, and weighs with a special hard iron liner, 80 tons. It is driven by a large bull gear around the centre of the drum, and requires 2,000 horse power to drive. It will crush about 1000 tons of ore every 24 hours, the ore going down a chute at one end of the mill in its natural state, and re-appearing at the other end in crushed form The drum, which revolves on chrome steel tires on steel rolls, revolves at the rate of 15 revolutions per minute, and the crushing is done by the means of long steel rods one-quarter of an inch in diameter. The main drum is made of cast iron and the bull gear is of cut steel.

TO CHECK SPEEDERS.

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 29. — (Associated Press).—Jail sentences, heavy fines and loss of their automobiles are proving effective in reducing the number of speeders in Indianapolis. The plan, introduced a short time ago by Judge Delbert O. Wilmeth, has resulted in a general let down in speeding throughout the city, according to police officers.

Judge Wilmeth works on a scale. First offenders are fined to set amount for whatever speed they are convicted of having made, but, do not have to pay if they relinquish their machines for a certain number of days. For example, a person convicted of driving 25 miles an hour is fined $5 and costs. On payment of the costs and turning in his license plates and driver's certificate, the fine is suspended. In five days the offender again may drive his car.

The faster a person drives, the heavier the fine and the longer he must be without his car. There is only one recourse from a state farm sentence upon conviction for a second offense. That is through the higher courts, to which a number of appeals already have been made.

Mortally Injured in Auto Accident Autoist Arrested

LINSDAY, Sept. 29.—(Special).—A fatal accident occurred last night at Bobcaygeon when Arthur Thurston, aged 40 years, son of Mr. James Thurston of Verulam, received injuries which terminated in his death at four o'clock this morning.

Deceased was driving his horse into a laneway on Main street, about nine o'clock, when a car driven by a man named McNeil, of Silver Lake, crashed into the vehicle from the rear and overturned it. Thurston was thrown out, and in falling fractured his skull.

McNeil was placed under arrest.

A BIG SUPPLY LOCAL MARKET

Everything on the farmers' market this morning was superlative in quantity, with the exception, perhaps, of corn. The carts overflowed with produce, the pavements were obstructed by fat bags of apples and potatoes and piles of basketed fruit, and the tables in the basket section were groaning under the combined weight of butter and eggs and fowl.

In the downstair entry, rivals were striving like the baritone and the tenor in the old "Vocal Combat" song. About two feet away from each other, two fruit dealers tried in vain to outdo each other with the chanted merits of their peach supply. "Look this way, lovely fresh peaches for 70 cents," was hardly out of the mouth of the one when the other took up the refrain, "Number one fruit over here, 60 cents." Upstairs, peaches were selling for 55 cents and grapes were 50 cents. One dealer had them at 45 cents a basket, and another sold them in reds and greens in a large measure for 25 cents. A farmer had green pears in a bag at 90 cents a peck, and blue plums were selling at two quarts for a quarter.

There were quantities of apples; McIntosh Reds at 60 cents a peck, Greenings at 40 cents, Wealthies at 60, and Maidens' Blush were 45 cents. Good-looking crabapples were 75 cents a peck on one cart.

Potatoes were very plentiful, and of good quality. Prices ranged from $1.75 for the "White Star," to $2 a bag for "Caramels" and "Irish Cobbler."

Little pigs were $11 and $12 a pair, and a litter of Scotch collie puppies, a "we are seven" family, were available at $2 apiece.

Corn, not very abundant, was selling from 15 to 30 cents a dozen. Green tomatoes were 40 cents a basket, and reds 45 and 50 cents. Tiny yellow tomatoes were 2 boxes for 20 cents. Red cabbage was 15 cents a head.

There were lots of melons, musk and water, at anywhere from a nickel apiece to a quarter, according to size, and one dealer had an odd-looking long "Bonana" melon, resembling a vegetable marrow, at 15 and 20 cents apiece. Elderberries were 10 cents a quart box, and wild grapes 75 cents for a large basket.

Peckitt honey was selling at 75c and $1.50 in 6 oz. and 1 lb. sound cells; the other brands at a less price.

Tomatoes for pickling, in every variety and size and shape. Chicken were selling all the way from 30 cents to 95 cents a pound. Hens were 25 and 29 cents and ducks 28 and 30 cents. Butter and eggs, both plentiful, went for 37 to 45 cents a pound, and 38 to 42 cents a dozen. Large bunches of asters could be bought this morning for 10 and 15 cents.

AMERICAN SHIPPERS STILL HOLDING OUT

TORONTO, Sept 29.— (Canadian Press.)—"We are on the job and prepared to go the limit in assisting moving of the western grain crop. We will cut our rates to the bone, so far as consistent with good business, but it must be remembered that we are not philanthropists."

Such is the terse summary of the attitude toward the situation which has arisen out of the refusal of American ship owners to come under the Canadain tariff filing regulations as explained last night by Sir Henry Thornton.

Following a deadlock which resulted at completion of conference between American shippers and representatives of Grain Commission yesterday, Leslie Boyd, representing the Commission, conferred with Sir Henry Thornton with the result that the C.N.R. chief has given assurance that the National Railways will cooperate in every way to ensure the eastward movement of the crop, the marketing of which spells prosperity for Canada.

A POPULATION INCREASE FOR PRESENT YEAR

No Sign of Peterboro Going to the Bow-wows in Assessor's Report.

THE NEW FIGURES

A comparison of figures on last year's assessment rolls with those of this period, just completed, shows an increase in most of the general statistical totals, with exceptions in the case of the total value of property liable for school rates only and in the total amount of business assessment, both of which show a decrease.

In the vital statistics, there is an increase of residents to the number of 56, deaths have decreased by 13, and births by 45. The dog population of the city has increased by 28. The number of taxable persons in the community has increased by 242, this year's total reaching 6,727, as against the 1922 figure of 6,485. The assessment totals show an increase of $415,505, this year's figures reaching the amount of $24,962,600, against last year's $24,547,095.

The aggregate number of acres, showing extent of property, is 2,826 3-4. The actual value of real property, exclusive of buildings, was $6,348,540 last year, and $6,360,165 this year, an advance of $11,625, and the value of buildings, $14,181,255 last year, is this year reckoned at $14,567,000, or an increase in value of $385,745. The total actual value of real property last year was $20,529,795, with an increase in this year's total of $20,927,165 of $397,370, and the total amount of taxable real property was placed last year at $15,078,205, and at $15,439,495 this year, showing an increase also of $360,290.

The total value of property liable for school rates only shows a decrease of $3,090, last year's figures of $2,501,520 having lessened to $2,498,430.

Last year's figures for the total value of property exempt from taxation or liable for local improvements only was $2,960,070, which this year stands at $2,900,240, an increase of $40,170.

The total amount of business assessment, last year $1,667,570, and this year $1,595,090, shows the second decrease noted, $72,480.

Business assessment total liable for school rates only has increased by $53,985, last year's figures being $1,528,995, this year's $1,582,980.

The amount of taxable income last year was $820,735, this year it is $857,365, an increase of $36,630.

Last year, there were 21,605 persons residing in the municipality. This year there are 21,661. Births in 1922 aggregated 386 and deaths 119. This year there were 341 births and 106 deaths.

A Canadian Trade Office Closed Up.

OTTAWA, Sept. 29.—(Canadian Press).—The Canadian Trade Commissioner's office at Havana, Cuba, is being closed and the territory hitherto covered by the Havana office will come under the trade commissioner at Kingston, Jamaica. The change is being made in connection with reorganization of the commercial intelligence service in the Caribbean area.

At the time that he took over the ministry of trade and commerce, last month, Hon. T. A. Low intimated that he was making a study of Canada's foreign trade over a period of years. He said at that time that Canada could only afford to retain trade representatives abroad who were showing results in business development.

Rights of Small Nations Enunciated Anew As the Hope of Mankind

WORLD'S FORUM RINGS WITH VOICES OF FOUR CONTINENTS DEMANDING SECURITY AND PROTECTION FOR SMALL NATIONS

SALANDRA SAT SILENT.

British Representative Would Wipe Out Old Ideals With Covenant of the League.

GENEVA, Sept. 28. — Well worthy of being characterized a world forum, with voices rising from four continents, was the great debate in the Assembly of the League of Nations to-night when the delegates, while generally approving the decision of the Council of the League to submit the question of the interpretation of the covenant of the League to jurists, scourged the old-time practice of bigger states coercing the weaker, and also sent out a warning that henceforth violence must cease and peaceful methods be followed in harmonizing national differences.

That it was a hard session for Italy is the unanimous opinion in League circles in Geneva to-night. Signor Salandra, head of the Italian delegation said nothing during the debate as speaker after speaker directly or indirectly accused Italy of not living up to her solemn engagements.

Reproached the League.

He even remained silent when Gilbert Murray, Great Britain, openly reproached the League for what he termed its neglect in protecting weak communities against the chicane and tyranny of the strong.

The representatives of several countries attacked the Council of Ambassadors for making Greece pay Italy 50,000,000 lire as indemnity and criticized the Ambassadors for refusing to allow the Court of International Justice to fix the amount of reparations in accordance with the previous understanding.

Lord Robert Cecil, without defending his own country's past conduct, said the world wanted this question of coercion set at rest in a most authoritative way, not on account of the past, but for the future, and hence the proposed interpretation of the covenant. He remarked that the Council will be free to act when it received a report of the jurists and that it might even decide to re-submit the matter to the Permanent Court in an attempt to establish principles for the future.

"We have taken one more step toward the establishment of a reign of law among nations and ending the system of violence which always is coincident with injustice," remarked Lord Robert.

Persia's Voice.

Prince Mirza Khan of Persia, wanted to know what would become of the League of Nations if the covenant of the League, to which Persia subscribed, was to be set aside and even the Court of Justice on legal questions was to be ignored. His instructions from Teheran were to insist upon the competency of the League, he said.

The Irish Free State's participation in the debate for the first time since that country was admitted to membership in the League, aroused great interest. Prof. John McNeil, the Free State Minister of Education, declared that all the members were solicitous that the great work to which they had set thier hands should not be undone. He accepted the assurances of the Council that disputes which were liable to lead to ruptures would be deemed within its sphere of action and believed that partitcular assurance should go on record.

Blames Governments.

Francisco J. Urrutia, Colombia, taking up the matter of the famous five questions, declared that whatever opinion the jurists might reach this opinion could not modify a doctrine which was accepted by all the South American States, namely that responsibility does not depend upon a crime itself, but upon the neglect of the governments concerned to prosecute the criminals.

Jonkheer , Loundon, Holland agreed with Dr. Branting, and Lord Cecil, that it would have been better to submit questions to the Court of International Justice. But, he added, though the opinion of jurists would be of great value, the Council's eventual report would not be the last word, because "the interpretation of the covenant is, in last resort, a matter which belongs to all members of the League."

The Issue Stated.

Viscount Ishii, Japan, as president of the Council of tht League, made the following statement to the assembly as embodying the resolution passed by the Council:

"At its meeting September 22, the Council asked the Committee of Jurists to formulate questions regarding certain points concerning the interpretation of the Covenant of the League and other matters of international law which the Council had had under consideration. The committee submitted to the Council September 26, the following questions:

"First—Is the Council, when advised at the instance of a member of the League of Nations, of a dispute submitted in accordance with the terms of Article 15 of the covenant by such member as likely to lead to a rupture, bound, either at the request of the other party, or on its own authority, and before inquiring into any point to decide whether in fact such description is well found?

If Other Means Sought.

"Second—Is the Council, when advised of a dispute in accordance with Article 15, Paragraph 1, of the covenant, at the instance of a member of the League of Nations, bound either at the request of a party, or on its own authority, to suspend its inquiry into a dispute when, with the consent of the parties, settlement of the dispute is being sought through some other channel?

"Third—Is an objection founded on Article 15, Paragraph 8, of the covenant, the only objection based on merits of a dispute upon which the competency of the Council to make an inquiry can be challenged?

"Fourth—Are measures of coercion which are not meant to constitute acts of war consistent with the terms of Articles 12 to 15, of the covenant when they are taken by one member of the League against another member without prior recourse to the procedure laid down in these articles?

"Fifth—In what circumstances, and to what extent, is the responsibility of a State involved by the Commission of a political crime in its territory?

Referred to Jurists.

"Members of the Council being in agreement that any dispute between members of the League likely to lead to a rupture is within the sphere of action of the League, and that if such dispute cannot be settled by diplomacy, arbitration or judicial settlement, it is the duty of the Council to deal therewith in accordance with the terms of Article 15 of the covenant, the Council decided that these questions shall be referred to a special commission of jurists for opinion as to the answers to be given.

"The Council resolves that the report of the special commission of jurists shall be submitted to it in time for consideration at its meeting in December. Each member of the Council may nominate within the period of fifteen days a jurist to be a member of the Commission. Members thus nominated, together with the Director of the Legal Section of the Secretariat will constitute the special commission of jurists."

A Specific Case.

The debate following Viscount Ishii's statement turned largely upon the Greco-Italian conflict. Hjalmar Branting, Sweden, said he had advocated referring the question to the Permanent Court of International Justice as being more important than the jurists, who would receive instructions from their governments.

Ottawa Manhunt More Breathless Than the Movies

OTTAWA, Sept 28—One of the most exciting manhunts that the Ottawa police have ever taken part in ended at 3:45 o'clock this afternoon, when after 15 minutes' chase, Frank Melville, who claims to some from Vancouver was arrested for housebreaking at noon and who escaped from custody by jumping out of a window on the third floor of the police station was captured by Inspector Emile Joliet. After making the jump Melville swam the canal and was only cornered, after a bitter fight with officers, after they had cornered him in a Wilbrod street house.

JOHNSTON FUNERAL HELD IN HASTINGS

Churches Preparing For Sunday School Rally.

HASTINGS, Sept. 28.—The funeral of the late John Johnston of Peterboro, formerly of Hastings, took place on Thursday from the residence of his daughter, Mrs. R. Chambers by motor to Trent Valley cemetery.

The Ladies Aid of the Methodist church held their regular monthly meeting on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Brooks. A number of important items of business were discsused and disposed of. It was decided to hold a fowl dinner on the occasion of the sixtieth anniversary of the dedication of the church.

At the close of the business session, refreshments were served by the hostess and a social time enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Lew Kelley were in Peterboro on Wednesday.

Miss C. Angus of Warkworth has been visiting Hastings friends.

A number of our people attended the fowl supper at South Dummer on Monday evening, while others motored to Roseneath to celebrate a similar occasion. A good time is reported at both places.

Mrs. W. Greenley is in Toronto visiting her son, Alex Greenley.

Mrs. E. Wilcox spent Wednesday in Peterboro.

Mrs. C. Plant is visiting friends in Toronto.

L. Kelley is confined to his home through illness.

Farmers are busy threshing and filling their silos, the weather being excellent.

Mrs. A. H. Bailey spent Wednesday in Peterboro.

Local churches are making preparations for Rally Day to be held on Sunday morning.

Rev. Tucker of Toronto, will occupy the pulpit in the Methodist chruch on Sunday evening next in the interest of the Young People's movement.

Mr. and Mrs. A. V. German attended the Colborne Fair on Wednesday.

Supervise Shipments of Coal From Alberta.

Assurance has been given by Mr. Stutisbury, Trade Commissioner for Alebrta that for some time to come the Government will supervise all shipments of Alberta coal to Ontario, thereby insuring that no inferior coal or coals unsuitable for domestic or steam use will be shipped to Ontario.

This action is being taken by the Alberta Government due to the fact that there are as many varieties in Alberta coal as there are in pickles, and there are practically three hundred mines producing these varieties which include good and bad.

Alberta will protect Ontario consumers if Ontario will buy from Alberta producers.

Renfrew Rides With Cowboys In Roundup of His 80 Young Cattle

CALGARY, Alta., Sept. 28—Lord Renfrew took part in a real fall "round-up" up on the E. P. Ranch this morning. It was in line with the usual custom of ranchers in Southern Alberta, who round up the young stock and calves in the Fall to brand them for the winter range.

While there was only eighty head of calves to be rounded up this year, the work was exactly the same as that on the big ranches in the country and Lord Renfrew was deeply interested in all features. He rode out with the cowboys, watching closely their round-up of the calves and the branding process, although he took no actual part in the work himself.

Despite his strenuous day on Thursday when Lord Renfrew was everywhere about the ranch during the picnic of the Alberta Shorthorn Breeders' Association, he was up bright and early for the work of the round up.

The afternoon will see a continuation of the work of getting the cattle ready for the winter months.

THREE NEW LAWS COME INTO FORCE

Federal Legislation Becomes Effective Monday, October 1st.

OTTAWA, Sept. 29.— (Canadian Press).—Monday next, October 1, is the date chosen by the Dominion government to bring into force three pieces of legislation which closely affect the business world, one of them particularly touching frequently the average citizen. The three laws referred to are the amendments made last season to the Bank Act, the revision of the Bankruptcy Act, and the withdrawal of the privilege of using postage stamps for the payment of most taxes under the war revenue act.

The new Bank Act as far as concerns the larger number of its provisions went into force upon July 1; but three vital sections do not become effective until the first day of next month. These three sections have to do with the monthly returns made by banks to the department of Finance and with the new penalties for making false or deceptive statements regarding the condition of the banks. The outstanding change made by these sections, with their related schedules, is that the officers of the bank making the statements must in future take an oath that full provision has been made for bad and doubtful debts in the valuation of current loans and discounts.

Bankruptcy Act.

The revised Bankruptcy Act introduces a system for the administration of insolvent estates analogous to that in force in Great Britain and the United States. By this new system administration of such estates is to be effected by means of trustees appointed by the creditors instead of as heretofore by authorized trustees generally selected by the insolvent debtor. In order to work out the proposed system each province has been divided into a number of bankruptcy divisions, in each of which a local judicial officer has been authorized to act as official receiver. The official receiver, upon an assignment being made to him, will appoint a custodian to take charge of the debtor's assets and to call a meeting of the creditors for the appointment of a trustee. The trustees shall therefore conduct the liquidation proceedings.

Use Revenue Stamps.

The third new piece of legislation which comes into effect on Monday will require the public to use inland revenue stamps on cheques and on most other documents taxable under the special War Revenue Act. Postage stamps may, however, still be used upon post-office money-orders Special arrangements have been made regarding the tax upon postal notes.

Sarazen and Hagen to Meet in Finals.

PELHAM MANOR, N.Y., Sept. 28.—Rather easy and colorless victories came to-day to Gene Sarazen and Walter Hagen in the semi-final round of the Professional Golfers' Association tournament, and they will meet to-morrow for the title that both have had the honor of winning in other years.

Sarazen, winner of the championship last year, disposed of Robert Cruickshank of the Shackamaxon Club at Westfield, N.J., at the 31st hole of their match 7 up, and 5 to play and Hagen champion of the professionals in 1921 eliminated 'Dapper George" McLean of the Grassy Sprain Club, Bronxville, N.Y., 12 and 11.

LINDSAY FAIR SHOWS SURPLUS

LINDSAY, Sept. 28.—The directors of the Lindsay Central Fair have announced that they have a balance this year on the right side of the ledger. They claim that their receipts were larger than last year but of course their expenses were not so great. They made quite a cut in advertising as well as in the grandstand features, which were not up to former years.

WEDDING BELLS

NORTHEY—ROSBOROUGH.

On Wednesday, September 26, a very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Rosborough, Smith, when their eldest daughter Enid Violet was united in marriage to Sherman Cecil, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Northey, Smith, by Rev. T. L. White of the Baptist church, Lakefield.

The bride entered the drawing-room, which was prettily decorated with English ivy and cactus dahlias, on the arm of her father. She looked charming in white crepe de chine and radium lace and wore the conventional veil caught with orange blossoms and carried ophelia roses and asters.

The bridesmaid, Miss Enna Rosborough, sister of the bride, wore honeydew crepe de chine and carried asters and daffodils. Mr. Kenneth Northey, brother of the groom, acted as groomsman. Mendelsshon's Wedding March was played by the groom's cousin, Miss Beulah Northey.

After the ceremony the guests retired to the dining-room, which was beautifully decorated with asters, gladioli and dahlias, and a very bountiful dinner was served to about sixty-five guests.

The groom's gift to the bride was an American opossum choker; to the bridesmaid a signet ring; to the pianist a crescent brooch, and to the groomsman gold cuff links.

GERMANY TRIES TO ANTICIPATE LOCAL TROUBLE

State of Emergency Declared as Precaution Against Any Disturbances.

MUNICH IS QUIET.

BERLIN, Sept. 28. — With the Munich situation having calmed down and the internal situation generally safe-guarded for the time being through the provisions of the Government's emergency proclamation, Chancellor Stresemann is directing official activities toward accomplishing a speedy liquidation of the situation in the Ruhr and the Rhineland with the purpose of facilitating an early readjustment of Germany's foreign affairs.

The Bavarian flurry no longer is viewed as harboring menace to the situation at home, a working understanding having been reached with the Bavarian Premier Von Knilling, which it is believed will relieve the Berlin Government of any immediate concern over developments in Munich especially as reports from the Bavarian capital continue reassuring.

An official communication issued to-night sets forth the reasons which prompted the Government to proclaim a state of emergency throughout Federal territory. It says the action has been wrongly interpreted abroad. The precautionary measure the official statement declares, was dictated primarily by a determination to forestall any attempt to create disturbances in the present precarious economic, financial and social

LLOYD GEORCE COMING TO SEE HOW AMERICA HAS SOLVED PROBLEMS

Send - Off By American Society in London—Will Tour Canada and the United States.

GREAT DEMOCRAT.

LONDON, Sept. 28—David Lloyd George to-day was given a stirring send-off by the members of the American Society, who gave a luncheon in his honor on the eve of his departure for a tour of Canada and the United States.

The former Premier said he was going to America neither to make speeches nor to write a book, nor as a "missionary or bootlegger," but principally to thank Canada and the United States for their great help during the war and to see how these modern progressive countries had dealt with the outstanding problems of the time.

Seeming Senility

Great Britain, he said, was part of the old civilization which at times seemed afflicted with senile decay, but which when aroused gave ample proof of its vitality.

"The old countries of Europe are fettered by antiquated utilities which have degenerated into effecte and exhausted tradition," declared Mr. Lloyd George.

"We are entangled at every step in Europe by old feuds and new fears and I am anxious to see how a country which is free from these entanglements, builds its edifice.

"Europe, just like Nemehiah, is building each shattered habitation

TRUCK LOAD OF BUTTER STOLEN

Organized Gang Believed Specializing on Dairy Factories.

LINDSAY, Sept. 29.—That an organized gang of bandits are going through the country robbing creameries and cheese factories is evident from the information received by the authorities here.

A few evenings ago the Oro Creamery in Simcoe Co., in which Victoria County men are interested was broken into and 630 pounds of creamery butter stolen. The butter was carried to the road to a waiting truck.

The loss is over $250. The thieves are believed to be the same parties who visited Peterborough county. Their activities in Simcoe county covered a wide field, as they robbed stores, stations, etc., and carried off considerable loot.

STRAIGHT TALK.

Some straight talk has been given to fruit growers in its district by the Grimsby Independent, which lives up to its name by frankly telling the producers that too many of them are acting unfairly to the consuming public in endeavouring to market poor fruit.

"The best salesman ever born or the best managed co-operative company ever formed," says the Independent, "cannot sell rubbish and get a good price for it."

This reminder is needed in the opinion of many of the consumers.

In fact, the whole question of handling and marketing Ontario's fruit crop calls for improvement, and one of the first duties of Hon. J. S. Martin, the new Minister of Agriculture, should be to investigate the conditions and to endeavour to effect some badly needed changes.

Every year there are stories of fruit rotting on the trees, and yet the consumer is usually called upon to pay substantial prices.

There is something wrong with a situation that allows tons of fruit to be wasted each year while the public is required to put up with high priced produce, much of it of inferior quality.

AS TO A REFERENDUM.

As was to have been expected, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson lost no time on his arrival from his St. James Bay trip in dealing with the report circulated during his absence that the new Government intended to take the result of the election as a mandate for instituting a new policy in regard to prohibition.

The Premier has emphasized the statement made a few days ago by the Attorney-General that there will be no important changes in the Ontario Temperance Act, nor will there be any referendum on the question until public opinion warrants the submission of a plebescite.

That declaration was scarcely necessary in view of the pledges made by members of the new Government prior to the election, but nevertheless it will clear the air and should leave no doubt as to the situation.

People who are dissatisfied with the Temperance Act and who want a different system of dealing with the liquor question know now that no matter what hopes they may have had before they can only get an opportunity of recording their opinion through the medium of the ballot by impressing upon the Government that there is a very strong current of public opinion that favours a referendum.

Mr. Ferguson has made it clear, if there was any doubt before, that there will be no action until that current manifests itself.

EXPLAINING THAT CROWD.

A citizen with a fondness for figures has been wasting reams of paper endeavouring to find out where the 30,000 people who were supposed to have been in attendance at the Lindsay Fair a week ago today all came from and how they all got to the Exhibition.

Allowing that every man, woman and child in Lindsay attended, he says that would still leave 23,000 to account for, and he has been busy trying to figure a scheme of transportation that would make this total seem feasible.

The mathematician started out by supposing there were 3,000 automobiles from outside points, a total much larger than the actual number to be found in the district around Lindsay, and that they carried an average of five people each.

That would make 15,000 more, but would still leave 8,000 people whose transportation would have to be explained in some other way.

If the railways carried them it would take something over one hundred coaches to provide the necessary accommodation.

Entire population of Lindsay, say	7,000
Visitors from outside coming in 3,000 motor cars	15,000
Ditto coming via railway	8,000

In the absence of more definite details from Lindsay, these statistics are published for what they are worth.

There are, unfortunately, no reports as to the number of hot dogs consumed.

A TEST FOR PLAYGOERS.

During the last season the Examiner took occasion to warn the people of Peterborough that there was great danger of this city being catalogued as a "Mutt and Jeff" town by the theatrical interests.

In other words, a town in which meritorious attractions cannot count upon support while cheap slapstick comedy and jazz music are sure-fire ventures that will fill the house.

It is not a very desirable reputation to get, and yet Peterborough has been fast degenerating into that stage, its failure to patronize the really worth-while productions that came to us last season being responsible for the verdict.

If we continue to show no interest in good things theatrically we are not likely to get very many of them in the future, for theatrical folks are salesmen just as in any other line of business, and they try to provide what the trade demands.

The visit to Peterborough next Saturday, therefore, of Mr. Bransby Williams, one of England's best known actors and the most successful exponent of Dickens' characters on the stage, will be in the nature of a test that is likely to decide the general nature of the programme for Peterborough during the present season.

If an actor of his fame has to play to empty seats as other stage celebrities have had to do here it will be idle to expect that this city will be favoured by the visit of very many high-class productions.

THE FRENCH TRIUMPH.

France has won a complete victory in the Ruhr, says the Montreal Star. Even the Ruhr passive-resisters whom the French have put in jail are left to their fate. The exiles will remain in exile—unless French generosity opens to them the gates of home.

There is one thing that can be said for the Germans—when they tuck their tails between their legs and skurry yelping under the barn, they do so very thoroughly. No great army ever collapsed more quickly or completely than the German army did after Haig's decisive blow on August 8th, 1918. Those who want to say a kind word for them, call it "intelligent" not to continue to fight a lost battle. If the British Tommies had possessed this brand of "intelligence" through the centuries, we should have had no Empire and the world would today enjoy infinitely less liberty.

The present Chancellor has achieved another "intelligent" capitulation. He has thrown himself—or, rather, thrown the inhabitants of the Ruhr and the Rhineland—on the mercy of the French. He may be very sure that that mercy will be genuinely "intelligent." The French are easily the most sagacious statesmen in Europe. If they will desire to separate the Rhineland from the German Reich, they will now have a better chance than has yet been offered them. The Rhinelander must realize at last that Prussia is powerless and that his immediate future is wholly and without restraint in the hands of France.

* * * * *

The French are now complete masters of Europe. Their successful creation of the Little Entente, following their close relations with Poland, gave them a detached empire stretching directly east from the Swiss frontiers to the borders of Russia, touching the Baltic at Danzig and the Adriatic at Ragusa. Only two serious areas of possible opposition remained—an ambitious Italy in the south and a sullen Germany on the north. But alert French diplomacy promptly seized its opportunity in the Corfu affair and so captured Italy; and now Germany is steam-rollered more crushingly than it has been since the Armistice.

THE PROFIT POINT.

Railroad people say there is no profit in hauling Alberta coal to Ontario for less than twelve dollars a ton. But when such a rate keeps the coal off the market here entirely by making it higher in price than Pennsylvania anthracite, what becomes of the profit?

If it were purely a railroad question we might be able to accept the railroad's answer. But it is not. Alberta coal is a national problem, one that has to do with the tie between the East and the West.

Eight million Canadians live in a comparatively narrow belt, three thousand miles long. Some sections have coal to sell, some manufacturers, others farm produce. Ontario, for instance, would like to buy coal of Alberta. But unless we can buy it cheaper than we can in the United States, where the coal fields are nearer, we are not going to, even though there are more than a million and a half million tons of coal available in the Western Province. So it is up to the railroads to find the profit point in the service they are, from their very nature, rightly expected to perform for the nation at large.

Both of Canada's railroad systems are national lines. The people own one, but the people also helped build the other. Therefore we Canadians have a right to demand of them service truly national in its character. We expect them to tie the East and the West together. That is why we can ask them very pointed questions at times like these, when the fuel question is most acute.

Ontario wants to buy Alberta coal. It is a bulky product, and Ontario has nothing of the same nature to return to Alberta. That makes the long haul back to the mines of empty cars an important factor in finding the profit point in the freight rate. But if Ontario spends money in Alberta for coal instead of paying it out in the United States, the Western Province will have more cash to buy automobiles and other things we make here. That will mean return loads.

The trade balance against Canada in our dealings with the United States is largely made up of coal purchases. One hundred million dollars a years is a big item. If a goodly part of it stays in Canada by being spent in Alberta it means, not only more money in Canada's pocketbook, but an increase in value of the Canadian dollar, as compared with the American. That is bound to save us money in the end.

When a railroad becomes a national proposition, it means a merging of pocketbooks. If a profit for the railroad means taking it out the national pocketbook, there is no profit. No man ever made money by transferring it from one pocket to another.

These are some of the factors in the determination of the profit point. Put simply, this is the problem: If there is no business at twelve dollars, there is no profit, nor would there be any at a higher rate. If there is plenty of business, but done at a loss, at five dollars a ton, there is no profit. The profit point ought to be somewhere in between. It is up to the railroads to find it.—Border Cities Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Bank robbers evidently regard Toronto as a cafeteria where they can drop in and help themselves every now and then.

Ottawa reports that a big rush of immigrants is expected in the spring. There is plenty of room for them in Canada.

Canada's new bond issue gives the people of this country a chance to show their faith in the future of the Dominion and incidentally make a safe, profitable investment for themselves.

Ontarjo's Premier has been proving that he is something of a high flyer.

The people of Ontario doubtless realize now that if they want a referendum on the Ontario Temperance Act they'll have to make their want known in such a manner that the Government can have no doubt about the matter.

Cheap gasoline adds to the danger for pedestrians. The only thing that could save them would be a rate high enough to be prohibitive.

The New York pressmen's strike is one of the most unjustifiable and most foolish walk-outs on record. Naturally it is failing completely, for the International Union and the public are both on the side of the newspapers.

Those thieves who stole twenty-two boxes of butter the other night are evidently the cream of bandits.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, September 29. — All calculations were upset this week as regards the probable course of the market. Buyers and commission men alike had figured that with normal or moderate runs of cattle, prices should hold about steady at last week's prevailing levels. With an abundance of good pasture, and a lot of unfinished cattle on the farms, there was little reason to think that there would be such a rush of cattle to market as this week has witnessed.

When the market opened on Monday with the heaviest single sun of the season, about 7,000 cattle, there was a pretty general feeling of surprise. In addition to this big run in the open market, the fact developed that all the packing houses had received large shipments of Western cattle direct to the plants. The telegrams received from Chicago and other United States markets also showed abnormally heavy receipts of cattle, and sharp declines in prices.

Under these conditions it was inevitable that there would be a shifting of values in this market. The declines were sharp and definite, going off 25c for the best butcher cattle offerings; 50c off heavy export cattle; and 50c to 75c off medium and common rough quality stuff.

These declines were emphasised in the subsequent kets. There were heavy hold-overs, and about 1,500 cattle, it was estimated, would have to be carried over the week-end.

There will likely be a steady demand and market next week, for the best butcher cattle, but immediate prospects are not good for the poor quality unfinished cattle, and shippers would be well advised not to overload the market with a lot of this undesirable and almost unmarketable stuff.

The demand for feeders has been very dull, prices on the Western offerings declining 75c to $1.00 during the week.

A number of cars of Westerns were re-shipped on through billing direct to Lancaster Penn., as there was practically no demand for them here.

There was a heavy slump in the lamb market, prices going off $2.00 to $2.25 from the previous week.

Hog market held steady at $9.35, fed and watered, a few hogs selling in the middle of the week to outside buyers at 25c to 50c higher, bnt settling back to $9.35 at the close.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—(Canadian Press). — The new Canadian crop estimates 57,000,000 bushels smaller than the Canadian Government's latest returns, had much to do with a decided upturn yesterday in wheat prices here. The market closed firm 3-4c to 1c net higher. December $1.06 3-4 to $1.06 3-8 at ½; and May $1.10 7-8 to $1.11. Corn finished ¼ to 1¼ up; oats at 1-8 to ½ at 5-8c gain, and provisions showing two to 25c advance.

With buying on a much broader scale than has of late been the rule, wheat ascended readily and profit-taking sales led to only transient set-backs. The wide discrepancy between the estimate yesterday from the North-Western Grain Dealers' Association was explained here as due largely to differences in the acreage basis used. According to a leading authority in Chicago, the Canadian official estimate for 1922 had failed to justify itself and the inference was that the extraordinary recent Government estimate of 470,000,000 bushels for this year in Canada was also over-stated.

Attention to Washington plans for farm relief measures counted noticeably as an additional bullish factor in the wheat market and were more or less responsible for lifting values just before the close, which was virtually at the topmost level of the day. Strength of corn and oats tended also to aid the wheat bulls. On the other hand, messages from the south-west indicated that there would be less reduction of winter wheat planting than had of late been looked for.

High price records for the season were again outdone in the corn market by all months except December. Wet weather acted as a stimulus to buyers, and it was said farm reserves were the smallest in twenty years, barring one instance. Shorts in oats covered freely. Provisions were firmer in line with grain and hogs.

CHICAGO LIVESTOCK.

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—(Canadian Press).—Cattle, receipts 3,000; very dull; generally steady; killing quality very plain; bulk steers and yearlings $7.50 to $9.50; top matured steers $11.25; stockers and feeders fairly active, about steady; bulk vealers to packers $11.50 to $12; bulk canners $2.75 to $3; bulk stockers and feeders $5.25 to $7; bologna bulls $4 to $4.50.

Hogs, receipts 20,000; desirable grades strong to 10c higher; medium and common kind mostly steady; bulk good and choice 170 to 330-pound average $8.10 to $8.35; top $8.40; desirable 140 to 160-pound average $7.50 to $7.90; packing sows $7 to $7.25; better grades weighty killing pigs $6.50 to $7.25; estimated holdover 13,000.

Sheep, receipts 16,000; around steady; top $13.15; bulk natives $12.50 to $12.75; culls $9; heavy ewes $6.50.

QUEBEC BUTTER SALES.

MONTREAL, September 29 (Canadian Press). — At the Quebec Agricultural Co-operative Society auction sale held here yesterday, there were 775 packages of creamery butter offered, of which 150 packages special pasteurised creamery sold at 37 5-8 cents per pound, 175 packages No. 1 pasteurised creamery at 37 3-8 cents per pound, 300 packages No. 1 creamery at 36 5-8 cents per pound, and 150 packages No. 2 creamery at 35 5-8 cents per pound.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, September 29 (Canadian Press). — Trade in carloads of oats on spot was rather quiet yesterday, but prices were firm. There was no change in the condition of the local flour market. A good demand continues for all lines of millfeed, but trade in rolled oats was quiet. Tone of the baled hay market remains steady. Egg prices for all grades were firmly maintained. A fair business was done in potatoes. Prices scored a further advance of 3-8 cents per pound in butter. The undertone of the cheese market is easy.

WINNIPEG LIVESTOCK.

WINNIPEG, September 29 (Canadian Press). — Receipts, 1,300 cattle and calves, 500 hogs, and 200 sheep and lambs.

Trading was light on the cattle market this morning. The few sales reported were made at steady prices.

The hog market was weaker, the packers bidding $9.25 for thick smooths, a 25c decline over night.

The sheep and lamb market was unchanged, lambs ranging from $8.00 to $9.50 and sheep from $4.00 to $6.00.

Cobourg and District

COBOURG, Sept. 29.—On Sunday the reopening services of the Methodist church at Plainville were held under ideal weather conditions and with large audiences in attendance. The church has been much improved by having the exterior painted. Mr. Walden of Camborne doing the work. A new cement fence has been erected and other improvements made. Rev. J. W. Baird pastor of Port Hope Methodist church preached excellent sermons. The pastor of the circuit, Rev. F. J. Horwood preached at Port Hope. There was special music for the day. On Monday evening the annual fowl supper was held and proved to be one of the most enjoyable events of the season.

Still Discovered Near Colborne.

Inspector George Goodrich made an important discovery one day recently, it is stated, when he found evidence of a still in a shack on a farm west of the village of Colborne, occupied it is stated, by a man named Alcorn, who came to the locality from Muskoka. There was a barrel of wheat mash on the premises which may have been for the purpose of making home brew.

District Meeting.

An important meeting of Cobourg Methodist District is to be held in the Methodist church at Plainville on Friday. At this meeting the missionary and other anniversaries will be arranged for. The meeting is important because of the terrible disaster in Japan and serious loss of property sustained by the Methodist church in Canada.

Teachers Outing.

The Public School teachers of South Ontario have planned to hold an excursion by Steamer Ontario from Cobourg to Rochester next Thursday instead of holding their annual convention. They will visit the schools in the Flower City for the purpose of getting new ideas. A similar excursion was enjoyed by the school teachers of Inspectorate No. 2, Northumberland and Durham last year.

Was Remanded.

A man named Shoniker was arrested on the Provincial Highway charged with being intoxicated while in charge of a motor car. He was remanded at Belleville for trial until the second day of October. Bail was furnished by Mr. Lewis Casement. It is stated that Shoniker had whiskey in the car when he was apprehended.

Grills—McPherson.

The marriage took place in Sidney township on Saturday, September 22, at the home of Mrs. James McPherson of her daughter, Mary Violet, to Mr. Garnett E. Grills, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Grills, of Sidney. The bride, who was unattended, was given away by her brother, Mr. Joseph McPherson, Rev. W. E. Honey officiated. Mr. and Mrs. Grills left a short motor trip before leaving for Hamilton, Bermuda, where they will reside.

Perry—Foster.

Thomas George Perry of Trenton was married at Belleville on Tuesday at noon to Lucinda Ann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Foster. Rev. H. B. Kenny, pastor of the Tabernacle church, Belleville officiated, the marriage being very quiet. After the wedding luncheon Mr. and Mrs. Perry left for a trip to Toronto and Buffalo. They will reside in Trenton.

Child Seriously Injured.

Jack Ruse, six-year-old grandson of Chief John C. Ruse, was seriously injured during a visit to the Cobourg Chief of Police and his wife to their son Mr. Wilfred Rose and family in Chicago. The little boy was sitting on the curb in front of his father's house, when a big Cadillac car swerved to one side of the road and ran over him, the wheels passing over one side of his head, and the upper part of his body. The boy was picked up in a serious condition, but his recovery is hoped for. One side of his face was cut, a tooth knocked out, his collar bone bent and some ribs fractured. The youth who was driving the car was sixteen years old and had taken the car out unknown to his father, who thought he was in school. Mr. Wilfred Rose, the injured boy's father, formerly resided here.

Local and Personal.

Miss Eileen Cooke left on Monday to resume her work at Toronto University.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Haas return this week to Toronto after spending the summer in Cobourg.

Mrs. W. S. Jex, Toronto and Miss Lowes of Buffalo visited their sisters, Mrs. J. W. Bickle and Mrs. William Henderson here.

LAKEFIELD VILLAGE AND THE DISTRICT

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 29.—The harvest festival of St. John's Church was held on Thursday of this week, beginning with holy communion at 10.30 a.m. and with a choral service at night, at which Rev. G. J. Bousfield of St. Luke's, Peterborough, was the special preacher. The text, which was, "Ten were cleansed, where are the nine?" was very appropriate to the season. We are too ready to take gifts from God without thanks. We accept them as our right. These lepers, who had experienced the horrors of their dread disease which isolated them from their fellowmen, were only human after all, and when they were healed they hurried away to tell their good news.

Humanly speaking, we know how much easier it is to repeat acts of kindness to people who have said "Thank you" for previous favors, and we should not withhold from God, who gives all, the thanks we appreciate so much ourselves.

The church was beautifully decorated with flowers, fruit, autumn leaves and vegetables, the work being done by Miss Louise Hampton and a corps of willing assistants. The effect was never prettier.

Annual Excursion.

The annual excursion of "The Grove" School was held to Stoney Lake on Thursday. A happy party of the boys and their friends attended and enjoyed the day. Weather conditions were ideal, and the autumn foliage was gorgeous, showing the lake scenery at its finest.

the Corfu incident by recalling a British parallel in Japan in 1863, when a British fleet bombarded Kagoshima because of the murder of an Englishman in Yokohama. Lord Robert said such things were regettably frequent in the past, but that now that the covenant of the League of Nations had been signed, they ought to cease. He thought the Council's decision reasonably satisfactory, though he would have preferred that questions at issue be submitted to the International Court, rather than to the jurists.

Fridtjof Nanson, Norway, doubted the justice of the Greco-Italian settlement, whereupon Dr. Cosme De La Torrente, Cuba, president of the League Assembly, asked him to confine himself to the communication received from the Council of the League and not re-open matters already closed. Dr. Nansen resumed his seat amid great applause and Dr. D La Torrente then warned the auditors in the galleries that the delegates and not the public should initiate any applause.

Innocents Slaughtered.

Gilbert Murray, as the representative of South Africa, declared submission of the interpretation of the covenant to the jurists meant its submission to a private body. Alluding the bombardment of Corfu by ing the bombarment of Corfus by the Italians, Mr. Murray said that if the League of Nations, under whose protection they were, failed to exact reparations and apologies for the killing of innocent people, it would be exceedingly difficult to live up to its great claim of being champion of the smaller nations against the tyranny of the strong. This declaration was greeted with an outburst of applause.

After further discussion the Assembly adjourned until to-morrow. No vote was taken, as the Council's communication required none.

SENTENCED TO FIVE YEARS FOR ASSAULT.

Robbery and Violence Also Earns Twenty Lashes.

SUDBURY, Ont Sept. 28.—Frank Gagnon, convicted of robbery with violence on person of Joseph Bloom an aged man at Milnet in July, was sentenced to-day by Magistrate Brodie to Kingston Penitentiary for five years and to be given twenty lashes. Magistrate declared assault was one of the most cold blooded in his while experience. Gagnon had attacked Bloom with cold chisel and took valuable watch and $170. Gagnon gave his home address as Flinton, Ont., and is about 40 years of age. He was arrested in Perth last week.

Jackpine May Be Used For Telegraph Poles.

SUDBURY, Ont., Sept. 28.—Canadian Pacific Telegraphs have just had twelve hundred jackpine poles treated at Sudbury creosoting plant as an experiment and they are now being erected. If they prove satisfactory treated jackpine may replace cedar for telegraph poles as cedar is not only scarce but expensive. Plant has also turned out fifteen carloads of posts for grape growers of Niagara district, another new experiment.

LAY FOREST FIRE TO GIANT METEOR

GREAT FALLS, Mont., Sept. 29.—(Associated Press).—Forest rangers of the Choteau station, near here, are investigating the report that a giant meteor, which fell in Sun River canyon, near Great Falls, on August 18, last, set fire to the timber on Pendagon mountain.

The meteor fell about 10 o'clock at night and was seen by many Great Falls citizens. It lighted up the surrounding country for about 20 minutes. The fire on Pendagon mountain was reported the next day.

GOOD PARADES AT DOWNEYVILLE FAIR

But School Event Not Attended As Well As Deserving--King's Wharf News.

KING'S WHARF, Sept. 29.—The School Fair held at Downeyville on Monday was not as well attended as it should have been. A number of the children were not present and interest seems to be lacking. However, those who turned out from the different schools paraded in costume and made a good showing. S. S. No. 15, here, under the direction of Miss Lillian Condon, taking first prize. Fergus O'Neill of S. S. No. 15 took first prize in the boys' driving contest. Violet Duffy of S. S. No. 12, West Emily, took first prize in the girls' driving, while May Murtha, S. S. No. 6, here, took second. Miss Helen O'Neill of S. S. No. 15, here, took the prize in speech making. S. S. No. 15, here, did splendidly, and had a very good display of fruits, vegetables and fancy work.

Poor Crop Corn.

Messrs. Wm. Powers and Geo. Nelson are busy cutting corn in this part, which is a poor crop. A number here who have silos do not intend filling them as they have not enough corn for that purpose.

Road Improvement.

There is quite an improvement in the road here. The hill known as Calbert's hill had become almost impassable and the Emily Council thought it advisable to buy a road around the hill. The road was bought from John Winn, and it is now graded and in excellent shape to travel on.

Personals.

Mr. Vincent Perdue was a business visitor to Lindsay Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Herb. Hennessey of Ennismore spent Sunday the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Sullivan.

Mrs. Wm. O'Neill spent Sunday the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Murray.

Mr. Leonard Duffy of Peterborough called on friends here Sunday.

Miss Mary Floor has returned to her home in Torosto after a pleasant visit with her sister, Mrs. Jos. Guiry.

Mr. and Mrs. Simon Perdue of Peterborough spent a few days last week the guest of their son, Patrick Perdue.

Miss Lillian Condon, teacher of S. S. No. 15, spent the week-end the guest of her parents in Lakefield.

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Perdue were business visitors to Lindsay Tuesday.

Mrs. McAuliffe, Sr., of Ennismore is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Neil Murray.

Mr. and Mrs. Russel Long of Peterborough spent Sunday the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Morgan O'Neill.

Rev. Father Leonard of Kinmount motored through here Monday and called on friends.

LLOYD GEORGE

with trowel in one hand and sword in the other. I desire to see how a continent which can build with both hands in progressing."

Great Democrat

In introducing the guest of honor, the United States Ambassador Mr. George Harvey, described Mr. Lloyd George as a great democrat who had grown up as Americans do, and whom Americans desired to see more than any other Briton. His greatest service to Britain, he said, was rendered as Director of Munitions during the war and his greatest contribution to civilization was his service after the armistice. Mr. Harvey added:

"I unhesitatingly pronounce him to be the most vivid personality of his own times and one of the most remarkable personalities of all time. I can promise him the warmest reception from the American people. The last time he visited Canada he had not enough money to go on to the United States, but this time he has no excuse."

Said Wine-Laden Grip Was Left By Stranger.

SUDBURY, Ont. Sept. 28.—Though Tony Vito, Foleyet restaurant keeper, declared a grip with four one gallon cases of high wine was checked at his place by a stranger, Magistrate Brodie to-day fined Tony $200 and costs for B.O.T.A.

F. Typhon was fined three hundred and costs in Creighton Mine police court. His place was raided by nine police Thursday and still and eighteen bottles of alcohol confiscated.

WEST OPPOSES BANK CLOSING

Moose Jaw Depositors of Home Bank Appoint Committee.

MOOSE JAW, Sept. 29.— At a meeting of the depositors of the Home Bank, Thursday night, a committee was appointed for the purpose of forming an association of the Moose Jaw depositors, and also for the purpose of securing counsel in Toronto to represent local depositors when the aplication for winding up of the bank is spoken to in court chambers, in Toronto, October 5.

Resolutions were passed authorizing opposition to any summary hubury are said to have totalled almost impair the remaing assets of the bank or involve the funds belonging to depositors in further loss and requesting the Ontario Association of Depositors to secure, if possible, the assistance of the Minister of Finance in opposing the applications for the winding up of the bank.

DURANT SHOP ALMOST IDLE.

Some Reorganization to Secure More Working Capital Rumored Necessary.

TORONTO, Sept. 29. — The report is current on the street that some announcement regarding reorganization of Durant Motors of Canada is pending. No confirmation of this can be obtained at the company's head office, where a 'phone call brought no response just before noon.

It is known that the plant at Leaside is to all intents and purposes closed down. One report has it that this is an annual closing and that the plant will be re-opened on October 10th. On the street, however, it was pointed out that the company's working capital was too low to permit continuance of operations on any scale pending some readjustment or influx of new money.

The stock, which is dealt in on the curb, was offered as low as six dollars a share, a drop of over four dollars a share in the past three months.

NORTHERN TOWNS LOSE INSURANCE

Policies Being Cancelled Where Fire - Fighting Equipment Deficient.

SUDBURY, Ont., Sept. 28.—Towns in Northern Ontario will have to provide proper fire fighting apparatus or the insurance companies will not carry risks.

That statement is made on the strength of notices from certain companies to agents in this district to write no more policies on risks outside of towns where there is no fire fighting equipment. One broker in Sudbury will have to return almost $1,000 in premiums on policies that have been cancelled by his companies this week. Risks will be accepted only in Sudbury, Copperclift and on selected risks in Espanola and Coniston.

A recent fire at Chelmsford, where citizens had to stand by and watch a big store burn because they had nothing with which to fight flames. A fire at Massey and the big mill fire at Cutler are stid to have been among causes of the action by insurance companies. In the case of Cutler fire, however, it is said the loss falls on American concerns. Fire losses in this district around Sudquidation proceedings that would $250,000 in past three months.

New and Interesting Facts from Science and Life

How War of the Future May Be Fought and Won by Anesthesia

THE war of the near future will be fought not with bullets or bombs, but with a powerful new gas, soporite, whereby whole armies will be put to sleep and "captured without pain," according to Col. Raymond F. Bacon, chief of the Technical Division of the Chemical Warfare Service, A. E. F., in a description of the possibilities of the future art of war made public by the American Chemical Society.

"I can easily imagine," says Col. Bacon, "the official communique of the Battle of Patagonia, a quarter of a century from now, which would read as follows:

"'Last night at 10 o'clock our airplanes sprayed on the enemy's position a new gas, soporite. This gas has the effect of putting a man to sleep for six hours. At 1 a. m. our troops advanced into the sections held by the enemy, disarmed the sleeping enemy, and the whole enemy army facing this sector is now being sent to the rear as prisoners. The number of guns and other equipment captured is enormous. We suffered no casualties. Signed—Blank, General in Command.'

"I realize that this sounds like a fairy tale rather than a statement made with a serious purpose, but it is not beyond the range of possibility. In fact, it is in line with the trend of research in this field."

The $2,000,000 spent on the research organization did more toward winning the war, Colonel Bacon asserts, than any other $200,000,000 spent in other ways. One of the greatest lessons of the war has so far gone almost unheeded, according to Colonel Bacon, who continues:

"This lesson was that large scale research can solve almost any problem. We had in Washington a research organization in which were gathered many of the best brains of the country. That research organization was able to solve every problem put up to it by those in command of the military forces. It showed that things which seemed to be impossible to do could be done and done in a rather short time by research where there were adequate resources of brain power and apparatus.

"If this government would efficiently spend a few million dollars a year on war research, methods would surely be devised which would make us absolutely safe from attack, without the necessity of maintaining such extensive army and navy organizations as at present.

"This is not an idle prophecy. Any one who will intelligently study what was done by our research organization in new and unsolvable problems will be convinced that the statement above made is really conservative.

"To say the use of gas in warfare must be abolished is almost the same as saying that no progress must be made in the art of warfare toward making it more efficient or more humane. If one reads of the great battles of history, one will find that the victorious general conquered his enemy usually because of the fact that he so chose his position as to have his flank protected by river, mountain range or some naturally strong barrier.

"Much of the strategy of these battles consisted in maneuvering so as to obtain the advantage of position. With the use of gas it is possible to saturate a piece of ground so that no troops can cross it, and thus make an artificial barrier for the flank or protect the lines of communication. Moreover, these artificial barriers can be kept barriers for just as short a time as the strategy of the particular battle demands. These are but hints, but show the tremendous unexploited possibilities of gas in warfare.

"One can easily imagine the situation at the time the fighting was hand to hand with the spear or the sword, and gunpowder was first introduced, which, in those days perhaps permitted the antagonists to fight at a range of 100 or 200 yards. There must have been a great outcry as to prohibiting the horrible new mode of warfare, and it must have been felt that it was very unfair to stand off 200 yards rather than to meet in combat man to man.

"But no one looking back on that period would attempt to say that it was possible to have stayed the hand of progress and to have prevented by any legislation or agreement the use of gunpowder in warfare. Moreover, the consensus today would be the hand-to-hand fighting with spear and the sword was more cruel and inhumane than the fighting with the gun and the bullet. Similarly, at the present time we cannot effectually stay the progress of science, and to attempt to do so is not only unwise but is also preventing the possibilities of a really more humane type of war.

"Like every one else who was on the other side, I hate war and would ardently support every possible means which would tend toward its abolishment. But if we must have war, let us be prepared to wage it in the most efficient and at the same time in the most humane way.

"The most efficient warfare involves the use of gases. On this statement, I believe, there will be no disagreement; but I state that the most humane warfare involves the use of gases. With this statement, a considerable portion of the people would probably disagree because they do not understand what gas warfare really is; in fact, most of the proposals looking to the abolishment of the use of gases and other chemicals in warfare are based on the assumption of the effect of gases on troops at the front. We have to-day too many sob stuff writers who have seized on this method of fighting which entails the novel thing for its news value.

"This attitude of the public is due quite largely to lurid descriptions more than to the amount of suffering on the part of those involved. They have pictured the soldier lying on the ground gasping for breath after the poison gas attack, or coughing away his life due to irritation of the lungs, or blinded by gases groping his way to a place of safety. It is a horrible picture, and it is a true picture.

"But there is also the soldier gasping for breath whose lungs are punctured by the machine gun bullet. There is the soldier whose arm or leg is literally torn away by shrapnel or high-explosive shell, and there is also the soldier who is blinded because hit in a vital spot by a bullet or fragment of shell. For all warfare is cruel—unspeakably horrible.

"The effect of these older agencies of war has not been pictured by the sensational writers because they are old. It is only the newer things which have been so much dealt with in descriptions of war. Hence, in the imagination of the people, all the horrors of war are laid on some of the new weapons. Ample statistics have already been presented by General Fries and others showing that even to-day gas warfare is by far the most humane method of warfare. Further development of gas warfare offers the possibility of ideal war."

In the War of the Future Entire Armies Will Be Put to Sleep by Airplanes Pouring Forth an Anesthetic Gas and Painlessly Captured Without the Infliction of Wounds.

ODD USES for OLD NEWSPAPERS

WHAT do you do with your old newspapers after you have finished reading them? They can be put to endless uses, such as using them as a substitute for coal. When they are to be used for this purpose soak them in water for a couple of days. Wring out, and shape into balls, which will be very useful for keeping a fire in when you don't want to have to look after it.

A dampened piece of newspaper is as good as a cloth for polishing windows or lamp-chimneys, while there is nothing so good as newspaper for trimming a lamp wick. Rub the charred part off with the paper, instead of cutting it, then there will be no "horns" to make the lamp smoke.

If two or three thicknesses of neatly-folded newspaper are placed under the stair carpets, they will wear better, and be much softer to walk on. It is also economical to lay papers evenly all over the floor, under your carpets.

Another carpet "tip." Newspapers torn in shreds, soaked, and sprinkled on the carpet before sweeping, take up the dust much better than the tea-leaves generally used for the same purpose.

The kitchen table has to be used for all sorts of purposes, from making cooking preparations to plate-cleaning. It need never get dirty if you lay newspapers to protect the part where you are working.

Line all drawers, upstairs and down, with newspaper, and cover kitchen and larder shelves in the same way. This saves frequent scrubbing.

Moths cannot bear the smell of new newspaper. There will be no danger of furs and Winter clothing being attacked when out of use if wrapped securely in newspaper.

There is a lot of heat in a newspaper. If you are short of blankets, or do not like too much weight on the bed, though needing warmth, spread newspapers between the top blanket and the coverlet. They will give quite as much warmth as an extra blanket.

When furniture has to be packed away, there is often a danger of chair-legs getting scratched. Wrap them round with newspaper to prevent any harm coming to them.

Is There LIMIT to HEAT and COLD?

SOME years ago, Professor Dewar, by boiling liquid hyrodgen in a vacuum, reached a temperature within about 50 degrees of absolute zero. This temperature, described as that at which the heat energy of matter absolutely disappears, is no less than 490 degrees below zero Fahrenheit.

Man's mind is not so constituted that he is able to comprehend space or infinity, and to the average person these words mean little, if anything.

Yet in regard to positive science man is now reaching points which, like that of the intense cold mentioned, are absolutes so far as terrestrial existence is concerned.

At the same time that Professor Dewar was experimenting with liquid hydrogen, other men of science, such as Moissan and Acheson, were experimenting with electric furnaces in which temperatures as high as 7,000 degrees Fahrenheit were obtained. Under such heat nickel and platinum burn like wax, and even the best firebrick is consumed, leaving no trace behind it. Yet science has not yet reached the absolute of heat, and it is not known what that temperature would be.

By the use of wave-lengths of light, the scientist can now measure accurately to the seventy-millionth part of an inch. The mechanism, which is very complicated, shows a startling difference between two standards made in the same mould.

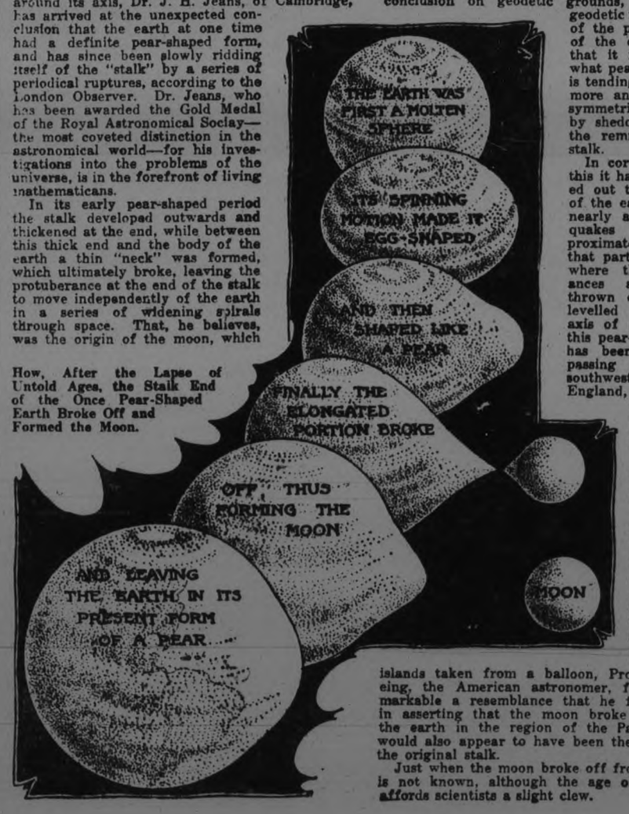
As for size, theoretically speaking, there is no limit one way or the other. But in the laboratory man has succeeded in discovering the dimensions of the atom, which is now known to be about one-thirty-millionth of an inch in diameter.

Yet even the atom is built up of electrons. These are believed to be the smallest particles which can or do exist.

Was MOON Once PART of EARTH?

AS a result of a very difficult mathematical investigation into the various shapes an elastic planet would assume under the combined influence of gravitation and its rotation around its axis, Dr. J. H. Jeans, of Cambridge, has arrived at the unexpected conclusion that the earth at one time had a definite pear-shaped form, and has since been slowly ridding itself of the "stalk" by a series of periodical ruptures, according to the London Observer. Dr. Jeans, who has been awarded the Gold Medal of the Royal Astronomical Society—the most coveted distinction in the astronomical world—for his investigations into the problems of the universe, is in the forefront of living mathematicans.

In its early pear-shaped period the stalk developed outwards and thickened at the end, while between this thick end and the body of the earth a thin "neck" was formed, which ultimately broke, leaving the protuberance at the end of the stalk to move independently of the earth in a series of widening spirals through space. That, he believes, was the origin of the moon, which was formed on this theory from the fractured stalk of the pear.



How, After the Lapse of Untold Ages, the Stalk End of the Once Pear-Shaped Earth Broke Off and Formed the Moon.

Professor W. J. Sollas, the eminent geologist, curiously enough, has arrived at much the same conclusion on geodetic grounds, and careful geodetic measurements of the present figure of the earth suggest that it is still somewhat pear-shaped, and is tending to approach more and more to a symmetrical spheroid by sheddnig itself of the remnants of the stalk.

In corroboration of this it has been pointed out that the zone of the earth in which nearly all big earthquakes happen approximates closely to that part of the pear where the protuberances are being thrown off or being levelled down. The axis of symmetry of this pear-shaped earth has been located as passing through the southwest corner of England, which is on the stable part of the pear, while the remains of the stalk lie in the Pacific Ocean.

By comparing the photographs of the extinct volcanoes on the moon with the photographs of Pacific volcanic islands taken from a balloon, Professor Pickeing, the American astronomer, found so remarkable a resemblance that he felt justified in asserting that the moon broke away from the earth in the region of the Pacific, which would also appear to have been the location of the original stalk.

Just when the moon broke off from the earth is not known, although the age of this globe affords scientists a slight clew.

Do Not Wear Dark Blue If You Would Avoid Mosquito Bites

INSECTS, and particularly mosquitoes, are attracted or repelled by certain colors. Dark blue, entomologists have found, possesses for these pests a curious attraction, and that is why so many persons who wear dark blue socks or stockings with low shoes get bitten on the ankles.

On the other hand, mosquitoes do not like yellow, particularly a pale yellow, so this is a good color to wear if you wish to escape being bitten. Here are the colors in order of attraction and repulsion, beginning with those which attract: Dark blue, dark red, brown, red, black, gray, dark green, violet, light blue, pearl gray, pale green, white, orange, yellow.

Mosquitoes and other insects are equally particular about scents. They extremely dislike that of paraffin and you can keep flies off a horse by rubbing his coat with a sponge which has been dampened in paraffin.

Although you cannot well daub yourself with paraffin to keep off mosquitoes, there are many other scents which, while not unpleasant to you, are disliked by them. Mosquitoes and flies are repelled by any plant which produces essential oils, and more so by the oils themselves. Aniseed, dil, camomile, cassia, cinnamon, citron, citronella, coriander, fennel, eucalyptus, all these oils, and especially the latter, form good protections against insects. Against those little creatures called harvesters, which so often bite your wrists and ankles, camphorated oil is the best protection.

But if you are living in a country that is really badly infested by flying insects, the surest way of escaping insect pests is to have fine wire screens fitted in all the windows and doorways.

To Prevent Abnormal Blood-Pressure

WHAT is regarded by some prominent physicians as marking a distinct advance in the scientific battle against apoplexy and other related ailments of middle age incident to high blood pressure is a recent treatment announced by Dr. H. A. Higley, of Brooklyn, after five years research with Dr. C. W. Field, of New York. While hitherto all diagnoses in cases of high blood pressure have been made on the content of certain substances in the blood without regard to the action of the kidneys, the functional activity of the kidneys as well as the bloodstream is studied under the new treatment with a view to eliminating or substantially reducing the presence of those substances which have a tendency to increase the blood pressure.

The blood content, Dr. Higley explains, is too variable to permit of an accurate diagnosis. The discovery is doubly important in that it has led to the development of a formula and treatment for the cure of the inactivity of kidneys, it is claimed. By the new method abnormal conditions are removed by dietary treatment. Dr. Higley believes that in this way 70 per cent of high blood pressure cases (other than hardening of arteries) can be eliminated and 15 per cent of the remaining cases arrested in their progress. Even in the most acute cases, he says, the resultant danger of apoplexy is reduced.

Blood pressure increases with a person's age. It also varies with circumstances. A normal pressure for a man of fifty would be quite abnormal for a man of twenty-five. Roughly, the normal pressure may be estimated by adding 100 to the individual's age in years. If the test registers 20 degrees above this estimate it does not necessarily indicate a dangerous condition; many a person with high blood pressure has lived to a ripe old age.

Control of high blood pressure depends largely upon the strictness with which the patient follows the physician's advice. The diet as well as other habits of living should be carefully watched. Do not eat too much meat or other rich foods, for this overburdens the kidneys and other vital organs, weakening them. Avoid use of tea, coffee, tobacco and other stimulants to excess. In aggravated cases it may be necessary to avoid protein foods altogether for an indefinite period.

Thimbles Used Over 2,000 Years Ago

THE thimble is so common an article of every-day use in the home and many trades that its antiquity escapes notice. But the thimble in its present form has a known history of 2,000 years, and variations probably have served the same purpose since some prehistoric human hit on the idea of sewing two animal skins together.

According to The Copper and Brass Bulletin, "bronze thimbles, open at the top like those used by tailors, have been found among the ruins of Herculaneum, which was destroyed with Pompeii during the eruption of Vesuvius in 79 A. D. Bronze or brass thimbles differing little in appearance from the modern type have been found in the excavations of Roman dwellings in London, as well as in the Thames off Dowgate. They are unquestionably of very early date. All are of bronze or brass, in excellent condition, and are of two distinct types. One is composed of a strip of metal about eight-twelfths of an inch wide, rolled round and soldered, leaving the end open in the fashion of the specimens discovered at Herculaneum. Either extremity is encircled by a plain band, the space intervening being thickly covered with small indentations, similar to the milling of the thimble of the present time.

Other thimbles found off Dowgate are of sugar-loaf type, their tops being more conic than those of any made within the last 400 years. They vary from seven-twelfths of an inch to nine-twelfths of an inch in height. Their apices are smooth, but the rest of the surfaces contain the familiar indentations, with the exception of a plain band around the base.

About 250 years ago the quaint custom sprang up of inscribing posies and forget-me-nots inside the thimble itself, and it is said that in those days the thimble served the same tender purpose of the engagement ring of to-day.

Lakefield Fair Prizewinners

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 29.—The ideal weather conditions which attended the Lakefield fair this year (a contrast to the past four years) brought out what one may call a record attendance. The exhibits were first class in nearly every class considerably ahead of previous years; the exceptions were in fruit and some vegetables which have been seriously affected by the dry season. The directors, one and all, worked to make the fair the success it undoubtedly was, and they received many congratulations on the gathering.

A novelty was introduced this year by Mr. Simmons' prize for the best workingman's dinner. This was a splendid idea and no doubt if Mr. Simmons makes the same offer next year there will be many more entries.

The oldest person making entries was Miss Jane Gordon, who, though well over 90 years of age, received (and deserved to receive) several prizes for hand needlework.

A regrettable accident occurred just at the close of the otherwise perfect day. Mr. W. Preston's fine carriage horse became alarmed at a motor car and reared, and in some way broke its neck. The horse had been much admired during the afternoon and was a valuable animal.

PRICE OF BLOOD.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 29. — (United Press).—The price of blood has gone up and the day of the volunteer who used to offer a pint free for emergency transfusions is long past. Physicians at Mt. Sinai Hospital call by radio and advertised in newspapers for volunteers to give a pint of blood to a recently widowed mother of five children who was in a critical condition. Eleven persons applied to the hospital in answer to the appeals and four were found to have the correct type of blood for transfusion. They were offered $25 for a pint of blood, but they would not accept, saying that the market quotation for blood today is $35 a pint up.

BENNIE LEONARD AFRAID OF GIRLS

Bennie Leonard's mother wants him to marry and quit the ring. Bennie says that in two or three years he'll consider the idea seriously.

Bennie is still a young man—27. Three years ago Billy Gibson, his manager, was kidding Bennie about girls.

Bennie became all flustered. "I never saw anything like it," remarked Gibson when Bennie had gotten out of hearing. "He's the most bashful fellow I ever saw about women. He stutters when one of them talks to him."

Hair-Growing!

Extraordinary Discovery

Numerous testimonials are on our files from users of the Gallois Hair Grower. This wonderful hair preparation introduces at last the natural method of conquering hair troubles it gives food to starved hair roots, its medicinal properties overcome all hair and scalp diseases and if it is used conscientiously it will make the hair grow healthy and beautiful.

Everybody needs to pay attention to the hair especially those whose hair is beautiful should use it regularly to keep the hair healthy and free from dandruff. It is an invaluable scalp remedy for children. A $2 size jar will convince you of its merit. If your druggist hasn't got it ask him to get it for you. Insist on Gallois, pronounced Gal-wah Hair Grower, the great antiseptic food and tonic for the hair. Sold exclusively in Peterboro by Bond's Drug Store, corner George and Hunter street or by mail from the sole Canadian Distributors, Gallois Kuesi, Suite 40, 197 Wellesely Street, Toronto.

BREAD FOR FRANCE.

The principal food of the French people is bread. In an exceptional year France raises nearly enough wheat to supply its needs, but after a mediocre harvest like that of 1922, it has to import large quantities from abroad. On account of the rate of exchange France in 1922 had to pay seventy francs abroad for an amount of wheat that was worth only twenty-five francs at home. An agricultural congress at Paris recently organized a campaign to enable France and its colonies to raise all the wheat it will need in 1923. The campaign will urge not so much increased acreage as better methods, better seed and better fertilizer.

Jack Dempsey Says Newer Form of Iron Increases Strength

Jack Dempsey says: "In building up rugged strength, power and endurance there is nothing like filling your blood with strength-giving iron—I firmly believe that it puts added power behind my punch."

Dr. Emil Sauer, well known New England Physician, in commenting on Dempsey's statement says: "No man without plenty of good red blood rich in health-giving and strength-building iron can go through life filled with vigor, force and power."

"Every thinking person should realize if men as physically fit as Jack Dempsey, Zack Wheat, Harry Hooper and dozens of other leaders in the world of sport have helped to maintain their supremacy by the use of this newer form of iron which is called Nuxated Iron, how much more important it is for the average man to see that there is no lack of iron in his blood. A surprisingly large number of people suffer from iron deficiency. Without iron in the blood, you cannot be your best, either mentally or physically, because lack of iron not only makes you nervous, irritable, and easily fatigued, but robs you of that virile force, that stamina and strength of will which are so necessary to success and power in every walk of life. To help make strong, keen, red-blooded Americans there is nothing in my experience which I have found so valuable as Nuxated Iron."

Get a bottle of Nuxated Iron today. Take it for two weeks, and if you have not, like thousands of others, obtained most surprising health, strength and energy, the manufacturers will promptly refund your money. Nuxated Iron is sold with this "satisfaction or money back" guarantee by all good druggists.

AIR PILOTS ARE READY FOR THE INTERNATIONAL RACES

By HERBERT LITTLE.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 29.—(United Press).—The fastest, the highest, the biggest and smallest flying machines will assemble at St. Louis flying field here October 1 for the international air races, seven speed classics that are expected to establish new records in aviation.

Several European entries, including Brack-Papa, Italian ace; Larry Carter, winner of the British Air Derby, and perhaps Sadi-Lecointe, the French speedster, make the Pulitzer 200-kilometer race that climaxes the show, October 3, international for the first time.

The army, which won the Pulitzer Trophy at Detroit last year, will send its fastest, and the navy has constructed four new "mystery planes," two Wright racers and two Curtis racers, especially built for this event. The seamen are determined to show better than last year, when Lieut. Russell Maughan won, setting a new world's record of 235.5 miles an hour, with another army airman placing second.

Last week at Mineola one of the navy's new Wright planes, piloted by Lieut. L. H. Sanderson, hit the 248-mile-an-hour mark over a measured course. Lieut. Sanderson will pilot the same plane in the Pulitzer race. Lieut. S. W. Callaway will fly the other Wright racer and Lieut. A. J. Williams and Ensign R. J. Brow will pilot the two Curtis planes for the navy in the same event.

New Wright Racers.

Lieut. Brack-Papa will fly in his Hat racer, said to be capable of developing 800 horsepower. The new Wright navy racers are said to develop 700 horsepower, but the most powerful racing motor heretofore built in the United States has been of 600 horsepower. Lieut. Maughan's ship, in which he set the record last year, developed only 450 horsepower.

Lieut. Maughan will not compete this year. The army entries are Lieut. A. Pearson, in a Vervill-Sperry racer, and Lieuts. J. D. Corkville and W. Miller in Curtis racers.

The navy contingent of thirty-six enlisted men and nine pilots arrived and set up camp here Sept. 20. Nearly one-half of the detail is composed of marines. Several of the navy pilots now are flying from San Diego, Calif.; Pensacola, Fla., and the Island of Hayti.

Navy and army representatives both have inspected the flying field and 50-kilometer triangular course and approved it.

Air board officials promoting the race here are making preparations to handle 200,000 spectators at the races.

The First Event.

The first event of the race will occur when civilian pilots from everywhere will compete in the "On-to-St. Louis" race for a $1,000 prize, awarded on compilation of speed, endurance and size of plane. These planes will arrive in time for the first day of the races, October 1, it is calculated.

Two races will be held Monday—the 150-kilometer Flying Club of St. Louis Trophy, for two-seater airplanes driven by civilians, and the 300-kilometer Liberty Engine Builders Trophy, for military observation planes equipped with Liberty motors only.

On Tuesday commercial planes of 200 horsepower or less will race for the Aviation Country Club of Detroit Trophy, and large-capacity planes will participate in a 300-kilometer race for the Merchants' Exchange of St. Louis Trophy.

New Air Mail Trophy.

The Detroit New Air Mail Trophy 300-kilometer race, for army mail pilots only, will be held Wednesday morning. The Pulitzer race will be held in the afternoon.

A race of model airplanes, driven by rubber bands, will be held Tuesday afternoon for a prize of $300. These midgets will have wing-spreads of 40 inches or less.

Several Cabinet members and Congressmen will attend a big aviation banquet Monday night. The national smoker of the National Aeronautic Association will be Wednesday evening. The Third National Aero Congress and Air Institute will hold sessions at the Hotel Statler during the races.

Baby Sex Problem Is Near Solution

(By CARL D. GROAT)

BERLIN (By mail to United Press).—The age-old problem of determining beyond peradventure in advance the sex of a baby is near solution.

While the "stethoscope method," recently reported, is almost infallible, it sometimes reports a girl instead of a boy and vice versa. Hence, German medical experts are now occupying themselves with achieving a system bilogically perfect.

Dr. Ernst Graefenberg, Berlin's foremost gynecologist, revealed to the United Press details of a new "serum," akin in its application to the famous "Tuberculin" test, which he believes will make it possible to tell months in advance of births when the offspring will be male or female.

Graefenberg's serum is developed from certain glanduler secretions of the male and female. If the male serum is applied and fails to react, the chances are that the forthcoming baby is female; but then the female serum is applied and gives a definite reaction, it proves the sex of the baby. This process is reversed to determine a boy baby.

GIVES VASE TO HONOR SAINT

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 29 (Associated Press).—A handsome silver vase, designed and wrought by Prince Eugene, brother of King Gustav, was the contribution of Sweden's "Artist Prince" to the recent commemoration services for St. Bridget, Sweden's first great international figure. The services, held in the ancient town of Vadstena, home of St. Bridget and seat of the Brigittine convent she founded, attracted wide attention.

Tributes were paid to the religious leader's memory by Selma Lagerlof, greatest of Sweden's women novelists and Dr. Nathan Soderblom, Lutheran Archbishop of Sweden. St. Bridget, or Brigitta, was born in Sweden in 1303, of noble family. On the death of her husband, she turned to religious service and founded the famous convent. Her books of prophecies and revelations are Swedish classics.

Colie Chandler is an engineer on the Illinois Central. He drives locomotive No. 1167. When he comes in from a run, Colie always lingers around the shops until No. 1167 is inspected and groomed for her next trip.

When repairs are needed, Colie can't be driven out of the Cairo shop with a shotgun. The story goes that he hangs around, watching the shopmen as anxiously as a mother hen with her chicks. When repairs involve an overnight job, Colie sleeps in the roundhouse within call.

All this isn't surprising, if you know anything about the average locomotive engineer and his loyalty to his job.

Colie Chandler starts us thinking about the generally accepted notion that the average person works reluctantly and quits with a shout when the whistle blows.

Sometimes we all act that way. But the trouble is with our nerves rather than a desire to put miles between ourselves and our jobs.

For instance, a real dyed-in-the-wool newspaperman never reads the papers as eagerly as when he is on a vacation. As if he were afraid that he might miss being in on a big job of reporting.

Work is like an old horse or an auto that has nearly served its day. The driver gets irritable at times and cusses and fumes. But just let an outsider start criticizing, and you quickly learn what the owner really thinks of his steed. The owner of the most shot-to-pieces flivver is ever eager to boast about what it can still do.

So with our jobs, drat them. We hate and love them in the same breath. Ask the man returned from vacation.

"Poor boy," remarked the lady visitor to the wounded soldier in the hospital, "you must have been through some pretty tight squeezes."

VISIT TO MOON A COSTLY TRIP

Possible to Construct a Machine For Journey at the Cost of a Quarter Billion.

(By FERDINAND C. M. JAHN)

BERLIN (By mail to United Press).—Anybody, instead of going to the seashore, can have his vacation on Mars, the moon or any other planet in the very near future, according to Professor Hermann Oberth, who has just published a book "Rocketing to the Planets."

The theory of the American experimenter, Goddard, who planned to shoot a rocket to the moon, is further developed by Oberth on a scientific basis which, according to Max Wolff, professor of astronomy and leading authority is unattackable from a scientific point of view.

Oberth endeavors to prove three thesis:

First—In the present state of science and technique it is possible to construct machines which can pass beyond the terrestial atmosphere.

Second—Through further perfection such machines can attain speeds, enabling them, once the ethereal space is reached, not to fall back to the earth, but to pass beyond the reach of the attraction of the earth, and travel around in a planetary orbit.

Third—These machines can be constructed in such a way that human beings (probably without injuring the health) could ride in them.

A Costly Machine

Oberth calculates that such a machine would cost about $250,000,000.

Oberth believes that it would be more advisable to construct the machines so that they would become little moons themselves, traveling in an orbit around the earth. The crew could explore unknown parts of the earth and photograph them.

Oberth carries his theory so far as to predict that it will be possible to construct machines which take sufficient food, fuel and compressed air to enable explorers to travel to far-off planets. While the main apparatus would assume a route like a moon around the planet to be explored, a second and smaller rocket, carrying passengers, could be shot off from the circulating machine to the surface of that planet. After the investigations had been completed this second machine could rejoin the mother-ship which, in turn would be able to come back to earth.

BIGGEST SIGN IN WORLD

NEW YORK, Sept. 29 (United Press).—The highest electric sign on any building in the world was flashed on last night on Broadway. This sign advertises the Gotham National Bank and appears above its twenty-five story building on Columbus Circle. The sign stands 347 feet from the curb.

In fact, there are two signs: one faces southeast and is visible across Manhattan and out on Long Island, the other faces north and is visible in the Bronx and up the river.

These signs are 80 feet wide. They weigh 80 tons and are riveted together with 15,000 4-ounce bolts. They are built directly on the steel columns of the building, which were erected to support such signs and are built to withstand 35 pounds wind pressure to the square foot.

PARIS BISHOP COMING

DES MOINES, Ia., Sept. 29 (Associated Press).—Bishop Edgar T. Blake, resident bishop of Paris, France, will address the annual general executive meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary society, to be held here October 18-23, according to an announcement made by Mrs. Evelyn Riley Nicholson, president.

The society has a total membership of 618,732, which includes auxiliaries 377,109; Young People and Standard Bearers 83,498; King's Heralds 63,006, and Little Light Bearers 75,119.

Bishop Blake will give some of his experiences while attending the Living Church Conference at Moscow, Russia. Other prominent speakers on the program include Miss Anna Gordon, president of the World's Woman's Christian Temperance Union; Bishop Thomas Nicholson, president of the Anit-Saloon League of America; Prof. O. H. Smith, Nanking, China, and Dr. Y. Y. Tsu, secretary of the Chinese Christian association.

STREET SINGERS' PAY.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—(Associated Press).—Street singers in London and the other large British cities find their occupation so remunerative that they have refused offers of $50.00 a week to appear on the stage.

London is flooded with these singers, but they seem to prosper even above the noise of the traffic. Often they appear in groups of five and six and sometimes they literally line up along the curbs of the principal thoroughfares.

Timely Talk on Furs

By ISRAEL KLEIN

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—If you have decided to buy a Hudson seal coat and you must choose between two fur dealers for your purchase, even though one is cheaper, would you know how to make the better choice

A large majority of women would not, because they depend on the dealer to enlighten them on the furs they want to buy. Yet here is a situation that would be puzzling—two dealers selling Hudson seal, one underpricing the other.

It may be a matter of cut-throat competition, but if the purchaser knew anything about Hudson seal she could soon learn the real cause. She might find that while one offers northern Hudson seal the other, though cheaper, offers the southern variety. And if she knew the difference, she would not hesitate buying the former at a higher price.

Hudson seal is the name commonly given to muskrat, the best skins of which come from Canada and the northern states. Besides, watch for 'Late Winter" and 'Early Spring" Hudson seals, for they're the best.

Similarly, other furs which are popular this year might be studied by the woman who plans buying a skin wrap or neckpiece this fall. The information might help her in her choice.

Favorite Furs

The most favored furs, according to a prominent fur dealer, are: 1. Caracul; 2. Squirrel; 3. Seal; 4. Cony; 5. Raccoon; 6. Mole; 7. Weasel, including mink, ermine, sable, and marten; 8. Fox.

Caracul is a lamb skin. The best grade is the Astrachan, a species found in the province of Astrachan and other parts of southern Russia and Asia. The poor grade is the Chinese or Mongolian lamb, a soft wool, moderately long-haired lamb of those parts of Asia.

Squirrel skins from Russia and Siberia are best, those from the sections east of the Ural mountains being valued above all others for their clear gray color. In two of these districts, it has a rich bluish shade. The reddish cast is characteristic of many of the European squirrels. China also supplies a good grade of squirrel and some fine dark skins come from Japan.

Sealskins Rare

Seals are divided in two chief classes: the sealskin and the Hudson seal. The former is the real seal, while the latter is actually muskrat. The most popular sealskin is the Alaskan, the catch of which has been severely restricted in recent years to save the mammal from extermination. Only about 50,000 sealskins are offered for sale by the government annually.

Cony is only another name for European rabbit. The finer white and silver-gray skins are worked up in their natural state, but many millions are either dyed in the hair or converted into 'Near Seals," 'Molines" and 'Electric Conies" by having the top hair removed before being dyed the desired color. Most squirrel skins come from France and Belgium, the French being of the finer quality. Skins of the Australian rabbit are called Kit Conies in their natural state, and Mole, Nutria, Beaver and Seal Conies or Sealines when they have been dyed to imitate the natural furs.

Raccoon of the large, heavy-furred variety coming from Wisconsin, Minnesota, Dakota and Northern Iowa, are most valuable. 'Southern Coons" are much flatter in fur and poorer in color than the 'Central" and 'Northern" varieties.

Mole is found in North America, but this variety is of poor quality. The best moleskins come from Scotland and Holland, although the Dutch Moles are not as full and silky as the Scotch Moles.

Weasel and Fox

Weasel Furs are the Ermine, Mink, Sable and Marten, especially. Finest varieties of Ermine come from Siberia, Canada and Alaska. The white skins come from Ishim in western Siberia, but the Babinsky skins are the largest and most valuable.

True Mink comes from North America only, the finest being from Maine, Labrador, Nova Scotia and other sections of Canada. Next come the eastern minks, then the northwestern.

Sable is a variety of marten, of which the Russian sable is the most valuable. Next come the heavily silvered, large brown skins from Kamchatka and after these the silvered small brown skins from the Amur district.

The Marten, of which Kolinsky is a variety, is most common as the Stone Marten from Europe and the Brown Marten, or Hudson's Bay Sable from that district. Kolinsky comes from Tomsk, Russia, and its brilliant orange color is dyed a soft dark brown to resemble sable.

Fox is most popular in silver, natural blue, white, red and cross varieties. Silver or Black Fox are found in high northern latitudes, the finest specimens coming from Alaska, Labrador, New Brunswick and the Hudson's Bay country. Only one skin in 300 is full black, the rest being more or less silvered. Silver foxes are being raised successfully on farms in Canada and northern United States and their skins are said to be superior even to those of wild foxes.

Blue fox is found in Alaska, Greenland and Denmark.

White foxes are found in the north polar regions, but some come from the lower cold regions of the Blue species, where its fur changes in summer to a stone color.

Red fox is the most common variety of the animal. The annual production is over 1,500,000 skins. Most of these skins are dyed black, blue, brown, victory gray, taupe or Sitka color, and some are also 'pointed" to imitate the natural silver fox.

Cross fox comes from Siberia, Kamchatka, Manchuria and Northern China besides North America. It is a handsome skin, the finest being found in Labrador.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By SISTER MARY

With the coming of cold weather, pork may be introduced into the diet. While this delicious meat is more difficult than beef to digest, a moderate use of it can do no harm to the ordinarily healthy person.

If pork is well done and accompanied by the proper dishes there is no reason why chops and roasts and sausage should not appear on most dinner or luncheon tables once a week.

The amount of fat in other foods served in a meal with pork should be decreased. Sausage is almost one-third fat pork, so choose vegetables lacking in fat. Let the salad be a simple green or fruit salad with French dressing and the dessert a custard or rice or fruit tapioca.

These recipes for sausage may be new to you. They provide a meat course lacking in protein but rich in fat, so supply the deficiency in the dessert.

Stuffed Apples

Wash apples and remove cores. Stick a few cloves into the flesh of the apples. Fill cavities of apples with sausage. Put in a baking dish with a very little water. Cover and put in a hot oven for 20 minutes. Reduce heat and remove cover and bake any hour in a slow oven. Baste with the juice in the pan.

With Candied Apples

One pound sausage, 4 apples, 1 cup vinegar, 2 cups brown sugar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon cloves, cracker dust.

Small sausages or link sausage should be used. Dip sausage in boiling water to cover and let simmer half an hour. Drain and put in a hot frying pan. Prick with a fork and fry half an hour, turning frequently.

Make a sirup of the vinegar, brown sugar and spices. Pare apples and remove cores. Cut in slices one-fourth inch thick. Drop in boiling sirup and cook until clear. Remove from sirup and roll in cracker dust. Brown quickly in hot sausage fat and serve around sausage.

Sausage Rolls

Four small sausages, 1½ cups flour, 1 tablespoon lard, ½ teaspoon salt, 3 teaspoons baking powder, milk to make a soft dough.

Parboil sausages for 10 minutes. Cool and remove skin. Mix and sift flour, salt and baking powder. Rub in lard with tips of fingers. Cut in milk with knife. Roll on a well-floured board to about one-half inch thickness. Cut in oblong-shaped pieces large enough to completely cover each sausage. Roll and pinch edges together. Prick top of each roll several times with a fork. Bake 45 minutes in a moderate oven.

Serve with scalloped or creamed potatoes, spinach, shredded cabbage, caramel custard or prune whip.

NO HALF WAY MEASURES

The clerk told her that she had none of this sombre hue in stock, but could supply her in almost any other shade or color.

"It's black or nuthin,' young lady," answered Mammy, "It's ges gotta be black, thas all. Youah see mah man he jest took a trip across de ole rivah Jordan, and when Ah mourns—why Ah mourns all ovah."

VALUE OF TIME

The supply of time is truly a daily miracle, an affair genuinely astonishing when it is examined. You wake up in the morning, and lo your purse is magically filled with twenty-four hours of the unmanufactured tissue of the universe of your life. It is yours. It is the most precious of possessions. No one can take it from you. It is unstealable, and no one receives either more or less than you receive. Talk about an ideal democracy. In the realm of time there is no aristocracy of intellect. Genius is not rewarded by even an extra hour a day.—Bennett.

REV. M'KENZIE AT ST. GEORGE'S

Delivered Exceedingly Inspiring Address Harvest Festival Service — The Church Very Tastefully Decorated.

The annual thanksgiving services for a bountiful harvest were begun at St. George's Church, South Peterboro, on Friday evening, Sept. 29, at 8 o'clock.

The little church was, as usual, prettily and tastefully decorated with wheat, oats, flowers, fruits and vegetables, and a considerable congregation was present. The service was fully choral and reflected much credit on Mr. Bruce Quin, the organist and choirmaster. The service was commenced by the singing of the processional hymn, "Praise, O praise our God and King," being a paraphrase of Psalm cxxxvi. The prayers were intoned by the Rector, the Rev. C. Courage. The first lesson was read by the Rev. Dr. Blagrave, Vicar of St. John's, Peterboro; while the Rev R. Grobb, Rector of All Saints', Peterboro, read the second lesson. The anthem, "While the earth remaineth," by Caleb Simper, was very effectively sung by the considerable choir, the opening solo being taken by Mr. Brown.

Splendid Address.

The sermon, which was preceded by the well-known hymn, "O Lord of heaven and earth and sea . . . Giver of all," was delivered by the Rev. A. W. Mackenzie, of Lakefield. It was an address rather than a sermon, listened to with great interest and attention by all. The text was taken from the fourth chapter of the second book of the Kings, vevrse 2, "What hast thou in thy house?" It will be remembered that a poor widow woman had a son who was liable to be sold in to slavery for unpaid taxes, when the prophet Elisha comes along. The widow appeals to the prophet for help, but he intends that she shall help herself as far as lay in her power; consequently in the words of the text he says, "What hast thou in the house?" meaning that God helps those who help themselves. The preacher went on to say that our Blessed Lord taught the same theory. When the miracle of feeding the five thousand was performed, He could easily have made the requisite food, but instead of that, He turned round to His disciples and made enquiry as to what food was available. He received the well-known reply, "There is a lad here who hath five barley loaves and some small fishes," and with those as a nucleus our Lord made the miraculous feast. We must look upon ourselves as God's co-workers, said the preacher. He wants the help of each one of His creatures in carrying out His will. If we want His help we must help ourselves as well. We must not expect miracles to be worked, unless we do our best on our own behalf. What was the first miracle our Blessed Lord performed? Why! it was at Cana, in Gallilee, where He turned water into wine. And why did He do this? Simply to give pleasure and happiness to the people assembled. Let kill-joys remember this. Again when St. Peter needed money to pay the tribute, He bade him go and take it out of a fish's mouth; to that extent he had to help himself. God makes demands on man's energy; man must not expect miracles without some effort of work on his own part. So it is with the farmer, he must do his part for whatsoever a man sows so must he reap; and that out of nothing, nothing is got. Therefore we must use the gifts He has given us, to the best of our ability.

The great thing in the Christian life is belief in the love of God. No matter how dark our path may be, let us be thankful for our many mercies, and never lose faith in the fact that God loves us.

It was a helpful and inspiring address, and was listened to with rapt attention.

At the conclusion of the service, as the choir was leaving the church, the harvest hymn, "Praise to God, immortal praise," was sung as a recessional hymn.

A nine-year-old girl prodigy is so highly educated than an intelligence test shows she is qualified to be a high school teacher. She is Elizabeth Benson of Los Angeles. In an all-round way she probably is the "brightest" youngster of her age in the world.

But if she lived 200 years from now, her mentality would not be above normal. Average intelligence advances rapidly. The average boy radio bug of 1923 knows more about science than Abraham Lincoln knew when he died. He doesn't have Lincoln's wisdom. Knowledge and wisdom are separate and distinct things.

FORD

Net profits of the Ford Motor Co recently have been at a rate of 162 million dollars a year, according to the latest Ford financial statement.

To save you the bother of figuring out; 162 million dollars represents 6 per cent. a year interest on 2700 million dollars, which is not far from three billions.

This gives you a rather staggering picture of the amount of money in the Ford camp. Six per cent. interest, you know, is about as much as the average rich man can get, with absolute safety. At least, it satisfies most of them, barring the profiteers.

DEARTH OF STUDENTS.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—(Associated Press).—According to the London newspapers, there is a grave shortage of clergy in the Church of England. Official figures disclose that there are fewer than 13,000 incumbents, this year, which is 8,000 less than the number required to carry on te work of the church. The theological colleges, the newspapers say, are nearly empty.

"Our full staff should number 21,000," said Canon Partridge, Secretary of the Church of England Central Board of Finance. "Taking a generation as 30 years, it follows that 700 men should be ordained every year. We have not reached that figure for 11 years. In 1918 there were only 114 ordinations.

"One of the causes of this shortage is the financial position of the professional classes from whose ranks the priesthood is usually recruited. They cannot now afford to give their sons the long and expensive training required. Another cause is the unattractiveness of the clerical profession as a career. Stipends are rarely more than $1,500 a year."

CREATIVE

America is developing a new type of architecture that will win world-wide popularity. It will be a modernization of the Gothic, its chief characteristic being slenderness of form and adequate lightness of structure. So comments Alexander Finta, the noted Hungarian sculptor and painter.

The skyscraper is America's greatest contribution to architecture. It is the product of the architectural theory that form should follow function, a theory originated by Louis H. Sullivan. We are a practical people, and the practical creation is artistic because it is natural.

TALK

An English girl, daughter of the Earl of Birkenhead, visited America. She says she was most impressed by our "love of talk." She got the impression from the many speechmakers she heard and the patience with which audiences listened to them.

Rodger Dolan, who is having liver trouble lately, says this patience is because so few speeches contain ideas, being mostly talk, talk, talk—repetitions of old stuff. Thought seems painful, both for broadcasters and receivers.

HUNTING

Nobody Will Mistake You For a Deer If You Wear Red

BY MORRIS ACKERMAN

Nationally Known Authority and Writer on the Great Out-of-Doors, and Editor of Ackerman's Sportsmen's Guide

FIRST ARTICLE — EQUIPMENT.

To some folks the question of equipment for a hunting trip is a perplexing one. The answer is not so much what you should take as it is what to leave at home. Hunting in the northern tier of states, in Canada and in the mountains calls for warm clothing. In the southern states it demands lighter clothing.

Excepting your rifle and ammunition the most important part of the equipment in mountain hunting is a good, clear-visioned field glass. You can't climb a mountain without calked shoes. Quarter-inch golfer's calks are just right. If you can't get them use Hungarian hobs.

Red's The Color Scheme

Be sure your breeches do not bind over the knee. A day's horse-back ride with bound knees will lame you. In selecting mackinaw clothing the more red you get in the less likelihood there is of some other hunter mistaking you for a dining room trophy.

In duck and shore bird shooting try to have your clothing match the surroundings as far as possible. Khaki does this most effectively. You need a cap or hat to match, rubber boots of hip length. The coat and trousers should be roomy enough to permit underclothing, extra trousers and added protection, depending on the weather, around the body. Duck hunting is the coldest game known to the hunter.

About Your Armament

Now about the rifle and shotgun. Most big game hunters only buy one rifle. A 30-30 is big enough for deer and black bear. It is not suitable for either moose or grizzlies. If you are going to hunt moose get a rifle with large enough caliber to make a hole, a big hole. Many wounded moose are sought—few are found.

With a hole, a big hole, there is blood to track with. Remember that. It's mighty important. The range of your shotgun depends quite largely on length of barrel. For ducks you need a longer barrel than for quail and rabbits. If you use a single barrel gun, my suggestion would be either a 28 or 30-inch barrel, modified choke, 12 gauge. This, of course, for the "every-day" hunter who buys only one shotgun.

ANNUAL RALLY LAST EVENING

Big Open Night at the Y. W. C. A. Was Well Patronized.

The annual fall rally of the Young Women's Christian Association was held last evening, and proved to be a most enjoyable affair. Nearly three hundred people attended for an evening of jolly amusement. The halls and green room, the library and gymnasium were decorated profusely with flowers and autumn leaves, and there was a large display of pretty Y.W.C.A. posters in the gymnasium, where most of the evening's entertainment was staged.

The programme was opened by remarks from the president, Mrs. T. Cruikshank, who spoke in congratulatory terms of the efficient work of the committees in charge of the entertainment, and of the interest taken in the general work of the Y. W.C.A.

Devotional exercises were led by Rev. R. Bamforth, pastor of Mark street Methodist church, who spoke on leadership in connection with 'Y' work, taking his text from the 23rd Psalm.

Outlines of Work.

The general secretary, Miss L. Brownscombe, gave an outline of the year's work. Referring to the scope of the work done under the sign of the Blue Triangle, all over the world, Miss Brownscombe spoke of the all-round development of girlhood carried on by the Association everywhere, in the attention paid to the physical, intellectual, religious, social and service sides of a girl's life, in the boarding home, the physical department, the educational department and the special classes, which include tuition in elocution, led this year by Mrs. G. Clifton Carruthers, and in English and Arithmetic, First Aid and Home Nursing work, under supervision of one of the city doctors, with certificates of St. John's Ambulance Association presented to the successful members later on.

Under direction of Mrs. Geo. King, Mrs. J. Middleton, Mrs. G. Porter and Mrs. Parlour, a community singing class will be organized this season, with a musical competition arranged, in which pupils in elocution will take part.

From October 15th to December 15th, an evening will be set apart for ukulele playing practise or fun, a special musical evening will be held in November, directed by Mrs. N. D. Buchanan and the Religious Work Committee have arranged Bible study classes, the first portion, from October to December, meeting on Monday nights, to be taken by Rev. Mr. Spence, the second, from January to March, by Mrs. Mackinnon, wife of the pastor of Knox church.

The Tuesday evening sing songs will be continued this year, commencing on November 25th and for all girls away from their own homes a Sunday afternoon friendly hour and tea will be held on the first Sunday of every month. In November, the World's Week of Prayer will be observed, and in January, the Religious Work Committee of the Y.W. C.A. is inviting all Canadian Girls in Training Groups of the city to join in a C.G.I.T. evening.

Miss Brownscombe concluded with a reference to the community spirit in the Y.W.C.A. and the various social clubs formed to meet the desires of different ages.

Miss C. Littlefield gave a short outline of various branches of gymnasium work.

Poetical Comedy.

A special feature of the evening's fun was a narration in poetical form, composed by Miss Margaret Sherlock, which depicted the arrival of a stranger at the Y.W.C.A. building, and her journey through the various departments of the 'Y.' The lady, in old-fashioned costume, was delineated by Miss Whipple McIlmoyle, and Miss Mary Elliott acted as the obliging secretary. The different scenes, with comic interludes, progress through the swimming pool, the "brown room," or ladies' parlor, the club room, where Ruth McLeish, wearing a large paddlehead, inscribed with different subjects, officiated, to the gymnasium, where Dr. Phyllis Young, Phyllis Hall and Ruth McLeish formed a Beginners' class for the edification of the stranger, and the advanced class work was portrayed by Frances Park and Grace Wilson. The Repairs Committee, worried over needed repairs, was composed of Geraldine Glover and Mildred Sisson, and the financial treasurer was Dr. Phyllis Young, who, bowed down by enormous bills for upkeep, faints away when a postman, (Florence Batten) brings in a donation cheque of $5,000.

Girls assisting in the portrayal of this jolly little comedy were: The Misses Ethel Nichol, Aileen Wade, G. Gimblett, H. Jackson, L. Slaughter, M. Bradley, Loretta Bradley, Elden Bradley, Florence Wandleigh, and Mary Roper.

The dancing class gave several charming specialty dances in costume, including Sassy Sue, Moonbeams, the Bluette polka, Autumn Flowers, Butterflies and the Sailors' Hornpipe Girl staking part in these were the Misses P. Hall, M. Lawrence, M.Wilson, M. Dunlop, D. Goheen, M. Hall, V. Harvey, E. Armstrong, M. Borbridge, D. Henry, R. McLeish, H. Jackson, G. Gimblett, F. Adams, G. Wilson and B. Lobban.

During the first part of the evening, an enjoyable musical programme was given, including vocal solos by Mrs. Parlour, Miss Dorothy Engel and Mr. C. A. Crowe, accompanied by Mrs. G. Porter and Mrs. Parlour, and a reading by Mrs. G. Clifton Carruthers.

Refreshments were served in the green room, Miss E. MacVannel acting as convenor, assisted by Mrs. A. Moir and Mrs. R. Denne. Tea was poured by Mrs. R. H. Turner and Mrs A. A. Hall.

RIOTING LASTS SEVERAL HOURS

Sunday May Produce Some New Excitement in Parts of Germary.

DUESSELDORF, Sept. 29. — (Canadian Press).—Rioting, lasting several hours, occurred in a suburb of this city last night. The trouble started with an attack by men believed to be Separatist sympathisers, on a small police sub-station. Reinforcements drove off the attacking party, several members of which were severely wounded.

The sub-station was guarded at the time by only six Green police. Several shots were fired at the officers, and the rioters were about to disarm the police and take possession of the station when reinforcements came up and dispersed the attacking force, which numbered several score. It is not known whether any party was killed. The incident has excited the apprehension over what may happen to-morrow when the Rhineland Separatists gather here for their mass demonstration. German city authorities are bending all their efforts to make it what they call "dead" Sunday, with the intention of avoiding collisions with the Separatists. A proclamation placarded this morning orders the suspension of all street traffic throughout the day to-morrow.

MAYENCE, Sept. 29.—(Canadian Press). — The Franco Belgian authorities operating the railroads in the Rhineland and the Ruhr opened a recruiting office here with the object of engaging thirty thousand German railroad men for these lines. All the men engaged will be obliged to take the oath to obey the Allies' civil and military authorities.

BERLIN, Sept. 29 — (Canadian Press).—It was officially announced to-day that the ordinance of January 13, suspending the deliveries in kind on reparations to France and Belgium had been annulled.

MOTHER AND CHILD ON MURDER CHARGE

PINE RIVER, Man., September 29 Canadian Press). — Mrs. Paul Sawicki and her twelve-year-old son Peter were committed for trial by Magistrate Robert Hawkins here yesterday on the charge of murdering Mrs. Anna Kunka, in the Sawicki cattle corral, on 1st September last.

The murder is alleged to have been the aftermath of a quarrel caused by cattle belonging to the Kunka family running loose in the Sawicki grain fields.

In a fistic battle, according to the evidence, Mrs. Sawicki ordered her son Peter to shoot Mrs. Kunka to protect his mother, who was getting the worst of the fight.

FAIR AT CAMPBELLFORD MAY ONCE MORE REACH THE HIGH WATER MARK

Despite Unfavorable Weather Yesterday, Receipts Amounted to $1,276 — Baby Show a Centre of Interest No Lack of Attractions.

RACES WERE A FEATURE

CAMPBELLFORD, September 29. — The weather was showery all morning, but it takes more than bad weather to keep the crowd away from Campbellford's annual fair.

The gate receipts tell the story of financial success. In 1922 the record was reached when the money taken in at the entrance was over $1,300, and on that occasion the weather was ideal.

Yesterday the receipts on the first count amounted to $1,276, and when all the returns are in, it is expected that the high water mark of last year will be reached again. It is only reasonable to suppose that the weather yesterday, which was threatening all afternoon, caused scores of the people residing at a distance to pass up the fair for this year.

I.O.D.E. Tag Day.

From early morning ladies were posted at all the main street corners of the town tagging the passers-by, the amount received to be added to the Soldiers' Memorial Fund which is being raised by the members of the I.O.D.E. After dinner these workers carried on at the Fair Grounds. The managers of the Tag Day met last night in their room at the Public Library to reckon up the returns, when it was found that the total amount taken in by the different teams was $250. This means that the society has raised by its own exertions alone, exclusive of any donations from outside parties or the $500 grant from the Town Council last winter, a total of over $1,100 for the Memorial Fund. This task was undertaken by the ladies less than a year ago.

Mrs. J. P. Archer was general manager of the canvass yesterday, and she was ably assisted by Mesdames A. J. Meyers, R. S. Southworth, F. Linton, W. Walters, A. Haig, and J. S. Stewart. Mrs. Stewart's team had the distinction of leading in the amount taken in by any band of workers.

The Baby Show.

One of the centres of interest during the afternoon was the baby show, which was held in the new rest room for ladies, at 3 o'clock. Upon Dr. John Macoun devolved the delicate task of making the awards in this department, but the doctor has acted in that capacity in former years, and there is general confidence in his judgment. The prizes of $3.00 and $2.00 by The Peterborough Examiner for the best boy over 8 and under 15 months were won by Mrs. Herbert McMillan of Norwood and Mrs. H. Lamey of Hastings.

Dr. W. A. Murphy's prize for the best baby under eight months went to Mrs. Peter Fairman of Seymour.

The Races.

As at all fall fairs the speed events held the crowd and there were three exciting races on the programme yesterday, every finish being close, and every driver doing his best to win. The track was rather heavy owing to the rain in the morning but some good time was made There were 14 horses entered for the different events, but a number were withdrawn, the owners not caring to start them in the mud. All of the races were won in straight heats, the best time made during the day being 2.20.

Lazy Mutt, the hero of many a stern battle on the race track, fresh from victory in his class at Colborne, had an off day yesterday, and finished fourth in the first heat of the named race. In the second heat, just as he was preparing to take the turn on to the home stretch on the first round, after hailing the field from the start, he lost his feet and went down in a heap, his driver turning a somersault over his head. For a time it looked as if the horse had run his last race, but he was up again and on his way to the barn before the leaders made the second turn. Lazy Mutt did not start again.

Herman E., owned by A. Elmhirst of Keene, is a coming racer. He is only four years old, and his race yesterday was the fifth in which he has entered, but he won the 2.20 event without a break or a skip.

The summary:

Free-for-All. ....

Polly Stout, R. Elmhirst, Lang—1-1-1.

Roy Mack, H Vanalstyne, Port Hope, 2-2-2.

South Dakotah Maid, R. Dunlap, Frankford, 3-3-3.

Time—2.21 1-4, 2.20, 2.20.

2.20 Trot or Pace.

Herman E., A. Elmhirst, Keene, 1-1-1.

Bucco, Richard Elmhirst, Indian River, 2-2-2.

Time—2.21 1-4, 2.20 1-2, 2.20.

2.40 Trot or Pace.

Lady Manor, R. Elmhirst, Indian River, 1-1-1.

Time—2.49 1-2, 2.34 1-4, 2.34 1-4.

The track was a trifle heavy for the Havelock youngster, but he made the leaders step their best

The judges of the races were: George O Tice, Belleville, starter; W. S. Nelson and Dr. H. S. Allan, Warkworth, judges; Dr. S. L. O'Hara and G. B. Rose, timekeepers. J. F. Freure, of Warkworth, acted as clerk to help out Secretary Stone, who had a busy day.

No Midway.

The crowd were disappointed because there was no midway, as advertised a few days ago, but for this lack in the programme the directors were in no sense to blame, and Secretary Stone explained the matter from the judges' stand. The directors had made a contract with the Imperial Shows, and to make certain that this attraction was coming, Secretary Stone wired the company the other day when they were at the Arnprior Fair. He received a reply that they would be here without fail, and the necessary wiring was put in to supply them with power. For some reason or other the Imperial people did not come. They were to bring a band with them, and this is the reason the directors did not provide other music.

No Lacrosse Game.

Another disappointment was the fact that the Marmora lacrosse team, billed for a game with Campbellford, did not show up, but the condition of the weather was sufficient excuse for their non-appearance as it was raining in Marmora at the time the team were ready to start. The Campbellford players were all on hand, and W. H. Chapman, of Hastings, was there to act as referee.

Plenty of Attraction.

There was, however, no lack of attractions. The programme was sufficiently diversified to furnish entertainment to all classes and tastes. The display of horses, light and heavy, under saddle or halter, was something out of the ordinary, and the best of these were owned by farmers in the township. Some of the driving turnouts were equal to the best equipages to be found in the large cities, and a gentleman who had attended the Toronto Exhibition, and who is an expert in horseflesh, said yesterday that there were horses shown here that could compete in any class at the big Fair. In the general purpose class there were 13 entries, and the judges had a hard time of it deciding the winners. One of the judges was Dr. G. A. Hay, of town, who has officiated this year at various fairs in the Province, having been selected by the Department as a specialist in passing upon the merits of horses.

Fine Show of Cattle.

There were over 150 head of cattle on exhibition, the majority of the entries being Ayrshires, and the judges did not complete their task until late in the evening. A sight of these animals was all that was required to convince the observer that the farmers of Campbellford are leaders in the dairy business.

In the Main Buildings

The poultry house and the main building, both well stocked with exhibits were crowded with interested sight-seers all afternoon. The truck sent out by the Ontario Department of Agriculture, loaded with equipment to show the best means of putting water into a farmer's home, did not excite the interest that was expected. Perhaps the farmers' wives are a trifle skeptical on this point being of the opinion that the domestic Utopia is still far in the distance.

Notes of the Day

One of the busiest persons on the grounds yesterday was Mrs. J. Nelson Stone, who has always proved a valuable assistant to her husband in his secretarial duties.

Among the visitors from Peterborough were: Roland Denne, president, George A. and A. Gillespie, directors of the Fair in that city.

All of the veterans who have for years officiated at the fair were on duty yesterday in their old places. R. J. Buller guarded the grand stand which was well patronized. J. R. Wilkinson handled the immense auto traffic without an accident. William Jordan and George E. Morrison collected the tickets at the gate.

Chief Duncalfe and Assistant Chief Crawford preserved order without extra help and had no trouble. Not a single arrest was made during the day and there was no sign of disorder anywhere.

Some of the local auto dealers had cars on exhibition. Charles H. Davidson had three Chevrolets and one Jewett, Roy Bell being in charge of the exhibits, explaining the merits of each to the visitors and prospective customers. W. L. Diamond had two McLaughlins on the ground.

The superintendents in charge of the various departments were as follows: heavy draft, agricultural and general purpose horses, Henry Waters; light and saddle horse, J. C. Anderson; beef cattle, James Runciman; dairy cattle, Wm. Stephens; poultry, W. J. Abernethy; sheep and pigs, Fred Hendy; grain, vegetables and fruit, George S. Van Volkenburg; domestic science, ladies work and fine arts, Mrs. C. Macoun.

HASTINGS VILLAGE AND THE DISTRICT

HASTINGS, Sept. 29.—The death occurred on Friday morning at 6 o'clock of the late Mr. Sylvester Rusau, aged 66, after a long illness. He had been a resident of Hastings for the last six years, leaving his farm in Percy and moving to town.

The funeral service will be held at the family residence, Clyde street, on on Sunday afternoon, Sept. 30 at 2.30. The remains will be taken to Roseneath, where they will be laid to rest in Merril's cemetery.

Died in Peterborough.

A well known former resident of Hastings died in Peterborough on Tuesday evening in the person of Mr. John Johnson, who passed away at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Robert Chambers in his 90th year.

The deceased spent most of his life here, where he was employed by the Fowlds Co., Ltd., and also the Hastings Tanning Co.

Some fifteen years ago he moved to Peterborough.

He leaves to mourn his loss four sons and two daughters, Hamilton of Stirling, John of Toronto, Robert of British Columbia and Thomas of Michigan, Mrs. R. Chambers, Peterborough and Mrs. Hormel, Cleveland, also one sister, Mrs. Matthew Dickey of Campbellford.

The funeral took place this Thursday from the residence of his daughter at Peterborough, to Trent Valley cemetery, Hastings.

Municipal Pot.

The municipal pot is beginning to boil in Hastings again as the Reeve's chair will be the ambition of three candidates. The following gentlemen are casting their eyes in that direction, the present Reeve, W. M. Fowlds, ex-Reeve J. H. Hess, and Councillor A. E. Chapman, who has served for 13 years as councillor. The voters are sure of a warm battle for 1924 election.

News Nuggets.

Mr. and Mrs. P. McGurty and son Leonard, spent Sunday with friends in Harwood.

Mr. and Mrs. A. V. German, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. John Cruickshanks attended the fowl supper in Roseneath Monday evening

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Stewart, of Wiarton, are the guests of Mrs. W. Stewart.

Mrs. C. B. Plant and Mrs. W. Greenly are visiting friends in Toronto.

The euchre party to be held by the Catholic Women's League in the Foresters' Hall has been postponed from Monday, Oct. 1st to Oct. 8th.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Myles took in the Fair at Campbellford Friday.

Mr. Fred Faux's black Percheron took the special prize given in Campbellford Friday for the best general purpose team.

The storm on Friday morning did some damage here, lightning striking a post at the back of the Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, also the home of Mr. Fred Lynch.

A SEVERE STORM NEAR BAILIEBORO

One Farmer Lost Seven Head of Cattle.

SOUTH MONAGHAN, Sept. 29. —A short but severe electrical storm in this vicinity early yesterday morning did considerable damage to a herd of cattle owned by Joseph Porter, a farmer in the district. About half-past seven o'clock yesterday morning, Mr. Porter had just finished his milking, and was standing at the stable door, watching the storm, when a bolt of lightning fell and struck the herd killing five cows and two young steers. The storm also did a little damage to telephone wires in the district.

BANDITS CAPTURE TWO BRITISH MISSIONARIES

PEKIN, Sept. 29.—United Press —Miss Sharpe and Miss E. Darrock, British missionaries, were kidnapped by former Liucheng bandits, who looted the town of Shiwa, according to word from Hankow to-day.

The Liucheng bandits referred to apparently are some of those who wrecked and robbed the Shanghai-Peking express and carried off many European and American hostages, eventually releasing them.

MARKING TIME ON LONDON EXCHANGE

LONDON, Sept. 29.—(Canadian Press Cable).—The European situation had a tendency to restrict the business on the stock market this week, the inclination being to mark time and await developments. The immediate effect of Germany abandoning passive resistance in the Ruhr was a remarkable improvement in French and Belgian francs, French exchange falling below 72. The improvement was not long maintained however, the rally being followed by a reaction in both exchanges. French bonds also suffered a reaction.

The conspicuous feature of the week was the success of the £9,000,000 Victorian conversion loan in five per cents offered at 99. The loan issue appearing when the markets were unsettled owing to the various European crisis it was feared that the underwriters would have to take a portion of it but the total cash and conversion application amounted to over £17,500,000. The loan thus was nearly twice covered. The result was an indication of the popularity of this Australian state as a borrower in the London market.

Among the issues expected on the market here shortly will be a substantial loan for Rhodesia and one for the Australian commonwealth.

Home funds have been inactive but firm.

Among overseas stocks Canadian 3 1-2 per cents., have been in demand

Nitrate shares have been little less active than they were last week but they are still buoyant.

Dullness has characterized home rails. Metropolitans have continued in good demand and Canadian Pacific railway and Grand Truik railway stocks have been steady.

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

Two Former Residents Meet With Accident—Personal Mention.

MILLBROOK, Sept. 19. — Miss Rose Macnamara, of Orillia, is in town this week making arrangements for the closing of Mrs. Westmacott's house for the winter months Mrs. Westmacott's many friends will regret to learn that after preparing to return here this fall her sister, Mrs. Fowler had the misfortune to fall and break her ankle and shortly afterwards Mrs. Westmacott also happened with an accident by which she was severely cut about the head and otherwise injured. This will probably mean that she will remain in Vancouver until Spring. Miss Macnamara left for Orillia on Saturday morning.

Messrs. C. Alvin Richards and T. Alvin Gray returned to their medical studies at the University, the former in the fifth year of the five year course, open to returned men only and in which 212 students have enrolled so far this year, and the latter in the fifth year of the six year's course.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Northey, of Hiawatha, formerly of Millbrook, were in town on Friday last coming over to attend the funeral of the late Mr. Hugh Douglas, of Cavan.

Miss E. C. Hawken now on furlough from her work at the Kolokreeka Home and Boarding School, Smoky Lake, Alberta, has been in Toronto this week attending the sessions of the annual meeting of the W. M. S. of Managers at the National Training School. The missionaries on furlough were introduced at the Tuesday afternoon session by Mrs. W. E. Ross; there were fourteen of them present including Miss Elizabeth J. Staples, a sister of Mr. R. S. Staples, Cavan.

Mrs. Jas. Dawson, who has been in Peterboro for the past few week on account of the serious illness of her cousin, Miss Kerr, was in the village this week attending to various matters in connection with her home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Barrett, of Peterboro, were visitors in town this week.

ACQUITTED OF MURDER.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Sept. 2. —(Canadian Press). — Walter S. Ward has been acquitted of the murder of Clarence Peters.

MEN AND HORSES

How closely related is man to the more intelligent of the animals is seen in many of the ailments to which both are prone and the remedies to which they answer.

Doctors and veterinarians are oftentimes surprised to learn of the similarity of their methods of handling the ailments of man and beast.

Sprains, burns, scalds, scratches and many other minor injuries, many everyday ailments, too in men and animals take the same course, and both answer immediately to the same treatment—Absorbine Jr.

Absorbine was first discovered by a very close student of the horse, W. F. Young, and by him, devoted to its cause. Its very exceptional benefits, however, were promptly seized upon for the human race and, in a milder form, the preparation is sold all over the continent today as Absorbine Jr. It is used for men, women and children everywhere as a positive germicide—a germ killer—and a prompt and certain healer of all hurts. It is useful not only for all the purposes served by ordinary liniments and embrocations, but as a mouth-wash and for anything else where a germicide is needed. Don't wait until you need it. Get it in the house today. $1.25 at your druggist's.

STOLEN CAR USED BY BANDITS FOUND

Was Found in the Yard of the Toronto Granite Club.

TORONTO, Sept. 29.—(Canadian Press). — Stolen Overland car used by four bandits who robbed Bank of Nova Scotia branch on Thursday afternoon, was found last night in yard of Granite Club last night. The car had been driven into yard early yesterday morning, and left there standing unnoticed. Last night an investigation was made and papers of the Bank of Nova Scotia found in it.

There was no other trace of bandits, who are thought to be men, who escaped from Portsmouth Penitentiary two weeks ago.

GRAIN BLOCKADE WOULD BE COSTLY

Winnipeg Bodies Urge the Government to Provide Sufficient Ships.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 29.—(Canadian Press).—An urgent appeal for Government action to solve the Lakes shipping problem has been addressed to the Minister of Trade and Commerce by the Winnipeg Board of Trade, the Canadian Creditmen's Association and the Manitoba Board of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada. The appeal was wired to Ottawa yesterday.

The Government is urged to take whatever steps may be necessary to provide sufficient tonnage for the grain movement. The shortage of United States tonnage is ascribed to the effect of the Inland Freight Rates Act, passed last session.

The appeal points out that if a blockade is not averted at the head of the lacks, not only would the producer be affected by lower grain prices, but that every business interest in the Dominion would be seriously injured.

NINE SHIPS SAIL.

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., Sept. 29. —(Canadian Press).—No grain excepting wheat went down the lakes yesterday, there being nine ships cleared with 1,453,000 bushels of wheat. Two of these, the E. J. Earling and S. B. Way, are United States ships. Ten vessels are reported as being under the elevator spouts, of which no less than six are United States ships.

OTTAWA CABINET HOLD A MEETING

A Number of Pressing Problems to be Dealt With.

OTTAWA, Sept. 29.—(Canadian Press).—A meeting of the cabinet has been called for to-day by acting Prime Minister, Right Hon. W. S. Fielding, at which it is expected two or three pressing problems will be considered, one of these, it is understood, will be banking situation, with special reference to the failure of the Home Bank and probably one million dollar deposit and withdrawal by the Canadian National Railways.

Another will be shipping situation on Great Lakes and steps to be taken toward insurance against any serious grain congestion as result of reluctance of United States vessel owners to enter Canadian carrying trade. Another matter that must be settled almost immediately is in the post of Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec, which vacancy will occur next week.

GREECE AUTHORIZES PAYMENT OF DEPOSIT

Telegraphs Swiss National Bank to This Effect.

ATHENS, Sept. 29.—Acting on instructions issued by the Greek government, the National Bank of Greece has telegraphed the Swiss National Bank, authorizing that institution to make immediate payment of the fifty million lire indemnity deposit to Italy

Presentation of Greece's reply to Council of Ambassadors with regard to Council's decision in the controversy between Greece and Italy has been postponed until to-morrow.

SHOT AT BY PLAYMATE MAY LOSE HER SIGHT

CHATHAM, Sept. 29. —(Canadian Press).—Leona Salisbury, aged 8, is in hospital and may lose the sight of one eye, as the result of being shot at by a play-mate, Helen Jaspar, daughter of a Belgian farmer near here. According to the story told the police, the Jaspar girl got a gun and fired when the other child would not stop playing with Jaspar's dog. Fortunately it was a blank cartridge and the wounds are mostly burns.

PEKING, Sept. 29.—(United Press —Heavy and damaging earthquakes shook the district around Kerman, in Persia, according to advices from Teheran, to-day, which gave no details.

Wet Weather Delays the Grain Loadings.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 29.—(Canadian Press).—Attributed to wet weather conditions in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, a decrease in the quantity of grain marketed and loaded over the prairies under totals for the corresponding date of 1922 was reported by the railways for Thursday when 3,802,971 bushels left the hands of farmers, against 5,729,727 in 1922, and loadings aggregated 2,526 cars, compared with 2,774 September 27, 1922.

Movements of grain to Vancouver was said to be improving with the advance in the season, and the Canadian Pacific Railway is reported to be loading 100 cars a day in Alberta for the coast.

MANY BIG ISSUES ARE BEFORE THE PORTLAND SESSIONS OF A. F. & L.

Two Thousand Delegates Will Spend Two Weeks Discussing Labor Problems—Amusements Will Not Be Lacking.

By H. E. SWISHER.

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 28.—(United Press).—Union workmen of the nation to-day centered their attention on this city as 2,000 delegates from all parts of the country gathered here for the opening of the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor on Monday.

For the first time in eight years, a Pacific coast city has been given the honor of entertaining representatives of the national trade union organization, and the many committees which have worked for months on plans for the big event are confident of its success.

Several of the 116 separate unions which form the American Federation of Labor have been in session here this week, but the convention proper will open Monday, and will continue until, and possibly later than the fifteenth of the month.

Official hosts to the visiting laborites are the Oregon State Labor Federation and the Portland Labor Council, although the entire city has joined in the welcome. Mayor Geo. L. Baker heads a citizens' committee which has arranged various diversions for the delegates, including trips up the famed Columbia River highway and excursions to the Pacific beaches, over 100 miles distant. A general committee of 20 local labor leaders has had direct charge of the convention details.

The women's auxiliary of the local labor council will care for the comforts and entertainment of the delegates' wives and families.

President Otto R. Hartwig, of the State Labor Federation, has been active in plans for the national gathering. Although no formal programme has been prepared and none can be, as the body takes up for discussion various topics as they arise or are referred by committees, a general outline of probable large issues which will confront the delegates discloses that the 1923 gathering is sure to be one of the most historic in the history of American labor.

"I look for this event to take its place as one of the greatest in the annals of organized labor," President Hartwig, of the State Federation, told the United Press.

Many Big Issues.

"We are confronted with unusually big topics affecting labor unionism and, in many instances, the action we take here will have vital bearing upon our future.

"Immigration is one of the big issues before us. With a concerted move on to let down the bars and admit unrestricted and unlimited immigration, we must and will take a determined stand here to keep the present regulations airtight, and possibly move to strengthen them," President Hartwig asserted.

"Then there is the eight-hour day in the steel industry. This is a vital subject at this time. The coal situation and the recent anthracite strike will undoubtedly come in for discussion, while there will probably be consideration of the national political outlook, with reflections to our new president's attitude toward organized labor, as gleaned from his acts thus far.

"Realizing that we are affected by conditions abroad, the convention will undoubtedly express opinions on the European situation, the Greek-Turkish clash, the continued French occupation of the Ruhr and the apparent widening of the breach between Great Britain and France.

"All these and other topics are of nusual interest to labor this year," Hartwig concluded. "Their consideration at this convention must certainly make it one of importance, and act to focus the attention of unionists and citizens generally upon the gathering here to a greater degree than on similar sessions for many years past."

President Samuel Gompers of the federation has been on the scene for days past. His re-election to the presidency is conceded, with no contest anticipated.

Alvin Owsley, president of the American Legion, will address the body at some meeting, while speeches from other prominent Americans will be features of the fortnight event.

Main sessions of the convention will be held in the municipal auditorium with a seating capacity of 5,000, which will amply care for the delegates and visitors.

Individual union sessions and committee meetings will take place in the Portland labor temple nearby, an impressive six-story structure, with ten large halls and 52 offices, sufficient to care for all the sub-conventions which may be in progress.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Clive Roberts Barton

ANDY ANTELOPE'S SURPRISE

Nancy and Nick and Mister Gallop, the little cowboy fairy, followed long-legged Mister Crane, and Mister Crane was following Andy Antelope as fast as his wings could carry him.

Mister Crane was following Andy Antelope because Andy had promised to show him where Taddy Frog was staying.

The little antelope fellow wanted to be a friend of everybody's, and he was anxious to do the big bird a favor. He never once thought that the little frog would come to harm.

"Taddy! Taddy Frog, where are you?" the Twins heard him call out when he reached the edge of the puddle-pond. "Oh, Cousin Taddy Frog, Mister Crane wants to speak to you. He's coming now."

The next thing the Twins heard was a plop and a splash, and by the time they reached the puddle-pond, there was nothing to be seen of Taddy Frog but a few rings of muddy water swelling bigger and bigger and slowly melting into nothing.

"Now, look what you've gone and done!" shrieked Mister Crane, arriving just then, and folding up his wings and unfolding his legs to stand on. "Why did you tell him that I wanted him. Didn't I tell you that you talked too much?"

"I'm ever so sorry," whimpered Andy, "but I thought he'd wait. He hasn't very good manners, disappearing just when he knows company's coming."

Nancy felt so sorry for the little antelope that she spoke right up. "You did exactly right," she said, petting his glossy head. "Mister Crane wanted to eat Taddy, so he did, and you've saved his life."

Mister Crane said nothing, but looked very sultry.

"Do folks eat other folks?" Andy asked in surprise.

"I'm sorry to say they do," said Mister Gallop. "Even little antelope boys. Sniffer Ky-oty is very fond of antelope, and Mister Fox and Grandaddy Golden Eagle also. You must go right back to your mother until you know the world better and can take care of yourself. Run along, now, up to the mountains as fast as you can go. But listen! If anyone ever gets after you, come right to me."

Without a goodby, away ran Andy, and he never stopped until he got home.

Mister Gallop and Nancy and Nick found their ponies and rode back to the cave.

And there lay a telegram addressed to the Twins.

"Dear Twins," it said. "Come back at once.

"The Fairy Queen."

The Million Dollar Doll

By C. N. and A. M. Williamson

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY

Miles Sheridan, made wretched by his wife's infidelity is attempting to facilitate her obtaining a divorce by creating a scandal about himself. To this end, he offers $20,000 to

Juliet Divine, a beautiful show-girl known as the Million Dollar Doll, if she will take a yacht trip with him. Juliet is unable to go herself, but greedy for the money she persuades

Teresa Desmond (Terry) her lovely and unbelievably innocent half-sister, an exquisite counterpart of herself, to go in her stead, masquerading as the Million Dollar Doll. Ever since a kindness Miles did her in her childhood, Terry has made him her Dream Prince, and now she is grateful for the opportunity of serving him.

Paul di Salvano, a handsome Italian.

Eustace Nazlo, a wealthy Greek, who does not know of Terry's relationship to Juliet, is in love with the younger girl.

Mrs. Harkness, Miles' old servant, prepared to hate the "Million Dollar Doll" is won over by Terry's sweetness and charm. Miles has stipulated that he will have nothing to do with the girl, on the voyage, but already his resolve is wavering. He does not recognize the little girl whom he befriended so long ago, but he is surprised to find the notorious Juliet Divine so girlishly charming. In order to make the scandal known, he appears at Monte Carlo with the girl.

After leaving Miss Sheridan, who is horrified when she learns the truth, Terry and Miles continue their walk.

Terry gives a start as she sees approaching, Eustace Nazlo.

Miles snubs Nazlo, but the latter is convinced the girl is Teresa Desmond and not Juliet Divine.

CHAPTER LIII

Miss Caroline Again

"Madame is the wife of Monsieur Sheridan," he enquired maliciously.

"No," rapped Miles. "She is Miss Juliet Divine, of New York. She presents herself on my introduction."

"A visiting card with the name is usual for newcomers, Monsieur is aware."

"Don't make difficulties for nothing," Miles said more sharply. "I'm able to identify and vouch for the lady."

"But her age?" persisted the man of the frock coat. "What age has Mademoiselle?"

"Seventeen!" answered Terry, off her guard.

"Seventeen!" echoed the Frenchman. "I fear, on looking at Mademoiselle that she was too young. Unfortunately, it is forbidden for persons under twenty-one to be admitted into the salles je jeu."

Sheridan was astonished at the "gaff" the girl had made. Women were generally fools about their age, but this was carrying foolishness too far! She might have at least acknowledged to being twenty-one; and as she'd travelled about Europe before, she would have remembered this rule at Monte Carlo.

Well, they were shut out of the rooms by her absurdity, but the contretemps was funny, and Sheridan laughed in spite of himself.

"That settles that!" he said. "You're too young and innocent to play roulette or trente et quarante in the Casino, but I expect I shall slip you into the Sporting Club this afternoon without being arrested as a kidnapper."

They walked out, defeated. Sheridan still laughing, Terry ashamed. "How did you happen to pitch on seventeen?" he said.

"I—forgot," she said.

This was a quaint answer; but if she wanted to be seventeen, let her! He felt suddenly lifted out of depression by his own fit of laughter, the first for a long time without a tang of bitterness in it.

As the Casino was forbidden, and the Sporting Club closed till after luncheon, he took his companion to look at the shops in the Galerie Charles Trois.

Terry was thrilled by the hats and frocks, the furs and jewellry behind the plate-glass windows, but she seemed almost shocked at Sheridan's offer to buy her anything she liked. "No, I don't really want the things," she said. "And I couldn't let you give them to me."

Strange girl!—strange Million Dollar Doll!

Ciro's was not open. It was too early in the year, so the two lunched at the Hotel de Paris, on the awninged balcony. There Sheridan saw several acquaintances from New York, who evidently recognized Juliet Divine, and guessed unutterable things.

She, however, sat calm and unconcerned, as if she did not know the faces by sight.

Later, at the Sporting Club, there were a number of friends from villas nearby, people whom Miles had expected to meet, but now found himself longing to avoid. They talked to him and asked no questions about Juliet Divine, except with their eyes.

"The glad tidings will now be spread!" he thought, all the bitterness pouring back in a flood.

Fighting his distaste at making her conspicuous, he forced himself to show the girl off, by teaching her to play roulette. "Beginner's luck" was hers.

She won, and with the conscientious air of a young retriever dog, handed the winnings to her instructor.

"But the money's yours," he insisted, pushing back to the bunch of hundred franc notes.

"Really, I can't keep it," Terry said. "You gave me the notes to begin with."

"That doesn't matter. You chose where to stake."

Miles frowned. "We can't fight here. But I shall be offended if you refuse to take anything from me, even when it belongs to you by right."

The girl had the look of a scolded child, as she heard the sharp whisper. She separated one note from the rest, and tucked it away in Julia's gold bag.

"I'll keep that one, then, just not to offend you," she said. "But you must have the rest."

"I won't!" Miles insisted. "Throw it on the table again."

"I'll put it all on the first dozen," she said, "if you'll promise to keep the winnings."

Curious to see what would happen, Miles consented. "But there won't be any winnings," he added.

The first dozen came up. Terry had won a thousand francs; twice her stake. Gravely she gave the money to Sheridan who was obliged to stick to his bargain.

He recalled some words of Harky's after the day at the Azores: she had reported that, according to her belief, the girl was penniless.

Terry was very silent, rowing out to the yacht at six o'clock, to dress for dinner, and Sheridan asked if she were tired.

"You don't need to come on land again tonight unless you like," he conceded.

"Oh yes, I'll come," she said. "I'm not really tired; only thinking."

"Of what?" he wanted to know.

"A thousand things."

One thing of which she had not thought awaited them. Miss Caroline Sheridan was on board "Silverwood."

EGPLODES THEORY THAT RED ENRAGES BULLS

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 29.—(Associated Press).—Waving a red flag before a bull has no more significance than waving a pink, green, purple, or white flag because bulls, in keeping with other animals, are color blind, according to Dr. G. M. Stratton, head of the department of psychology, University of California, Berkeley, Calif., who has just completed a six months' investigation of the subject.

Dr. Stratton and his assistants waved red flags in the faces of bulls and other animals, and the reaction was one of curiosity and not anger, he says. Black, white, green and yellow colors were tried, with the same effect. After trying cows, calves, steers and bulls, Dr. Stratton says he is sure that the entire bovine family is devoid of color sight.

His conclusions, Dr. Stratton says, lead him to believe that:

1. Bulls show no strong excitement over any color.

2. Interest, hesitation and mild mistrust were shown in a banner or any strange thing.

3. There was no reaction that could be discerned toward any particular color, but the brightness of the color and the flutter of the banner were more effective than the color.

4. There was no special reaction toward red as against green, or toward red and green as against black and white.

5. There was greater reaction and interest toward white than any other color, but the reaction in the wild animals was no greater than in the tame.

The investigators, Dr. Stratton said, interviewed 66 persons familiar with cattle, and 53 denied the popular theory that red angers bulls.

THE FALL WEATHER HARD ON LITTLE ONES

Canadian fall weather is extremely hard on little ones. One day it is warm and bright and the next wet and cold. These sudden changes bring on colds, cramps and colic, and unless baby's little stomach is kept right the result may be serious. There is nothing to equal Baby's Own Tablets in keeping the little ones well. They sweeten the stomach, regulate the bowels, break up colds and make baby thrive. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Appointments Made Pembroke Diocese.

OTTAWA, Sept. 29. — (Canadian Press). — The Chancellor of the Diocese of Pembroke, Rev. Father W. T. Breen, announced Thursday evening that he had received word from Bishop Ryan, who is now in Rome, to the effect that Rev. Father Frank French, parish priest in Renfrew, had been appointed by the Pope protonotary apostolic for the work that he did in the Canadian chaplain service overseas. This is the highest rank of monsignor in the Catholic Church.

At the same time it was announced that Rev. Father Z. Lorrain, vicar-general of the diocese of Pembroke; Rev. Father M. B. Jankowski, parish priest at Wilno in Renfrew County; Rev. B. J. Kiernan, parish priest, Renfrew; Rev. Father D. R. MacDonald, parish priest of Glen Nevis, Glengarry County, Ont., and Rev. George Corbett, vicar-general of the diocese of Alexandria and parish priest of Cornwall, had been appointed domestic prelates.

MRS. LAVELL, PRESIDENT

TORONTO, Sept. 29.—(Canadian Press). — Mrs. H. A. Lavell, B.A., of Kingston, Ont., was elected President of the Women's Missionary Society of the Methodist Church in Canada at the conclusion of the 42nd annual meeting of the organization here yesterday.

HAVE YOU ANY OF THESE SYMPTOMS?

If You Have, You Are in Need of a Tonic Medicine.

Are you pale and weak, easily tired and out of breath on slight exertion? Are you nervous? Is your sleep disturbed? Do you wake up in the morning feeling as tired as when you went to bed? Is your appetite poor, your digestion weak, and do you have pains after eating?

If you have any of these symptoms you need a tonic, and in the realm of medicine there is no better tonic than Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which enrich the blood, restore shattered nerves and bring the glow of health to pale checks. The value of Dr. Wiliam's Pink Pills is shown by the case of Mr. Horace Cuphill, Woodward's Cove, N.B., who says:—"The first indication that my general health was not good was a shortness of breath after the least exertion. Then my appetite began to fail, and after eating it seemed as if there was a lump in my stomach. I grew so weak that I could not walk a hundred yards without resting. Then I was taken with a numbness all over my body and was in a sad plight. I was under a doctor's care, but as I was not getting better, I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The first few boxes did not seem to help me but my wife urged me to continue their use and I got four boxes more. Before these were gone I could eat a fair meal, the numbness was leaving me and I was feeling much better in every way. I took the pills for a while longer, and felt that I was again a well man. I still take the pills occasionally, but have had no return of the old trouble."

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CANADA'S FUTURE BY RAILWAY HEAD

No Whisper of Death in Speech by Sir Edmund Walker.

TORONTO, Sept. 29.—(Canadian Press.)— Optimism regarding Canada's future was voiced by leaders of transportation and financial life of the country when Sir Henry Thornton, President of the Canadian National Railways, and Sir Edmund Walker, President of the Canadian Ban kof Commerce, were guests last evening of Zetland Masonic Lodge at its annual Canadian night.

A representative gathering greeted two principal speakers of the evening, each of whom gave a careful analysis of the Dominion's position economically and nationally.

Sir Edmund Walker stressed the relatively high freight rates and the correspondingly low returns which agriculturists receive for their products. He gave a comprehensive survey of Canadian develpopment and predicted that this country's strategic position on Pacific augurs for its prominence in great flow of commerce that will develop there within the next century.

Sir Henry Thornton expressed his conviction that the action of the late administrtaion in establishing the Canadian National Railways was a good one and lauded the decision of the present government to carry the enterprise along the same line.

PERFECT PLANES SAVE THE LIVES OF AVIATORS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—(Associated Press).—Successful completion of the recent five-day test in the transcontinental air mail service was only possible, in the opinion of officials of the Post Office Department, because of the extreme care taken to keep mail planes in perfect condition.

Each of the seventy air mail ships is inspected daily in the most minute detail. As the ship is brought in from flight a tabulated sheet is attached on which there are more than 100 points to be inspected. As each point is inspected, and repaired if necessary, the merchanics affix their signatures, and the report is not complete until signed by a chief mechanic and accepted by the pilot of the plant. Since the inauguration of this system, the number of fatalities in the service has decreased greatly.

Strict orders against "stunt" flying while testing out new planes, have increased the safety of pilots, as did the scrapping of a defective type of ship in use in 1920. Fatal accidents by years were; 1918, one; 1919, five; 1920, fifteen; 1921, nine; 1922, one; and 1923 (first eight months), three.

The rating for over a million and a half scheduled miles of flying during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1923, was 96.73 per cent. perfect, and the score was prevented from being perfect only by two minutes tardiness by one pilot in unloading his mail bags. The air mail service has at no time in its five years experience developed a rating of less than 78.04 per cent., that for 1920.

ERNISM AND NDAMENTALISM

old theological truths were once and had to battle for their lives.

s it a part of the inscrutable plan he Author of truth that when Jesus, il, Luther, Knox, Wesley, and other postles of the faith, come forth commanded to flash upon the world some ew message from heaven, that another nessenger, a champion of obscurantism, hould almost simultaneously be moved o step out of the dark and misty void o quench the gleam and perpetuate he darkness? Or is it solely by the nspiration of the Prince of Darkness hat this phenomenon evermore repeats itself?

Is it also a part of the Divine plan hat to test the vitality of the truth ommitted to them, the prophets must lways be vilified before they are lorified? Or is their persecution part f a plan of wanton wickedness invented y the enemy of truth to keep the world n intellectual bondage? Let him who an dispel these mysteries, do so.

Whatever be the fact, to one who elieves that there is new truth ready o break forth from the Word of God, his divisive programme appears to be device of the devil. To divide Christians into "Modernists" and "Fundamentalists," the more readily to set hem at variance with each other, and o persuade some disciples of Christ hat if they do not agree with other isciples of Christ about certain opinns of doctrine, they must, therefore e severed by some great and yawning hasm of unbelief from brethren having the same spiritual experience and mbitions, is surely an evil work. To xalt differences of opinion which are f only secondary, and sometimes rifling importance, as related to the ork of human redemption, into occasions of theological warfare, and thus eparate those whom God hath joined ogether, is to be guilty of schism; an ffense greater to-day than in the arlier centuries of the Christian faith.

Fundamentalists conscientiously beeve that the method of interpreting he Bible, adopted as the result of rofound conviction by the so-called 'Modernists," leads to scepticism about he whole Book, is subversive of its ruth and injurious to the cause of hrist; while Modernists are equally onvinced that precisely similar results evitably follow from the literal method f interpretation adopted with equal incerity of conviction by the Fundaentalists.

If these things be so, why should not his conflict be permitted to cease here, until by sweet reasonableness nd the persuasion of clear perceptions f truth, one party to the issue can ain the assent of the other? We are ll liable to mistake. We recall that ven the beloved disciple, John, before e understood his Master, knew no etter than to say—"Master, we saw ne casting out devils in thy name, and e forbade him, because he followeth ot with us." But Jesus, more filled ith pity for John than with anger, mply said—"Forbid him not, for he hat is not against us, is for us."

Why, then, should self-styled "Fundaentalists" rage and take counsel ogether to hinder and destroy the ork and influence of such good men s Professor Fosdick, whose sermons and ooks have been inspiration to better ving to thousands of persons all over he Christian world? Really serious eople turn away from such theological rogancy as Pharisaic piffle, believing hat he is rebuked by the testimony of esus—"By their fruits ye shall know hem." We learn from Him that the undamental thing is not theology, but fe—life inspired by faith, hope and harity—"but the greatest of these is harity."

We are glad to think that this theoogical controversy does not arise from nderstanding the saving truths of the hristian religion by either party to it. he problem, which in different ways s being honestly attempted by many ien of both persuasions, is to preserve n the fulness and integrity the sacred eposit of evangelical truth found in he Bible; the divisions between them eing wholly due to only subsidiary eliefs as to the means by which this ontinued unity by accepting their view s to the origin and nature of the riginal manuscripts of the Holy Scripures as "literally inspired."

It is true they project their severe charges ver a much wider area, but to them he Modernist belief concerning the criptures is the seed plot of heterodoxy. hey charge, for instance, that those who believe in a scientific interpretaion of the Scriptures, disbelieve in the irgin Birth, the heinous reality of sin, he necessity and value of an atonement or human transgression, and other octrines historically associated with vangelical Christianity.

In this, at least, so far as the Methdist Church in Canada is concerned, hey are not well-informed. My somehat intimate acquaintance with our inisters warrants me in saying without esitation that though they do not ccept the verbal inspiration of the ible, they hold in profound and unfeminished faith the great historical octrines of evangelical orthodoxy. here is no hydra-headed heterodoxy n our Church, such as Fundamentalists ould make the world believe. Our inisters feel that there is no antagonm between seeking a reasonable basis or the doctrines of the faith once for ll delivered unto the saints, and the ull acceptance of evangelical truth. evout study co-operates with the ower of God in aiding them to attain nd produce the most intelligent nd pungent conviction of the truth of s is in Jesus.

The Methodist Church has never felt necessary to establish as a portion of s creed any particular rule of interetation of the Scriptures. Such a roposal would be anti-Protestant and eactionary. Accordingly, a variety of pinions concerning inspiration are held n the freedom of the spirit within our hurch.

In the first place it may be that a ew, but certainly not many Methodists, rill agree with a much-advertised undamentalist preacher who is reorted to have said in his inaugural ermon that he did not need any books xcept the Bible and a dictionary for is pulpit preparation. Such a statement on the part of one who believes very word of the Bible to be dictated as at least the virtue of consistency. hat is the very best that can be said bout it. I do not know of any Methoist who is ignorant enough to be imosed upon by such a foolish proposition.

Secondly, it may be admitted that a ery large number of our people have ot reached clear conceptions as to the xact effects of inspiration upon the riters of the various books of the ible. They recognize clearly that a ivine influence, experienced in varying egrees, greatly exalted and quickened he ability of the writers, wonderfully stimulated their spiritual perception, and enlarged the capacity of their souls for the vision of God and His truth; but they are not decided as to how far these qualities intervened to preserve the writers from fallibility and error. They find in the Bible discrepancies in genealogies, sometimes moral contradictions, as in the case of God's alleged treatment of the Pharaoh of the Exodus, divergencies between parallel narratives of the same event, and other difficulties for which they have no satisfying explanation upon the theory of "verbal inspiration." On this account they cannot believe that every word from the first verse in "Genesis" to the last verse in "Revelation" has been supernaturally guarded from error. However, they do not regard these differences as lessening the value of the Bible as a progressive revelation of the Divine Being in the history of humanity, and, therefore, they remain steadfast in their faith in the sacred and imperishable message of salvation which the Book conveys to mankind. They also feel the effect of the inspiration of the writers of the Bible in their own life, and this gives them much content.

These few words appear sufficiently to set forth the feelings and faith of the majority of our people who read the Scriptures for spiritual edification only, and without any critical bias.

But, thirdly, there is an increasing number amongst us who, while recognizing the supreme value of the Bible and the inspiration of the spiritual giants who wrote its various books, desire such intellectual fellowship with its great truths as can be obtained only by studying it with the same care and insight as are given to the understanding of other great literatures. Every student of literature knows that fully to understand it he must have knowledge of contemporary history. It should scarcely be necessary to say that the Bible must be studied in similar light to get clear knowledge of its manifold revelation. Scarcely any important book is published in this twentieth century with an "introduction" in which the author sets forth the scope of his discussion and his purpose in presenting it to the public. Inasmuch as only a few of the books of the Bible furnish us with any clue to such information, scholars with the best facilities they can command are sincerely attempting to supply that omission now. That is the head and front of the offending of all truth-seeking, critical students of the Bible. The effort of the historical student is permeated with an earnest desire to know how best to use and apply the old messages for the benefit of the new time. Each book of the Bible seems to reveal through the medium of the writer's experience and observation some note of progress in the apprehension of God, thus making of the Bible a progressive revelation of the Most High. Incidentally, these students aim to commend it by removing any intellectual difficulties it presents of a scientific or historical character in order that it may be received with full credence, but their greatest desire is to reach a more perfect understanding of its spiritual significance by asking questions as to the special and immediate moral and religious purpose of the writer of each of the sacred books of which it is composed, and as to how he himself and his message were affected by the history, culture, and circumstances which influenced his own character and that of the people to whom, in the name of Jehovah, he expressed his soul. By such simple, yet profoundly searching questions they have opened up the rich spiritual and intellectual content of the sacred writings of our faith, in a way that commands the homage and enthusiasm of genuine seekers of truth. The method of study pursued by modern Bible students is in perfect harmony with the scientific spirit of the age in which we live, but in giving effect to it, they are unfortunate enough to be labelled by some, "Higher Critics," and by others, "Modernists," names which popularly have an invidious implication, and which they that are unlearned and unstable sometimes wrest unto their own destruction.

It is freely conceded, however, that the enthusiasm of Bible students who follow the historical method may sometimes lead them to accept results which require correction by some extended and exact study, and more sober judgment, but the quickened love of truth stimulated by their method may be trusted to lead them to do everything in their power to reach a perfect understanding of the precious Book

But, while I believe that the historical method, as a means of doing the most and best that scholarship can possibly do toward the understanding of the literature of the Bible, will remain, and more and more capture the conviction of all scholars in the Church of Christ, yet there is danger of its assuming to have some advantages over and above the textual method which it does not and cannot possess. For instance, it is not sufficient in itself to reveal the deep spiritual things that belong to the Divine life. In this regard it is sure soon to come to the limits of its power. The tragedy of historical criticism in its search for Christ, as well as the textual study, is that it can never arrive at its last and greatest purpose by its own means. This tragedy is all the greater in the case of students who do not realize that they are actors in a tragedy, but suppose that in understanding the teaching of Jesus more fully they are really finding out the Master Himself. Jesus is greater than any intellectual apprehension of Him can be. To penetrate His heart is a task beyond intellectual power, and outreaching the scope of any curriculum. There is an unacademic way to Jesus that is above all theories, and which, thank God, is open to every one of us. It is Paul's "more excellent way," which has been summed up in the words, "Jesus is known in proportion as He is loved." The seeking soul may have a vision of the Saviour which sees beyond the proof texts and beyond the machinery of historical criticism, and perceives Him in His Divine wholeness as far as the human mind can apprehend Him. In this vision of the soul, rich and poor, the learned and the unlearned, meet together, the Lord being the Saviour, the Maker and Teacher of them all. Paul said: "It pleased God to reveal His Son in me." It is still true that He reveals His Son in each ardently seeking soul, and in this way gives the only full and satisfying revelation of the Saviour of the world.

It is devoutly to be hoped that any diversity of opinion in our Church may be merged and sanctified in this higher unity of faith and vision. Why should we differ about the making of the chalice while the hand of the King presses upon all alike choice wine of the Kingdom Let us press forward with a quickened pulse and more elastic and courageous step to the fulfilment of our mission, thoroughly united to do the great work for which heaven raised us up. Surely if John Wesley would not permit a difference of opinion to alienate him from the leaders of other denominations, we who belong to the same household of faith should not let such things weaken our attachment to each other. Let us pray that God may save us from that spirit of disputation about theological opinions which John Wesley so severely condemned, while at the same time we hold and use in the demonstration of the spirit and of power the great deposit of saving truth vouchsafed to us as a Methodist people. We would deserve to perish in our folly if we were so unwise as to divide upon minor issues.

FIND DEATH MASK.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—(Associated Press).—A wax mask of Napoleon, made a few hours after the Emperor's death by an English surgeon of the 20th Regiment of Infantry, has just been found hidden away in a house in a small French town.

Several years after Napoleon's death the mask was sent to England, where it was purchased by a Russian diplomat and presented by him to the Czar Alexander I. Later it was taken to Holland and Bavaria, but for the past 20 years it has been lost.

CAVAN BLAZERS RESCUE A GIRL FROM PARENTS

Pranks of Pioneer Community recalled by recent Re-Union Held at Millbrook.

THE PACK OF CARDS

PRANKS OF COLORFUL PIONEER COMMUNITY AMONG MID-ONTARIO HILLS RECOUNTED BY SONS AND DAUGHTERS AT GATHERING IN MILLBROOK—HOW GIRL WAS SAVED ON WEDDING EVE FROM DESIGNS OF MERCENARY PARENTS.

The Cavan Blazers To most of those who hear the name for the first time, it will signify little, but to many a son and daughter of Cavan and Millbrook, absent in flesh from the place of their birth, but still quick in spirit to the names and memories of older times, it will mean much.

When the committee in charge of the Reunion of Old Boys and Girls of Cavan and Millbrook, which took place recently, conceived the idea of a gathering of the clans that brought from far places of the North American continent the one-time residents of "the little village among the hills" and its township, they started something. From the Pandora's box of old memories sprang many a humorous and many a tragic reminiscence, not the least of which was the resurrection of the story of the Cavan Blazers.

Of their origin, their name, and their doings there are conflicting accounts. To some, they appear through the mist of time as a force for good in the community in which they flourished; a group of youths who took into their own hands the administration of justice as they saw it, and flavored their good deeds with a certain Puck-like aptitude for mischievous frolic that kept their neighbors in a constant expectant attitude. Again, to those who saw in some of their pranks, a manifestation of that dour religious intolerance that had set Cavan aside as the abode of those, and those only, who came from the North of Ireland to settle in a new land, and wanted for their neighbors only their own kind in creed and practice, these Blazers were fanatical bigots to whose door was laid the numerous maulings and brawlings that marked the keeping in the surrounding country of such public days as the 'glorious Twelfth," or the 'seventeenth of Ireland," as the case might be.

Down through the minds of successive generations has come the legend of the Cavan Blazers, the lads who foregathered for fun and frolic, for elemental justice, for vagabondry, as the case might be. They were the high lights, the moving spirits, of a time when life went by at a slower pace. To the rough work and constant privation of days spent in toil, bereft of the luxuries and even the comforts of modern life, they lent color and romance. They were the froth and the bubble of life for an older generation, the effervescence of youth overflowing rigid bounds in an endeavor to create excitement in a somewhat dull and formal community.

When John Deyell came out from the County of Monaghan, in Ireland, in 1816, he had in mind the naming of his new home district as Monaghan, but the records became mixed in some manner and Monaghan became Cavan, and Cavan Monaghan. So it was in Cavan that he dwelt, and beside the little brook that becomes Baxter Creek further on before it decides to merge with the Otonabee River, he built a grist mill, and the mill by the brook gave Millbrook Village its name.

When the Old Boys and Girls came home to their re-union, they came back to the same old village, with its handsome, dignified old houses, set far back in green lawns, the old maples and elms almost touching over the quiet little main street, sloping down a hill from the railway station to the village proper. When Millbrook was incorporated as a village in 1880, it had a population of fifteen hundred people, which has dwindled through time to just about half of that number. But the old boys and girls filled the quiet streets with their motor cars, they filled once again the three churches that have remained large while their congregations grew smaller, they overflowed on the main thoroughfare for a masquerade carnival, and they came to school once more in a sunny morning session of mirth and jollity, where a roll-call of those present disclosed names of some absent for decades from their native birthplace. Among them were many of the descendants of the famous 'Blazers," and tales of their long-ago prowess flew thick and fast.

One explanation of their name lies in the story of how a party of young men, full of life and mischief, drove to a small place called Silver Creek, to purchase some chairs from three men who made their living by their manufacture. A quantity of pea straw had been taken along to pack between the chairs to prevent scratching, and, while driving home, one of the boys lit his pipe and the match, falling among the dry straw, set it on fire. Seeing them recklessly driving through the village with the blazing load, someone remarked, 'There go the Cavan Blazers."

And again, one hears another version of the name-origin, and this is where the bright side of their story comes in. According to ancient history, the eastern section of the ninth, ten and eleventh concessions, now known as Fraserville, but then called Egypt, was visited in the year 1846 by an epidemic of intermittent fever. That part of the township was low and swampy, the clearings were small, the people impoverished, and there was only one physician, Dr. Brodie.

The disease spread rapidly and many died. When the bountiful harvest of that year was ready, the sick farmers were unable to do any work. To their assistance came some twenty of the young men of a neighboring district that, situated on high and healthy ground, was free from illness. Garnering their own crops by day, these youths worked by moonlight to harvest the grain of their sick neighbors, who would look with thankful hearts in daylight hours at fields in stook.

To keep their good work as silent and secret as possible, the young men went on horseback, often two riding on one horse, one carrying a cradle and the other a rake, and, as saddles were owned only by the well-to-do, one saddle to a horse was a rule. Actuated by the need of the moment, and fired by the spirit of sacrifice their own part, which they were quite willing that others should emulate, albeit unwillingly, the lads took saddles where they could find them, without the formality of asking permission.

One wealthy, but miserly, farmer, possessor of four good saddles, became exceedingly wroth when deprived of his supply, and publicly proclaimed his opinion of the takers. A notice from the group, signed by 'Blazer's secretary," was mailed to his door by night warning him of dire consequences should he continue talking about those who were trying to do good to others. The farmer read the signature as 'Blazers," and accordingly the group was christened.

But their ideas of justice to all did not hesitate to dabble, even, with such serious matters as love and marriage. When two well-to-do families of the district decided to perpetuate their name and unite their finances by marrying the daughter of one to the son of the other without, however, taking the trouble to ascertain whether the damsel was willing or no, the Blazers stepped in.

In the good old-fashioned way, the young people were introduced (they had not met before, one living at some distance from the other) on a Saturday and the wedding arrangements were at once completed by the parents, who set the marriage date for the following Monday week. On the Saturday preceding the fatal day, the bridegroom arrived, with license in hand, and all in order for the Monday ceremony. Twenty miles away, the girl's suitor languished in vain, while the 'poor girl," as the veracious chronicle asserts, wept in the seclusion of her locked chamber. All seemed lost, when, just as in a modern 'movie,' the saviors appeared.

Stationing the girl's lover with a horse and wagon at a convenient spot, some two dozen of the 'boys' brought a ladder from three miles away, took the young lady, her bed and bedding and clothing, down the ladder and brought her to her faithful 'Sam.' While the intended bridegroom was peacefully sleeping, the girl miles away, assisted by the conspirators, to a minister, who tied the knot which made the lovers one.

Furthermore, the Blazers carried their good offices to the extent of warning the obdurate old couple that, unless the usual dowry were bestowed upon the girl, they would see to it that punishment descended upon the luckless parents' heads, a gentle hint that had the effect of bringing to the bride at once the two cows and the stock of a hundred dollars' worth of more of necessary household articles, that was considered a generous bridal portion in those days.

The apologists for the Blazers declare that an epidemic of hocking of cattle and horses that broke out about this time in this district was far and away from having anything to do with the Blazers, but they were supposed to be responsible for most of the mischievous pranks which kept the neighborhood constantly on edge.

A farmer who was considered by the group to require a lesson, was surprised one morning to discover his loaded grain-wagon occupying a conspicuous position on the ridge-board of his barn; a store-keeper who allowed his calf to graze on the cemetery grounds and to stable itself at night on the warm church steps, found the animal securely enclosed in a crockery crate, at his front door, on a fine Sunday morning, and a brave citizen who had the temerity to express, in a written epistle, sentiments which were distinctly derogatory to the Blazers, was met in the shadowy gloom of the fence corner on a dark evening and requested to eat his own words, which he did. He also, on persuasion, raised his right hand and declared solemnly that he was the greatest liar 'on the top of the earth."

A preacher who offended the powerful Blazers was surrounded by them and asked to kneel in the roadway and pray, not for the conversion of the group, but for the success of their efforts to maintain order and promote good citizenship in their midst. He prayed.

A widow had a cow that was almost as big a nuisance as the calf that loved to park itself on the warm church-steps. The calf wore a noisy neck-bell that kept the neighborhood awake at nights as it ambled about. One evening the bell disappeared. On Sunday it hung from a telegraph wire near a church where lengthy sermons were preached, and, in the high wind, jangled sufficiently to bring a many-headed discourse to an untimely end.

The Blazers were in the habit of making nocturnal visits to hen and turkey roosts, and having a 'roast" later, when they would cover the fowl with clay paste. When placed before a hot fire, feathers and clay would come off together. An irate farmer, who strove to keep awake one night long enough to catch them, was surprised while asleep, the youths firing a gun over his head as they made off.

A dignified physician, fresh from Dublin, attended a fine church wedding in full regalia of frock coat and silk hat. True to the custom of his native city, he placed his 'topper" at the door, but on looking for it at the conclusion of the ceremony, could see only wreckage of his fine headgear strewn along the roadway. 'The Blazers did it," was the only explanation ever afforded him.

At that time Sacrament Sunday was celebrated only occasionally in the Methodist Church, but it was a solemn and important occasion, for which special preparation was always made, and which no faithful member would miss attending. The Blazers came one Saturday night after dark to the farmhouse of a man and his wife who never failed in attending Divine service, cut sods and packed them firmly in the doorway and framework of the two windows—all the house possessed. Waking early as usual, and finding the house still dark, the night seemed interminably long to the inmates. At last the farmer decided to open the door and look abroad to see if sunrise was not at least upon the horizon. His surprise was intense when sods deluged him from door and windows, and when the earth was cleared from eyes and doorway it was found that the family was too late for service on that Sunday, at least.

One of the sons of Rev. Mr. Armour, the first Anglican rector of the united parishes of Millbrook and Cavan, delighted to be associated with the Blazers in their mischievous pranks. The light respect for age and piety in the minds of the young mischief-makers is illustrated by the nick-name bestowed on young Armour when, in the course of a vigorous scrap, he lost a number of his front teeth. He went by the name of 'Dean Armour" ever after, because Mr. Matthew Dean, a very respectable character in the district, also happened to lack some of his front teeth.

Descendants of the Cavan Blazers, to the number of half a hundred held a picnic at Vancouver, B. C., during the days that the recent reunion was held in Millbrook. There, doubtless, as the merry groups in Millbrook were doing, old tales of the Blazers were recalled, and memories evoked from the dim and dusty past of stories handed down from father to son, of the days when settlers passed from one clearing to another along a path by the lake shore, or navigated the streams in 'bateaus," and when workmen in York would take, as a matter of course, the little week-end hike which covered the eighty-two miles each way which separated them from their families in Cavan.

Of John Thorne, one of the early residents of the district, it was related that he constructed a cart for drawing building supplies entirely of wood, the wheels being cut from a good sized log, and all the parts and pins being made of wood, no nails being available. This cart was drawn by an ox, and was the first vehicle of its kind to pass along Toronto streets, then 'muddy York."

Large families were the rule, not the exception, in those days, and John Thorne had ten children. To erect his home the father made the bricks, burned the limestone to make his own lime, and built the stone foundation. The first cherry trees in Cavan were carried by Mr Thorne on his back from Toronto, and he installed the first mill, run by hand, with which to grind corn, many a man coming for miles carrying his bushel on his back to have it ground and taking it home again in the same way.

John Thorne sat in the council for forty years, and when he was Justice of the Peace, ruled with a firm hand, many a young man in the township taking second thought before committing any unlawful act which would bring him before Squire Thorne.

Older folk of Cavan Township can recall to this day an incident which befell in old St. Paul's Church, Millbrook, on a Sunday morning, when a descendant of the old man, a young John Thorne, had occasion to take out his handkerchief and brought with it a pack of cards, which fell fluttering in all directions. The rector, Rev. Samuel Armour, stopped his sermon and remarked: 'I perceive, Mr. Thorne that your prayer book is very badly bound."

CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS' REWARD

The discovery of America, according to documents found in the archives of Genoa, cost a little more than $7,000. The fleet of Columbus was the value of about $3,000, while the salary of the Admiral amounted to $300 a year. The two captains who accompanied the expedition received a salary of $200, and the members of the crew were paid at the rate of $2.50 a month each. Columbus evidently got nothing for his share of the job.

A MODERN GIRL SPEAKS

The youngest of the gods upon Olympus
Had never worn their immortality
With such insouciance and mocking glamour
As my uncertain youth is worn by me!

I have interpreted myself with brightness—
I walk in crimson shoes; my long, slim dress
Is like the wings of tanagers and parrots—
My lithesome body flames with gorgeousness.

I have no subtleties of speech or manner;
I do not try to hide within myself.
My personality is boldly flaunted,
Not laid, like some rare vase, upon a shelf.

I have worked hard to pay for all my raiment;
But life was just a gift that cost me naught!
Why should I, then, be loath to use it freely
When I've no fear to use rich clothes I've bought?

Guide Posts of Business

RIDING along an unfamiliar road, you depend upon sign posts to guide you. Whether you're hitting the thank-you-mams in a flivver or soaring along in a costly car, they do their work equally well.

To-day, as you spend your money to fill your needs, advertisements are waiting to direct you. They are the guide posts of business. They point the short, straight road to satisfaction in buying. They will serve you well, whether you spend much or little.

Do you stop to read the advertisements? They are published to tell you exactly where to go for what you want. They lead you to values of which you would never know were they not there to guide you.

And remember that advertising always points out goods of unquestioned value. When a store or manufacturing concern puts its name on goods and tells you about them, you may be sure that they are worth consideration. It does not pay to advertise unworthy merchandise.

Your Health

By DR. CLIFFORD C. ROBINSON

MASSAGE

Massage may be called a body or skin and nerve tonic. It invigorates the body without the need of dosing or any tonal medicines.

In many so-called nervous troubles it does great aid with very little exhaustion to the general nervous system. Massage also aids metabolism (the chemical process of repair and waste in the body) and does much toward muscle development. It is particularly an aid to the small muscles, which receive little or no exercise. These may be stimulated, rounded out and the face contour improved by massage. The abdominal muscles are tightened up, aided and strengthened by massage, while the great muscles of the back and shoulders may be developed and improved by this treatment.

I am not advocating any special form or system of massage as a treatment for anything. The question at issue is the value of massage or skilful rubbing or kneading of the outer skin or muscles towards an improvement, flexibility and soothing condition of the body as a general help on the high road to health.

Of course massage is only a natural simple process to encourage the circulation. Free or increased circulation means more blood. More blood means better supply to the tissues and cells which in many persons are little used and consequently not fully developed. A blood renewal through massage produces a healthy normal tone which the muscles and nerve system share in the general toning up process.

TO EXPECTANT MOTHERS

A Letter from Mrs. Smith Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her

Trenton, Ont.—"I am writing to you in regard to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I would not be without it. I have taken it before each of my children were born and afterwards, and find it a great help. Before my first baby was born I had shortness of breath and ringing in my ears. I felt as if I would never pull through. One day a friend of my husband told him what the Vegetable Compound had done for his wife and advised him to take a bottle home for me. After the fourth bottle I was a different woman. I have four children now, and I always find the Vegetable Compound a great help as it seems to make confinement easier. I recommend it to my friends."—Mrs. FRED H. SMITH, John St., Trenton, Ont.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent medicine for expectant mothers, and should be taken during the entire period. It has a general effect to strengthen and tone up the entire system, so that it may work in every respect effectually as nature intended. Thousands of women testify to this fact. C

INTERESTING TALK BY PETERBOROUGH PASTOR

MILLBROOK, Sept. 29.—Rev. S. T. Tucker, Messrs. W. G. Hetherington and W. Pendry attended the district meeting held in the Methodist church, Frazerville, on Thursday, the former as chairman of the district, presiding at the three sessions held during the day. A full representation of the ministers and laymen from the various circuits was in attendance, holding thir own session in the morning, while the church was well filled in the afternoon and evening which were open to the general public.

Rev. A. J. Langford of Peterboro gave a twenty minute talk in the afternoon on the estimates for missions from the different circuits using the blackboard in order to make the figures clearer and more easily remembered. Rev. Roy Williams, on furlough from Japan, gave a most interesting and instructive address both afternoon and evening on the work in the "Island Empire," which was particularly timely in view of the recent disaster in that land, and Rev. G. I. Campbell, of Ottawa, dwelt in his usual comprehensive manner on the plans and activities of the Social Service Department.

Rev. R. A. Whattam, of Colborne, president of the Bay of Quinte conference was also present and addressed the gathering on "Evangelism" a subject which is being especially emphasized in the church today. Mr. Whattam and Mr. Campbell have been attending all the district meetings in the conference this Fall the one on Thursday being the eleventh at which they have been present and both expressed themselves as being well pleased with the spirit manifested throughout the three sessions stating that they believed it to be the best of such gatherings which they have been privileged to address.

The ladies of Frazerville church with their well-known hospitality, served a bountiful dinner and tea to the delegates in the Orange Hall, and a time of social good fellowship was enjoyed during the hours between sessions, the opportunity for improving acquaintance and in formal discusion of business pertaining to the church's welfare being fully taken advantage of.

COMPARATIVE POWER COSTS

The annual report of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario for 1922 gives the rates charged for power in hydro-electric municipalities. The charges are all based on similar system, but vary in the rates charged for current. There is a service rate per horse power per month based on the maximum demand or peak, plus a rate for the first fifty hours use per month of such load, another rate for the second fifty hours use and a third rate for the balance of the consumption per month. For example, Peterborough and Galt rates are:

	Service Charge	1st 50 hrs. per k.w.h.	2nd 50 hrs. per k.w.h.	Balance per k.w.h.	Prompt Payment Discount
Peterboro	$1.00	1.3c	0.8c	0.1c	10 and 10%
Galt	1.00	2.0c	1.4c	0.15c	10%

To translate these rates into more easily understood terms, assume that an industry makes a peak of 80 horsepower and uses an average of 70 horsepower. The rates then paid per horsepower per year would be as follows:

Name	Rate per h.p. per year
Peterborough	$ 18.09
Barrie	26.07
Brantford	23.67
Brockville	47.11
Chatham	28.98
Galt	25.76
Guelph	20.80
Hamilton	20.80
Kitchener	24.66
Kingston	25.76
London	21.06
Niagara Falls	18.58
Ottawa	20.52

WELSH SINGERS RARE MUSICIANS

Will Be in Peterboro on October Tenth.

The Amherst "Daily News" of Amherst, N.S. under date of September 15th, reviewing the performance in Amherst in the First Baptist Church of the Rhondda Welsh Male Glee Singers, who come here for a concert in Murray street Baptist church on the night of October 10th, says:

"Those present expected much, for the Welsh are known the world over as rare musicians, and the Rhondda chorus has been lauded by the press of the country as being something exceptional, even for Welshmen. That no one was disappointed was evidenced by the unstinted applause accorded the various numbers and the innumerable expressions of appreciation pronounced after the performance. For precision, for purity of tone, for that indefinable something that we call true music, for soulful interpretation, the Rhondda chorus reached the anticipations of the most critical."

The programme, as given in Amherst, included various choral numbers, vocal and organ solos. The baritone, "Bobby" Hopkins, won very favorable comment, as also Prof. Jones, with an interpretation on the pipe organ of Rossini's "William Tell."

GIRL FRACTURED WRIST AT SCHOOL

EAST EMILY, Sept. 29.—Irene Fee, the little 6-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Fee, had the misfortune while playing at school last Monday to fall and fracture her wrist and knock her elbow out of joint.

New System of Fat Reduction

Here's a new way for all fat people to laugh together at that old bugaboo—Obesity. The saying that there is nothing new under the sun does not now apply to fat people any more. Here is something new for them—a new sensation, a new pleasure, a new and graceful figure, easily found by anyone who is passing beyond the limits of slimness. Everyone has heard of the Marmola Prescription; that harmless combination of fat-defying elements perfected by one of the foremost physicians. Now from the same high authority there comes another idea—the idea of condensing these same pure, harmless, ingredients into a pleasant little tablet. Taken after eating and at bedtime they help the stomach to dispose of all fatty foods, converting them into compact, solid flesh, muscle and energy, without dieting or exercise. Marmola Prescription Tablets regulate the entire system—do for you what bodily exertion and self denial and absurd greases and salves cannot do, and the fat, once routed, is gone for good. You can prove all this at a trifling cost. Marmola Prescription Tablets are sold by all druggists or sent postpaid by the Marmola Company, 4612 Woodward Avenue, Detroit, Mich. A case—sufficient to bring results—is but one dollar.

Dominion of Canada
Refunding Loan 1923
5% Bonds

20 year Bonds due 15th October, 1943

On November 1st an issue of Victory Bonds matures. It is necessary to refund these Bonds. But it is even more essential to refund them in Canada.

This will prevent millions of dollars in interest from passing out of Canada for many years, and keep these funds available for business here.

Hence the expediency—and the necessity—for refunding the Bonds in Canada. The success of the offering is assured if:

1. Holders of Victory Bonds maturing on November 1st next, immediately exchange them for new Bonds.
2. Everyone who has money to invest subscribes liberally for this issue.

To holders of 1923 Victory Bonds

Holders of Victory Bonds due November 1st, 1923, are privileged to exchange them for new Bonds on attractive terms. They will receive in cash the difference between the face value of their maturing bonds and the purchase price of the new issue, namely: at the rate of $1.75 per $100 for 20 year Bonds. They will also receive a bonus of two weeks' interest as interest on new Bonds accrues from October 15th. Interest coupons should be detached before exchanging Bonds and presented for payment as usual on November 1st.

To New Investors

The desirability of these Bonds is at once apparent.

The entire resources of the Dominion of Canada constitute the investor's guarantee of safety.

They rank equally with Victory Bonds

The interest rate is high. A wide and ready market is assured.

If you have $100, $500, $1000 or more to invest, you should buy these bonds.

Price: 20 Year Bonds 98.25 and interest, yielding 5.14%

Orders may be telegraphed or telephoned (collect) and exchanges made through your usual Bond Dealer or Bank.

THIRD CONSECUTIVE WORLD CHAMPIONSHIP M'GRAW'S NEW QUEST

Giants Win Eleventh Pennant, Nine of Them Under McGraw—Faces Yanks For Third Year in Succession.

REVIEW OF SEASON.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—The New York Giants to-day clinched the 1923 National pennant by defeating Brooklyn, 3 to 0, and will oppose the New York Yankees, American League pennant winners, for the third successive year in the world's series, which will start at the Yankee Stadium October 10.

By capturing the 1923 flag, the Giants scored their eleventh victory in Nattional League history, thus tying the record of the Chicago Cubs. Nine of these pennant triumphs have been gained under the indomitable leadership of John J. McGraw, "Little Napoleon," of the diamond, who leads all other managers in this respect. His nearest rival is Connie Mack, tall tutor of the Philadelphia Athletics, who has six to his credit.

Three in Row Twice.

McGraw holds the additional distinction of having twice in his career won three pennants in a row, a feat no other club has ever performed. The Giant chieftain piloted his club to victory in 1911, 1912 and 1913.

The Chicago Nationals twice captured three flags in a row, but two managers shared in the honors, the late "Pop" Anson leading the club to the top in 1880, 1881, 1882, while Frank Chance piloted the Cubs to championships in 1906, 1907 and 1908.

Besides his triumphs of the past three seasons, McGraw also accounted for pennants in 1904, 1905 and 1917. The other New York pennants were won in 1888 and 1889.

McGraw's goal now is to establish a record of winning three consecuttive world's championships. His club conquered its metropolitan rival in 1921 and 1922.

Stiff Campaign.

The Giants won the pennant this year only after one of the hardest fought campaigns in annals of the senior circuit. Except for a brief spurt by the Brooklyn Dodgers early in the season, the world's champions met their stiffest opposition from three western clubs, with Cincinnati and Pittsburgh forming the chief menace to thir supremacy.

The real turning point in the race came in the crucial mid-summer western trip of the Giants, who played at the top of their game to defeat Pittsburgh in the opening series and then took five straight from the Reds. These victories gave the McGraw men a formidable advantage, but they were forced to stand off further challenges. The Reds, despite their crushing setbacks, rallied and crept close to the top by taking a later series from the Giants at the Polo Grounds. Virtually all further chance for the Reds vanished, however, when these two rivals broke even in a two-game series at Cincinnati early this week.

One game on the Giant schedule will be unplayed, a contest with St. Louis, scheduled earlier in the season having been cancelled.

Ernest Legon May Land With the Senior Squad.

KINGSTON, Sept. 29.—(Special to the Examiner).—Ernest Legon of Peterboro, a first year student at Queens University has a good chance of getting a place on Queens' Senior Football team. He has been given a trial and his work has created a most favorable impression. It would appear that his weight is the only handicap. He is very light, just tipping the scales at 125 pounds. But he is very fast, knows the game well and has been attracting a great deal of attention. One thing is certain, and that is that he will be sure of a place on the Intermediate team at any rate if he does not land with the Senior squad.

BASEBALL

George Kelly of the New York Giants who recently hit three home runs in three innings in Chicago, and Irish Meusel of the same team always get into a hitting slump when the Giants play on the Polo Grounds Their failure to hit when playing on the home park, has caused the rumor several times this season that neither will be a member of the team next year. As soon as the Giants leave New York the two begin to hit

Kelly and Meusel recently explained their failures at the Polo Grounds. Both attributed their inability to hit to the dark green curtain in centerfield. This curtain is supposed to act as a background and an aid to batsmen but Kelly and Meusel claim that to them the dark green curtain is a handicap.

In New York they want to see the Yankees suffer several defeats before the season closes. They claim that New York has had such an easy time winning the pennant that the Yankee's pitchers have not been extended enough and that this easy winning will affect the play of the team in the world seris. When a man can get by while loafing he gets so in the habit of it that he can not extend himself when the occasion demands it, so the experts want the Yanks extended as a preparation for the big series.

A minor league ball player, "Hickory Mose" Solomon, son of a Columbus junk dealer and the home-run king of the bush circuits, was recently purchased by the New York Nationals for a price "almost equal to that of O'Connell." The Giants purchased O'Connell last year and publicly announced that they paid $125,000 for this player to the San Francisco club. Chicago boasted that it paid $100,000 for Willie Kamm who, by the way, is an infinitely better ball player than O'Connell. Now the Chicago club says it is paying $50,000 to Rochester for Maurice Archdeacon, the fleet outfielder who was supposed to be awaiting shipment to Navin Field. Connie Mack told reporters that he paid $75,000 for Sammy Hale, an atrocious fielder but a fairly good hitter.

According to a Philadelphia newspaper a man who is acquainted with the facts in the case, says that the New York club paid $500 for Solomon and that the papers call for an additional $4,000 if Solomon makes good. Should Solomon fail next year the Giants will not have to pay the additional $4,000, of course.

Major league magnates are making the same mistake that was made by the motion picture promoters. The idea that you get a great deal of publicity and create a deep impression by announcing to the taxpayers that you spend fortuunes for untried minor leaguers, is stupid in its conception.

The layman, hearing that John J. McGraw paid $125,000 for an untrier minor leaguer, concludes that John J. McGraw is a fool and makes up his mind that he is done spending money at the gate to see a team managed by such an idiot perform.

Or, the layman concludes that base ball has gotten to be an out and out business proposition, a theatrical investment and nothing more. This conclusion will also keep him from the ball park. He had been under the impression right along that base ball was sport.

Or, he will decide that he is paying for such foolishness, that the dollars he nands out to pass through the turnstile make such reckless squandering possible and he will get sore about it and quit paying the dollars.

Play the proposition of dollars in sport anyway you like, look at the matter from any angle, and it becomes extremely bad business. The motion pictures magnates discovered that during the black days following the Roscoe Arbuckle incident and the base ball magnates are going to find the same thing happening to them one of these days. It will be impressed upon them only through a financial loss. They could save money by changing their styles of play now.

SHELBY'S $85,000 ARENA FINALLY BRINGS $5,500

The arena in which Shelby staged its "folly" July 4 was knocked down to the Monarch Lumber company for $5,500. It cost $85,000 to build. The sale of the huge bowl where Jack Dempsey and Tommy Gibbons milled fifteen rounds without a knockout except to the pocketbooks of Montana, was conducted by James A. Johnson, treasurer of the fight, on the foreclosure of an $85,000 mortage held by the lumber company.

ANOTHER PENNANT FOR THE GIANTS

National League Race Decided By Brooklyn's Defeat in New York.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—The New York Giants clinched the 1923 National League championship yesterday, defeating Brooklyn, 3 to 0. Nehf the New York left-hander, pitched his first shut-out of the season. He was aided by three double plays and two Brooklyn players being caught napping on the bases. The Giants stopped Grimmes after he had won six straight games. Meusel's single drove in two runs in the first inning, and he stole home on a double steal in the eighth.

B. Griffith hit safely four times for Brooklyn in as many times up.

Score:

Brooklyn	000 000 000	0	9 1
New York	200 000 01x	3	11 0

CANADIAN WOOLLENS SHAREHOLDERS MEET

Statements of Favorable Aspect Made By Company Management.

The fourth annual meeting of shareholders of Canadian Woollens, Limited, was held heer last week. The annual report was presented by the president, Mr. A. O. Dawson, who supplemented it with further particulars as to the business of the company. He mentioned that the statement as at June 30 showed that the company had a surplus of current assets over current liabilities of nearly $475,000.00, and the secretary had reported that at the end of August current liabilities had been reduced by $129,000.00.

At the president's request, Mr. C. M. Heddle gave some interesting information as to the company's business at the Auburn and Bonner-Worth mills, stating that the former are at present operating at about 60 per cent. of capacity and that the Bonner-Worth spinning mill was fully employed, except in the French spinning department, which is idle owing to tariff conditions, and consequently the plant is being offered for sale in the United States.

The following directors were re-elected for 1923-24: A. O. Dawson, W. K. George, F. B. Hayes, Wm. Hanson, I. Bonner, Geo. D. Perry, C. M. Heddle. Mr. Dawson was subsequently appointed President; Mr. George, First Vice-President and Chairman of the Board; Mr. Hayes, Second Vice-President, and Wm. Tinker, Secretary-Treasurer.

HORNSBY SUSPENDED MUST PAY $500 FINE

Champion Batsman Refuses To Play In Game.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 29.—Rogers Hornsby, champion batsman of the National League, was suspended indefinitely and fined $500 for declining to play in yesterday's game against Brooklyn.

Sam Breadon, president of the St. Louis Nationals, who announced the fine and suspension last night declared Hornsby refused to appear in the line up after the club physician had advised the star second baseman that he was in condition to play. Hornsby has been out of the game since Sept. 9 with a skin affection.

Hornsby, who has been a member of the Cardinals for eight years, explained his action by saying that he needed a day's practice before he could resume play with justice to the club and himself.

The slugger said that shortly after he informed Branch Rickey, manager of the team to that effect yesterday. President Breadon told him that "you or nobody else on the team is going to run my ball club," and handed him notice of the fine and suspension.

Reports that Manager Rickey and Hornsby were not on the best of terms were taken notice of recently when it was learned that the two had come to blows in the clubhouse at New York on Aug. 23 after an argument over directing the team Later official announcement was made that the incident was closed and rumours that Hornsby either woud be sold or traded to another club were declared to be without foundation.

AVALANCHE OF HITS AND CRICKET SCORE

New York Americans Chalked Up 30 Hits Off Boston—Eleven Runs in One Inning.

TIGERS CUT MARGIN.

BOSTON, Sept. 28.—New York made 30 hits for a total of 44 bases against Ehmke and Blethen to-day and won the second game of the series from Boston 24 to 4. Ruth made home run in the sixth with two on base, the ball going into the far corner of the center-field bleachers. Ward's home run in the third was due to a fluke bound over Collins' shoulder.

In the sixth inning the champions scored eleven runs on as many hits and an error by McMillan. That was Ehmke's last inning. In the sixth Ruth singled and made his homer, Gehrig doubled and singled and so did Smith. In the third right fielder Bob Meusel crashed into the right field fence going after a foul off Ehmke's bat. He was carried from the field for the second time in two days. The score:

Boston	000 300 010	4	11 3

Jones and Schang; Ehmke, Blethen and Picinich.

Talent in the Stand

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 28.—St. Louis took the opening game of the series from Chicago to-day, 3 to 2. Eddie Collins stole his 45th base of the season. The contest was a pitching duel between Cvengros and Danforth With George Sisler, Rogers Horns by and Urban Shocker in the grand stand, it was estimated that $600,000 of local baseball talent was among the spectators. Score:

Chicago	000 100 010	2	7 0
St. Louis	100 10001x	3	7 1

Cvengros and Schalk; Danforth and Severeid.

Flock of Recruits

DETROIT, Sept. 28.—The Tigers beat the Cleveland Indians to-day, 17 to 3, and moved a notch nearer second place. After the Detroit team had scored seven runs in the first inning, Manager Speaker started giving his recruit pitchers an opportunity to display their ability.

As a result five recruit flingers made their appearance in the lineup. Twentyeight players participated in the game, 18 for Cleveland and 10 for Detroit. Score:

Cleveland	011 000 010	3	5 4
Detroit	752 003 00x	17	14 2

Smith, Sullivan, Drake, Edmonton, Levesen and Myatt I. Sewell; Pillette and Woodall.

BROCKVILLE PLAY C.G.E. ON MONDAY

Bringing Special Train of Fans For Second Game of the Round.

The second game of the Brockville-C.G.E. series has been called for the Riverside Park on Monday at 3.00 pm.. The visitors are going to be accompanied by a strong contingent of supporters for whom a special train has been engaged. The easterners are going to make a big bid to take this series in straight games, but the C.G.E. declare their confidence that the tables will be turned on Monday. Frost was not in shape in Brockville, being bothered with a sore elbow, and the team generally feels that they did not do themselves justice.

Skitch and Boundy have been appointed referees, and although the game falls on a week day, it is expected that Peterborough fans will turn out in large numbers for this important engagement.

LEGION PLAY BASKETBALL.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 29.—(Associated Press)—A national basketball championship, with teams entered representing American Legion posts from nearly every large city and state in the union, will be one of the major events of the athletic program to be staged here during the American Legion's national convention, October 15-19.

Sacramento American Legion post, winner of the 1921 California state basketball championship, Kansas City, Boston, Minneapolis, Denver, Los Angeles, San Francisco and other Legion posts will enter the

Ruth and Williams Increase Home Runs

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Cy. Williams of the Philadelphia Nationals held the season home run leade. Fip for about one hour yesterday when he poled his 38th round-trip, with none on, off Marquard, in the first inning, with Boston, at Philadelphia.

Babe Ruth, of the Yankees, however, returned the compliment when he jaced out his 43th in the sixth inning with two on off Ehmke, of the Red Sox at Boston, again tying the home run score.

AMERICAN WINS SEAPLANE RACE

COWES, Isle of Wight, Sept. 29.—Lieut. David Rittenhouse, United States, driving his Curtiss Navy racer at a speed of 177.38 miles an hour yesterday won the Schneider Cup from its British holder against a field which had simmered down to an Englishman, a Frenchman and another flyer from the United States.

Lieutenant Rittenhouse crossed the finish line of the 186-mile course in 1 hour 12 minutes, 26 4-5 seconds; his colleague, Lieutenant Rutledge Irvine, was less than two minutes behind him, and the Englishman, Captain H. C. Baird, more than nine minutes behind. The Frenchman was eliminated when forced to make a landing in the water and his plane was towed ashore undamaged.

Captain Baird had been disqualified because he rose from the water before crossing the starting line, instead of taxying over it, but when the plane bumped the water after crossing the line, the judges withdrew their disqualification ruling. Engine trouble developing at the last minute kept two of the French entrants from flying.

Accidents during trials had already accounted for two of the British entrants.

Lieut. Rittenhouse's speed is a record for the race, beating by 30 miles an hour, the record established at Naples last year, by Captain Baird. The race consisted of five circuits of a triangular course.

ALL STARS BALL TEAM SELECTED

Personnel of Combination to Uphold Honor of the Northumberland League

BRIGHTON, Sept. 29.—The selection of the all-star Northumberland League team was completed here Thursday, the selection being based on the individual choices of representatives of the Campbellford, Brighton, Colborne, Orland, Harwood, Warkworth and Roseneath clubs and an umpire who has officiated all season. Another umpire and the Hastings and Trenton clubs did not respond to the request of their choice of a team.

The player mentioned the greatest number of times for his position was in each case chosen. The two utility players were selected on a system of points, receiving credit for being named as a regular on any team.

Weston, Hawkins, Walt and Strong were almost unanimously chosen for their respective positions. Halliday, Empey and McKee were picked four times and Heaney three. Zufelt was mentioned four times as first pitcher and once as second, and Brady once as first pitcher and three times as second. Mulhall, selected twice for third, twice for short and once for utility, easily qualifies as the extra infielder, and Blakely is extra outfielder, having been twice chosen for left and once for utility.

SISTER SUSIE SEES A BALL GAME

And Doesn't Think Much Of It

Dear Nellie: Minnie an' me went to a ball game the other day. Minnie was at a ball game once before, but I never was, an' on account of the teacher always sayin' that girls otta be interested in sport, same as the boys, Minnie an' me said we'd go on Saturday afternoon, an' Pa drove us into town.

We were kinda late. The game was sipposed to start about 3 o'clock, but it was nearly 4 when we got in. Doll had a loose shoe, an' Pa wouldn't drive fast. Minnie an' me was settin' up, worryin' about the game, all the way in. Minnie had on her blue silk dress and I wore my pink gingham. So when we got there, the man said, "You're pretty late," but he charged Pa up for two full tickets just the same, an' then Pa went down town an' we went in. There was a lot of people settin' up on a wooden platform with seats away up high on it, an' when Minnie an' me went to set down on one of the benches, a man said, "Where are your tickets?" Seems we had to pay another fifteen cents apiece to set down, an' Minnie said we wouldn't spend her ice cream money for no such thing, so we had to go an' stand in the sun an' it wasn't very nice.

There was a lot of men standin' 'round in a big place with nice smooth grass an' a fence all 'round it. Some of them had on suits with stripes, like Tricky Bill in "The Escape from Sing Sing" that came to the Town Hall once, an' the other fellows had on plainer suits. They had little peak caps on and short kinda baggy pants, an' one fellow had a fancy pair of socks with stripes runnin' 'round them.

When we went in, they weren't playin' at all, I think. One fellow was throwin' a ball to another one, an' the rest were standin' 'round watchin' them. Someone in the seats behind us said, "Where do those fellows come from, anyway?" An' another big, nasty-looking fellow said: "Why, from Chester Hollow. That's where all the wild women come from. There's two of them now." An' everybody looked at us and laughed. Minnie was mad.

A gentleman out on the grass was rubbing his stummick hard with both hands, an' we were wondering if he had the stummick ake, but nobody went near him. A man with a felt hat came out of a little wooden house under the stand an' they started to yell "Jake" at him. He looked up an' said something an' quick went back in again.

Then a man started to look at some wooden things that Minnie said were bats, but they didn't look anything like the bat that flew into our bedroom one night, an' Pa had to kill it with a shovel. These bats are wooden things an' they were lying on the ground, all different colors. An' he took up a red one and threw it away an' tried a green one an' then he started exercisin' his arm with a yellow one. All at once, a man out in the middle threw a little white ball at him hard, an' he ducked down quick to miss it. An' the fellow tried to hit him again, an', he did the same thing. Then he got mad an' tried to hit the ball back at the fellow an' he missed it an' got confused like, I guess. For he threw the bat away and started to run.

Somebody yelled, "Hey, what are you runnin' for?" An' someone else said, "He wantsa drink." But there wasn't any water 'round anywhere except in the river, an' he wasn't runnin' in that direction anyway.

Then a young fellow sat down hard with his back to the players an' another one off in the field stood real still for a long time with his arms folded. Everyone else was runnin' 'round hard, chasin' the little white ball, but he never budged, just stood there.

A man ran over to a place where there was a sack an' stood on it, an' someone threw the ball' way off an' the crowd yelled to the man on the sack, "Are you waitin' for lunch?" But when he started to run, they said, "Wait until they take your picture." But he wouldn't wait at all, an' ran away over to another sack. When he saw a fellow with the ball comin' along to give it to him, he got flustered an' slid along in the sand an' got his nice suit all dusty.

Then an awful particular little man that stood with his back to us took a little whisk out of his pocket an' started dusting off a white stone. He did this ever so many times. Every time it got dusty he whisked it off again. He was fussy about himself too. He had a kind of mask on to keep the sun off, and a funny sort of thing that looked like brown cardboard all over his chest. He caught the ball once and fell down on the ground and the crowd yelled "ah" at him. But it didn't matter how much the people talked to them, the men out on the grass never talked at all. But I don't think they liked it, for they looked kinda mad.

Then a man in a black suit went out and spoke to the fellow that was throwing the ball, an' they walked over in our direction, but before they had finished their chat, another man came along an' started throwing the ball. This fellow would stoop down an' wipe his hands in the dirt an' then wipe them on his trousers. The crowd started yelling at the man with the bat, "Look them over there."

Every little while the whole lot would get mad all at once an' throw down all the bats and the ball an' go and change places just to see if they liked another part of the ground better, I guess. An' pretty soon they would get tired an' change back again.

The crowd started yellin't at the man in the centre: "He's old enough to be your father. Hop in there. Get your dad out." I think it made him madder than ever, to talk about the man's age so, because he started throwin' the balls real hard, an' all the men seemed to get nervous at once, the way the crowd was saying, "Oh-h" at them, so, all of a sudden, the man in the centre dropped the ball an' walked off an' everybody got up an' went home. A big, fat man behind us was arguin' with another man all the way to the gate, about how good "Shorty" was, "if he only had half a chance."

I didnt' think much of that ball game.

Your affekshunate cusin,
SUSIE.

SOMETHING ABOUT BONDS

British and American investors hold millions of Canada's Bonds because Canada's credit is second to none.

But—Canada is able and Canadians should be willing to refund her debts at home. It is good p[olicy] and it is even better busines to have interest on Canada's debt paid to Canadians.

—then the money stays at home

Every person with $100, $500, $1,000 or more to invest should subscribe immediately for these Bonds. The Dominion of Canada itself is your security. The interest return is high. The Bonds will always have a wide and ready market.

they rank equally with Victory Bonds

Holders of Victory Bonds due November 1st, 1923, are privileged to exchange them for new Bonds on attractive terms.

They will receive in cash the difference between the face value of their maturing Bonds and the purchase price of the new security, calculated at the rate of $1.75 per $100 for the 20 year Bonds. Interest coupons should be detached before exchanging and presented for payment as usual on November 1st.

Those who convert Bonds will gain two weeks' interest because the new Bonds will be dated October 15th and interest will accrue from then, while the full interest will be paid right up to November 1 on the 1923 Victory's.

For this occasion, Flower-Sunday, special services have been prepared for morning and evening.

RALLY DAY IN ST. PAUL'S

The services to-morrow in St. Paul's are all planned in keeping with the Rally Day programme which is being observed in all the churches. The morning message will be a call to the church to dedicate herself to the great unfinished task of giving the Gospel to the whole world. The Sunday School will meet in the afternoon at three o'clock and will hold its session in the church. A very interesting programme is being prepared. In the evening the minister will preach a sermon to young people on the subject of "drifting" in which he will refer specially to the drift towards greater laxity in the modes of the young.

POOR PROSPECT FOR HOME BANK

Looks Like About Forty Cents on the Dollar.

TORONTO, Sept. 29.—(Canadian Press).—It is intimated here that the report of the curator of the suspended Home Bank, now completed, indicates that there will be a three million dollar deficit, that the shareholders will be called on for double liability, and that the depositors will not get more than forty cents on the dollar, and wait some time for that.

Society

Misses Thush and Norean Simpson have returned home after spending a few days with friends in Cavan.

Miss Rita Cavanah, whose marriage to Dr. Frank takes place in October, has been the guest of honor at numerous social function, this week. Among those who entertained for Miss Cavanah were Miss Phyllis Dawson, who gave a miscellaneous shower, Mrs. F. L. Roy, at a tea on Monday, Mrs. Harry Cressman, who gave a luncheon on Tuesday, Mrs. Walter Belleghem and Mrs. George Hughes, whose china shower was held on Tuesday also, and Mrs. Fred Hooper, who entertained at a fruit and jam shower yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Raymore Scott is entertaining at tea this afternoon for Miss Cavanah.

Dr. J. J. Craig will return tonight from Brayton, North Dakota, after an absence of two weeks owing to the serious illness of his father. He will resume his practice on Monday, October 1st.

Mrs. Jack Chalmers of Oshawa, left for that city, after spending the week with Mrs. Norman of Wolfe street, Peterboro.

MISS PEARL BURFORD AT THE CONSERVATORY

Miss Pearl Burford, whose picture appears in the Toronto Globe to-day, has been engaged by the management of our local Conservatory, taking the place of Mr. Carles Buehler, who is now in London, England. Miss Burford is not only a brilliant piano soloist, but has had a wide experience in teaching, having been assistant to the great pianist, Ernest Hutchinson, of New York city, and is now a member of the faculty of the Toronto Conservatory of Music as assistant to Mr. Ernest Seitz, the well known Canadian pianist. Miss Burford will enter upon her duties next week.

OBITUARY

WALTER BRYCE.

The death occurred this morning, in Keene, at three o'clock, of Walter Bryce, of 3 Bowden Avenue, Toronto.

The late Mr. Bryce was an elder in Old St. Andrew's Church, Toronto, and he was also a Past Master in the Zeta Lodge. His occupation was that of a school inspector.

Surviving relatives are his wife, Elizabeth Letitia Miller, two sons Archie and George, both of Toronto, three daughters, Lila, Margaret and Marion, one sister, Mrs. W. S. Howson, of Peterborough, two brothers, J. A. Bryce of Peterborough, and Joseph of Sherbrooke, Quebec. His father, Mr. Archibald Bryce, of Keene, is also living.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, 3 Bowden Avenue, Toronto on Monday at 2.30 p.m., to the Prospect Cemetery.

AGNES ELMHIRST.

Agnes Elmhirst, 80 years old, died on Monday, Sept. 24, at the residence of her son, Richard Elmhirst, 39 Bannerman Avenue, Winnipeg. She was a native of Peterboro, and had resided in this province for 30 years, the last four of which were spent in Winnipeg. The body will be forwarded from A. B. Gardiner's Funeral Home to Carberry, Manitoba, for burial.

EUROPEAN LATIN BLOC MAY FORCE A WORLD ALIGNMENT

Alliance Between France, Italy and Spain May Spread to South America and Eventually Involve the United States.

By L. W. T. MASON

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—(United Press).—Renaissance of the Latin nations in Europe which may entirely change the political balance of power as preceding. If the effort succeeds in full the European continent will see the Nordic races, led by Germany, subordinated to the Latin culture which originated in ancient Rome.

The most astonishing nationalistic result since the war is the rejuvenation of the European Latins coincident with the diplomatic defeats of Great Britain and the crushing of German resistance to the peace treaty. France, Italy and Spain are heading for an alliance which will materialize if their statesmen show sufficient ability to sink present differences for the benefit of the future of their common race.

A Racial Movement.

The success of France in the Ruhr, the success of Mussolini in Italy and the new Somaten movement in Spain, which has overthrown the old gang of corrupt politicians, are all becoming interlocked by a single racial feeling. Until a short time ago France and Italy were diplomatically hostile to each other. But when Mussolini defied the League of Nations concerning the Italo-Greek dispute and occupied Corfu, France forgot the old differences and instinctively sided with her Latin sister nation.

Similarly, one of the first acts of the new Spanish dictator, General Primo de Rivera, following the success of the Somaten revolt, was to send a fraternal message to Mussolini. It is too early yet to determine whether Mussolini and de Rivera will succeed in permanently rehabilitating their countries. Furthermore, France has not yet found the way out of her financial difficulties. But all three nations have regained their self-confidence and are on the right road. Should success continue to attend them they will be able to control continental policies for an indefinite period.

Latins Have Ability.

There has been much blindness about the political ability of the European Latins. France's success in winning to her side Belgium, Poland, Czecho-Clovakia and other smaller non-Latin nations has not been accepted at its true worth. These little countries of Europe, being in the very midst of Europe's tragic situation, have intuitive feelings for self-preservation. Their acceptance of French leadership must be examined from this standpoint.

When, following upon the victories of Latin diplomacy directed from Paris, Italy successfully defied the League of Nations, Latin self-confidence naturally increased. And now that a sensational coup in the interest of purity in government has occurred in Spain, the third Latin country of Europe, no European foreign office can help seeing the possible consequences.

Should the Latin bloc come into being it will be able to count the support of the South American countries, with the probable exception of Brazil. Inter-continental co-operation may thus be developed between the two hemispheres to an extent not hitherto known to history.

In that event the United States will have to study the new situation thus created with the closest attention. Despite all the reluctance of the North American people to concern themselves in world affairs they may be pulled in, not by Europe, but by South America co-operating with the European Latins.

Letter From Stevenson Shows Love of Nature.

LONDON, Sept. 29 (Associated Press).—Robert Louis Stevenson, as a self styled "miserable, perverse, tremulous, childish devil," is the latest revelation of the great author brought to light through a letter written in 1875 to Lady Colvin and published for the first time in the "Empire Review."

"I am changed to myself," he writes. "All my sham goodness, I mean all the orderliness, and citizenliness, and sort of respectability that I had laid on, is going away and away down through wind into everlasting space.

"Despise me if you please, my lady, but mind you I'll do good work in spite of it all, even though I cannot catch trains (as now I cannot), and cannot write letters, and cannot keep engagements, nor generally do anything that a stout, thoughtful citizen should do by nature."

Signing himself "R. L. MeIdiot Stevenson of Bedlam," he pens a hymn of praise to nature and to the joy of life he feels when his heart is tuned to her worship.

"You must be very miserable, indeed," he declares, "if you can be miserable in the open air. It stupefies and woos and amuses you, it is like some great healthy narcotic; and the visions are visions of green trees, and men ploughing, and larks, and the golden morning clouds breaking and showing us the high blue sky beyond.

"After all, life is very livable under the blue sky. It is in houses mostly that the blue devils do consort. Goodbye; I am as fresh and jolly as the open air."

DAYLIGHT SAVING ENDS

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—(Associated Press)—More than 350 cities and towns in New York and several Eastern states that on April 29 set their clocks forward one hour to save daylight during the summer, will return to standard time at 2 a.m. tomorrow.

New York and New Jersey were the principal states in the Eastern time zone in which, under local ordinances, the daylight saving scheme was put into effect. The action affected all large cities and commuting vicinities.

Massachusetts has a daylight-saving statute, while about 50 cities in other New England states observed the change in the clock either by local ordinance or common consent.

THEATRES

AT THE ROYAL.

"THE PRODICAL SON."

A Massive English Production at the Royal, Commencing Monday.

Sir Hall Caine's powerful story, "A Prodigal Son," is now to be seen at Stoll's gigantic English film masterpiece, which will open at the Royal on Monday. This film is the only picture which has ever played at an admission price of $4. It was produced in England in seventeen reels, and was shown through that country as two separate shows at $2 admission for each show. The success and popularity of the film was tremendous, earning the name in the Old Country of the greatest film ever produced. For exhibition in the United States and Canada, the picture has been cut down to ten reels, and in its new form is considered to be even better than it was formerly. American critics see the picture to be one of the few masterpieces of the film world, surpassing "Hearts of the World," "Over the Hill," and "Way Down East."

The story concerns two brothers. The younger brother, Oscar Stephenson, a spectacular, reckless and daring figure, who knew no restraint and no law save that of indulgence. He breaks all the laws of God and man, and still remains a commanding figure, that wins the sympathy of all audiences. The elder brother, a stolid and stalwart character with drab figure, in contrast to his brother, a man that is called upon to make sacrifices and concessions for the sake of the "Prodigal," who loses his happiness, sweetheart, sees ruin brought upon himself and his father, by his scapegrace brother. Then there comes a day when this upright figure of a man for so many years set in the path of duty, breaks through all restraint and is swept with a lust to kill and a passion to exterminate a stranger that comes out of the storm on the very day that disgrace and ruin are heaping on over his head for a final overwhelming climax.

It seems the local of the film is laid in Iceland, England and Monte Carlo, and passes from one scene of stirring action to another with force, power and lightning-like succession. It is full of surprise, climax and strong moments. The love scenes of the "Prodigal Son" add an power, depth and vastness, adding something new to the technique of filmdom.

The United States and American critics have gone into raptures over this big English picture and praise it unstintingly and without bounds, claiming it as one of the great masterpieces of the screen. This, by the way, is the first English picture that has received such signal recognition over there.

"The Purple Highway"

With MADGE KENNEDY AND A GREAT CAST

FIRST TIME EVER SHOWN IN PETERBORO

MATINEES 10c and 15c — EVENINGS 10c, 15c and 20c

ROYAL TO SHOW NOTED SCREEN HIT.

"Merry-Go-Round" Landed By Enterprising Management After Long Negotiations.

"Merry-Go-Round" was nine months in the making and more than 1,000 actors and actresses took part. The cost of building the elaborate sets to duplicate the Prater, which is the Coney Island of Vienna, the emperor's castle and other historic spots was enormous, but this expenditure was more than justified by the final excellence. Travellers who have visited Vienna admit that Universal has achieved something very much worth while in duplicating the locales so faithfully.

The cast is noteworthy, being headed by Mae Philbin and Norman Kerry with an imposing list of featured artists in the chief supports. These include George Hackathorne, Dale Fuller, Cesare Gravina, Maude George, George Siegmann, Anton Veverka, Spottiswoode Aitken, Dorothy Wallace, Al Edmundson and Lillian Sylvester. The production was directed by Rupert Julian.

AT THE REGENT.

"THE PURPLE HIGHWAY" THRILLS.

Madge Kennedy's new Paramount picture, "The Purple Highway," which was shown with great success at the Regent theatre last night, marks the reutrn of this popular stage and screen star to the silent drama. The picture is an appealing and thrilling drama with several moments of genuine comedy to offset the more dramaitc scenes. It tells of how a girl, April Blair, played by Miss Kennedy, is the means of a Home for Artistic Failures. She fires them all with ambition with the result that all find new objects in life worth striving for.

AT THE GRAND.

Next Saturday will usher in at the Grand Opera House one of those thoroughly British plays that theatregoers love so well. Brought over in its entirety from the Old Country, where it proved a great favorite during the past two years, and headed by a recognized leading artist, it should afford playgoers in this city considerable pleasure. The play in question is based on Charles Dickens' "David Copperfield," and has been presented in England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales by Bransby Williams, the greatest character actor of modern times, and his talented company, and proved an easy favorite with the British public—an engagement at the Lyceum, London, being curtailed in order to allow Mr. Williams and his company to reopen the theatrical season at His Majesty's Theatre in Montreal a few weeks ago. Dickens' novels are well known throughout the British Empire. His characters are strong and well-drawn. Several of his books have been dramatized and produced in play form by leading actor-managers, the late Sir Herbert Tree's production of "Oliver Twist" being a noteworthy achievement. But while other actors have been content to gain fame and prestige with the interpretation of one character, Bransby Dilliams, who has made Dickens his life study, has gained an enviable reputation for perfect studies of many of the characters. In "David Copperfield" he doubles the roles of Peggetty and Wilkins Micawber, two entirely dissimilar characters. To miss seeing his presentation at the Grand Opera House next Saturday will be a lost opportunity ever to be regretted. Mail orders for Mr. Bransby Williams' "David Copperfield" will be filled in the order in which the arrive. Mail now, prices 50c to $2.00.

AT THE CAPITOL.

"Ruggles of Red Gap," the well-known story of Harry Leon Wilson which appeared serially in the Saturday Evening Post, has been made into one of the most enjoyable comedies of the year, and will be presented at the Capitol Theatre next Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday. The story tells of the adventures of an English valet, Ruggles, who has been gambled and lost by his master to an uncouth Western rancher. Ruggles goes to the ranch with his new master, and from then on his adventures keep the audience in one long roar of laughter. Ernest Torrence, famous for his character impersonations, plays the role of the Westerner, while others in the cast include Lois Wilson, Fritzi Ridgeway, Louis Dresser, and Charles Ogle.

The last three days of next week the Capitol will offer one of the weirdest and most mysterious dramas yet seen in Peterborough—"Red Lights." This is an out-and-out "thriller," and sets out with the intention of giving all the thrills that can be crowded into 8,000 feet of film. Because of the splendid direction and the remarkable story, it is not to be confused with the mass of so-called thrillers that are shown on many screens. "Red Lights" is an aristocrat among melodramas, and resorts to unusually clever methods to obtain its thrills. It is presented by a cast, including Johnnie Walker and Marie Prevost.

Two special comedies have been secured by the Capitol for next week. Bobbie Vernon will be seen in his latest Christie comedy, "Plumb Crazy," the first half of the week, while Jimmie Aubrey in "The Detective" will be shown the last three days.

GOOD BUNTERS ARE A RARITY.

BY BILLY EVANS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—"If Willie Keeler was living and playing ball these days in either the National or American League he wouldn't have any trouble piling up a batting average between .400 and .500," remarks Hughey Jennings, assistant to John McGraw of the Giants.

"The lively ball and the style of pitching now in vogue is made to order for a good bunter," continues Jennings, "but alas and alack, good bunters are a rarity these days.

"The lively ball has caused all third basemen to play much deeper than they did even 10 years ago. There is a reason, of course, the great danger in playing in too close with the lively ball.

"That is the first big advantage that a good bunter has these days. The deep position of most third basemen makes it well night impossible for them to come in and handle a well placed bunt.

Pitching Favors Bunting.

"The second big advantage is the style of pitching that is now being affected by most major league pitchers. The fast ball is now more or less a threat. Few pitchers use it to any great extent because the fast one, plus the lively ball, makes for many home runs.

"The slow ball is made to order for the good bunter because it enables him to place the ball better. Incidentally a slow ball properly bunted never travels as fast as the fast ball bunted in the same manner.

"Willie Keeler would have the third sackers in either major league standing on their heads if he was playing today. It would be a tough day for him when he failed to beat out a couple. And if the infielders closed in on him, it would be almost as easy a matter for him to drop the ball over their heads.

Fast Men Could Profit.

"If some of the fast men of today would try bunting instead of swinging their heads off at every ball pitched, they would boast much higher averages."

Since discussing this phase of batting with Jennings I have paid particular attention to the methods used by the speed merchants of the American League. My observations have borne out what Jennings has said on the subject.

There are few good bunters in the majors today compared with 10 years ago. At one time bunting came in for as much attention in batting practice as trying to hit the ball hard. When players practice bunting now, they do it in a "why-waste-the-time" manner.

No doubt the fact that the sacrifice is no longer widely used, because managers do not regard the getting of one run a good system with the lively ball, has had much to do with the falling off in bunting. Regardless of the reason, bunting like base running is now in the background.

It seems to me that Hughey Jennings has offered some mighty good logic to the speed merchants of the majors. It seems it would be much wiser for them to mix 'em up by resorting to the bunt rather than taking a healthy cut at every ball.

Make a mousetrap better than your neighbor and you will catch all of your neighbor's rats.

All the flowers will be gone soon except the blooming idiots.

REVOLUTION IN GERMAN SECTOR NIPPED IN BUD

Official Statement From Berlin Says Nationalist Organization Failed in Attack on Fort.

LEADERS ARRESTED

LONDON, Oct. 1.—(Special).—A Revolutionary movement originated by nationalist organizations has been broken in Kuestrin, fifty miles from Berlin, says a Reuter despatch from the German capital.

Insurgents attempted to disarm the garrison and occupy the fortress, but the commander of the Reichswehr arrested the Nationalist leaders, and attacked the attackers.

Reinforcements of Reichewehr from neighboring towns were summoned to Kuestrin the despatch adds and troops have been ordered to suppress revolt ruthlessly. As a result of the insurrection Dr. Gessler, German minister, has imposed a censorship on news of a military character. Kuestrin is a city of twenty thousand inhabitants and is located in a fortress.

Government in Control

Despatches from Berlin say the government is now moving to suppress a Nationalist movement to seize the Kuestrin Fortress near Frankfort, an official statement said to-day.

The Government statement admitted an outbreak in which organized troops attacked the fortress as the beginning of a plain to seize the military bases throughout the Frankfort district.

It was claimed however, that government forces are in control of the situation and that strong reinforcements have routed several detachments of the nationalists.

FRENCH KEEPING ORDER.

The French troops are patrolling the streets of Duessoldorf to-day, having resumed the entire responsibility of keeping strict order.

A formal state of siege has not been declared, but the curfew law, strictly closing activities from 11 p.m. until 5 a.m., is being rigidly enforced.

These measures have been deemed necessary as the result of yesterday's outbreak at the Separatist meetings.

The casualty list compiled by the French authorities, shows that ten persons were killed and more than a hundred wounded.

The police still hold all the Secur- police in a state of arrest, pending a decision as to their responsibility for yesterday's violence.

The German newspapers in counting up the casualties assert that the German ambulances used two thousand three hundred bandages on the wounded.

Outward quiet has been restored, but a certain nervousness is in evidence among the population.

LOSS IN SILVERWARE

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 1.—A fortune is lost every year in the knives and spoons which accidentally go in garbage cans in Los Angeles according to a number of cafe and restaurant owners, who are the principal sufferers.

One restaurant reported a loss of $40,000 in silverware last year. Part of this was carried away by rats, but most of it was sent to hog farms near here by way of the garbage can.

Private families are not so heedless of silverware, it is said, but eating houses suffer heavy because of the carelessness of waiters.

One has entered the business of finding the lost silverware from knives and knives, forks and spoons, bearing the names of the restaurants and returning them are returned at a fee.

FRENCH POLICE RUNNING DOWN PLOT TO REVOLT

Communists in Paris are Busy Planning to Create Defections in the French Army.

RUHR SITUATION

PARIS, Oct. 1. — (Special). — French police officials are actively engaged in running down a communist plot to create defections in the army. Extremist leaders are using the pretext that French forces in the Ruhr and Rhineland are likely to be called on to suppress disturbances and uprisings of either Communist or Nationalist nature.

They have been busy, police say, distributing subversive tracts in barracks in Paris and its suburbs.

Nothing Solved Yet

"Nothing has been solved yet", Premier Poincare said to-day in a speech before the Council of the Meuse with regard to Germany's surrender of passive resistance in the Ruhr.

Germany still has much to do to show her good faith, the Premier asserted, reporting that no formal reparations negotiations will be undertaken with the Reichs government until the German people prove they are prepared to carry out the terms of the treaty of Versailles and covering documents.

Poincare reiterated his demonstration that France will not sacrifice anything from the amount of reparations promised here.

RECESSIONS ON STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 1. — (United Press). — Internal dissensions in Germany and the absence of any constructive developments in the domestic business situation over the week-end, caused professional pressure to renew at the start of the new week in this stock market. Studebaker again dropped to the year's lowest levels, and substantial recessions took place in American Woollen, American Can, and other active industrials. The rails were steady, after the selling orders which accumulated over the week-end had been taken care of. The general list developed a rallying tendency, and small recoveries took place among the industrials, which had been under pressure in the early dealings. Sentiment was encouraged somewhat by the weekly reviews of various banks and trust companies which reported an improvement in business.

Some Quotations.

Opening prices included: Industrial Alcohol 52 3-4, up 3-8; Erie 13 7-8, up ½; American Can. 90 1-8, off ½; Studebaker 94, off 1 5-8; U.S. Steel 86 5-8, off ¼; American Loco. 69 3-8, up ½; Baldwin 113, off 1¼; Pan-American 55¼, up ¼; Tobacco Products 67, up 1-8; Chandler 47¾, up ¼; Continental Can. 49½; Baltimore and Ohio 56¼, up 3-8; American Woollen 73, off 1; Pan-American B 53 5-8; Northern Pacific 55 3-4, off 3-4.

KIWANIS REHEARSAL POSTPONED.

The rehearsal for the Kiwanis Extravaganza, which was scheduled to take place Tuesday evening, has been postponed, until Wednesday evening, October 3rd, at 7 o'clock sharp at the Peterboro Business College. It is important that the members be present.

Where Speeders Eat Their Own Dust

DETROIT, Oct. 1.—River Rouge, whose city limits butt against those of this Michigan metropolis, stands out to-day as the originator of a "safety first" system unique in modern methods.

River Rouge is making speeders "eat their own dust," and literally, too. For, this little city, tiring of the mad rush of bootleggers, of drunken drivers and others making its streets a speedway, has taken advantage of an ordinance which makes possible sentencing of city prisoners to work.

Municipal Judge John R. Valois and Chief of Police Oliver G. Brown recently decided to "bring in" every speeder. On Judge Valois would devolve the duty of sentencing the guilty ones to work on the city streets.

Get Uniforms.

Daily the commissioner of public works may be seen supervising his gang of convicted speeders in either street cleaning, laying of bricks, or any other odd job that may be necessary.

Overall uniforms, with the words "City Prisoner" and a number, are provided. These the speeders are forced to don and then go their way to street work for the period of sentence, be it two days, a week or month.

The experiment has been a great success. Where a dozen or more used to be brought into court daily this number has been reduced to twos and threes, for the spectacle of the uniform, the thoughts of calloused hands and the humiliating nature of the work has had a most saltuary effect.

Over "25."

River Rouge has a speed limit of 15 miles an hour. However, this is not enforced to the letter, the motorcycle officers being instructed to arrest only those who are proceeding at more than 25 miles an hour.

Lying between Detroit and Ecorse, the latter place being internationally famous because it has been and still is the principal spot at which booze and beer is run over the Detroit River from Canada, River Rouge has had much trouble with "wild" drivers.

Now, however, things have changed and, to all evidences, the "business' 'of Chief Brown and Judge Valois will steadily decrease.

STRIFE AMONG FACISTI PARTY

Executive Junta in Rome Met and by Unanimous Vote Decided to Resign.

ROME, Oct. 1.—(United Press.)—The Executive Junta of the Fascisti party met to-day in the house of its secretary, Michele Bianchi, and unaimously decided to resign.

The text of the resolution was to be made public to-day.

Challenge to Fight.

Signor Massimo Rocca, the storm centre of the present internal strike in the Fascisti party, has challenged Senator Bergamini, editor of Giornale D'Italy, to a duel, because of alleged disparaging remarks printed in the newspaper.

Rocca also has challenged Dr. Lentini, alleged author of the remarks as quoted in the newspaper, to armed combat.

PORT HOPE, Oct. 1.—At a special meeting of the town council the application for the position of Chief Constable of Port Hope, was accepted and the new officer commences his duties to-day. Mr. Brown has been on the police force in Sudbury and Peterborough and highly recommended by the officials of both places.

HISTORY BANNED AS ANTI-BRITISH

School Book by Two Americans Stricken From Ontario List—Left Canadians Out of World War.

TORONTO, Oct. 1.—Because of complaints alleging that it was anti-British in its viewpoint, "A History of Europe—Our Own Times," has been stricken from the list of High School histories approved by the Ontario Deparment of Education. The criticism of the volume originated in London, Ontario, and assumed such proportions there that Premier Ferguson was moved on Saturday to make an investigation into the matter. The dropping of the work from the list of approved books for school use followed his inquiry.

The book was written by J. H. Robinson and Charles A. Beard, citizens of the United States. One point in which it was criticized was that, in giving a brief review of the Indian mutiny, it omitted the incident of the Black Hole of Calcutta, but stated that at one point "the frenzied English showed themselves as cruel as the natives." It was further complained that in describing the first battle of the Marne, it lauded Joffre and the French but made no reference to the English division. In its record of the forces participating in the World War, it was finally charged, it made no separate mention of the Canadians.

The work was not one of the prescribed texts of the Ontario Department of Education, but was merely a book approved for us. In the matter of histories the department is not arbitrary in the matter of requiring one particular work to be used, but submits a list containing several approved works, from which the local board chooses those which it will adopt.

CHAPLIN PENS SERIOUS PLAY

But He Will Not Appear As the Public Would Laugh—His Life Dream

NEW YORK, October 1.—Charlie Chaplin has come to New York to make his first effort at serious drama.

The funny man who would rather play Hamlet than create laughs, has written and directed a tragical moving picture. He could not play it himself, for the public would not take him seriously. So he did the next best thing.

He raised Edna Purviance, his co-star in many comedies—the girl at whom he tossed custard pies and whom he slapped with barrel staves—to the role of a tragical heroine. He is serious by proxy.

Chaplin is making final arrangements for the opening of "The Woman of Paris." It is his life's dream, the realization of serious complexes which arose while making comedies. It is the comedian's realistic impression of life.

"There are no heroes, villains or heroines in real life," Chaplin explained. "We sin only in blindness. We are just as God has made us. That is the theory of my serious presentation."

It is difficult to imagine the tiny laugh-producer uttering such words. He bore no relationship to Chaplin of the screen—except for his eyes—as he went through the theme of the play. His eyes are the tell-tale evidence. He laughs with his eyes.

Neat in dress, commanding and entertaining in demeanor — but never funny—he told the story. He acted every line. There is realism in the picture that may cause a revolution in the motion picture industry, if it is as clever and human as portrayed verbally by Chaplin.

"My picture doesn't end in a clinch. I hate clinches. The man kills himself and the girl goes to the rural section to work out her salvation. The plot starts with a broken telephone conversation. It is life," declared Chaplin.

THIS WOMAN IS TOURING AFOOT AROUND WORLD

REACHES PETERBORO

Nell A. Walker, globe trotter, is in town. Clad in khaki coat and pants in golf style, with khaki-colored shirt, tie and round, small hat, a bronzed complexion and black, wiry bobbed hair, the lady struck Peterboro this morning, on her trip around the world.

Nell A. Walker

A year ago Nell, according to her own account, weighed only 1,800 ounces. She was broken in health from influenza and decided to try the great outdoors. She started on a trip that will take her to each of the capitals of the world during the next five years. She walks most of the time, accepting a ride when proffered, and intends to make her way across the ocean by working in any capacity that may offer itself. Through the Arizona Desert by night, over trails infested by snakes, camping out under a light silk tent, tramping in hot and cold weather along the highways of the world, she faces with apparent cheerfulness the prospect of another four years, spent in walking through foreign countries. She has already visited thirty-five capital cities, and has covered about 3,000 miles, since she began to walk from Los Angeles, California. From here she goes to Ottawa and Montreal, then down to New York for Christmas.

Book of Experiences.

A book of her experiences will be published when Nell's trip is finished. For seven weeks; she had a companion, a woman who got as far as Niagara Falls, and then reniged on the balance of the journey. The lady totes a gun, also, but says she is not bothered to any great extent by philandering males. The booklet she sells along the way describes her as: "Occupation, walker and talker. Weight, 2,300 ounces. Age, ? Lonesome? No, too many good people to meet. Eats only when hungry. Single. Might listen to reason."

Struck a Snag.

In Peterboro, Nell struck a snag, a small one, when Mayor Taylor refused to place the Seal of Peterboro on her book. In every other place visited, the seals have been available with the signature of the Mayor, but Peterboro's seal is absent opposite the signature of His Worship.

No Fire Losses In Peterborough All Last Month

Peterborough had a unique fire record in the month of September when not a dollar was lost, Fire Chief George Gimblett informed the Examiner to-day. This is the first month since Chief Gimblett's arrival that this record has been made, and it indicates, in his opinion that people are becoming more careful in handling their fires.

At this season of the year fires are more likely to occur than at almost any other time as sooty stove pipes have been in place all summer and people are likely to unthinkingly start fires in their stoves which spread through rusty holes in the pipes.

It would pay every citizen, the Chief says, to examine carefully every length of pipe and make certain also that no bricks are loose in the chimney.

DEATH CLAIMED 3 FROM MUMPS

Sad Case of Illness And Poverty Reported From Kingston — Only One Girl Left.

KINGSTON, Ont., 1.—(Special).—Death claimed three members of a family at Clarendon, in Frontenac County, inside of a week and the attending physician states that the deaths were due to mumps.

On Monday last Ross, aged eleven years, son of Arthur White passed away, and another son, Willie, aged six, died on Friday, while the death of the father Arthur White, took place on Sunday. Just one little girl, who acted as nurse for her father and two brothers, states that the patients were unable to take the medicine left by the doctor because their throats were so sore.

The attending physician found a very sad state of affairs in the house When the doctor asked for a sheet to put around the dead bodies, he found that there was none available and he had to use a table cloth.

The father, so it is stated wore himself out, trying to give his two sons the best care he could give. The home is in a very sad state ofq repair. It is stated that there is not on solid pane of glass in the house.

ADMINIST... MOTHERS' H... COSTS A TRIFLE

Local Expenses for Fiscal Year Were Only $7.35 F. H. Dobbin Tells The Rotarians.

HOW ACT WORKS

The members of the Peterborough Rotary Club heard some interesting information at to-day's luncheon from Rotarian F. H. Dobbin, who gave a splendid talk on the Mothers' Allowance Commission and the manner in which it is working out in Peterborough and the Province generally.

Rotarian Dobbin, who is the secretary of the local Board, stressed the fact that there is a steadily increasing percentage of the population who are prepared and even anxious to accept assistance from the State, perhaps because of the fact that when facilities for paternalism are provided there are always people ready to take advantage of them. There is also an inclination to seek to secure more financial assistance on the instalment plan, in which connection the speaker referred to the Workmen's Compensation Act, under which the allowance to injured workmen had steadily increased. The danger of such legislation leading up to old age pensions, etc., was that people would decide that there was no need of preparing for the future, because the State would look after them.

The Mothers' Allowance Act had, however, done a splendid work in Ontario since its inception. It had resulted in children being kept at school who otherwise would have been unable to go, in better housing conditions, in a better standard of home life, and in providing a new incentive to discouraged women. In this connection Mr. Dobbin emphasised the fact that the allo... was designed for the benefit o... children to make it possible fo... widows to look after their fam... and to have them educated. Carvings Reveal Secrets of Men 25,000 Years

PARIS, October 1 (United Press) —Pictorial representations of the manners and customs of the people who lived in the south of France about 25,000 years or so ago have been discovered in a subterranean cavern at Saint-Martory, near Toulouse.

They were realistic artists, these pre-historic folk, and the carvings which have just been brought to light show that they were believers in the potency of magic to overcome their enemies and capture their prey in the hunt.

Norbert Casteret, an enthusiastic archaeologist is responsible for the discovery, which is regarded as the most important of its kind in France. He had noticed in trips in the Pyrennaen country the evident signs of a subterranean stream and decided to explore it. Being an athlete and a powerful swimmer he was able to carry out his design in spite of immense difficulties. One of these was a series of great rocks covering the bed of the river and forming a kind of natural siphon at th entrance. However, owing to the prolonged heat this summer, the water in this siphon was very low, and M. Casteret was able to plunge into the river, holding aloft a lantern to guide his way, swimming with one arm when the water was too deep to wade.

After having progressed about half a mile he came upon a vast rocky gallery, hundreds of yards in extent, entirely covered ith cryptic designs cut into the slatey sides. He first noted numbers of carvings representing bears and lions. Then he was able to make out three immense horses and other animals of which nothing is known except that they were probably of a species now extinct. All these carvings represented the animals depicted as if they had been desperately wo... course of the hunt.

HUNTING

Leave Your Hounds Home When Rabbit Season Opens

BY MORRIS ACKERMAN

SECOND ARTICLE—TACTICS

Rabbit hunting is to the people what bass fishing is to the people. That may sound funny but it isn't when analyzed a trifle. Records show there are some ten million hunters in the United States. That is fellows who take out hunting licenses. The general conception is that there are at least ten fishermen to every hunter.

You know that comparatively few of our states offer big game hunting, also that bird shooting is quite limited in many states. What then does the hunter hunt Rabbits That's the answer. If the black bass is 'the game fish of the people," the bunny is certainly the game animal of the people. Without this bobbing little cotton-tail the lives of the vast majority of our Nimrods would be a total wreck each fall.

Both Fun and Food

Then again there is a satisfaction in hunting rabbits. In the first place he is good to eat. For most folks he is the only item of game that goes on the year's bill of fare. In the second place the farmer has no particular love for the bunny. Says he ruins the young orchard and all that sort of thing. That makes rabbit hunting just right.

The natural home of the bunny is in the brier patches. That is where there are briers. In the west he lives in the rocks and along the foothills. In hunting rabbits in the briers, don't forget that they know that is where you expect to find them. The odd one is there, of course, but a great many more live on the 'outskirts" of the patch, bedded in small patches and tufts of grass.

Up and After 'Em

They are ready to move on demand, to the big patch. The opening day of rabbit season is a good one not to take the hound along. He is better for the next day, after the big shoot of the year. When hunting is good, a hound is a burden. You can cover so much more ground without going back ever and anon to find the dog.

When hunting with a dog or with a group of other hunters it is well to take your stand on the hillside. Ten to one bunny goes up hill. He doesn't have those powerful hind legs for nothing. There's a little hunch for you. Rabbits do not run in the daytime. They sit still. When you kick one up he shows you how 'a good man" can run. The rabbit season is on the way.

ENDURING LABOR OF POPE GREGORY.

Greek Catholic Church at Last Accepts Corrected Julian Calendar.

At last all the world bows to the wisdom of Pope Gregory XIII., who rearranged and corrected the Julian calendar, originated by our friend of classic days, Caius Julius Caesar.

For centuries the Greek Catholic Church says the Cincinnati Enquirer, refused to synchronize their year with that of all other Christian countries. Now, at last, the Greek hierarchy announces its acceptance of the common sense formula of one of the greatest among the Roman Pontiffs, and Russia and a few other dark spots are set right so far as their dates are concerned.

But even the wisdom and influence of the great Gregory, nor that of the host of Christian rulers, statesmen, physicists and scholars who followed him down to the present day, have been strong enough to get us away from pagan association. We still pay unconscious tribute and honor to the old, old gods every day of our lives. It is Monday, and we greet it as did the first worshippers of the Goddess of the Moon. It still is moon's day. With Tuesday we look up to the Supreme Deity, as myriad millions looked up to the unnamed, to Zeus, to Jupiter. With Wednesday we frankly bow to the rugged altars of the Norse Woden. Thursday speaks to us of Thor, the highest in Valhalla. Friday bids us remember the Northern Venus, the Frigga of the surpassing lands. With Saturday we go back to the time of the elder Grecian gods and walk through the Golden Age, flower-crowned devotees of mighty Saturn. Sunday takes us still farther rearward along the path of things that were, until we stand on some bleak rock ing symbol of the God of gods.

The works of Caius Julius Caesar will pass, but the calendar of Gregory will endure while men recognize the thing we call time. But it is doubtful if ever we shall be freed from the dreams and atavisms of the days we term pagan. And who would wish to be so freed?

IMPERIAL PARLEY OPENS IN LONDON

Premier Baldwin Welcomes Delegates. Conference Adjourned Till Wednesday.

LONDON, October 1 (Canadian Press). — With all the Premiers of the Empire, except Premier Bruce of Australia in attendance, the Imperial Conference opened its six weeks' session at 10 Downing Street to-day, and after sitting for two hours, adjourned early this afternoon until ten o'clock on Wednesday morning.

At that time the programme for the procedure of the Premiers will be drawn up, and the conference will listen to the statements from Lord Curzon, Secretary of Foreign Affairs, and the Duke of Devonshire, Secretary for the Colonies, regarding the colonial policy.

An official communique issued at the conclusion of to-day's meeting said that Premier Baldwin, in welcoming the delegates, reviewed the international situation, and that short replies were made by Premiers Mackenzie King of Canada, Massey of New Zealand, Smuts of South Africa, Warren of Newfoundland, Cosgrave of the Irish Free State, and the Maharajah of Alwar, India, all of which will be made public later.

The delegates were much impressed by Premier Baldwin's statement.

Loyal address was sent to King George and a telegram to the Emperor of Japan expressing sympathy for the recent calamity suffered by that nation.

BANKERS CONSIDER ADVANCE TO BANK

Report that Home Bank Depositors Would Get Forty Cents on Dollar Is Pure Guesswork.

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 1.—(Canadian Press.)— Notwithstanding reports that the Federal government is prepared to order an independent investigation into the affairs of the Home Bank as soon as the curator's report is made public, officials of the finance department, when approached this morning, declined to indicate the steps, if any, which it is proposed to take.

Departmental heads point out that the Home Bank case came under the provisions of the old Bank Act, and that the Federal government could take no action unless convinced that the last report filed by officials of the bank contained false information.

As the curator is an official of the Canadian Bankers' Association, the view is expressed in Government circles that the report should be made public by the Bankers' Association and not by the Government.

Asked whether the curator's report was already in the department's possession, an opinion which is held in many quarters, officials declined to say. They declared that even if the government action were meditated nothing would be announced until after the report of the curator had been given to the press.

Pure Guesswork.

Interviewed in Montreal this morning in regard to the Home Bank of Canada, Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor, general manager of the Bank of Montreal, and president of the Canadian Bankers' Association, issued the following statement:

"The bankers of Canada at large have not definitely agreed to undertake to advance to the curator funds required to pay Home Bank depositors twenty-five cents on the dollar, secured by an assignment of assets of Home Bank. On the other hand, they have favorably considered the matter, and may probably make an advance if and when legal formalities have been satisfied."

"Pure guesswork," is the answer of A. B. Barker, curator of the Home Bank, regarding the report published on Saturday that depositors would get only forty cents on the dollar.

LOCAL FIREMEN CALLED TO SAME HOUSE TWICE

Yesterday, at 4.35 p.m., the Fire Department was called out to a very peculiar fire at 15 High street, North Monaghan. The fire started in the cellar and spread up through a partition. The brigade had the blaze extinguished by 5 o'clock.

At 9.25 they were called out to the same house. When they reached the scene the whole back end of the building was on fire. On account of the house being out of the city limits there was no hydrant near and chemicals had to be used. When the chemicals ran out the firemen carried water. Out of about 400 local residents about 6 turned in and helped the firemen carry water. While the building was saved from being totally destroyed the loss is estimated at from $1,000 to $1,500.

PROCLAIM A MONARCHY IN BAVARIA SHORTLY; MOVEMENT UNDER WAY

Reports From Well Informed Sources Indicate Plot to Restore the Wittelsbach Family to Pre-War Status.

HAILED AS KING

MUNICH, Oct 1—(United Press) A monarchy will be proclaimed in Bavaria very soon, well-informed persons told the correspondent of the United Press.

These persons close to the Bavarian internal situation believed a move to restore the Wittelsbach family to its pre-war status already is under way. They pointed to the enormous demonstration given the former Crown Prince Rupprecht and his wife, when they arrived here late yesterday, as proof of the popularity of the former crown family.

The same source said Rupprecht has the complete support of the Bavarias dictator von Kahr and the various right wing military organizations.

WARNED DELEGATES NOT TO BUY HOOCH

It is Bad Dope, Said Atlantic City Chamber of Commerce.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Oct. 1.—(Canadian Press.)—As delegates attending the re-union of the 78th Division were leaving their convention at steel pier Saturday afternoon, young women employed by Atlantic City Chamber of Commerce handed each visitor the following printed card: "Warning—do not buy hooch in Atlanttic city. It is bad dope. "If you go into a cabaret ask for cover charge before you sit down.

"If hosts or other lady sits down with you, expect to pay cover charge for her also.

"(Signed) Atlantic City Chamber of Commerce."

Officers of the Chamber of Commerce declined to comment further than that the warning was self-explanatory.

JUST A GHASTLY GLASS OF WATER

Is the Awful Experience of Lord Birkenhead in America.

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 1. — (Canadian Press.) — Lord Birkenhead declared in a remarkable interview granted here that prohibition in America was pathetic and that Ku Klux Klan is most ludicrous."

"It is awful travelling about the country for weeks at a time and seeing nothing but a ghastly glass of water," he declared in connection with his comment on prohibition.

Touching on K.K.K., Lord Birkenhead compared the organization to Italy's Fascisti. "I can't understand it," he said. "It is like the Fascisti movement, but without the grievances which made that movement possible. To me it is ludicrous. They have no reason for existence."

THE IRISH FREE STATE SEATED WITH DOMINIONS

LONDON, Oct. 1.— (United Press.)—The Imperial conference of Premiers of the British Dominions opened at 11.20 a.m. to-day to discuss important problems, including the British attitude toward the German reparations problem. The Irish Free State was represented for the first time with President Cosgrave heading the delegation from the newest self-governing unit of the Empire.

BE CAUTIOUS OF SUBSTITUTES

There are several medicines on the Canadian market to relieve Kidney and Rheumatic Ailments, but there is one preparation that seldom fails to give quick relief and for that reason Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills are in a class by themselves.

This statement is vouched for by well known residents of this city. For instance Mr. Arthur Pinch, well known in the city, states that he was unable to work and suffered severe pain, from backache, but after using three boxes of Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills, he was able to go back to work and is as well as ever.

Mr. Thos. Oldham, another well known Simcoe street resident, has no hesitation in saying that for Kidney and Rheumatic Ailments, there is no equal of Dr. Banta's Pills.

Never neglect Kidney Ailments as they are liable to lead to other complications, but always keep on hand a box of Banta's Pills. If they fail to do what we claim for them, return your box to your dealer and your money will be refunded.

Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills are sold at Lynch's Drug Store, 168 Hunter street. Mail orders attended to promptly. m.w.-84

PREDICTS A LABOR GOVERNMENT.

LONDON, Oct. 1.— (Canadian Press Cable)—Patrick Hastings, K. C., and Labor M.P., speaking at Wallsend on Saturday said Liberal party would never return to power. There would, he said be a labor government elected in 1926 with Ramsay MacDonald as premier.

EARLY PAYMENT OF 25c. ON DOLLAR

Chartered Banks Will Advance This Amount to Home Bank Depositors.

TORONTO, October 1. Canadian Press. — Arrangements have practically been completed whereby the Canadian chartered banks will advance an amount to permit of an early payment of 25 per cent on the dollar to the depositors in the Home bank on account of their claims.

The report of A. B. Barker, curator of the Home Bank will be ready within a few days and will be given to the public.

Meanwhile any estimate of value of the assets of the bank or of the probable amount of the dividend which they will yield must be pure conjecture.

Realization of the Home Bank assets will probably require considerable time so that it is admitted in authoritaitve circles that arrangements by other banks to advance an amount permitting payment of an early dividend is highly probable.

Mr. Barker declined last night to tell what dividend of 25 per cent. would amount to but taking the last annual balance sheet as a basis the total would be between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000.

According to the last annual financial statement there were deposits of over $227,000,000.

This amount may have been considerably reduced by the time of suspension, when it was estimated that the total deposits had dropped to about $17,000,000.

If this latter estimate is correct the amount of initial payment to the Home Bank depositors will be between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000.

UNEARTH ORNATE HAIRPINS

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., Oct. 1. (Associated Press).—Hairpins of bone, studded with tiny crystals, are among more than 2,500 prehistoric objects so far unearthed on the site of the former Ambassador hotel here, according to George G. Heye, founder and director of the Museum of the American Indian (Heye Foundation) of New York City, under whom the work is being carried on. Mr. Heye declares the ornate hairpins "show that the prehistoric woman had much the same traits as her modern sister."

"From what we have discovered thus far," said Heye, "it is safe to assume that the tribes who left these remains were the most skilful workers in stone and shells within the boundaries of what is now the United States. Many of the relics are unlike any others ever discovered on the American continent."

According to Heye, the mound from which this wealth of prehistoric material was taken, once was the rendezvous of numerous tribes. The Indian name for the place was Sacyton, which means "the meeting of the trails."

"In time," Heye added, "we hope to establish definitely certain facts regarding all the aborigines, which will answer many heretofore puzzling questions."

CAVALRY TO CONCENTRATE

EL PASO, Tex., Oct. 1 (Associated Press)—The First Cavalry Division the only regular cavalry division organized and functioning in the United States, is to be concentrated at Marfa, Texas, Sept. 23 for maneuvers under command of Major General Robert L. Howze. The division is regularly stationed at Fort Bliss, Marfa, and Fort Clark, Texas.

Maneuvers will start the day after the division is concentrated at Marfa and will extend to October 3, inclusive. They will be followed by a division review, at which General Pershing is expected to be present.

Many prominent military and civil officers have been asked to attend. The visitors are expected to include the secretaries of war and navy, General Pershing, General Holbrook, Chief of Cavalry; General Hanson E. Ely, commandant of the War College; General H. A. Smith, commandant of the Leavenworth schools; General Edward L. King, commandant of the cavalry school at Fort Riley, Kansas; all commanding officers of cavalry regiments in the army, and other men of prominence.

SEPARATISTS RIOT.

DUESSELDORF, Oct. 1.—(Canadian Press.)—It is variously estimated that from ten to fifteen persons were killed and that between two hundred and three hundred, many of them women and children, were injured during the disorders at the separatist demonstration to-day.

BLOW TO REPUBLIC.

MUNICH, Oct. 1. — (Canadian Press.)—It was officially announced yesterday that the German Government's laws for the protection of the republic are no longer in force in Bavaria.

Lloyd George Without Peer

LONDON, October 1 (Canadian Press Cable). — In the course of an article in the Pall Mall Gazette, J. M. Hogge, Labour member of Parliament for East Edinburgh, declares that despite all attempts to shoulder Lloyd-George into the cold, the fact remains that he is still the most interesting figure in public life.

"Asquith, whose leadership Lloyd-George acknowledges," writes Mr. Hogge, "is unfortunately an old man, and public opinion is concerned with his successor. Viscount Grey is ruled out for the same reason that excluded Lord Curzon when Bonar Law resigned. Sir John Simon lacks the qualities of leadership. Ramsay MacDonald is untried ,and he leads a party that is definitely associated with Socialism.

"There is no public man in sight who can contest with Lloyd-George in the ability to lead. He, therefore, either comes back or the Labour Party goes forward."

AMPLE TONNAGE FOR GRAIN CROP

Minister of Commerce Replies to Winnipeg Demand.

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 1.—(Canadian Press)—That sufficient tonnage will be available to take care of the major portion of the western grain crop is the opinion expressed by Hon. T. A. Low, Minister of Trade and Commerce in a wire replying to a demand for action by Manitoba organizations, who feared a blockade would result at the head of the Lakes, following the refusal of some United States vessel owners to participate in the grain trade this year under the new Freights Act.

Additional boats of United States owners will soon enter the trade, and, according to Mr. Low, authentic informatoin available shows that Canadian tonnage and United States boats that have signified their intention in coming in will be sufficient to take care of all but 25,000,000 to 40,000,000 bushels.

Mr. Low points out that the Federal Government is doing everything within its power to cope with the situation.

DEAD CANNOT ESCAPE AMERICAN INCOME TAX

WASHINGTON, September 29 (United Press). — Not even a dead man can escape his income tax.

A notice sent to all Federal tax collectors by the Bureau of Internal Revenue requires the filing of a return of a dead man's income for the portion of th calendar year in which he was alive.

The Government collects the normal income tax before it imposes the estate tax. Thus ,no deduction of the estate tax is permitted from the dead man's return, the Government by this move increasing the normal tax collected from the dead man's last income, increasing his estate by the amount of the estate tax, and by the same manoeuvre, the estate tax itself.

As the bureau's notice figures it out "the occasion of an estate tax being death and it being imposed only after death, such tax would not be available to the taxpayer as a deduction during his life and is accordingly not available to his personal representative when making a return of the income received by the decedent prior to date of death."

NEW RECORD IN BUILDING

Present Year Will Set High Mark in Permits Issued

OSHAWA, Oct. 1.— August building return, just released show that this town did not quite hold up its usual record. According to returns it stands eleventh in the whole of the Dominion with building permits amounting to $180,170. This is an increase from last August, when the returns were $109,080, but it fell below July this year when the total was $328,655.

Building permits for the first eight months, 1923, totalled $1,412,665, as compared with $1,155,130 for the entire twelve months of 1922, and $329,405 for the year 1921 and $849,496 for 1920.

The total for 1923 will constitute a new high record.

BALDWIN BELIEVED TO HAVE FOREIGN POLICY SECRET TO ANNOUNCE

Speculation in London of Premier's Expected Communication to Imperial Conference.

FRENCH ENTENTE?

LONDON ,October 1 (Special Cable to the Canadian Press by George Hambleton, Staff Correspondent). —The Imperial Conference opens to-day in chaos, speculation, and conjecture, with Great Britain on the verge of an acute financial controversy.

What secrets of foreign policy will Premier Baldwin have for the Dominion Premiers when they meet at his official residence in Downing Street at eleven o'clock?

In flaring headlines, as in the more discreet "I understand" from "our diplomatic correspondent," in the columns of pithy articles as in ponderous editorials, the question of Baldwin's secret is echoed again and again.

For the story of the conversations between the British and the French Premiers a few days ago and the scope of the new entente with France, if brought about, remain yet to be told.

Prepares Speech.

Premier Baldwin retired to Chequers for the week-end to prepare his speech, and the Dominion Premiers are likely to be the first to hear his secret.

It was announced last night that the Premier would withhold his statement respecting the conference with Premier Poincare of France until Premier Bruce of Australia arrives later in the week.

Bruce is the only Dominion Premier who will not be present when Premier Baldwin calls to-day's meeting to order.

The first session of the conference will be rather in the nature of a gathering together of the Premiers than a formal business session. The conference will hold a regular organisation meeting on Wednesday, when methods of publicity will be discussed.

Although attempts have been made from time to time to have the Imperial Conferences thrown open to the press, they have always been held in the seclusion of Downing Street, with more or less informative communiques issued subsequently.

To-day's meeting, which will be confined to the Premiers, with the probable addition of the British, foreign, and colonial secretaries, will likewise be private.

The Economic Conference begins its labours on Tuesday, under the presidency of Sir Philip Lloyd-Graeme, president of the Board of Trade, and will meet again on Thursday, while the Imperial Conference will hold its third session on Friday.

Desire Publicity.

At both conferences, it is understood, the Canadian delegates intend to press for the most adequate publicity for the proceedings. Should all the meetings be private, as it is probable, it is felt that every effort must be made to secure a proper presentation to the public of all pointt of view.

The tangled skein of reparations, the menace of the situation in Germany with their inevitable reactions on trade, and the Australian Premier's campaign for a wider tariff preference in the markets of Great Britain, have for the time being driven consideration of Empire defence and constitutional relations into the background.

Australia has a great irrigation scheme in Murray Valley which, it is claimed, will ultimately find room for three-quarters of a million people. "Give us a preference on fruit grown in Murray Valley," Premier Bruce is reported in effect to have said, "and we will absorb some of your surplus population." The war between the British Free-traders and the Tariff Reformers in consequence has already opened.

H. H. Asquith, the Independent Liberal leader, has begun a strenuous campaign of meetings in support of Free-trade, and the Conservative Free-trade group cite Bonar Law's pledge not to change the fiscal policy of the country during the life of the present Parliament.

The Tariff Reformers retort that Bonar Law's promises are not binding on Premier Baldwin. They have formed a committee of members of Parliament to press for Imperial preference.

Support Australia.

In the Imperial Conference it is expected that the Australian Premier will have the support of Premiers Massey of New Zealand and Smuts of South Africa for his preference plan.

Premier King of Canada, while welcoming any additional preference Great Britain cares to give Dominion products, will, it is expected, decline to take any step which might be interpreted as attempting to force the hand of the British Government, particularly so in view of the present controversy.

Premier King holds that the question of British tariff policy is entirely one for the Parliament at Westminster to deal with.

The Dominion representatives while in London will find no lack of advice. The newspapers are filled with their doings and with counsel for their guidance. On Saturday J. L. Garvin declared in his paper, The Observer, that "the day has long gone by for the sentimental inanimities of post-prandial perorations uttered by corpulent patriots in gold festoons," and follows with three long columns of exhortation.

Guests of Government.

The delegations and staffs are all the guests of the British Government, and are staying at palatial hotels. The Canadians have their headquarters at the Ritz. At the Savoy Premier Smuts of South Africa has an organisation like an army headquarters. Besides suites for himself and staff, he has four offices consisting of his advisers' reception department, secretaries' rooms, typist and general section, and quarters for Government officials. In the lobby of the hotel a Boy Scout, covered with stars and orders of merit, is always on patrol awaiting instructions.

Premier King's first official act on his arrival in London was to make a formal call, accompanied by the Hon. P. C. Larkin, Canadian High Commissioner, at Buckingham Palace, and at the residence of Premier Baldwin. He attended service yesterday morning at Westminster Abbey.

All the London papers print interviews with Mr. King, citing his appeal for British capital in extenso, not omitting his jocular remark that before coming to the conference he had made his will.

Sir Lomer Gouin and Hon. George P. Graham are still detained in Geneva attending meetings of the League of Nations, but are expected in London early this week.

AFRICA OFFERS TRADE CHANCES.

WASHINGTON, September 29 (Associated Press). — The Union of South Africa as a customer for American-made goods is increasing in importance and is improving in character of trade, according to Trade Commissioner Stevenson of the Department of Commerce, who recently returned to this city after three years of service in Johannesburg.

While in the pre-war days the American share of South Africa's imports was insignificant, and during the war it was abnormally large, it has now settled down to a substantial amount and represents business secured after keen competition.

Since the office of the American Trade Commissioner at Johannesburg was opened, more than 100 American goods agencies have been made operative.

In order to establish the desirability of South Africa as a market in the minds of American shippers and manufacturers, Mr. Stevenson is now making a tour of trade centres, describing its advantages.

SEVERE QUAKE REGISTERED IN MANY SECTIONS

EPICENTER UNKNOWN

OTTAWA, Sept. 30.—(Canadian Press.)— "A very severe earthquake was registered at the Dominion Observatory on Saturday night. The first preliminary tremors arrived at 8:26:54, Eastern Standard Time, the distance to the epicentre was 3,040 kilometers, or 1,890 miles. The time as the origin was 8:20:54.

Observatory officials handed out the above statement to-day. They stated that the registration was as great as the registration at the time of the Tokio quake.

Later at London

LONDON, Sept. 30.— The West Bromwich seismograph at 2:15 o'clock this morning, registered a severe earthquake. The record was difficult to read, but it is thought the disturbance probably was about 1,500 miles distance, either in the east or the west.

Washington's Report.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30. — A severe earthquake disturbance was registered on the seismograph of Georgetown University last night beginning at 8:37 p.m., and ending at 9:53 p.m. The maximum tremors occurred between 8:37 p.m. and 8:44 p.m.

Father Tondorff, in charge of the observatory, estimated the locality of the shocks, 2,300 miles from Washington.

Colorado's Tremors.

DENVER, Colo., Sept. 30.— An earthquake of severe intensity was recorded on the seismograph at Regis College here, at 6.35 o'clock last night, according to a report made today by Father Forestall of the College Faculty. The record indicated a shock nearly as great as that of the recent earthquake in Japan. Father Forestall said.

Father Forestall said the quake probably occurred a great distance from the United States .

Felt at Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 30.—An earthquake described by Rev. Father L. Odenbach, S.J., as "pretty severe" was recorded on the seismograph of the John Carroll College here last night. Father Odenbach said the first shock came at 8.31 o'clock and the maximum came at 8.45.

Father Odenbach estimated the disturbance to be 5,000 to 6,000 miles from here, probably in a southerly direction.

GREY BULL, Wyo., October 1 (Canadian Press). —Property damage approaching $100,000 was caused by the flood which swept down the Big Horn River on Saturday ot noon, and reached its maximum in this city yesterday afternoon.

Water ran from one to four feet deep through an area covering about three-fourths of the residential district of the town, and six city blocks still remain inundated in spite of the recession of the water, which began late yesterday afternoon.

OFFICIAL COUNT OF GRAIN BOATS

Fewer in September Than Last Year, But Season is Later.

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., Sept. 30. —The following official figures were given out with regard to the transportation of wheat down the lakes during the month of September, 1922, from September 1 to 28 inclusive, and the same month of the present year:

1922—86 Canadian vessels with 16,547,178 bushels; 42 United States' vessels, with 10,419,626, bushels. Total 128 vessels, 26,966,802 bushels.

1923—99 Canadian vessels with 12,929,460 bushels; 15 United States' vessels, with 3,527,269 bushels; 3 Norwegian vessels with 238,234 bushels. Total—117 vessels, 16,694,963 bushels.

The figures for 1923 being lower by about ten million bushels is accounted for by the season of shipping being about two weeks behind that of last year.

HONOR JUST DEBTS.

OTTAWA, Sept. 30.—(Canadian Press.)—"Through it all, the Dominion has kept faith with capital and Canada has honored, and will continue to honor, every dollar of her obligations."

This is the final sentence in the statement issued simultaneously here and in London, England, by the Dominion Government, in regard to the claim of Grand Trunk preference and common shareholders for compassionate allowance, to an amount unofficially placed at $25,000,000.

The statement contains no indication that any compassionate allowance will be paid, but, on the contrary it is stated that "every dollar of her, (Canada's), obligation in respect to transportation is being met by her limited population who may well be excused if they find themselves unable longer to go outside the bond, so far as railway charges are concerned."

The twenty-five millions mentioned as suggested in the request for compassionate allowance is described by the Government statement as roughly equivalent to a "ratio of thirty, twenty and ten for the first and second preference, third preference and common shareholders respectively."

MOTOR BOAT FISHING.

Some objections are naturally being heard against the movement to have trawling from gasoline launches prohibited.

It is pointed out that such a regulation would be a hardship on a man who wanted to run down to Rice Lake, for example, in his motor boat and have a day's fishing.

There is no doubt that it would, and if such men formed the only class who employed their power craft for fishing purposes there would be no need of legislation.

The petitions that are being circulated were occasioned by the individual—his type is becoming much too common—who splutters about in a motor boat, day in and day out, always fishing and making steady inroads upon the available supply.

Such fishermen are to be found everywhere in the district, and there is no disputing the fact that they land an unduly large share of fish during the season.

If it were possible to check the activities of these by-the-week power boat anglers in some other way than prohibiting the practice altogether the majority of people would be satisfied.

But with the non-appearance of any other suitable plan, the protection of the fast dwindling lunge supply requires the legislation for which the Ontario Government is being petitioned.

MISPLACED APPLAUSE.

Despatches from Chatham says that when two men whose motor cars had collided, mounted the sidewalk and headed into a party of little girls on the way to school, killing one of them, were found not guilty of manslaughter the crowd in the court-room gave vent to their feelings in loud applause.

It is difficult, viewing the matter from this distance, to see why there should be such a demonstration.

In the first place, of course, it is distinctly out of order in a court of justice.

Leaving that on one side, however, and granting the fact that the two men were rightly acquitted of the serious offense with which they were charged, there was a striking disregard of the feeling of the relatives of the little victim whose life had been crushed out.

Whether the prisoners were to blame or not does not alter the situation.

The case grew out of the killing of a child, and it might have been thought that if there had been any common decency, any consideration for others, or the least sign of a proper sense of the fitness of things in the people who filled the court-room, the verdict would have been received seriously and with decorum, in the full realization of the fact that through no fault of her own a seven-year-old girl had been fatally injured.

At least there was no cause for a noisy celebration.

CROMWELLIAN METHODS.

More than two and a half centuries ago, a gentleman of England "clad in plain grey clothes and grey worsted stockings," sat in his place in Westminster and listened with growing scorn to the passionate pleadings of Sir Harry Vane, says the Montreal Star. Thirty musketeers, tried men and true who had fought with him at Dunbar and Worcester stood outside the door of the Chamber. Gradually the anger of this plain gentleman in hodden grey rose to white heat and he strode across the Chamber as members rose to their feet in angry protest.

"We have had enough of this," said Mr. Cromwell. "I will put an end to your prating. You should give place to better men. You are no Parliament."

The thirty musketeers entered at a sign from their General and the members filed out to the coarse jeers and taunts of both leader and bodyguard. The door of the House was locked at last and the musketeers were set to guard the doors.

Then spoke out the President of the Council. "We have heard what you have done this morning and in some hours all England will hear it," said John Bradshaw. "But you mistake, sir, if you think the Parliament dissolved. No power on earth can dissolve the Parliament but itself. Be sure of that."

Down in Oklahoma, stalwarts of the National Guard are guarding the main door of the Legislature at the State Capital and the elected representatives of the people are being restrained from holding a specially convened sesion by guards and soldiers. It is very like Cromwell. It is more recently paralleled by the Italian Fascisti. We seem to be living in times when such methods are again necessary.

BANK ROBBERIES.

It is the element of surprise which enables robbers to succeed in holding up the employes of a bank, says the Toronto Star. A teller may have a revolver in his cage, but of what use is it when it is six feet away from him and the muzzle of the robber's revolver is within six inches of his face?

After one of these burglaries has occurred hasty critics are often heard finding fault with those in the bank for not having done this or that. As to this we would but say that one of the earliest discoveries of the human race was that it was easy to take.

The banker assumes that the burglar will shoot to kill, the burglar assumes that the banker will not. They may both be right in these assumptions or they may not, but the effect is the same as if they were right.

The situation is one in which the bank clerk cannot possibly draw first. He does not know that a robber is present until he is looking into the teeth of a gun. If a clerk were to pull a gun on anyone outside the rail who seemed to be feeling for firearms, all the bank's customers would be getting shot as they reached for their handkerchiefs.

The banks require counters that nobody can climb over from the outside. And they require Government inspection so that nobody can climb out from the inside and get away with the assets.

...day a Peterborough baseball team played ...me in Niagara Falls, and much to their ...were subject to a tirade of personalities and ...buse that almost took their breath away.

...e reason for the outburst they quickly learned was that the Nagara Falls players had complained of similar treatment in Peterborough, and their home supporters determined to have revenge on Saturday.

The fact that they went a long way past the standard of "rooting" here has nothing to do with the case.

It does not alter the essential point that because some Peterborough people were misguided enough to hurl unkind and doubtless rough remarks at the visiting players, this city has been branded in Niagara Falls at least as a poor sporting town, a place where teams from outside are abused.

The indictment is not wholly true, of course, but the incident illustrates how necessary it is to refrain from personalities during contests with visiting clubs.

It is not often that Niagara Falls and Peterborough meet in athletic contests of any kind, and most local people would have preferred that in this initial clash the visitors could have carried away a more favourable impression of us as a sporting community.

In this case Peterborough has to suffer from the unfairness of a few, and the lesson should not be forgotten, for it is much easier to secure a bad reputation than it is to get rid of one.

MR. OLIVER'S APPOINTMENT.

The appointment of Hon. Frank Oliver as a member of the Railway Commission may have been made by the King Government largely from political considerations, but there will be little criticism from any standpoint, says the London Free Press. Mr. Oliver is a man who has lived all his life in the West, and while he may not be an expert on railway matters, he knows the needs and the requirements of the West from a transportation viewpoint.

Apart from this, Mr. Oliver has devoted a large part of his life to the public service and is today infinitely poorer than if he had seized the business opportunities the West offered him and looked only to the making of money. Canada dos not pension its ex-Ministers or public servants and the only way they can be provided for, or their services recognized, is by the appointment to some position for which their experience and training has qualified them.

It might be immensely better if there was a system of pensions for men who had devoted years of life to public work. Sir Wilfrid Laurier years ago had a bill actually framed with this object, but he found that it was likely to prove unpopular and withdrew the measure.

Whether public opinion today would justify such a move is questionable, although there is a growing recognition that it is unjust and unwise to ask statesmen to assume all the heavy responsibilities of office, and then at the whim of the public, to be thrown aside and left without provision. It is a system which does not make for securing the best men for public life.

THE PRICE OF COAL.

Regarding anthracite, one beautiful feature of the industry is the opportunity for innumerable explanations by interested parties of excessive coal prices, each of which is probably accurate as far as it goes. This is recalled by the opinion of Mr. Lewis that in seeking an investigation of freight rates on anthracite Governor Pinchot has touched "with unerring precision the method by which the consumer may be given substantial relief from present excessive prices."

If freight rates are the only answer to the present price of coal, Mr. Lewis must discount the coal commission's finding that anthracite operators are receiving much larger profits at present than they customarily did before the war. The average net has increased from 36 cents a ton to $1.07, or three times the pre-war margin.

New England, for its part, entertains the idea that Pennsylvania's state tax on mining has something to do with the case. Receipts from this tax, amounting to 1½ per cent. of the value of mined coal, increase with the cost of mining. New England feels no credit is due a state for settling a strike if the settlement increases that state's coal tax receipts. Pennsylvania is placed in the peculiar position of appearing to be not unwilling to have coal strikes and added coal costs if th increase means a greater tax levy.

There are other explanations. The coal commission, for example, has always insisted that the major uneconomic condition in the industry is too many mines and miners. Thus the public, the commission and the conflicting elements in the industry each have a diagnosis of reasons for high prices. Doubtless each is right; there appears to be no end of things the matter with the business of mining.

All that remains now is for operators to support Mr. Lewis' idea that freight rates are largely to blame. This is not likely to happen since the mines are controlled by railroads. It is unfortunate that operators are enjoined from laying responsibility on railroads. Thus a perfect circle would be formed around which the buck might be passed with ease and precision; a circle of miners, operators, railroads and a state government, each responsible in part for high coal prices and each with about half of a serviceable alibi.—Detroit News.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Sept 29—Wheat, corn oats all underwent a material setback in price to-day owing largely to profit-taking sales on the part of holders, and because of month-end settlement of contracts. The wheat market closed weak, one to 2 1-4c net lower, December $1.05 1-4 to $1.05 3-8 and May $1.09 1-2 to $1.09 5-8. Corn finished 3-4 and 7-8 to 2 3-4c down; oats 3-8 to 1 3-8c off, and provisions varying from 5c decline to an advance of two cents.

Dearth of sufficient buying to absorb the offerings in the wheat market was evident throughout the day. An easier market at Liverpool tended to check demand here and bears pointed out that United States visible stocks are nearly doubl, those of a year ago. Chicago alone having on hand more than 19,000,000 bushels where as export clearances have been smaller than last year. Besides it was said, domestic flour stocks are large, and sales from mills far from brisk. With the wants of September shorts largely filled yesterday, the market failed to develop rallying power, and closed at about the day's bottom level.

Increased hedging pressure at Winnipeg apparently more than counterbalanced the fact that domestic primary receipts, of wheat to-day and for the last week totalled less than was the case this week a year ago. Reports were current that a good deal of Canadian wheat was already being brought into this country, North Dakota in particular, and was competing with home-grown wheat, despite the existing import duty, thirty cents a bushel.

Notwithstanding excessive wet weather west, corn and oats followed the downward slide of wheat values.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Oct. 1.—(Canadian Press)—Trading on the local cash grain market on Saturday was active and the tone was firm. The condition of the flour market was unchanged, but the feeling was steady. A very firm feeling prevailed in the market for mill feed under a fair demand. The cheese markt was quiet.

MONTREAL, Oct. 1.—(Canadian Press)—Sterling exchange rates were quoted here today: Sterling dmand 4.64¼; Strling cables 4.64½.

MANY PRESENT AT W. M. S. GATHERING

Successful Presbyterial Women's Event Held in Grace Church, Millbrook.

MILLBROOK, Oct. 1.—A very well attended and successful meeting of the Presbyterial Women's Missionary Society, including all auxiliaries and junior organizations within a radius of twenty miles, was held in Grace Presbyterian Church on Thursday, beginning at 2.30 p.m. Several of the Presbyterial officers were present, and an unexpectedly large number of delegates from Port Hope, Cobourg, Colborne, Lakefield, Peterborough (St. Paul's, St. Andrew's and Knox Churches), Garden Hill and Springville also attended. Bethany and Janetville, though entitled to send delegates, were not represented.

Mrs. Ewart of Cobourg, the Presbyterial President, occupied the chair in a most capable manner. After the opening hymn, Rev. G. S. Gervan, pastor of the Convention Church, led in prayer, following which the President requested that the hymn, "Breathe On Me, Breath of God," should be sung by all present softly and with heads bowed, making the words a prayer, which fittingly voiced the desire for divine power and guidance. A representative from Knox Church, Peterborough, led in special prayer for the work in Japan, from Port Hope for missions in the Canadian West, and from Millbrook for the work on the foreign field.

By special request of Dr. Campbell Morgan, Miss Mary Lathbury's beautiful hymn, "Break Thou The Bread of Life," was sung during the devotional period, and Mrs. Croftus of St. Andrew's Auxiliary, Peterborough, read the Scripture lesson, "The Parable of the Sower." Miss Dixon of St. Paul's Auxiliary, Peterborough, led in prayer for guidance during the session then in progress, and also in the larger fields covered by the sectional and general board officers.

A duet by Mrs. G. S. Gervan and Mrs. H. W. Johnston was much enjoyed, as was also a solo by Mrs. Johnston later in the meeting. The interesting fact that Port Hope Auxiliary was the first to be organized in the Presbyterial was brought out while discussion was in progress, and the report from the district Treasurer, Mrs. McDougall of Colborne, was most encouraging. The new Secretary, Mrs. Thomas Wickett of Port Hope, who was appointed at the annual meeting held in St. Paul's Church, Peterborough, last June, gave her initial report, and Mrs. John of Peterborough, the Bale Secretary, gave statistics for her department.

Home Helper's Year.

This is known as "Home Helper's Year" in auxiliary work, those so designated being not members who pay the regular fee and attend the monthly meetings, but who help with sewing, study, etc., in their homes and make their donations through mite-boxes. The objective this year is 100,000 home helpers enrolled in the church, and a most helpful discusston and one which w.; heartily entered into took up a considerable part of the time, several practical suggestions being made in connection with this phase of missionary responsibility. Miss Harvey of Colborne, Literature Secretary, gave a comprehensive report of the study books obtainable, and also of the leaflets being prepared for free distribution which will be ready after November 1st upon application from the local Secretaries.

Reference was made to the splendid work done by the Mission Bands of the Presbyterial in their annual competition for the handsome banner awarded to the one having highest credits for Bible study, attendance, fees paid, etc., and which was last held by the Warkworth band. A discussion on "ways of working that work" in bands, auxiliaries and circles followed, during which the C.G. I.T. text-book and activities among the 'teen age girls were recommended strongly. This work was urged in affiliation with the missionary organizations of the local churches, and the importance of Bible study in public schools also received special emphasis.

At the conclusion of the gathering tea was served in the basement of the church and a pleasant social hour spent in making new friends, gaining personal information on various phases of the work, and a hearty vote of thanks passed to the hostesses for the occasion before the visitors left for home.

He Doubts Home Bank Loans to Politicians.

MONTREAL, Oct. 1. — (Canadian Press.)—"I cannot say anything at all about the matter," said Mr. C. A. Barnard, K.C., of Montreal, one of the directors of the defunct Home Bank, when informed on Saturday afternoon of the reported finding of the curator in the case.

"I simply await further information. It is probable that, following the finding and the official announcement by the curator, a meeting of the board will be called to discuss ways and means of dealing with the situation."

Regarding the intimation that certain loans had been made by the Home Bank to politicians and certain Montreal interests, Mr. Barnard said:

"To my knowledge no such loans were made. I believe that further investigtaion will disprove any such rumors of conjectures. I do not think, for one moment that loans of such ntaure were made."

"Wonder what an idle Telephone thinks about?"

"I HEARD the Chief say he would pay $5,000 a year to a traveller who could land an order from the Blank Company—that it would put this concern of ours on the map.

"If the Chief only realized it, the easiest thing I do is to make sales to people whom salesmen can't seem to land. He and I could land the Blank Company in five minutes.

THISTLES WIN FROM WOOLLENS

Fast Soccer Game at King Edward Park — Scots Scored Twice in First Half.

A good crowd of spectators witnessed the Thistles defeat Woollens three goals to one in a clean and fast soccer game Saturday afternoon at King Edward Park. The Scots gained two goals first half, then Shaw tallied but Richmond added the third before full time.

The Game.

The Thistle won the toss and compelled the Woollens to face the sun. Gaskill and Shaw made straight for McKay who cleared to mid-field. Dawson worked his way up the field, passed out to Burgess who was stopped by Warman. He slipped ball along to Mitchell and travelling along the wing, Rae tricked him nicely to relieve the pressure. Play run from end to end until a raid on Woollens goal resulted in a Woollens player being injured as ball went through but referee awarded a throw-up outside penalty area.

Burgess Opened the Scoring.

Dawson lifted ball into goal where Burgess tapped it through after twenty minutes play which was followed up by Richmond a few minutes later. Extra good brand of soccer was given by all the players at this period, in fact, there was no difference in the teams. A foul against Dawson looked dangerous for a while as Chambers shot hard for goal. Rae clearing to the left wing. Williams and Burgess played passing game until in Woolens territory where Richmond lifted over the bar at close range.

Forward's Poor Finishing.

Time and again Woollen's forwards would make splendid progress until they were in front of goal but at the opportune moment they lacked the necessary finish to score, also got two unsuccessful corners just before half-time. Thistles 2, Woollens 0.

Half-Time.

The opening of the second half demonstrated that dilatory methods of the Scots forwards around Chambers goal would not result in any score. Cridland punted up field to Shaw who made tracks for McKay but Anderson kicked the ball accidentally against Gaskill's face in a tackle but Joe soon recovered and worked as hard as ever to get a goal.

Woollens Dominate Play.

The Scots slackened up in their play, which resulted in the Woollens having all the game and made Rae and Anderson busy for a long period. McKay made a brilliant save from a low ground shot by Bramhall. No sooner had he cleared than Shaw beat him with a high shot inside the cross-bar and upright. Encouraged by their success they made the Scots his effort by striking the goalkeeper's knees with a hard drive. Then Melvin put over the bar. From a long drive across the field, Mitchell landed a rising ball across the goal-mouth but Bramhall sent past when well paced.

Hutton and Richmond Shots.

Rae punted up the field to Dawson, who was very conspicuous by his breaking-up and forceful play that gave the forwards opportunities aplenty. He slipped the ball out to Hutton, and without any hesitation, "Pete" hit the corner of the upright from a 15-yard range, going back to Richmond, who likewise hit the cross-bar. Dawson trapped the return, but his parting shot went over the cross-bar.

Richmond's Beautiful Goal.

The Scots were rewarded a few minutes later through a splendid individual effort by Richmond. Melvin and Hutton made it interesting on right wing until Melvin passed out to the centre forward. He tricked three men in succession, to finally beat Griffin with an unsavable shot. Two unsuccessful raids by Woollens forwards were frustrated by Anderson and Rae, until Shaw and Gaskill both had a try at goal, but McKay responded to the call. Play was in mid-field as the final arrived.

Thistles 3, Woollens 1.

Goal-scorers—Richmond (2), Burgess, Thistle. Shaw, Woollens.

Thistle—McKay, goal; Anderson and Rae, backs; Jackson, Dawson and Hardie, half-backs; Melvin, Hutton, Richmond, Williams and Burgess, forwards.

Woollens—Griffin, goal; Chambers and Cridland, backs; Warman, Read and Roberts, half-backs; Mitchell, Shaw, Gaskill, Bramhall and Lee, forwards.

Referee—J. Russell.

FIND CHEMISTRY HELPS IN WASHING CLOTHES

DETROIT, Mich., September 29 (Associated Press).—Chemistry and physics of the modern laundry will be discussed by recognised experts at the annual convention of the National Laundry Owners' Association here on 1st to 5th October, says W. E. Fitch, general manager.

"Our scientific phases of laundry work," Mr. Fitch continues, "are planned to interest every housewife and every man who sends a shirt to the laundry. Several years ago the laundrymen established a fellowship with the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research at Pittsburgh, where Dr. A. F. Shupp has been engaged in laboratory experiments in connection with every problem involved in the washing of clothes.

"The results of these investigations into textile strength, dyes, and the removal of dirt and stains absorbed into the fibre of fabrics, are regularly bulletined to the association members, and this service gradually is placing laundering upon a standardised scientific basis."

The association numbers 2,000 members and represents 75 per cent. of the total capital invested in the laundries in the United States.

FLOURISHING VILLAGE BUILT UP AROUND DELORA SMELTER

Comfortable Residences For Staff and Homes For Employees—Ore Brought From Northern Ontario.

A MODEL PLANT.

DELORO, Oct. 1.—Deloro can be rightly named a model town. This little village, situated on the Moira river, is about four miles east of Marmora and joined to it by an excellent gravel road.

A few years ago most of the employees of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Co. lived in Marmora and went to Deloro in the morning and came back at night. However, the company decided to house all its employees at Deloro. The contract was let for six double houses. These were of cement blocks and are beautiful as well as substantial. Later on, about two dozen small frame houses were put up. Although they are very plain and inexpensive, they are all kept attractive looking by the workmen. A hospital was erected at the same time. It is up-to-date in every detail. Cement walks were built on both sides of the street and thus, in a very few years, the village more than doubled its size.

The officials of the company have fine houses, with all conveniences of the city. There is the manager's residence, a house kept open for high officials and directors, the superintendent's and secretary's houses. At the end of the street is a small store that does a very large business. The firm is called the Deloro Trading Co., Ltd. and many of the employees of the company have stock in it. There is a large brick apartment house that houses several families. For the single men on the staff of the company there is a large staff boarding house. There the men have every comfort and convenience that is found in any club house. Some of the other buildings that make up the village are the Public and Separate schools and the town hall.

Movies and Tennis.

Motion pictures are put on every Thursday night in the town hall. The men pay a small sum monthly for this, but they get real value for their money in good, clean films. Services are held on alternate Sundays in the hall also. There are two fine tennis courts for those who enjoy this game, and both are in use most of the time during the summer months. Then there is a baseball diamond for Deloro always enters the Trent Valley League with a strong team.

As for the plant, it is the life of the town. A few words of explanation will be sufficient to give a general idea of the work carried on there. In fact it requires years of study to thoroughly understand it. The silver ore is brought from the mines of Northern Ontario. It contains silver, arsenic and other elements. In the silver plant the silver is refined from the ore and the arsenic obtained in the operation is refined in the arsenic refinery, a part of the silver plant. It is said to be the only plant in the world manufacturing arsenic in large quantities. After the process has been finished there are by-products, which all provide work for many men. In the oxide plant cobalt oxide is refined. In the metal plant numerous high-priced metals are produced, among them being stellite, which is the hardest of all metals. During the war this plant produced great quantities of stellite, which was used in the process of making large shells. After the war this market fell off and now the company has installed machinery for making stellite cutlery.

Eight Hour Shifts.

The men work eight hour shifts as in all large plants. They receive their pay the fifteenth of each month. At Christmas time each married man is given a turkey. There is therefore a bond of friendship between the company and its men that is necessary for the prosperity of any firm.

FIGHT ON LOCUSTS

MANILA, Oct. 1. — (Associated Press).—Experience in military tactics gained on the field of battle is sometimes useful in civil administration, and the armies backed by baronets, aeroplanes and heavy artillery are not the only dangerous enemy to a country, Governor General Leonard Wood demonstrated to the members of the Manila Rotary Club recently.

The governor general referred to the campaign against the locusts in the terms of a military adventure, telling how staff and field officers reported daily the spread and movements of the hoppers, where the larvæ hatched, what regions were most infested with the hoppers in the pre-flying stage, and the direction taken by the large flyers.

Charts and maps were maintained in the governor general's office, the new lines being marked by colored pins, so at a glance the exact position of the pest's lines, and the headway being made by the governor general's pest control forces, could be determined at a minute's notice, much as a commanding general in a battle studies the lines and positions of his and the enemy's troops.

The governor general said the campaign carried with it much of the interest and excitement of a military undertaking.

BRITISHERS FIND WORK.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 1.—(Canadian Press)—British Harvesters in Canada are slowly being absorbed by the labor market, according to reports reaching local organizations, and it is expected that before snow flies all who can be used will have been placed in position. Many applications have been made for these men from western points, several have gone east to work provided for them and those for whom no work can be found in the Dominion will be on their way home by the time Winter is here.

was the Grand Trunk representative, Hon. W. H. Taft.

The Dominion government statement is made public in two pamphlets, one of which contains a brief summary of the justification of the course pursued by the Canadian authorities, the other covering the case in much more detail.

Unprofitable Acquisition.

"Running through most of the articles criticizing the action of the government," says the shorter pamphlet in part, "there is the assumption that the government have acquired from the Grand Trunk a profitable enterprise and that the profits are being diverted from the English shareholders to the treasury of the Canadian government. The government have not acquired from the Grand Trunk a profitable enterprise. They acquired a bankrupt concern, which they had helped in many ways, and which at last confessed it's inability to carry on it's work. Every day and every hour since the Grand Trunk property came into the possession of the government it has been a liability and not an asset, a burden upon and not a benefit to the treasury of Canada.

VOLCANIC ASH BRINGS DEATH TO REINDEER

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Oct. 1.—(Associated Press).—The government reindeer herd at Port Heiden, on Bristol Bay, has suffered recently because of volcanic ash from a peak to the westward which covered the feed range to a depth of about an inch and a half, according to advices received here. The ash, stirred by the hooves of the reindeer, caused acute throat and lung trouble, and wore away the hair and skin from the lips, causing suffering and often death. All the herders suffered, and Fred R. Tait, government teacher, had a narrow escape from death. An attempt to move the herd across the Alaskan Peninsula finally was abandoned.

The reindeer herd placed by the government in the Broad Pass region last year has prospered remarkably. Eskimo and Indian herders have recently been engaged in ear-marking the late crop of fawns and in erecting corrals preparatory to the fall roundup and count.

According to the herders, caribou will soon be entering the herd as the rutting season approaches. The caribou and deer cross freely and there are a number of cross breeds in the Broad Pass herd. When the deer were being driven from the Good News Bay district, along the table lands of the Alaska Range, thousands of caribou migrating in an opposite direction were met. There was no alternative but to strike into the mass and some of the deer were lost, although the reindeer dogs reclaimed many.

The government herd at Alitak, on the south end of Kodiak Island, is reported to be thriving. The original herd was driven from Port Heiden to Chignik Bay, placed aboard the United States Coast Guard cutter Unalaga and landed at Alitak in 1921. Range conditions there are said to be almost ideal.

NEGRO WOMEN URGE EXODUS TO THE NORTH

CHICAGO, Oct. 1—(Associated Press).—That negro women, striving for better conditions for themselves and their husbands, and better educational and other advantages for their children, are behind the migration of southern negroes from the plantations to the northern cities, is the conclusion of the Rev. Dr. W. A. C. Hughes, superintendent of the department of negro work of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Dr. Hughes, himself of negro blood, has made a wide study of the conditions and reasons causing the southern negroes to migrate to the cities and factories of the north.

"Behind the industrious, hard-working negro man in this present migration, is the negro wife and mother," says Dr. Hughes. "The constant dread that a son or a husband will say 'too much' is the thing that is wearing threadbare the nerves of the negro woman of the south. Added to this is the lack of opportunity for her child, and she is the driving power of the present movement from the south."

Illinois seems to be the favored locality, according to Dr. Hughes. "More than 100,000 negroes have left 11,000 farms in Georgia alone," he declared. "A late survey of negro congregations in rural communities of the Atlanta conference substantiates the estimate that 2,500 negroes have left Ilkes county alone. W. W. Long of Clemson college has found that 50,000 negroes had left 41 counties. The delta regions of Mississippi lost 12,000 workmen in the last six months of 1922."

Dr. Hughes has found many cases of team-work on the part of impoverished negroes who wanted to go north. By pooling their resources a number send one or two of their group north, and these in turn send most of their wages back to bring up the remainder.

JONGG MAKERS BUSY

SHANGHAI, Oct. 1 (Associated Press).—Ivory dealers and ivory carvers in China are profiting hugely just now by reason of the fact that something approximating a craze for one of China's most ancient games has been sweeping through both the United States and Europe. Export reports of ivory carving establishments, working night and day in Shanghai and environs, are bases for the belief that thousands in the United States and England are playing Mah Jongg.

The game is akin to the card game called "rummy," but it is played with dominoes called tiles and in China these are made of bamboo and bone or, for the very expensive sets, bamboo and ivory. The real origin of the game, which in its English translation may be called "Sparrows" seemingly is lost, but it is known that it was being played in China long before the time of Confucius

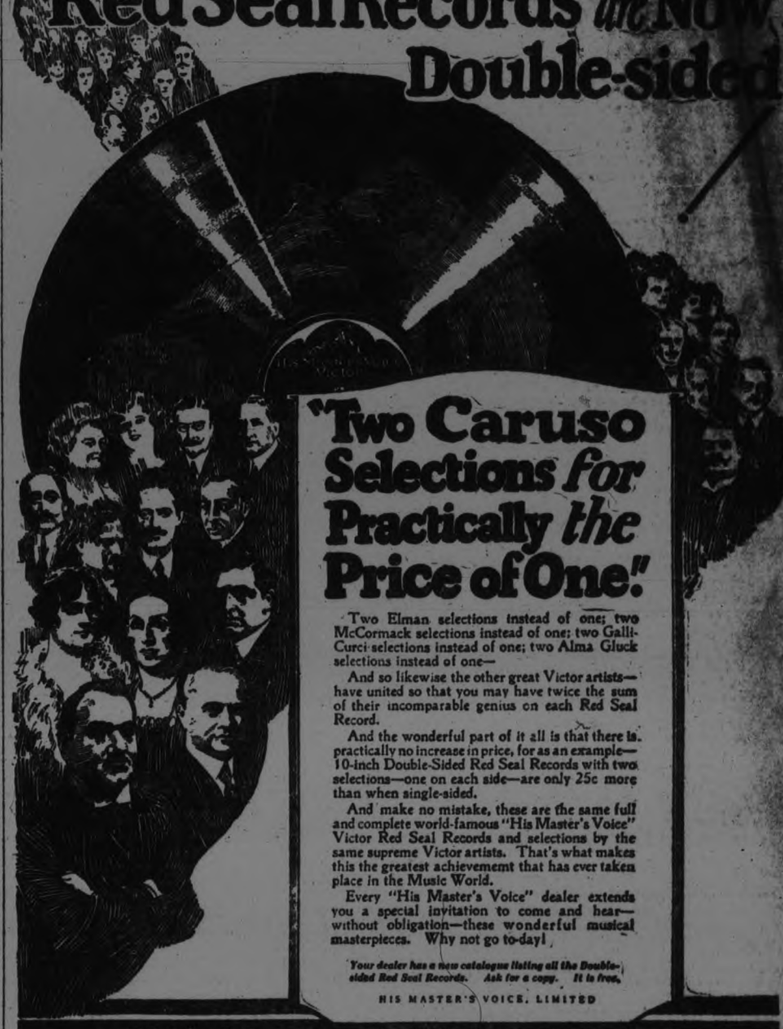
Music World's Greatest Event

Red Seal Records are Now Double-sided



"Two Caruso Selections for Practically the Price of One!"

Two Elman selections instead of one; two McCormack selections instead of one; two Galli-Curci selections instead of one; two Alma Gluck selections instead of one—

And so likewise the other great Victor artists—have united so that you may have twice the sum of their incomparable genius on each Red Seal Record.

And the wonderful part of it all is that there is practically no increase in price, for as an example—10-inch Double-Sided Red Seal Records with two selections—one on each side—are only 25c more than when single-sided.

And make no mistake, these are the same full and complete world-famous "His Master's Voice" Victor Red Seal Records and selections by the same supreme Victor artists. That's what makes this the greatest achievement that has ever taken place in the Music World.

Every "His Master's Voice" dealer extends you a special invitation to come and hear—without obligation—these wonderful musical masterpieces. Why not go to-day!

Your dealer has a new catalogue listing all the Double-sided Red Seal Records. Ask for a copy. It is free.

A HARD LIFE

You wouldn't see a drop of rain for five or six years at a stretch, if you lived in Antofagasta, Chile. In fact, there are many grown people there who have never seen a real rain storm such as we have in Canada.

Antofagasta is an up-to-date South American industrial city, with municipal market, motor busses, golf courses and the usual trappings of civilization.

Being an exceptionally dry country, the drinking water has to be piped long distances from the melting snow of mountain tops.

No such thing as trees growing wild in or near Antofagasta, says W. M. Stokes, resident of that city, now visiting United States. "They have to bring suitable soil into the country and blast out the rock in order to plant trees. Then they must be sprinkled regularly. The several parks we have there have been built in that way."

Stokes came north to dodge the winter of Chile. Seasons down there are the opposite of ours. Chile is having winter now. Its coldest months are June, July and August.

This place never looked better to us than after we had spent a few minutes pondering Antofagasta as pictured by Stokes. We kick when we have trouble making grass grow on the lawn. But just think how easy we have it, compared with the Antofagastans.

The Million Dollar Doll

By C. N. and A. M. Williamson

Authors of "The Lightning Conductor"

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY

Miles Sheridan, made wretched by his wife's infidelity is attempting to facilitate her obtaining a divorce by creating a scandal about himself. To this end, he offers $20,000 to

Juliet Divine, a beautiful show-girl known as the Million Dollar Doll, if she will take a yacht trip with him. Juliet is unable to go herself, but greedy for the money she persuades

Teresa Desmond (Terry) her lovely and unbelievably innocent half-sister, an exquisite counterpart of herself, to go in her stead, masquerading as the Million Dollar Doll. Ever since a kindness Miles did her in her childhood, Terry has made him her Dream Prince, and now she is grateful for the opportunity of serving him.

Paul di Salvano, a handsome Italian.

Eustace Nazlo, a wealthy Greek, who does not know of Terry's relationship to Juliet, is in love with the younger girl.

Mrs. Harkness, Miles' old servant, prepared to hate the "Million Dollar Doll" is won over by Terry's sweetness and charm. Miles has stipulated that she will have nothing to do with the girl, on the voyage, but already his resolve is wavering. He does not recognize the little girl whom he befriended so long ago, but he is surprised to find the notorious Juliet Divine so girlishly charming. In order to make the scandal known, he appears at Monte Carlo with the girl.

Miss Caroline Sheridan, Miles' aunt is surprised to meet her nephew in Monte Carlo.

After leaving Miss Sheridan, who is horrified when she learns the truth, Terry and Miles continue their walk. Terry gives a start as she sees approaching, Eustace Nazlo.

Miles snubs Nazlo, but the latter is convinced the girl is Teresa Desmond and not Juliet Divine.

The two young people return to the yacht to find Miss Caroline awaiting them.

CHAPTER LIV.

Interference

Miles' love for old Mrs. Parmalee had given him an almost exaggerated sense of what was due elderly women. It would have been impossible for him to be rude to his aunt, though he was more than annoyed at the liberty she had taken in coming on board after his refusal of an invitation.

She was seated on deck when he arrived with Terry, and squirming up from her low chair, moved forward with the air of one who leads an army to martyrdom.

"Dear Miles," she said, before surprise gave him breath to speak. "You must forgive me. I had to come. After a call from your faithful old nurse this afternoon at home, I felt it my duty to visit you at once.

"There was no time to be lost. I drove over from Mentone, brought Mrs. Harkness back, and insisted upon coming on board, though I knew too well I should not be welcome."

"I told you, Aunt Caroline," Sheridan reminded her, "that it was largely for your own sake I couldn't invite you."

"I am not in the habit of considering myself when it is a question of right," Miss Sheridan announced, "and I feel very strongly that it is, in this case. I feel, too, that I have been sent." Her voice dropped. A pair of pale eyes fixed an ardent, meaning gaze first upon her nephew, then upon the girl, who dared not try to escape.

"I have prayed," this lady went on; "prayed for guidance. Then it was borne in upon me that I must make the effort. Miles, I wish to speak with you Divine alone. But before leaving I must mention in the presence of that—I felt it my duty to write your wife. I advised her—implored her to join you."

Miles laughed, his least pleasant laugh. "Poor aunt Caroline!" he exclaimed. "You're a wonderful optimist. Harky, in the conversation with her on my affairs, kept me shut like a rat trap."

"She did tell me that I must not imagine you were engaged in—in an ordinary intrigue. That on the other hand, you were sacrificing yourself to protect Betty. But naturally your old nurse is entirely on your side, and seems to have a harsh distrust of your wife which suggests jealousy. I can't help thinking she may be unjust, as an old woman often is to a young one. I have experienced that trouble myself, with my elders.

"And even if Mrs. Harkness is partly right, the situation may still be saved, and a family scandal avoided. I have written most earnestly to Betty, appealing to her heart as well as her head. I felt as if my prayers had inspired me, and knowing that if anything could be done at this eleventh hour, only I could do it—"

"Believe me, the eleventh hour and even the twelfth hour have passed," Miles cut in at last, his voice not quite steady.

"My wife and I never loved each other as men and women usually do in books and seldom do in real life. If it hadn't been for Mrs. Parmalee's wish, it's not probable that we should have married, so I'm not judging Betty too harshly for loving someone else a good deal better than she ever loved me. It's unfortunate, that's all. And my learning of her change of mind.

"Betty wants to make a new life for herself, and I'm trying to arrange for her to do it, along the line of least resistance. I think I am doing it in the right way. Betty knew before started, all about what was going to happen, though, of course, her knowledge is a secret, otherwise she wouldn't be able to get her divorce, and the whole business would be in vain.

"She will tear up your letter; and perhaps she'll have a little laugh over your interfer—over your innocence. That will be the only result."

"I don't agree with you, Miles," Miss Sheridan protested, her thin breast, above the high, old-fashioned corsets, rising and falling fast. "No woman could read my letter unmoved. Betty will repent—whatever she may have to repent. She will travel to you as quickly as she can. She will beg your forgiveness, and then, I don't doubt, you will beg hers. There is nothing like mutual forgiveness between two people who have—erred, to bring them together again."

Miles' impatience was a rising tide. But he felt a fanatical sincerity in his aunt that won a kind of unwilling respect. "Well, I'll expect Betty when I see her," he said. "Meanwhile, I thank you for your interest, and I know you mean well. There's really nothing more to say on the subject, is there?

"May I take you back to the shore and see you to a taxi—unless you'll honor Miss Divine and me by dining with us at the Hotel de Paris at 8.15 or so? I hardly suppose you'd care to do that, but—"

"I have never dined at Monte Carlo, and shall never dine there," said Miss Sheridan. "You may take me on shore later and we can have a little further talk. But I must first have one with Miss Divine. To do that, was one of my great objects in coming on board in spite of your prohibition, Miles."

"It is for Miss Divine to decide whether she has time to give you, Aunt Caroline, before she dresses for dinner," Sheridan replied.

"Miss Divine, I cannot think you will rudely refuse a sincere well-wisher?" The elder woman turned to the girl.

"I don't refuse, of course," said Terry, "since Mr. Sheridan says I'm to decide. Where would you like to talk with me?"

"Let it be in the salon," suggested Miles. "Meanwhile I'll go and dress. I shall be ready in twenty minutes to take you back to the port, Aunt Caroline."

When Miles had gone, Terry showed Miss Sheridan the door of the salon and stood aside for her to pass in. The moment the girl had crossed the threshold, the inspired visitor turned.

If you find something and don't know what it is take it to a jeweler. It may be a lump of coal.

Sun-Room on Wheels

Mount Robson, 13,069 Feet, Is the Highest Peak in the Canadian Rockies

Canada has some of the most magnificent mountain scenery in the world, as anyone who has travelled through the northern Canadian Rockies knows. The scenery is so varied, so full of surprises, that if the traveller gives his constant attention to one side of the car he is almost certain to be missing something very wonderful on the other side.

For years transcontinental railways in America have tried out various types of observation cars through the mountains, the objective being to give their patrons the best possible views of the scenery. Some of them have been simply open platform cars, with no protection from the sun or inclement weather.

Car builders have been vieing with one another in the construction of these cars to provide the finest observation facilities along with the maximum of comfort. At last the Canadian National Railway shops at Leaside, Toronto, have turned out a car which has all the requisites.

This car might almost be described as a sun-room on wheels, in view of the large percentage of glass used in its construction. It is regulation size, with a closed-in section 44 feet long and a spacious open compartment at each end where passengers may enjoy the open air. The interior of the car has sixteen large windows on each side running from the seat arm rests to the ceiling. These windows are 4 ft. 5 in. high by 28 in. wide, having two panes of glass 24 in. by 24 in., one above the other. There are also two of these windows at each end of the car, one at each side of the door leading out on to the platform.

The seats are arranged transversely on each side of a centre aisle, as in an ordinary car, there being sixteen double seats on each side providing seating capacity for 64 passengers. The platforms provide capacity for 36 additional persons. The entire car side framing is of steel, with the interior finished in British Columbia cedar, stained mahogany. The interior is equipped with the most up-to-date ventilators, electric light and shades.

One of these new cars was exhibited at Toronto Exhibition last year for the first time, and 150,000 people inspected the car during the fair. It was very favorably commented upon. The car in many ways is an innovation, and marks another advance move by our National Lines.

These cars are to be used on the Mountain Division of the Canadian National Railways, and will enable travellers to view the majestic scenery on both sides of the car with the utmost ease and comfort.

PICTURES THAT HAVE BECOME OBSOLETE

(By JAMES W. DEAN)

NEW YORK, Oct. 1. — Pictures that would have set new standards a few years back are now commonplace. Running now on Broadway are "The White Sister," "Rosita," "If Winter Comes," "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," "The Green Goddess," "Merry Go Round," "Little Old New York," "The Covered Wagon," "Ruggles of Red Gap," "Why Worry" and "The Gold Diggers," first picture reported to have been made under the personal supervision of David Belasco.

I have seen all of these except the last named. Anyone of them in past years would have been entered in any list of "the twelve best" pictures. However, a new standard of criticism comes with the new standard of picture making. Perfection has not yet been achieved and perfection is the ultimate purpose of all human endeavor.x

* * *

The one thing yet to be attained by motion pictures is the evolution of themes contrived especially for the medium of motion pictures. The glaring fault of present day pictures is lack of continuity. Few books or stage plays lend themselves to a literal translation to the screen. "The Green Goddess" and "If Winter Comes" are noteworthy exceptions.

"The Hunchback of Notre Dame" is a marvellous picture, marvellous in setting and in the art of Lon Chaney. But its action is complex. The spectator must expend considerable effort to keep the narrative threaded together. That should have been the job of the director and the film editor.

"The White Sister" is pictorially beautiful. Lillian Gish with her lily-like fragility possesses an appeal that always engages the sympathy of an audience. Yet here again is a story that should have been so simplified that the audience would at no time be aware of the mechanics of picture making. In at least a score of places there are meaningless flashbacks in the action.

The raw material furnished by Henry King, the director of "The White Sister," has been crudely handled. The film seems to have been pasted together by an office boy.

* * *

The new element in picture making is beauty. Realism, the stark portrayal of truth in all its moods, was the goal of all literature and drama in the five years following the war. Now settings, characters and attitudes are treated in a manner to emphasize their elementary beauty.

Considering this, "The White Sister" takes precedence over all current films. However it is not a pioneer in the new movement. Robert Bruce pointed the way with his one-reel nature dramas 10 months ago. His "By Lantern Light" is flawless beauty. D. W. Griffith, always among the first to sense a new trend in public taste, emphasized beauty in "The White Rose."

* * *

A tragic note is maintained from the beginning to the end of "The White Sister." A little Italian girl is done out of her heritage of wealth and station by a villainous step-sister. An army captain to whom she is betrothed is ordered to Africa. She promises to wait for him forever.

His death is reported and so she becomes a nun, vowing life-long allegiance to church and her work of mercy. Her fiance returns, meets her in the hospital and sets forth his claim to her. Later he arranges her abduction but she is steadfast in her allegiance to the church.

Vesuvius spouts forth destruction. In this catastrophe the hero rides forth to warn inhabitants of surrounding towns. He perishes on his heroic mission.

No false happy note is struck at the end to please the morons. The cataclysmic tragedy predicated on the turn of events in all the early reels is carried to its natural and plausible conclusion.

* * *

Little need of eulogizing Lillian Gish. No other actress of the screen possesses the ethereal beauty which she brought to this picture.

A newcomer to films in "The White Sister" is Ronald Colman, who plays the hero. Colman is a young Englishman of marked Latin characteristics. I believe that he could start at scratch with Rudolph Valentino and beat him in any department of screen [illegible]

Your Health

By DR. CLIFFORD C. ROBINSON

PREVENTING DYSPEPSIA

The old-fashioned "doc," with his long, black coat and little black bag, who always requested a peek at your tongue, was quite right. He knew that dyspepsia is a regular thing with lots of people and that lots of "ills and ails" come from it.

You cannot suffer from dyspepsia without the tongue "giving you away."

The common symptoms are fairly well known, so don't forget to inspect the tongue if dyspepsia is the trouble you're looking for.

For additional evidence, there is the three degrees of taste, sometimes bitter, sometimes sweet, somel times acid. The appetite may be poor or again it may be quite the opposite—ravenous. Pain is often present. Palpitation of the heart is a symptom. Belching of gas is another. The patient frequently is troubled with headache, biliousness, nervousness or dizziness.

To keep from dyspepsia, choose your diet with care, having always in mind your own system. If of dyspeptic tendencies, make a careful study of the cause and possible remedy. In addition, general hygiene and sanitation count, in regard to clothing and bathing. Rubbing also must be thoroughly understood.

As a corrective and preventive diet eat grease, vegetables, toast, soft boiled eggs, prunes and baked apples. Milk is always good if in the right condition. Above all avoid constipation. Proper food and habits will save you from this wasting, lingering trouble, which is the parent of many diseases.

TEETHING IS A NORMAL PROCESS

Teething is a normal process in baby's development. With right feeding and careful attention to health, it should cause no more trouble than growing nails or fat cells. But parental ignorance has blamed it for all kinds of alarming ills.

Don't let your baby have to endure the distress and oftimes disaster of such ailments as fever, earache, diarrhea, swollen glands and convulsions, on the theory that teething's bound to cause them and that baby has to grin or cry and bear it. Call the physician and have him attend to the real trouble at once.

Some pains and fretfulness are frequently present at different teething periods. They seem to occur more in bottle-fed babies than the other kind. Do not seek relief by lancing of swollen gums. It is dangerous and may cause infection. If fever is present, the physician will find the cause in urine, throat, chest or ears, and remedy it. "Pacifiers" are useless and dangerous. Grandma's old ivory teething ring is much better for baby to chew.

The teeth should appear in pairs. The usual interval between pairs is from three to eight weeks. The first pair should appear at the eighth month; two or three more pairs by the twelfth month; at two and one-half years, there should be 16 pairs.

Don't be distressed if some irregularity occurs. It often does, but is best taken care of by proper feeding. Clean baby's teeth when you can count ten or twelve. Use an application with a solution of baking soda and water. One teaspoonful to eight ounces of water. Brush the teeth after the second year.

GOOD-WILL

Ford Motor Co., in listing its assets, values its "good-will" at about 21 million dollars. As you know, the "good-will" of a business is an intangible or invisible asset, representing its reputation and the value its name has acquired through advertising.

It would, of course, take at least a billion dollars to duplicate the one item of the cumulative advertising value of the Ford name. How much is your own "good-will" worth? You know when you try to borrow to the limit.

Ford is the greatest advertising genius that ever lived. His unique ingenuity gets him millions of dollars worth of free advertising a [illegible]

NUDE DANCING ENDS

BERLIN, Oct. 1—(United Press) — Prussia to-day gave the knockout blow to ladies' prize fights and nude dancing.

Acting upon orders from headquarters, police forbade all cabarets lokals and other amusement places from putting on such attractions.

The order is based on the special regulations passed by the Reichstag in February. It was issued in August effective to-day, the intervening time being granted to give lady boxers and nude dancers a chance to get new jobs or some clothes.

Battling Bertha will either have to go back to work or attempt to get a contract outside of Prussia. Other divisions of Germany, however, will probably follow suit — eliminating the female fighter entirely from German sporting life.

"What will you do now that you can't put on your nude dance?" the United Press asked one famous advocate of back to nature dancing.

"I simply put on a few clothes. Winter is coming on, anyhow and there isn't any coal to heat the 'lokal' where I work. After I get dancing a while perhaps the [illegible] will be warm enough to put [illegible] old-fashioned nude dance. And if my draping should happen to come off—purely by accident—due to poor fastenings or weakened shoulder-straps— who can charge me with violating the law. Accidents will happen, you know."

To Holders of Victory Bonds Due November 1st, 1923

The widespread response and the large volume of cash subscriptions are striking proofs of the interest taken in the new Loan by investors throughout the Dominion.

As a holder of maturing bonds you have the advantage of procuring the new bonds on even better terms than cash subscribers through getting full interest on your old bonds to November 1st, while the new bonds bear interest from October 15th. It is a sound business proposition to renew for a period of five or twenty years, at your option, an investment combining all features of fundamental importance in the choice of any security, and to purchase as many additional bonds as possible.

Do not overlook the following:

1. Their high cash value. The bonds can be sold instantly when desired.
2. Their excellent interest return.
3. They form the highest security on which to borrow, if necessary, and finally

4. They have the entire resources of Canada behind them.

As the privilege of conversion is subject to withdrawal, we urge you to forward your applications without delay. The ready response of cash subscribers further stresses the importance of your early decision.

We are at your service in all respects relating to the loan free of charge. We shall be glad to enter your application, exchange your bonds and do all that is required to procure new bonds for you. STAGE SET FOR OPENING DANCE OF THE SEASON

Proceeds For Purchasing New Equipment and Chemical Engine For Lakefield's Fire Department.

NEWS PARAGRAPHS.

Lakefield, October 1. — The Lakefield fire brigade are giving the opening dance of the season on Tuesday, October 2nd, and it is expected that there will be a good crowd. The proceeds are to be devoted to purchasing new hose for the chemical engine, and other necesary equipment.

The events of the past few months have given several convincing proofs of the value of the volunteer brigade to the village. Several houses were saved from destruction by the prompt response to the call of duty and in consequence the fire brigade feel the necessity of keeping their equipment up to date and in shape so that even greater efficiency will be possible.

In June the Deputy Fire Marshall R. J. Marsh, of Toronto, publicly stated that he had never seen a better or cleaner bit of fire fighting in his experience than that of the Lakefield brigade at the fire in the Sanitary Meat Market on June 10th. This was the voluntary testimony of a man whose position marks him as an expert.

Soft Ball League.

The Soft Ball League will open on Tuesday night in the Skating rink when a double header will be played. "Make it snappy!" is the motto of the league and it is expected that there will be some real ball during this season. All the aspirants to the shoes of Ty. Cob, Babe Ruth, etc., are signed up and during the month of October four games each week will be played. The teams which are entered in the league are: Business men, Firemen, Grove, G.W.V.A., Masons, and U.F.O.

It is probable that the games will be played on Tuesday and Friday evenings.

Young People's Rally.

The young people's rally under the auspices of the U.P. League of the Methodist church, will be held this evening (Monday), and it is expected that there will be a good turn out of not only the young people of the Methodist church, whether League members or not, but also an invitation has been extended to the young people of other denominations to attend as guests as this inaugural meeting of the new season.

Novelty at Fair.

A novelty at the fair this year was an exhibit of the work of the blind soldiers of Pearson Hall, Toronto, which was shown in a flag-draped booth in charge of the G.W.V.A. This work will be on exhibition in the Veterans' room in the Memorial Hall during next week, from 7.30 till 9 o'clock each evening. This will enable everyone to see the exhibit which is very interesting.

Results of Tag Day.

The results of the tag day held under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the G.W.V.A., for the Blind Soldiers' Fund, on Wednesday far surpassed the expectations of the ladies. A bevy of bright young girls worked faithfully all day and until after nine o'clock at night, doing their bit for the men who gave their eyes to Canada, and are patiently working, asking of us (not charity) but a chance to help themselves. Lakefield's response showed real sympathy in this most worthy cause.

The young ladies who tagged were Misses Helen Burgess, Hazel Crawford, Jean Ridpath, Margaret Bissonette, Margaret Darcy, R. Darcy and Yvonne Stuart.

Attractive Booth.

There was a large number of special exhibits at the fair this year than ever before. Besides the exhibit under the auspices of the G.W.V.A., Dickson's store had a very attractive booth and two makes of electric washers, which were working all afternoon. A tractor and a very much improved motor thresher drew a crowd (mostly of the male sex while both sexes thronged the midway which was larger and better than in any previous year.

New Fall Attire.

The golden autumn days are here in spite of the decidedly summer weather and the village and the country look gorgeous in their new fall attire of scarlet and green and gold. The colorings are unusually vivid this season but the falling leaves remind one that it soon will be the "melancholy days."

Short but Severe.

A sharp thunder storm about six a.m. on Friday morning roused most of the village as it was one of the sharpest electric storms of the season. However it was rather short-lived and was all over in about half an hour. Rain fell in torrents, but the lightning was very sharp. Lakefield has been much favored this season as seldom if ever have we been as immune from electric storms as this season.

Personal Mention.

Mrs. Gordon Northey is spending a few days at "Sea Breeze," Stoney Lake.

Mr. R. H. Jackson is at present in the Nicholls' Hospital, Peterboro, undergoing treatment. Mr. Jackson has been in poor health for some time as the result of a serious accident during the winter of 1922. It is hoped that he will soon be able to return home.

W. J. Sherwood of Peterboro was in the village on Friday.

William Harvey spent Wednesday at Stoney Lake.

While lightning only strikes once in the same place some people get thunderstruck every day.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Clive Roberts Barton

SQUEALY-MOO LAND

A very queer person was getting off a very queer steed.

"I want you to do me a favor, children," said the Fairy Queen to Nancy and Nick, the Twins. "Will you?"

"Is it another adventure?" asked Nick eagerly.

"Yes, although it won't take you far from home," nodded the gracious lady. "Did you ever hear of Mister Dodger of Squealy-Moo Land?" The Twins took their heads.

"I thought not," went on the Fairy Queen. "For he's a most secret person. That's how he gets his name — because he is always dodging, so people won't see him. Well, it's Mister Dodger I wish you to help this time. He has more than he can do, although he is a fairy and smart at that. He lives under a corn shock in Squealy-Moo Land and his duty is to look after the barnyard folk. There! I believe I hear him now. Go to the door, Nimble Toes, and see if we have a visitor."

Nimble Toes, the Fairy Queen's servant, opened the front door of the palace, and what they saw almost took their breath away. For a very queer person was getting off a very queer steed.

It was Mister Dodger. He wore a corn-husk suit and a corn-husk hat and smoked a corn-cob pipe with tobacco — as he told them later — made of out corn silk. He was as thin as his steed was fat, for he was riding no other than Piggy-Wig Pig of the "saucy snout and the curly tail and eyes like the end of a tupenny nail."

"How do you do, Mister Dodger," said the Fairy Queen. "Here are your new helpers, the Twins, I told you about, Nancy and Nick, this is Mister Dodger!"

"How d' do? How's tricks?" said Mister Dodger, tipping his corn-husk hat and puffing out a great cloud of corn-silk smoke.

"We don't know any," said Nancy, dropping her best courtesy.

"Ho, ho, ho!" roared Mister Dodger. "I don't mean that kind. That's just my way of saying, 'How are you?'"

"Oh, we're both well, thank you," answered Nick.

"Good!" remarked Mister Dodger. "And now if you're both ready, we'd better be going. I'm busier than a scare-crow with two guns these days. I advertised for help in the Hollow-Log Bugle and had no answer and finally had to telephone to Missez Queen here about my troubles."

"Goodby!" cries Nancy.

"Goodby!" said Nick.

"Goodby!" called Mister Dodger.

All three of them jumped on Piggy-Wig Pig and were off.

A METEOR

At some unknown time in the past, the largest meteor that ever struck the earth fell in Coconino county, Arizona. It buried itself, making a crater nearly a mile across and 600 feet deep, with a rim of earth splashed up 160 feet high all around the crater's edge.

This crater is Canyon Diablo.

Mining engineers once more are attempting to locate the huge meteor which lies buried somewhere under the flood of the canyon.

The Canyon Diablo meteor, according to scientists, weighs a million tons and is at least 300 feet in diameter. Some experts even multiply these figures by four.

If the meteor runs true to form, it is nine-tenths pure iron. But the lure that induces the mining engineers to attempt to unearth the Canyon Diablo meteor is that it probably contains huge diamonds.

Our old earth, rushing through space at a speed of 66,000 miles an hour, must have staggered when struck by the Canyon Diablo bullet. A legend of the Navajo Indians says there were three meteors, not one.

Meteors travel through space in swarms. Twenty million of them, large enough to be seen by the naked eye, shoot into our atmosphere every day—and usually are dissolved by friction with the air before they strike the earth.

The largest meteor ("shooting star") ever discovered weighs 36 tons and was brought from Greenland by Peary. So scientists are on tip-toes for a look at the giant beneath Canyon Diablo.

Real education does not begin until we study astronomy.

BLIND HERO OF WAR FOUND ROYAL FRIEND

King Albert of Belgium Takes Up Case of Beggar

BRUSSELS, Oct. 1.—The blind man wearing the ribbon of the Cross of the Yser and the order of Leopold, who for some time this summer stood on a busy corner asking passersby for alms, begs no more.

One day, a tall, light-haired man, with a pronounced stoop of the shoulders, and mild blue eyes that hid behind thick lenses, stopped to chat with the beggar.

"Where were you wounded, comrade" he asked.

"On the Yser, sir. Perhaps you were there, that terrible spot near the ferryman's house (la maison du passeur)."

"Indeed I was," said the stranger sadly, "for four long years driven from my home and country, I was on that front, and I know every meter of it. But I have had better luck than you. I found my house intact, although somewhat soiled, upon my return, and some of my fortune was saved from the wreck. Take this, go home and rest for a few weeks."

Pressing a thousand franc note into the hand of the veteran, the man walked away.

A few days later, Monsieur Forthomme, minister of national defense, received a letter calling attention to the ex-service man's distress. The communication led to prompt action.

It was signed:

"Albert, King of the Belgians."

THINGS THAT DESTROY BATTERIES

Using impure water for refilling.
Using the starter for too long a time.
Using the horn frequently and with long blasts.
Neglecting to refill the battery at correct intervals.
Leaving lights burning brightly with the engine cut off.
Leaving the car parked for a long period with the lights burning.
Not watching ammeter gauge to see that the battery is charging correctly.

FINEST DAIRY FARM WIPED OUT BY FIRE

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 1.—(Canadian Press.)—What perhaps was the worst fire in the history of the local Agricultural Institutions, and one which almost completely wiped out the finest dairy farm building in Eastern Canada, broke out on Silver Springs dairy farm at Deschenes, Que., late last night, causing damage conservatively estimated at eighty thousand dollars.

BRITISH TRACTOR TANK ENTIRE FIGHTING UNIT

LONDON, Oct. 1—British gun-manufacturers have produced a new war weapon, says the Daily News. It takes the form of a tractor tank and is capable of drawing artillery into action, in addition to being a self-contained fighting unit.

It is mounted with guns, has a turret and a special compartment in which it carries field artillery. Its range is twice that of the earlier type of tank used in the war.

The government has ordered 23 of the new machines, to cost $40,000 each.

NEW WHEAT DISCOVERED

SASKATOON, Sask. (United Press). —Seager Wheeler, "wheat wizard of Canada," has evolved a new variety of early ripening wheat, which may push the wheat belt further north.

The new wheat, which is an adaptation of an Australian wheat known as Minister, was originated by Prof. Pye of the Agricultural College of Victoria, Australia.

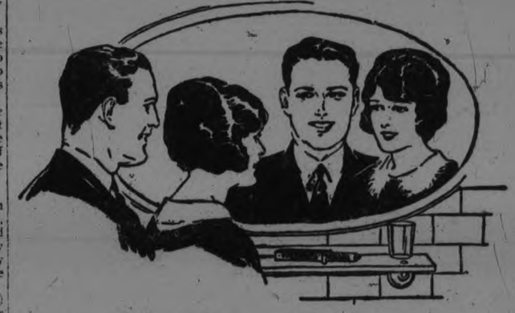
We Offer a Test Tube Free



In Ten Days

The results will amaze you, if you fight the film on teeth

Millions of people have found new beauty, new protection, new delights, through this test we offer you.

It is time you knew these benefits if you don't know them now. They are results you need and want. Let this test prove them to you.

Film and offense

Film on teeth is unclean. It mars beauty. At first that film is viscous. You can feel it now. With ordinary brushing, much of it clings and stays. Soon it discolors and forms dingy coats.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Dental science, after long research, has found two film combatants. One disintegrates the film, the other removes it without harmful scouring.

Many careful tests proved these methods effective. Then a new-type tooth paste was created to apply them daily. The name is Pepsodent. In seven years it has brought to homes the world over a new dental era.

Also fruit effects

Pepsodent also incorporates other principles, learned from the value of certain fruits in the diet. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva, also its starch digestant. Those are Nature's agents for combating acid and starch deposits. Pepsodent twice daily gives them manifold effect, just as eating fruit would do. The peoples who constantly eat fruit are markedly immune to tooth decay.

Watch the changes

Quick changes come when Pepsodent is used. They will surprise and delight you.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth become whiter as the film-coats disappear.

Then you will realize how much this new method means to you and yours. Cut out coupon now.

Protect the Enamel

Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

Cobourg and District

COBOURG, Oct 1—The Cobourg Boy Scouts have re-organized for the coming year with the following officers:

Scoutmaster—Rev. Canon Sawers.
Assistant Scoutmasters—Wilfrid Davenport and Eric Roberts.

Invitation is issued to all boys of twelve years and over to join this club.

Prizes Awarded

At a gathering held in St. Peter's Parish Hall, the prizes presented by the Canadian Cycle and Motor Company for Cycle Scouts were awarded as follows:

Tom McKend, pair of hockey boots and skates.
Mansell Coyle a pair of skates.
Clinton Bradley a Dunlop inner tube for bicycle.

A Presentation

The Cobourg Orange Lodge entertained in a happy way on Tuesday night for the boys' and girls' lodges, which are very progressive and successful organizations. Rev. J. N. Norton was welcomed to town, this being the first opportunity that he has had of attending. There was an interesting programe of songs, recitations and games. A happy event took place when Mr. James Kirk presented W. Bro. Arthur with an honorary membership certificate and Mr. Thomas Porter presented Mr. A. F. Hall with a past jewel. The serving of refreshments completed a pleasant evening.

Successful Convention

The I.O.D.E. Chapters of the Peterborough District held an interesting and successful convention in Port Hope recently, which was attended by about sixty delegates. The convention accepted the invitation extended by the Cobourg Chapter to hold the next district rally in this town. Tea was served by the Port Hope ladies to the delegates and this pleasant social gathering appropriately completed a delightful and profitable day.

Mrs. R. A. Mulholland, Regent of the Col. Arthur Williams Chapter, Port Hope, opened the morning session at 1.30 and the district secretary Mrs. McLaren of Peterborough read the minutes. Afterwards there were reports which showed that much good work was being undertaken and carried forward to a successful conclusion by the different Chapters. War memorials proved an interesting topic for discussion and many practical suggestions in raising money were brought before the meeting.

At the afternoon session the delegates were heartily welcomed to Port Hope by Mrs. E. E. Snider. An interesting feature of her brief appropriate address was the description of a beautiful memorial she had recently seen in the Cathedral of Arras, which had been erected by the daughters of the Empire at a cost of $150,000. Mrs. Birdsall made appropriate reply to Mrs. Snider's kind words, on behalf of the delegates.

Mrs. A. H. Malcolmson addressed the meeting on the work of the Provincial Chapter, asking for affiliation with it from the Primary Chapters, for whose benefit and encouragement the Provincial Chapter was organized. She urged the need of unity of purpose and concerted action on the part of the women of Canada in order to best help on the work of combating the reactionary wave of evil and crime that is sweeping over Canada at the present time and menacing the highest destiny of a national and community life. She urged the women present to regard the franchise as a sacred trust and to use it as such. The commendable community endeavors calculated to build up a better and saner social life. She urged upon the convention the need for cooperation of charity one with another, of encouragement to all conscientious workers, and the necessity of all working together loyally and indefatigably.

Miss W. Gordon of Kingston National Educational Secretary, was the next speaker. She also emphasized the need of loyalty to the Provincial and National Chapters. The former carries on a work with a minimum of expense, which could not be accomplished by either the local units or the head office.

The Educational Memorial work was ably treated by the speaker: who told of what is being accomplished by the scholarship that have been provided by the I.O.D.E. which are proving to be an open sesame to some in taking up advanced University work.

Young Wilhelm Is Proud of His New Little Red Car

By FERDINAND C. M. JAHN

DOORN (By mail to United Press).—The former Crown Prince's favorite outdoor sport these days is running about in his new little "trick" automobile.

The former heir to Germany's throne, though he has a chauffeur, always drives his tiny red machine himself, getting all speed possible out of its six horsepower motor. He acquired this car about three months ago, having previously driven a motor cycle. Now and then, during his brief vacations at Doorn, he brings his car along, ferrying it from his island exile, Wieringen, to the mainland, then driving it through to Doorn.

It is an interesting sight to see the "Crown Prince" driving his car through the streets of Doorn, while his liveried chauffeur sits in the rear seat.

A Tennis Expert

The ex-Crown Prince is also an expert at tennis. He spends most of his mornings while in Doorn at this sport. He visits among various tennis-loving friends, playing both in singles and doubles, and is always cheerful, whether victor of vanquished. He is always bare-headed, affecting the knickerbocker style of sport clothes. He presents a good social front, is well mannered and friendly to everybody, addressing the boys in the street in fluent Dutch.

Both the ex-Kaiser and the "Crown Prince" have their "guardian angel" appointed by the Dutch government.

While the task of Captain van Houten—the commander of a dozen Dutch gendarmes, who protect Doorn castle—is comparatively easy, as Wilhelm very seldom leaves the castle grounds, the job of L. C. Kolff, the burgermaster of Wieringen, is a more difficult one.

Responsible for Prince

Burgermaster Kolff is responsible to the Dutch government for the ex-Crown Prince's "good behavior." "young" Wilhelm, by the way, is now 41 years old in other words, to see that he does not escape from his place of interment.

Wieringen being a terribly dreary place and the Crown Prince being a lively man, the younger Wilhelm tries to get away from his island as often as possible.

Every invitation from his father or from members of the Dutch aristocracy, who pity the cloistered Wilhelms, is therefore heartily accepted by the Prince.

Every time he wants to leave Wieringen, the Prince has to put in a special application to the Dutch government, which always grants the request.

But wherever the Prince goes, the burgermaster of Wieringen must be his companion.

In the visits to Doorn an exception is made and, Burgermaster Kolff only takes his "prisoner" down and fetches him back at the expiration of the leave.

The Prince has to pledge his word of honor not to make any attempt to escape while his custodian is absent.

CHURCH RULES RELAXED FREE ROME'S CARDINALS

By CAMILLO CIA FARRA

ROME (By Mail to United Press).—The mere appearance of Cardinal Merry del Val in a city stationery store to purchase a number of illustrated postal cards to take with him to the secluded mountain hamlet where he is spending his vacation, disclosed the fact that times have changed even for the Catholic Church and that another rule, strictly observed for many centuries, has become obsolete with the unwritten approval of the highest church authorities.

The rule just abrogated strictly forbade Cardinals to go on foot within the city gates, or enter a public place, except a church. Under this rule every Cardinal was compelled to have a carriage drawn by two black horses, and never leave it except outside the city. With the advent of the motorcar it required a ruling from the congregation of ceremonials to allow the wealthier princes of the church to discard the old closed carriage for the modern limousine.

Outside the city gates and along the imperial roads the cardinals automatically regained their freedom for long walks. But for many years, or since the capture of the city by the Italians in 1870, even this right the cardinals used rarely.

But a remedy was soon found. In a city of villas, with immense private parks and driveways, the patrician families of Rome placed to the disposal of the cardinals their villas, and thus the cardinals could take their daily constitutional in absolute safety. During the war, when horses were scarce and costly and gasoline hard to get, cardinals began to go on foot to the meetings of their congregations and to the Vatican. The late Benedict XV. closed first one and then both eyes until so many precedents were established as to render the enforcement of the old rule almost impossible.

The new practice became the fixed rule with the advent of Pius XI., and today the American tourist can even enjoy the sight of a prince of the church walking along the busiest thoroughfares of the city accompanied only by his secretary or followed by his footman.

OLD TIME BOBBY PASSING IN LONDON

He's Educated and a Real Beau Brummel Now.

LONDON, Oct. 1.—Exit the old-time London bobby; enter the modern Beau Brummel policeman par excellence.

The old-fashioned "man in blue" is being supplanted by a very different sort of man.

The new policeman is of a higher standard of education, and a Scotland Yard official states he has to get through much stiffer examinations for his promotion than his colleagues of a previous decade.

"It is satisfactory to note," comments Commissioner Horwood, "that the introduction of more difficult examination papers and a higher standard of marking are having effect, and the class of men promoted is more competent and vigilant than formerly."

Not only is the modern policeman in London of better education, but his uniform and equipment is rapidly being modified.

The common "fuzzy-wuzzy trousers of thick cloth for winter has been replaced by a cloth "equal to that supplied to the inspectors," and a new pattern great-coat, smarter and better designed for a struggle with violent prisoners has been issued.

The new electric lamp now being issued is also a boon. The entire equipment of the force with this has meant that shortly the last of the old oil lamps will be relegated to obscurity. A lighter kind of cape, adjusted with a throat strap, is a better weather protector.

NATURE'S CONVULSIONS RAISE OCEAN BOTTOM

LONDON, Oct. 1 (Associated Press)—Discovery by a cable repair ship that the bed of the ocean in the vicinity of St. Helena had risen two miles during the last 20 years has led to a belief among scientists that the whole southern Atlantic ocean bed is undergoing a vast submarine convulsion.

Some authorities have even made the statement that such changes are going on continually, and that these disturbances may occur in any locality. They believe that this is the reason for the frequent sudden appearances of islands and shoals in the southern oceans. It is also claimed that when the ocean bed is raised in one place there is a corresponding drop in some other section of the world.

The discovery of this strange phenomena was made recently when it was reported by the Eastern Cable Company that their cable between St. Helena and Capetown was broken at a spot some 800 miles north of the Cape. The cable had been laid in 1899 and had been in constant use.

On its arrival at the designated spot the cable repair ship reported to London that, instead of the depth of the water being 2,700 fathoms, or just over three statute miles, as stated on the chart, it was only a little more than three-quarters of a mile deep.

MODERN SCIENCE HELPS ENGLAND CATCH CROOKS

LONDON, Oct. 1 (Associated Press)—Scotland Yard, England's famous organization for the detection of criminals, is equipping its patrol motor cars with wireless telephony apparatus with the idea of providing new aids in the capture of wrong-doers.

In many cases swift locomotion is the essence of success in this matter, and if rapidity of movement can be combined with the maintenance of communication with headquarters, the chances of the wrong-doer's escape may be considerably diminished. The experimental car can receive messages while creeping through the congested traffic of the City of London, or while dashing along the Great North Road. It can reply to the messages received, and thus keep Scotland Yard well informed of the progress of whatever business may be in hand.

It is hoped that when the system has advanced a little farther, the constabulary forces of the countries will participate in it. Then it may be possible to set up an effective hue and cry throughout the country if a dangerous criminal is at large, and keep all searching cars in constant touch with Scotland Yard and the headquarters of the police forces of the adjacent counties.

Idle rumors travel fast. So do idle roomers.

NEW GANG METHODS REPLACE THOSE OF EASTMAN'S DAYS

Gunman Type Rules—The Field Divided Up Among Numerous "Specialists"—Glamour Is All Gone—Fight Now Over Division of Spoils Rather Than Over Women or Jurisdiction.

Louis Cohen shot down Kid Dropper as he was leaving the Essex Market Court with police guards on all sides. Louis Cohen is a romanticist—he wanted to be a gangster and the Little Augie gangsters played on his ambition until he did the dirty work they were afraid to tackle. Then they left him cold. Louis Cohen, who was "gang-struck" as other youths are stage-struck, was incapable of seeing the obvious—the gang is no longer a corps to which even a remote valor attaches. It is an "industry." Three-quarters of a century have seen the New York gang's activities develop from the gusto of a shellelah shindig to the calculation and efficiency of an industrial tool for breaking strikes or wrecking factories.

Villon is a figure of romance. Verse, novel and play celebrate this first of French poets. Cut-purse, burglar, manslayer, as neat a stealer of carts of wine as any bootleg pirate today, and a raider of inns and shops in the Free Feeds, which made him as legendary as Eulenspiegel—Villon of that old Paris where hanged men swayed for years on gibbets, is a type of the gangster of our own era. He is romantic to us chiefly because he flourished five hundred years ago. It would take more centuries than that to lend a touch of glamour to such gangsters as Little Augie and Kid Dropper.

The gang persists, but the type has changed. The gang has been fought with billies, laws and persuasion, but it has followed its "economic growth." Racial and geographical and industrial conditions have made it something new.

Not so long ago the New York gangster was twin brother to London's hooligan or to the larrikins of Australia, whose doings caused Sydney to drop British traditions and arm its police with revolvers. The east side gangster of today is of another sort. He has left behind him a period in which there was some resemblance to the Paris Apache.

The time when gangmen here used knives as readily as an Italian bravo of the cinquecento is all but forgotten. The type today more often than not is scented. He wears silk. His face is pale and his form slight, unless he survives to the age of paunch. He runs unless the pack is with him. He shoots from ambush, and preferably at backs.

An Old Style Gangster

Compare 1903 and 1923. There was Monk Eastman, a gangster in the old manner. Bullet head, broken nose, viened jowls; what neck he had was scarred with battle marks and when he stepped on the scales to weigh himself he had to allow for the bullets he carried in his body.

And there was Kid Dropper. When the police rounded him up with fifteen of his men last month in a Broadway office building, where it was said he had gone to arrange for strong-arm work in a prospective strike, Kid Dropper said to his captors: "Don't give me the works; I can't stand it."

Eastman was the last of his generation. He was of the kind of Red Leary and of Danny Driscoll, who led the Whyo gang when Chatham Square was Chatham Square. Driscoll died on the gallows, and the Five Points gang took his field and held it until the days of the Yakey Yakes, with whom the Five Points fought on equal terms with all Cherry Hill as a background.

It was in the late '90s when Monk Eastman came to the fore, but he had behind him a tradition. It went back to the '70s, when the Dead Rabbits and the Plug Ugly gang held sway, and there were 30,000 vagrant youths in a city of a million. It went even further to the roughs of the Civil War riots, back to 1850, when the Chief of Police in his reports told of the gang proclivities and the thieving of crossing sweepers and baggage smashers who hung around the steamboat landings.

Monk's day was the day of rough house, when strength went to the leader who could bring up a reliable and adequate force of repeaters on election day.

"Say," said Monk, "I got some ice in this town. Why, I make half the big politicians."

No Man's Land of Gangs

His feuds and wars are a saga of the slums. For years on end he fought with Paul Kelly over a no man's land strip between their jurisdictions. Men died over this little fringe of a tribute zone.

Paul Kelly's bailiwick started at Five Points. Kelly said it ran east to the Bowery. Eastman said it ended at Mike Salter's hangout, the Pelham. Because of that there were battles.

One was fought in Rivington Street under the Allen Street elevated. There were fifty men blazing away, including the police. Not an iron pillar but had a gun behind it, and the residents of the street crowded to the backs of the houses.

Kelly and Eastman got together after that affray. They decided they could make better use of ammunition than letting it go at one another. So a fist duel was arranged to settle the dispute. The gangs filled a barn in the Bronx. A gesture would have brought out a hundred guns, but the champions in the ring fought it out without help.

Truce was made after another battle. This time Eastman's enemy was the Five Points gang. Two men were killed.

How many times Monk Eastman was arrested has been lost count of even at headquarters, save on the filed records, and perhaps Monk himself could not number his scars. In 1901 he all but died when he was shot through the body three times in Grand Street. The police arrested the shooter. Eastman refused to appear against him. The gangster doesn't thank the police for aid of any kind. When Big Dave Bernstein was shot in front of Piggy Donovan's saloon in 1902, Bernstein fought the patrolman who tried to take him to a hospital. "I'll settle this by myself," said he. The thought finds expression even now: no longer ago than last May Louis Tobyman—Tubby—a youth of 23, was found with a bullet hole in him and he said to the police: "You guys get away from me; you ought to know there ain't no chance of my telling you who did this."

The Lollie Meyers were enemies of Eastman, no less than the Kellys and the Five Points gang. The Eastmans and the Meyers gang fought one running battle, with one man killed and several wounded, which led to Eastman's being tried. There was no conviction.

But finally Eastman was sent up. He tried a little stick-up job at Forty-second Street and Sixth Avenue. The victim, a youth of wealth, had a guard of private detectives in the offing. Eastman ran, bumped into one of them, and tried so hard to get away that he got ten years for first degree assault. That was in 1903, when he was 30. He was paroled in 1909.

The Old Order Had Passed

When Eastman came out the old order had passed. The Monk gang had faded and the rivals of his heyday were otherwhere: Humpty Jackson and Whitey in jail; Red Harrington and Kid Twist and Jimmy Kelly dead; Eat 'Em Up Jack McManus had gone to his reward also, and Paul Kelly was a respectable real estate dealer up town.

In 1915 Monk was heard of again when the police stopped an automobile bringing burglary loot from up-State. Monk was in the car. Then when the war came William Delaney, in uniform, was recognized as Monk Eastman. He served with credit and his citizenship was restored. Two or three years ago he was killed by a revenue agent, who pleaded self-defense.

Mike of Poverty Gap, who was hanged at 19, preyed in the old manner. Saturday nights he and his pals took a wagon and went from store to store and saloon to saloon on the west side, taking what they wanted to stock their club. In their earlier years they were of the type that built up profitable routes, in tenements, selling stolen groceries at bargain rates and shooting craps for the proceeds.

Dopey Benny illustrated this. In 1914 he wasn't bailed out quick enough to suit him, and he made a confession which led to thirty-four indictments, eight of them for murder. Benny Fein had been head of a gang for four years. His specialty was serving the leaders of a few labor unions. Lawyers drew up contracts as explicit as any deed and Fein turned loose from fifteen to 100 gangsters, some of them women, according to the size of the job. Chiefly he wrecked manufacturing plants. His scale of prices was said to be $60 to $600 for a shot in the leg, $150 to $600 for wrecking a shop, $500 for cripling a man and $5,000 for murder. He made $10,000 a year, and if he went to jail, as happened once (the case was reversed), his pay ran on while he was on the inside.

His name was linked with the murder of Baff, a poultryman, ten years ago. It was after the Fein exposure that Police Commissioner Woods said before the Federal Industrial Relations Commission: "This investigation has shown a large employment of gunmen by strikers and a somewhat less employment of them by employers when involved in labor disputes."

The Rosenthal affair was a gangster case, too, reaching into all the underworld ramifications that are home to the gang man.

When the Gunmen Paid

Herman Rosenthal, gambler, was a former partner of Charles Becker, police Lieutenant and Tenderloin czar. Rosenthal and Becker fell out. Becker squeezed him. Rosenthal howled. Becker sent one of his collectors to Leftie Louie Rosenberg, whose wife was Lily, "the French doll of the east side." Rosenberg was afraid to do the job. Getting rid of Rosenthal was risky business—here was one job that would take more than money to bring about. Becker, Webber and Harry Vallon brought the necessary pressure.

"Croak him," said Becker, "on a corner, anywhere, even in front of a cop."

At the second trial of Becker, Webber nodded "yes" when asked, "You were in charge of the four gunmen who planned and carried out this murder?"

Dago Frank, Leftie Louie, Gyp the Blood—it was gang names like these that the case made known throughout America. That time the gunmen paid.

From 1900 to the Rosenthal case the gangs were at their most brazen. The Gophers and the San Juan Hill crowd on the west side; the Hell's Kitchen gang below Forty-second Street and west of Broadway—only two years ago a patrolman was killed in their territory; the Tanner Smith gang below them and the Hudson Dusters south of Fourteenth Street—they hung on fast in the old manner. There was the car-barn gang of the Gaynor period, with a hang-out at Ninety-fifth Street and Second Avenue. Bosco Lynch was the leader, and in his zone the patrolmen traveled in pairs.

The guerrilla type, grown out of the sorts of lads who fought for the fun of a fight, is found here and there even today, but often as not it is made up of the juniors. One hears of the Hookers and the Gophers (Fein's gant) and the Hudson Dusters, but these are just bands of youngsters in their teens assuming the finery of once great names.

The gang starts with the youngsters; with the second generation of immigrant families, when the native-born have learned to look down on the restrictions and customs of their foreign parents. Of students of the subject there is a school which looks for an anthropological criminal class having a physio-psychic predisposition to one form of criminality. There is the other school who see the problem as social.

There is similar divergence of opinion on how to handle the gangster. The traditional police leaning is toward the club. Men like Captain Aleck Williams have turned it to good account. There is the school which seeks to divert the energies, holding that the gregariousness and loyalty which make one lad a gangster will make another a Boy Scout. And there is still another school which holds that to remove the toadstool you must remove the dunghill it grows on.

The gangster problem, however viewed, is a special problem. Some former gangsters have gone into bootlegging; some specialize in narcotics, others in truck thefts. But the gangster per se nowadays sells his services as gunman. It pays better, which says much; even under the old order there was a gangster who, when a bullet finally pierced his coat of mail, left an estate of $100,000. According to the police, who have a special gangster squad of 22 detectives, 93 per cent of the rows of gangmen now are over the division of loot and tribute. Aforetime the gangs fought more readily over women or rights of jurisdiction.

Whatever the cause, they shoot readily enough. A partial list of obviously gang affairs during the last two years and a half shows a score of men killed or wounded in New York.

THE STUFF DREAMS

Underthings—like outer things—grow more beautiful with each new season, and they owe their beauty to the rare fabrics and dainty colors that are the real foundation of their styling. Gone are the high-waisted, heavily boned instruments of torture that we knew as "corsets". The long cloth corset covers with short waist and cotton drawstring, and all the longcloth underwear, and the blanket robe of all uses. Instead we have the corset model that is not only beautiful, but flexible and comfortable; the new camisole, flat, loose and long waisted and piles of fluffy, delicately tinted lingerie; and boudoir apparel of elaborate intricacy that is deceptively simple in its effect.

Silks, satins, crepes and voiles have replaced the cottons of other days—only linen—of the old materials—remaining. The Val., Irish, Calais, Margot and filet laces—delicately lovely—appear in the place of the heavy Clugy and torchon or the unwieldy embroideries. Slim lines and soft falling laces and ribbons have taken the place of "scratched" ruffles and gathered skirts—for the flat, straight dresses of to-day must not show bunches beneath them, anywhere.

The most radical change of the past few years has taken place in the corset, which is now a garment of delightful comfort as well as true beauty of both line and material. Not only grace of line but ease of adjustment is imperative in the new models, and the laceless model is gaining every day in favor. This would, at first thought, seem best adapted to the slender figure, and certain models are, of course. But fashion is kind to the heavier figure, and this welcome style is adapted to the woman who wears the larger sizes. The corset that seems to be the favorite at the present time is the one made of a combination of fabric and elastic, with the back lacing eliminated. While there is a slight tendency to the normal waist apparent in some of the models, lines in general favor the low waist, slim hips and flat back, for the straight silhouette is still the accepted one. Brocade—either silk or artificial silk—is the preferred material and trimmings are simple. Pink is the favored color.

In the matter of lingerie there are certain definite style notes and changes, though as a rule lines, fabrics and trimmings are much the same. In the material world of fashion satin is a leader, so we have the satins, crepe back satin radium and the various satin finishes as leaders. Crepe de chine holds its assured position, and Georgette and voile are seen. Glove silk is the preferred fabric of certain women, and there are new styles in this material. If one keeps strictly to the tailored type of costuming, glove silk underthings are indispensable.

Colors incline to the pinks—from the true flesh tint to pale rose shades—and orchid, peach and honey-dew are popular. There is abundant opportunity for originality in lingerie, and designers make the most of it, so that we are constantly meeting new forms of trimming or old trimmings applied in a new manner. Embroidery and appliqué—on silk or net—and lace trimmings are the most popular, the former best for the tailored type of garment. One new note—that is, new to the world of lingerie—has crept into the mode. Pleatings are now extensively used, many of the newest chemises, gowns and step-ins being pleated from neck to hem—or from waistline to hem.

One is always moved to mention the possibilities in lingerie for the clever needlewoman, whether she be inclined to cut and make and decorate her own underthings, or buy untrimmed garments of simple lines, but excellent quality of material, and then trim them, according to her fancy. Not only are lines extremely simple, but perfectly fitting patterns may be had, and the rest is easy. When one cuts and makes, as well as trims, she may have just the fabric and just the color she likes best. Usually fabric, color and model, like "The time, the place and the girl," are not found all together. In general, no matter what the trimming, lines are straight, and trimming effects are flat. In gowns the 1830 neckline is featured, or the neck is square, and they are ankle length or an inch or two above.

Negligees—whether the choice be practical or dressy—all have great beauty of fabric and grace of line.

FOR LITTLE FOLKS

Ribbons contribute their charm to the unbelievably small garments that go to make up a layette, and to other practical bits of comfort that wee folk find necessary. Adorable small slippers may be fashioned from inch and a half ribbon by whipping it to the tiny padded soles, shirring it sufficiently in front to allow for comfort. Straps may be snapped across the instep to hold them in place. Narrow baby ribbon, crocheted with the same instructions that one follows for other crochet, makes beautiful soft baby caps and another cunning little bonnet may be made of a length of ribbon eight inches wide, shaped to fit the baby's head and gathered to a circular piece in the back.

Tiny bows or dainty ribbon flowers, sewed on to safety pins, can be used for the back of the tiny baby dress or fasten the little housecoats. Larger bows, attached to large safety pins may be used to decorate fresh pillow covers daily, and yet larger bows, attached to blanket pins make possible the use of one bow for many blankets.

Carriage robes of eiderdown, bound in five inch satin or taffeta ribbon have the corners neatly mitered, and a matching carriage strap may be made of two lengths of ribbon covered rubber, and two pieces caught at either end with an attractive bow. From this, favorite playthings may be suspended on short lengths of ribbon.

STARTED CAREERS EARLY

CHICAGO (United Press).—Horace Greeley had read the Bible through at the age of 6. Rubenstein was playing creditably the most difficult compositions at 7. Maude Adams first appeared before the public as an actress at 6, while Mozart wrote minuets at 4 and John Milton knew Latin at the same early age. Goethe began writing dialogues at 6, Charles Dickens was doing fiction at 9 and Walter Scott, a student at the University of Edinburgh, launched out on his novelistic career at 12. Millias, at 11, entered the Royal Academy.

FORESTS LACK SUPERVISION

MISSOULA, Mont., Oct. 1 (Associated Press).—There are approximately 2,000,000 acres of forest land in Montana and Idaho without federal or state supervision, according to L. F. Kniepp, of Washington, assistant forester, who has just completed an inspection trip through the states.

Because of the vast expanse of public domain lands administration by private owners is impossible, he says. The land is classified as suitable for reforestation or grazing.

GETS ODDS OF 1,700 TO ONE

BOMBAY, India, Oct. 1 (Associated Press).—Mr. Khambatta, a Bombay merchant, having idle time on his hands, recently wandered out to the races with the idea that he might put down a bet if anything looked good to him.

He saw Kletitor, in the second race, and the records showed that not a single person had backed him, even for place. Mr. Khambatta bought a ticket to win, paying 10 rupees. The animal came in one and three-quarter lengths in front. Mr. Khambatta was given 17,109 rupees, over 1,700 to one, after the mathematicians had spent an hour working out a correct answer to the odds of the totalizer.

JEW DENOUNCES RUSSIA

VIENNA, Oct. 1 (Associated Press).—The treatment of orthodox Jews in Russia drew forth a strong denunciation from Dr. Nathan Birnbaum of Marienburg at the recent congress here of Ajtidas Jisroel.

"In Russia," the speaker said, "there has become a principle to suppress anything breathing a religious spirit. Even believing men are persecuted. The synagogues are being closed and converted into workingmen's clubs. We do not desire to apportion political blame to anyone, nor to examine into how far the Soviet government is responsible for all these things. But Russia will not succeed in suppressing the living faith in God's presence, not even if they lock up all the Christians, all the Mohammedans and all the Jews."

Nerve-Worn Women Gain Strength and Vigor by Using Dr CHASE'S NERVE FOOD

That Boy of Yours—

Bright, healthy lad—sure, he's going to have chances you never dreamed of having! You intend to give him a good start in life.

All right—but how? When the time comes, you may be pinched for money, or any one of a hundred things may have happened.

But you can deposit with us a small sum each year in the meantime. Then, at the end of a certain time we'll pay over to him—or to you on his account—any sum you may now decide he should have.

If you should die before that time we'll immediately pay the full amount to him (or to his guardian, if he is not of age). Thus, you'll be certain that—whether you live or die—your boy will get the start in life that you have planned to give him.

Fathers, there's a great idea back of the Imperial Endowment plan. Just send us your name and address—to-day while you are in good health—and we'll tell you all about it.

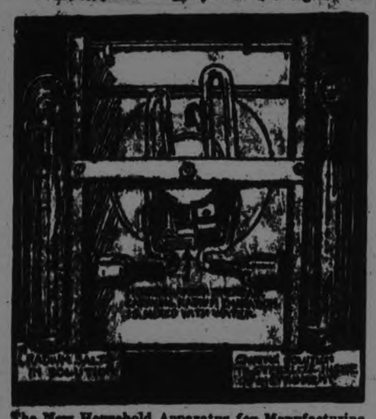
New and Interesting Facts from Science and Life

To Renew the Body by Drinking Radium

LONGER life, a new body glowing with the restored vigor of youth, new hair on bald heads and the third set of natural teeth are among the promises that the more optimistic radium experts are making for the use of radium emanation or radioactive waters in the treatment of disease and old age. And while recent glowing accounts of miraculous cures by radium therapy—as the new treatment is called—have not been accepted generally by the medical profession, there is a growing belief among physicians that radium emanation does have a definite place in medical treatment.

Is it possible, as one physician has suggested, that in radium may be found the "spark of life"—the mysterious electronic force that drives the life of the world?

Constantly releasing mysterious energies with which the scientific world was not familiar until recently, radium, when introduced into the human system, produces a "kick" which, experts say, bombards tired life cells into renewed activity.



The New Household Apparatus for Manufacturing Radioactive Water, Showing Arrangement of Glass Tubes for Charging Water with Radium Emanations.

"The fact is," says Dr. C. Everett Field, director of the Radium Institute of New York and one of the more conservative radium therapists, "that radium does not do the healing. But, for that matter, neither does any other form of healing. The healing exists within the organism. And radium, I am convinced, in some cases, is the most efficient medicine to give needed stimulus to the healing apparatus of diseased organisms."

Even now, Doctor Field believes, radioactive treatment may prolong life at least fifteen years.

For internal treatment two methods are used—either doses of radioactive water, or the administration of extremely minute quantities of radium itself. In the first case either waters from springs examined and found to contain traces of radium are used, or radium is used to make ordinary water radioactive. The difficulty with spring waters is that they lose their radioactive power when bottled and transported.

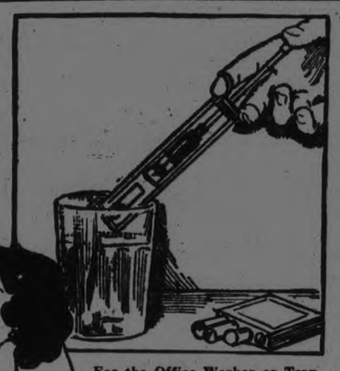
"Radium Springs" in the Home. This Apparatus Is Said to Make Ordinary Drinking Water Radioactive.

Because of this fact, a group of physicians interested in the use of radium as a curative stimulant have invented an ingenious device for imparting radioactive properties to ordinary water. This instrument is designed for use in the home, and, as described in Popular Science Monthly, consists of a case containing an arrangement of glass tubes and vessels in which emanations from radium salts in solution are imparted to air, which is then mixed with water.

A much simpler apparatus, available for office use, somewhat resembles a hypodermic syringe, containing special capsules of radium salts. Pushing a plunger forces air through the radium capsules and into a glass of water and is said to make the water radioactive. The doses of radium in each case are constant, because radium emanates at a constant rate and only a certain amount can be dissolved in water, no matter how many times a day the apparatus is brought into use.

These constant emanations have been one of the great marvels of science ever since Madame Curie isolated radium from uranium ore in 1898. One gram of radium emits 136,000,000,000 atoms a second. As each atom disrupts, what is known as an alpha ray is emitted. This resultant atom disrupts in turn, emitting another alpha ray. And so the process continues. In the meantime, the mass of radium deteriorates into radium emanations. Radium thus loses half its strength in 1,700 years and none of the original is left after 20,000 years of radiation.

Radium, a salt rather than a metal, is not a drug. It does not combine chemically with any known substance in the body. When taken in soluble form 25 or 50 per cent of it remains in the body for four or five days. After that the rate of excretion is about only one per cent a day. Wherever it is located, it carries on a constant bombardment in releasing its energy, imparting strength to the tissues, cells and protoplasma of the body. And when once these begin to function actively, they begin to rebuild themselves.



For the Office Worker or Traveler a Syringe Is Used to Force Air Through Capsules of Radium Salts and Into a Glass of Water, Imparting Radioactivity Its Sponsors Claim, to Water That Is Used for Drinking.

In external treatment by radium itself, emanations from a certain quantity of radium are allowed to focus on parts of the body over the diseased organs. In this way the curative functions of the diseased portion are stimulated to activity. The atrophying of diseased tonsils has been the most successful use of this form of treatment. The cure of cancer by radium, while claimed by some physicians, is generally discredited at the present time.

Whether radium treatment will prove able to restore youth to old age, grow new sets of teeth and perform other marvels that its more ardent supporters predict for it, only time will tell.

If radium treatment proves to facilitate the process of cell elimination, it will have gone a long way toward delivering the world from its enemies of disease.

Making Bread Without Flour

FOR many years specialists have been trying to retain all the nutritive elements of the wheat berry, while keeping the bread white and soft. A new system now put forward in France gives great promise of providing the solution. It eliminates all slow sifting to free the grain of the bran; and in three distinct operations of washing, maceration and sifting, which can be carried on simultaneously, in a machine whose cost is so low as to be within the reach of all, it has developed a practical way of conserving the gluten and the vitamines of the wheat.

The washing not only cleans the grain, but makes it easier to crush the bran and peel it off from the kernel that contains the nutritive elements. After the washing, the clean wheat is macerated to bring it to the necessary degree of hydration. Sifting then replaces the ordinary milling process, separating the bran from the pulp and leaving with the latter the highly nutritive portion between the outer envelopes.

The most startling feature of the new process, according to the Scientific American, is that its product is not flour, but actually dough. It contemplates the elimination of flour from the domestic economy, and of the flour mill from the industrial establishment. It contemplates that the housewife buy the whole wheat berry, just as it now goes from the thresher to the mill; that she pour these kernels into her machine, and receive out of it the dough for her bread. All the nutritive values of the wheat are retained, and the useless and indigestible chaff is discarded at the same time. The machine is no larger than the ordinary family washing machine, and like so many other household utilities it can be operated with the current from the usual electric light socket.

The main part of the machine consists of a large perforated drum into which the wheat is poured through a funnel. The grain goes through a continuous crushing process inside this drum, accomplished by means of rotating cylinders operated by a four-horsepower motor which produces from 25 to 30 kilograms of dough per hour. While the dough is thus being prepared in the machine, the bran is separated out and falls into a receptacle in the bottom of the drum, while the dough issues simultaneously from another opening. The dough is ready for the usual leavening process, and in half an hour may be put in the oven. The bread thus obtained has an agreeable taste; it is not pure white, for it contains the inside cover of the wheat kernel.

Can DANGER and FEAR HYPNOTIZE?

DOCTORS have not yet made up their minds whether the thought of danger has the power to hypnotize highly nervous persons and lure them into the very perils which they would avoid, but several instances suggest that it may be so.

An airman, a skilled mechanic, was watching, from a few feet away, the revolving propeller of an engine under test. He then walked slowly right into the propeller. No reason could be found for his action, and medical opinion was in favor of hypnotic attraction rather than suicide.

For many people the rush of an express train has a similar attraction, and men have been heard to confess that they draw back from the edge of the platform when an express goes through, because they have a fear that they might throw themselves forward if they stood too near.

There have been, in fact, quite a number of cases in which tragedies have happened in this way.

Others are familiar with the strange mixture of fear and suicidal tendency experienced on the edge of a cliff or the balcony of a high building.

By an effort of will this impulse is usually controlled, but sometimes will-power fails, and this actually happened in one instance on record.

A man working in an exposed place on a part of an Alpine railway over a precipice of 3,000 feet, after shrinking back from the chasm below, was seen to run forward and jump into the air.

Should those who suffer from these fears try to master them by courting danger? Such a suggestion is often made, but all our knowledge of man's mind goes to prove that it is perilously foolish to treat our fears in this way, and still more so to try to cure children by such methods.

What happens in the mind, so far as it can be understood, is that fear paralyzes the centres responsible for man's reasoned actions, and leaves him at the mercy of his unreasoning impulses.

The safest and wisest way with pet fears of this description, according to a contributor to Pearson's Weekly, is to humor them—they are very seldom cured.

Clever TRICKS to AID the MEMORY

MEMORY-codes and tricks have been used for long centuries and many of them are interesting relics of bygone days. While people with an excellent memory can easily use an elaborate code, it is doubtful if the average person finds an artificial system of much use. And it may prove a burden rather than a help.

Among the world's interesting memory systems, there is an ancient Peruvian method of communicating ideas, known as "quipu." It is based on a system of numbers and worked by means of colored knotted threads which hang from a main strand. These colored threads and pieces of twisted wool hang at irregular intervals, and knots are placed on them, so that the memory may be assisted. There have been many mnemonic systems—i. e., systems based on numbers, words, or some mechanical plan, whose aim is to stimulate decaying mental impressions by artificial means.

Among the most famous memory systems, described in London Tit-Bits, is that which was used by the ancient Greeks. You have to imagine the plan of a house with which you are familiar, and each room will represent some great idea. The furniture in each room will be easily visualised, and so in imagination you can walk through this memory-house. And as you go the ideas and thoughts you wish to recall are suggested. The famous orator, Cicero, used this method, and by this means he could memorize his great orations. The invention of this is generally credited to a Greek poet, Simonides of Ceos.

Mnemonic systems flourished through the Middle Ages, and schoolmen, who are credited with many fantastic ideas—including consideration of the question: How many angels could dance on the point of a needle?—practised complicated memory systems. These systems were applied to learning language, as well as figures of grammar and logic.

Another code is used to enable to recall large numbers of mathematics, or Latin names in surgery and chemistry. This method is largely used by medical students who wish to memorize the Latin names of the bones of the human body. A sentence is selected, and each letter will suggest a bone of the arm or the hand. A student might use a sentence such as "White elephants are rare," to stand for the bones of the leg.

The boom in modern memory systems originated in the United States and goes back to the 'eighties of last century. Since then there has been a deluge of memory systems. Two big questions are involved in such systems. Can the memory be trained, and are artificial systems of any real use? Let a great educationalist answer these questions. Professor John Adams says that "Psychologists are not agreed about the question of improving the memory," and that the weight of opinion affirms that sheer "brute" memory cannot be improved. This seems that our degrees of retentiveness and recall are permanent. Why man forgets is easily explained. His power of retentiveness is poor, and his interest is weak.

Professor Adams dismisses the artificial memory system in a sentence—"We can no more have an artificial memory than we can have an artificial soul," and he goes on to say, "There is no memory improver like the honest and earnest concentration of attention on the facts you wish to master." Here, then, is the verdict of one of the greatest British educationalists.

Memory is simply the power of mental recall, and that power depends on our interest in a given subject. And interest always develops concentration. But the simplest memory system is that advocated by the late Professor William James, of Harvard, who advised those who wish to develop power of retentiveness to memorize twenty lines of poetry each day.

So the conclusion of this debatable question of memory systems cannot be refuted. It is interest which is the most fundamental factor in memory. Interest, concentration and perseverance will arouse the latent qualities of mental recall in any mind. And if some simple device stimulates the memory through the association of ideas, by all means use it. That device for many is a note-book.

The Loudest-Voiced Bird

WHAT is said to be the loudest voiced bird in the world is the bell bird, which is found in both South America and Africa.

The naturalist, Waterton, says of this bird, which is also called the Campanero, "Its song is loud and clear like the note of a bell and is audible at a distance of five kilometers. No song or sound of any other feathered forest dweller rouses so much wonder as the 'tolling' of the Campanero. A single stroke of the bell is heard and these notes follow each other at intervals of about a minute."

The bell bird is pure white in color and about the size of an ordinary pigeon. Its head is adorned (or disfigured) by a singular horny excrescence, which is lifted for a distance about seven centimeters, while the bird is singing. It is this movable horny structure which is connected with the roof of the mouth which provides the resonance which enables the bird to produce its singular bell-like note. Every one who hears its remarkable tone for the first time is convinced that it must proceed from some neighboring church tower or campanile. It is a curious fact that the bird utters its song only when other voices are silent.

The Deinodon, or "Terrible-Tooth," a Prehistoric Beast, Was Once the World's Most Ferocious Animal

IN a recently installed exhibit at the American Museum of Natural History in New York City, is the skeleton of the "Deinodon," or "Terrible-Tooth," a prehistoric animal which, if he were alive to-day, would be about the most formidable enemy that a man could meet. A "Deinodon" was swift and active, built for speed as well as power. One could neither dodge him nor outrun him, and the average man would be just about the size of prey that he would consider suitable for his next meal.

The skeleton stands eleven feet, five inches high—twice the height of a man. The length from nose to tip of tail is twenty feet, and for all his slim and elegant proportions he probably weighed in life several times as heavy as any lion or tiger.

Dr. W. D. Matthew, curator of the Museum's Department of Vertebrate Paleontology, says that, fortunately for us, perhaps, the Dienodon was not one of the beasts our prehistoric ancestors had to contend with. They had cave-lions and hyenas and wolves and great cave-bears, not to mention mammoths and woolly rhinoceroses; and those were quite enough. If they had had a lot of carnivourous dinosaurs into the bargain, they might have been wiped out altogether. But the dinosaurs had all become extinct long before the time of the prehistoric cave-men. The Deinodon lived during the Cretaseous Period of the Age of Reptiles—some sixty-odd millions of years ago, if we may rely on the calculations based on the alteration of radio-active minerals.

A Mounted Specimen of the Deinodon, the Skeleton of Which Was Found in the Canyon of the Red Deer River, Alberta, Canada. This Animal Stands Eleven Feet Five Inches, Twice the Height of a Man.

At that time our very, very remote ancestors were little opossum-like furry creatures, living in trees and quite too small and inconspicuous to be troubled by the huge reptiles, which in those days held the earth in fee. But in revenge of this disdain, it has been suggested, our little opossum ancestors may have helped to bring about the extinction of the great dinosaurian aristocracy—by sucking their eggs.

This skeleton was found by Charles H. Sternberg in the great canyon of the Red Deer River in Alberta. The canyon, eight hundred feet deep and margined by steep walls and bad-land gullies, is the richest repository for dinosaur skeletons that has yet been discovered. It cuts through the heart of the finest wheat districts of the Canadian West, and the rolling prairie, with its waving fields of grain above, contrasts picturesquely with the swiftly flowing river far below at the bottom of its deep trench, cutting through long ago.

But in Deinodon's time the country was very different, both in geography and climate. A broad interior sea, which had once stretched from the Gulf of Mexico to the Arctic Ocean, was gradually shallowing and filling up with marshes, low-lying swampy forests and savannahs in which the Deinodon and other giant reptiles lived.

The climate, if one may judge from the palms, bananas, plantains and other tropical trees that flourished there, was much warmer, but the annual growth-rings on fossil tree trunks (of which a fine specimen is on view in the same hall with the dinosaur skeleton) show that there was at least a dry and rainy season; and there were many trees—willows and tulip trees, sycamores and oaks that were very much like those of the present day.

The animal world was far more strange. Not only was there no sign of man or even anything distantly suggesting his future evolution, but not even the ancestors of all the higher quadrupeds with which we are familiar had yet come into being. Save for these tiny opossum-like creatures in the trees, there were none of the higher quadrupeds or mammals, so far as we know, in these marshes and forests that bordered the great central sea. Nor were birds, if there were any at all, common enough to have left their bones in the great reptilian cemetery. Crocodiles there were aplenty, and great turtles; various sorts of fish and some peculiar kinds of aquatic reptiles; and an occasional plesiosaur or great sea-reptile made its way up the rivers from the ocean. But the chief inhabitants were dinosaurs, the lords of the swamp and forest, great long-legged reptiles of strange and varied form.

Why Every One Speaks Four Languages

BY DONALD A. LAIRD

EVERYONE who knows one tongue usually knows at least four distinct languages. Thus people who use the English tongue are able to understand it when people talk to them, they can talk to other people in the same tongue, they can usually also read and write English. These are really four distinct languages, not merely one.

The strongest evidence regarding the four-fold nature of language comes from cases in which people have lost one or another of these languages. Complete loss of ability to talk or understand written or spoken language is known as total aphasia. Total aphasia is rather rare. Partial aphasia, however, has been studied in many interesting cases.

One may have partial aphasia which causes the loss of only spoken language; such a person can understand when spoken to and can read and write, but is unable to talk. In other instances the language disturbance is still less and the victim is able to talk, but without making much sense. This was the trouble with the old gentleman who said that he was going downtown to get his umbrella shaved. What he thought he had said was that he was going to get a hair cut.

Other forms of partial aphasia intefere with the ability to read language while the other language facilities remain intact.

Scientists have found through a study of aphasia that language is four-fold in nature and exactly what parts of the brain is concerned with each part of language. The portion of the brain that controls the muscles of speech, for example, is located in Brocas's convolution. This is just inside the temple. In right-handed people the convolution on the left side of the brain controls the muscles of speech; in left-handed people it is the corresponding convolution on the right side of the brain that controls spoken language.

SMOKING and BLOOD-PRESSURE

AMONG the habits that almost invariably are interdicted by the physician in the treatment of illness is the smoking of tobacco. Heretofore this interdiction has been based on a large empiric observation, but not founded on any extensive scientific study.

In the course of a series of investigations on the effects of cigar and cigarette smoking on certain psychologic and physiologic functions, Dr. Robert L. Bates of the Psychological Laboratory of the Johns Hopkins University has made a number of observations on the effects of tobacco smoking on the systolic and diastolic blood pressure and on the heart rate. Readings were made over a long interval on volunteer students, who were seated comfortably and smoked extensively during the observations. The tests indicated briefly that, following the smoking of a cigar or three cigarettes, there is a rise in systolic and diastolic blood pressure and in the heart rate. The rise in blood pressure usually amounts to only a few millimeters, according to a writer in the Journal of the American Medical Association. As Dr. Bates remarks, "The normal irregular variations in blood pressure, due to various causes, are practically as great as the variations which may be ascribed to tobacco."

The rise in heart rate is irregular: usually less than 10 a minute in most cases, but in some cases as much as 20. Both blood pressure and heart rate subside to normal in from twenty to thirty minutes.

The report of this study concludes with the statement that the extent to which the effects are due to absorbing smoke products and to psychologic factors involved in smoking remains to be discovered. The observations are of interest and indicate particularly the great difficulty in arriving at scientific conclusions in investigation of this character.

Maple Leafs Eliminated---Gene Sarazen Retains Title---Lakeviews Lose at Niagara Falls

BUNTS AND BOOTS IN NIAGARA FALLS COUNT IN LAKEVIEW DEFEAT

Second Game of Junior O. B. A. A. Final Series Marked By Reversal of Both Teams' Form — Play-Off in Hamilton.

STARTED BAD.

With the two teams showing a complete reversal of form the Peterboro Lakeviews were badly beaten in the second game of the Junior O.B.A.A. finals at Niagara Falls on Saturday, the Falls crew winning hands down by 15 runs to 4. As a result the series is tied up and the championship will be decided in a sudden death game to be played at Hamilton on Wednesday afternoon.

The result was candidly a big surprise to the Peterboro camp. After winning 8 to 0 here a week previously and holding the Falls in complete subjection, the Lakeviews, while anticipating a much harder battle in the secong fixture, counted on winding up the series in the Cataract town.

Instead they were never in the hunt and there are no alibis, except the fact that sight-seeing activities before the game left the crew leg weary before they started. Defensively they gave by far their worst exhibition of the year and while they were not so helpless with the willow as the Falls team were here, they were much worse in their fielding and were just as badly outplayed as were the Cataract gang at Riverside Park.

Whitehouse who held Niagara hitless and scoreless in the first game and did not allow a ball to be hit out of the infield couldn't get his curve working properly and although at that he fanned fourteen the winners got to him for a flock of timely hits and his support was so bad that he was given no chance to pull himself together. A couple of very badly played bunts put the Petes up in the air in the first inning and Niagara got five runs after the side should have been retired. The game was shot there and although the Lakeviews rallied and made a stand for two or three innings, they broke again and the Falls youngsters ran up a score.

The winners played sparkling ball both in the field and on the attack. Their defensive work was clean cut, Steele at third being especially in the limelight, and they showed some clever inside ball on the offensive, using Jake Solomon's favorite strategy, the bunting game, with great success. Clunie starred in this form of attack and the Lakeviews looked very bad on several occasions.

Orville Smith a left handed box artist was on the firing line for the Falls and with five runs to work on from the first inning had an easy task. He showed considerable speed and held the Lakeviews to seven hits of which Moore got two, a pair of very timely doubles.

The biggest crowd that has seen a game in the Falls this year was in attendance, over 2000 fans being on the job. And when it come to rabid rooting the Belleville noise makers have nothing on the Cataract fans. There was no grandstand accomodation or police protection and especially on the third base side the crowd almost lined the foul line, while there were score out in the outfield. The Petes got an awful razzing at close range, thanks to stories circulated of the bad treatment accorded the Falls team here at the hands of the Peterboro fans.

Wednesday's game at Hamilton should be a corker. The Falls outfit will run a special train to the Ambitious city for the final clash.

First Inning.

The Petes did not move a wheel in the first, Cameron and L. Lebarr fanned and Moore flied to left, a pretty catch by L. Steele.

Niagara Falls practically won the game in this half. Clark opened with a single to centre, a Texas Leaguer just out of Moore's reach. Clunie laid down a bunt in front of the plate for a sacrifice but Collins fumbled the ball and the batter was safe while Clark raced around to third, sliding under Collins' throw. Dumas also bunted, Whitehouse fielding the tap. He had Clark cold between third and the plate but threw over Bradshaw's head, Clark scoring while Clunie reached third and Dumas second. Arscott fanned for the first out but Smith cut a single past Moore scoring Clunie and Dumas. F. Steele singled through short. Crossman struck out but Slinn drove a long triple to right sending Smith and F. Steele home. L. Steele went out on strikes. Five runs, four hits, two errors.

Second Inning.

In the second Whitlow drew a pass. Collins singled to center and Whitlow was called out at third trying to take two bases on the drive, Collins reaching second on the play. Whitehouse singled to second and stole the middle station. On Bradshaw's bunt to Crossman, Collins coming in standing up was thrown out at the plate. Whitehouse scored on a wild pitch, Bradshaw going to second. McIntyre singled to right scoring Bradshaw. McIntyre died stealing second. Two runs, three hits, no errors.

For Niagara Clark singled over second Clunie struck out and when Collins dropped the third one Clarke broke for second. Collins made a wild heave to the middle sack and Whitlow in centre left the ball roll through, Clark scoring all the way from frist on the two errors. Duman singled to centre and went to second on a wild pitch. Arscott struck out. Smith tripled to deep centre scoring Dumas. F. Steele struck out. Two runs, three hits, three errors.

Third Inning.

The Petes added another in the third. J. Lebarr rolled to Clark and Cameron was thrown out by F. Steele a fast play by the third baseman. L. Lebarr singled through short and stole second. Moore doubled to left sending the run in. Whitlow flied to Clark. One run, two hits, no errors.

Whitehouse struck out Crossman, Slinn and L. Steele in quick succession in the Falls end of the frame, fanning the side for the third inning in a row.

Fourth Inning.

In the fourth Collins rolled to Crossman, Whitehouse was tossed out by Smith and Bradshaw fanned.

For Niagara Clark fanned, Clunie singled through short but was doubled off first when Dumas bunted a fly to Bradshaw. One hit.

Fifth Inning.

The Lakeviews got their last run in the fifth. After Smith had thrown out McIntyre, J. Lebarr was safe on Clark's fumble. Cameron sacrificed him to second. L. Lebarr was hit. Moore doubled to left scoring J. Lebarr. Whitlow bounced one to Smith. One run, one hit one error.

The Falls team got that one back in their half. Arscott singled to centre. Cameron made a fine stop of Smith's fast rolled, forcing Arscott at second, Smith stole second and after F. Steele had fanned, came home on Crossman's single to right. Slinn got a life on Cameron's fumble but Hudson batting for L. Steele struck out. One run, two hits, one error.

Sixth Inning.

F. Steele made a fine play on Collins' hopper in the sixth getting the batter at first. Whitehouse fanned. Bradshaw singled to centre. McIntyre hoisted to Crossman. One hit.

The Cataract crew put the fixture on ice in their end of the frame. Clark singled to left to open the inning and went to second on Clunies' sacrifice. Dumas fanned, Clark went to third on a wild pitch. Arscott walked and stole second. Smith singled to centre scoring Clark and Arscott and took second on the throw to the plate. F. Steele singled to centre scoring Smith. Cameron threw out Crossman. Three runs, three hits, no errors.

Seventh Inning.

In the seventh J. Lebarr fanned. Cameron flied to Hudson in left. L. Lebarr fanned but Arscott missed the third one and threw wild over first the runner going to second. Moore popped to F. Steele.

Clever bunting and timely hitting gave the winners four more. Slinn first up got two bases when Whitlow muffed his high fly to centre. He was picked off second a moment later. Hudson, however, singled to right. Clark got his fourth hit a single to centre and when Whitlow let the ball get away Hudson went to third. The Falls pulled off the squeeze play perfectly, Clunie laying down a bunt as Hudson raced for the plate. Everybody was safe on the play and Clark reached third. Dumas tripled to left the ball bouncing over McIntyre's head and Clark and Clunie scored. Arscott bunted safely scoring Dumas. Smith struck out and F. Steele popped to Whitehouse. Four runs, five hits, two errors.

Eighth Inning.

Smith developed a wild streak in the eighth but escaped without being scored upon. After Whitlow had fanned, Collins walked but was out stealing second. Whitehouse and Bradshaw drew passes. McIntyre rolled to Clark for the third out.

In the Falls, half Cameron muffed Crossman's fly and then threw wild to first, the double error putting the runner on second. Slinn rolled to Cameron. The squeeze play failed this time, Bradshaw's quick play on Hudson's bunt getting Crossman at the plate. Clark rolled to Whitehouse. Two errors.

Ninth Inning.

GIANTS WIND UP SEASON AT HOME

Team of Recruits Win Ten-Inning Game From Boston.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30. — The world's champions wound up their home season here to-day and defeated Boston in a 10-inning game, 4 to 3.

Manager McGraw of New York, used a line-up made up almost entirely of young players, and a two-base hit by Solomon drove in Frisch with the winning run in the tenth.

Though Ryan received credit for the Giant victory, Gearin, a young lefthande , did well for nine innings, yielding only six hits and driving out two himself.

Frank Snyder, reguar New York catcher, injured his right hand in the third inning when Southworth hit it in swinging for a ball, and was obliged to retire. Score:

HAMILTON JUVENILES DEFEAT MAPLE LEAFS FOR ONTARIO PENNANT

Peterboro Team Tossed Away Chances in Second Game of Series at Riverside on Saturday.

LOSE BY 5 TO 3.

The Maple Leafs put in a bad afternoon at the Riverside Park on Saturday when they presented the "2 in 1" team of Hamilton with the Juvenile Baseball Championship of Ontario. The score was 5 to 3. The Leafs did not play up to advance notices, their poor work at the play and on the runways being a big disappointment.

In seven of the nine innings, the locals started with a hit or gained the bag by a charity, and when the game might easily have been won in the eigth and ninth, oportunities to win and even the series were thrown away. The situation looked so bad from the Hamilton dugout that Whitney was ordered to warm up. The Leafs, however, spared Gordon the humiliation of being taken out and he managed to stagger through.

It was tough on "Chuck" Bradley. The Leafs' sterling heaver was going good enough to shut out the visitors, Wobbly outfielding and a bad peg to third gave Hamilton five runs in the first and second. From then on there was no more scoring—a highly crediatable performance for a pitcher with a shaky team behind him, and a real good team as the opposition. Jimmy Johnston and Harold Franks, who with Bradley and Ab. Delahaye were called upon to do much of the defensive work, did well. Good hitting by Marchen and Corbett and a clever catch by Jack Hall were other bright spots in the Leafs' play.

The laurels fell on broad shoulders. The 1923 champoins are a big and well balanced squad of ball tossers, dangerous at the bat, and strong on the defense. Gordon is a heady pitcher, and Litzen behind the bat handles the big mitt nicely. All the infielders are good. Hamond in midfield handled a long fly from Delahye in good style.

How they Scored.

In the first after Bradley had retired Kellar and Johnston on grounders to the mound, Wiley singled and stole second. Litzen sent up a high fly to right, which Bannon failed to get under. Wiley scored, and Litzen made second. Harley fanned, but had to be retired at first.

Four runs went to the visitors after two were out in the second. Hammond was safe when his easy roller went through Thirnbeck. Jarvis hit a hot one at Johnson to force Hammond at second. Wilson hit, and Gordon fanned. Then disaster fell upon the Leafs. Kellar hit to deep right, Johnson hit to left, the bounding ball getting away from Marchen. Three runners scored and when Delahaye threw wildly to third to stop Johnson, the runner made the plate for the fourth tally. Wiley was passed. Litzen grounded out, Franks to Johnson.

Great Pitching.

Thereafter the champs. were held away from the plate. In the fifth, with two out, they put three on, only to be turned back by Bradley, who fanned Wilson. The local heaver did great work in the next four frames, fanning seven batsmen, three of them in a row in the eighth, and allowing only one scratch hit.

Start well, But—

Delehaye started the Leafs with a single back of second. Hall attempting a bunt popped to the pitcher, who doubled Delahaye. Thirnbeck got on when Kelar fumbled his grounder, moving to second on a balk. Kellar threw out Marchen.

Bannon missed a double in the second when he lagged on the runways on a clout through third, the thrower to second getting him easily. Johnson popped out to Wiley. Franks hit through second and stole. Corbett was safe on Kellar's fumble. Bradley grounded out.

Leafs got Two.

The Leafs were well away in the fourth when Marchen doubled. Bannon popped to the pitcher. Marchen stole third. Johnson walked and made second. Marchen scored on Frank's infield out and Corbett scored Johnston with a single. Bradley was thrown out by Gordon.

The Leafs put two on in the sixth with two out but failed to deliver, the Wiley-Jarvis combination taking care of Corbett's grounder.

Bradley started the seventh with a scratch hit and stole second. Delahaye was too anxious and fanned. Bradley made it two out by trying to steal third. Hall grounded to end the frame.

Thirnbeck was given a pass in the eighth and promptly fell a victim to the catcher's throw; Marchen dropped a single in centre and stole.

Welterweights Matched.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 30.—Billy Wells, of England, and Jimmy Jones, of Youngstown, Ohio, recognized in New York State as welterweight champion of the world, have been matched to meet in a 10-round, no-decision bout here, October 19, it was announced to-night.

PACKERS CLAIM SOCCER TROPHY

De Laval Failed to Put in An Appearance Saturday.

Two weeks ago, the local junior association notified the C.P.C. and De Laval that they should meet in the final of the Taylor Cup on Saturday afternoon, but the junior champions did not put in an appearance, which culminated in C. P. C. centering the ball and going down the field and scoring. They now claim that they have the legitimate right to the trophy through default.

A representative of the press interviewed a De Laval player who stated that they notified the local junior secretary that they could not fulfill the fixture owing to unforseen circumstances. One player was in Niagara Falls, "Red" Elliott and Grant playing in baseball and four others engaged in soft ball games.

It is a bad finish to any cup final and in the interest of the game, both teams also the association, should try and make an amicable settlement so as to play the game in true sportsmanlike manner.

FOOTBALL NOTES

The P. and D.F.A. meet to-night in the Chamber of Commerce at 8 p.m. prompt.

Mr. Alex Kay, donor of School Football League trophy, will attend the meeting of the Association to-night, when final arrangements will be made for school competition.

In all probability, more schools will enter school competition, as it is already intimated that Queen Mary and Sacred Heart have completed their teams for school championship. It is the desire of the association that representatives of the schools should be present at to-night's meeting.

GRAIN SHIPMENT RECORD.

FORT WILLIAM, Ont. Oct. 1.—(Canadian Press)—Lake shipments of all grains Saturday constituted a record for the season, totalling 2,590,000 bushels. Of this amount 1,317,000 bushels were carried in United States bottoms. Loading in the harbor were five boats, two of which were American.

Kisses? No, Hisses

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—If New York theater audiences are to be taken as a criterion, Jack Dempsey is just about the most unpopular champion in the history of the prize ring.

Motion pictures of the battle of the century are now being shown in a number of the leading New York theaters. These pictures show conclusively that Dempsey didn't waste any sportsmanship on the visitor from the Argentine.

On only one occasion after knocking Firpo down did he retire to the farthest corner of the ring. Instead he circled around the challenger and usually worked from behind. At one time he stepped right over the fallen body of his foe and assumed a position only a few feet away, awaiting Firpo to arise.

Referee Johnny Gallagher certainly was kind to Dempsey. Not once did he caution the champion as to his tactics. Who is this Johnny Gallagher? New Yorkers are now asking this question. In New York state are a dozen referees far more widely known who were entirely ovrlooked in making the selection for the big fight.

It is a cinch that Firpo will have something to say as to the referee when the two men meet again.

HEAVY SCORING IN OVERSEAS SOCCER

LONDON, Sept. 30.— (Canadian Press Cable.) — Numerous critics from whom much has recently been heard about the paucity of goal scoring by the forwards were confronted by yesterday's soccer matches.

It is many a long day since such splendid scoring achievements were previously recorded and if the results reached yesterday can be taken as any criterion it is apparent that the one great aim of all sides was to win a share of the points was a secondary consideration. At any rate it was remarkable that of the forty-four matches played in four divisions of the league only half a dozen were drawn and in only three games did the teams fail to register between them. Scores of four to eight goals featured some matches and this led to the assumption that, the principle of attack as being the best defence having been adopted generally, a great improvement may be expected. It is further assumed that the sudden glut of goals has increased interest in the displays of the scoring sides which will undoubtedly act as an incentive to others.

It was a good day for the home clubs. Twenty-eight were successful while six more managed to avert defeat leaving only ten visiting sides to accomplish what must always be regarded as a difficult task.

The chief honors of a somewhat remarkable day go to Derby County who, playing on their opponents' ground, scored eight goals. The defeat of Notts County, a particularly virile second division club last season, leaves Cardiff City the only unbeaten team in the first division, and the fact that they have been able to secure more points than such sides as the Bolton Wanderers and Aston Villa who have played two games more up to the present makes out the Welsh team to be something out of the ordinary.

West Ham United had the distinction of being the only first division side yesterday to win away from home, their success being achieved at the expense of Middlesborough, whose fortunes are sadly at variance with their record at the corresponding stage last season when instead of being the last but one as they are at present they actually were second to Liverpool in the championship table. But the ups and downs of the game are illustrated in other ways as the leading four clubs will testify for three of them twelve months ago were in a very lowly position while the fourth was then in the second division.

SARAZEN RETAINS GOLF TITLE

PELHAM MANOR, N. Y., Sept. 30.—An amazing recovery s from a cray-fish marsh decided t 38th hole, and brought victory Gen. Sarazen, here Saturday, a defeat for Walter Hagen, the vetera in the United States professiona Golfers Association's most thrilling titl match. And upon Sarazen's head still rests the crown he won last year at Oakmont, Pa.

Victory for Sarazen in this, the firs extra-hole championship match in the history of the professionals' title tournaments, came after a courageous up-hill fight by Hagen, who had squared the match at the 35th hole after being three down at the 28th.

MONROE DOCTRINE IS POLICY SELF-DEFENCE

Secretary Hughes Expounds Monroe Message as Containing Policy Vitally Necessary to National Safety.

IMPOSES NO BARRIER

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 1. — (Associated Press).—The Monroe Doctrine was defined here by Secretary Hughes as embodying a policy vitally related to national safety, inimical to no just interest in Latin-America or elsewhere, and imposing no barrier to wider international co-operation in the promotion of peace and understanding.

Speaking before the American Bar Association, the secretary declared that while the Doctrine in no way established a "protectorate" over other American republics, American rights and obligations not specifically outlined by Monroe in his famous message had sometimes made intervention in some Latin-American states an absolute necessity. He recalled that the right to intervene in Cuba is a matter of record in the treaty of 1904, although he added that the United States would rather, if possible, continue in its present role of "friendly adviser."

"Taking the Doctrine as it has been and as it is believed to remain," said Mr. Hughes, "I desire to comment upon certain points, which, as I believe, deserve special emphasis at this time.

"First. The Monroe Doctrine is not a policy of aggression; it is a policy of self-defense. It was asserted at a time when the danger of foreign aggression in this hemisphere was very real, when the new American states had not yet established a firm basis of independent national life, and we were menaced by threats of Old World powers directed against republican institutions. But the achievements of the century have not altered the scope of the doctrine or changed its basis. It still remains an assertion of the principle of national security. As such, it is obviously not exclusive.

"Second. As the policy embodied in the Monroe Doctrine is distinctively the policy of the United States, the government of the United States reserves to itself its definition, interpretation, and application. This government has welcomed the recognition by other governments of the fact and soundness of this policy and of the appropriateness of its application from time to time.

"But the United States has not been disposed to enter into engagements which would have the effect of submitting to any other power or to any concert of powers the determination either of the occasions upon which the principles of the Monroe doctrine shall be invoked or of the measures that shall be taken in giving it effect. As President Wilson observed: 'The Monroe doctrine was proclaimed by the United States on her onw authority. It always has been maintained and always will be maintained upon her own responsibility.'

"This implies neither suspicion nor estrangement. It simply means that the United States is asserting a separate national right of self-defense, and that in the exercise of this right it must have an unhampered discretion.

"Third. The policy of the Monroe doctrine does not infringe upon the independence and sovereignty of other American states. Misconception upon this point is the only disturbing influence in our relations with Latin-American states. The declaration of our purpose to oppose what is inimical to our safety does not imply an attempt to establish a protectorate any more than a similar assertion by any one of the great southern republics of opposition to conduct on the part of any of the others endangering its security would aim at the establishment of a protectorate.

"I utterly disclaim, as unwarranted, the observations which occasionally have been made implying a claim on our part to superintend the affairs of our sister republics, to assert an overlordship, to consider the spread of our authority beyond our own domain as the aim of our policy, and to make our power the test of right in this hemisphere. I oppose all such misconceived and unsound assertions or intimations. They do not express our national purpose; they belie our sincere friendship; they are false to the fundamental principles of our institutions and of our foreign policy which has sought to reflect, with rare exceptions, the ideals of liberty; they menace us by stimulating a distrust which has no real foundation. They find no sanction whatever in the Monroe doctrine. There is room in this hemisphere, without danger of collision, for the complete recognition of that doctrine and the independent sovereignty of the Latin-American republics.

"Fourth. There are, indeed, modern conditions and recent events which can not fail to engage our attention. We have grown rich and powerful, but we have not outgrown the necessity, in justice to ourselves and without injustice to others, of safeguarding our future peace and security. By building the Panama Canal we have not only established a new and convenient highway of commerce but we have created exigencies and new conditions of strategy and defense. It is for us to protect that highway. It may also be necessary for us at some time to build another canal between the Atlantic and the Pacific Oceans, and to protect that. I believe that the sentiment of the American people is practically unanimous that in the interest of our national safety we could not yield to any foreign power the control of the Panama Canal, or the approaches to it, or the obtaining of any position which would interfere with our right of protection or would menace the freedom of our communications.

"So far as the region of the Caribbean Sea is concerned, it may be said that if we had no Monroe doctrine we should have to create one. And this is not to imply any limitation on the scope of the doctrine, as originally proclaimed and as still maintained, but simply to indicate that new occasions require new applications of an old principle which remains completely effective. What has taken place of late years in the region of the Caribbean has given rise to much confusion of thought and misapprehension of purpose. As I have said, the Monroe doctrine as a particular declaration in no way exhausts American right or policy; the United States has rights and obligations which that doctrine does not define. And in the unsettled condition of certain countries in the region of the Caribbean it has been necessary to assert these rights and obligations as well as the limited principles of the Monroe doctrine.

"In 1898, the United States intervened in Cuba in the cause of humanity and because of a condition of affairs at our very door so injurious to our interests that it had become intolerable. In view of the distress, miseries, and barbarities that existed, our action, as John Bassett Moore has said, 'was analogous to what is known in private law as the abatement of a nuisance.' In the settlement that followed the establishment of Cuban independence Cuba agreed 'that the United States may exercise the right to intervene for the preservation of Cuban independence, the maintenance of a government adequate for the protection of life, property, and individual liberty, and for discharging the obligations with respect to Cuba imposed by the treaty of Paris on the United States, now to be assumed and undertaken by the government of Cuba.' Cuba also agreed not to enter into any treaty with any foreign power which would tend to impair her independence, 'nor in any manner authorize or permit any foreign power or powers to obtain by colonization or for military or naval purposes or otherwise lodgment in or control of any portion of said island.' There were also restrictive provisions as to the contracting of debts. The United States thus holds a special position in relation to Cuba, but it should be pointed out and clearly understood that, while in view of this position we have acted as the friendly adviser of the Cuban government, our action has been solely for the purpose of aiding in maintaining the independence and stability of Cuba and thus not to create but to preclude the necessity of intervention under the treaty by encouraging the Cuban people to eliminate waste and corruption, to reduce public expenses to the normal requirements of government, and to secure the just and efficient administration which will safeguard the desired independence of Cuba and promote the prosperity which, with their abundant natural resources, the Cuban people are entitled to enjoy.

"It is impossible for me to review in any detail the events which led to the occupation of Santo Domingo and Haiti. In Santo Domingo, during the 40 years prior to 1907, there had been 16 revolutionary movements, and complete political and economic demoralization had resulted. A military government was established in 1916 and until recent months was continued in the interest of public order. This occupation was due to the demonstration, to use the phrase of President Roosevelt, of an impotence resulting in the lessening of the ties of civilized society and thus requiring intervention. But the point that I desire to make is that instead of using this opportunity, as has falsely been charged, to establish a permanent control of Santo Domingo, the government of the United States has been solicitous to arrange for the termination of the occupation and the withdrawal of its forces and has devoted its endeavors, earnestly and effectively, to the assistance of the Dominican people in establishing a sound basis for an independent government. It is expected that elections in which the authorities of the United States will not intervene will be held about the middle of September and in due course he permanent government will be established.

"In order to understand conditions in Haiti, it should be recalled that since the Republic of Haiti gained its independence it has been the scene of almost continuous revolution. This is true of its recent history, as well as of the earlier years. The government of the United States is seeking to make its relation to Haiti beneficial to the Haitian people; it has no other aim but to establish peace and stability. It does not seek to acquire or to control the territory of Haiti, and it will welcome the day when it can leave Haiti with the reasonable assurance that the Haitians will be able to maintain an independent government competent to keep order and discharge its international obligations.

"The disturbed conditions and revolutionary tendencies in some of the Central American republics have given great solicitude to the government of the United States, and its efforts have been directed to the promotion of tranquility and stability. This is in the interest of the maintenance of the unimpaired integrity and sovereignty of these republics.

"Fifth. It is apparent that the Monroe doctrine does not stand in the way of Pan American co-operation; rather it affords the necessary foundation for that co-operation in the independence and security of American states. With the aim of furthering this Pan American co-operation there have been five Pan American conferences, the last of which was recently held in Santiago. The best results of these conferences are not to be found in any formal acts or statements but in the generation of helpful and friendly influences which draw peoples together through a better mutual understanding.

"The essential condition of co-operation is peace, and this government is constant in its endeavors to promote peace in this hemisphere by using its good offices, whenever they are welcome, in eliminating the causes of strife, and in making provision for the settlement of disputes that can not be adjusted by diplomacy. Almost all the boundary disputes in Latin-America have been settled, and those that remain are in process of adjustment.

"Finally, it should be observed that the Monroe doctrine is not an obstacle to a wider international co-operation, beyond the limits of Pan American aims and interests, whenever that co-operation is congenial to American institutions. From the foundation of the government we have sought to promote the peaceful settlement of international controversies. Establishment of a permanent tribunal (instead of the less satisfactory provision of temporary tribunals of arbitration) to governments desiring to submit their controversies to it, has been a distinct feature of the policy of the government of the United States for many years. We are also interested in measures of conciliation and in the facilities of conference.

"Our attitude is one of independence, not of isolation. Our people are still intent upon abstaining from participation in the political strife of Europe. They are not disposed to commit this government in advance to the use of its power in unknown contingencies, preferring to reserve freedom of action in the confidence of our ability and readiness to respond to every future call of duty. They have no desire to put their power in pledge, but they do not shirk co-operation with other nations whenever there is a sound base for it and a consciousness of community of interest and aim. Co-operation is not dictation, and it is not partisanship. On our part it must be the co-operation of a free people drawing their strength from many racial stocks, and a co-operation that is made possible by a preponderent sentiment permitting governmental action under a system which denies all exercise of autocratic power. It will be the co-operation of a people of liberal ideals, deeply concerned with the maintenance of peace and interested in all measures which find support in the common sense of the country as being practicable and well designed to foster common interests.

"To such aims the Monroe doctrine is not opposed, and with the passing of 100 years it remains a cherished policy, inimical to no just interest and deemed to be vitally related to our own safety and to the peaceful progress of the peoples of this hemisphere."

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND.

The visit of Bransby Williams, the English character actor, to the Grand Opera House next Saturday for a matinee and evening performance, will be of more than usual interest, for it will give Peterborough playgoers an opportunity to see some of the works of a favorite author presented by an eminent English artist. The play will be 'David Copperfield,' in which Mr. Williams, long recognized as the leading interpreter of Dickens' characters on the stage, will be seen in two roles, Dan'l Peggotty and Wilkins Micawber. The company and production have been brought over to Canada from the Lyceum, London, Sir Henry Irving's old theatre. All the leading characters in the book will be seen in the play.

Mr. Bransby Williams and his company recently re-opened His Majesty's Theatre in Montreal for the season and created quite a furore there with "David Copperfield."

When Mr. Williams comes to the Grand Opera House there will be no increase in the price of seats, as it is his express wish that rich and poor alike should have an opportunity to become better acquainted with the great humanitarianism of the best known English author, Charles Dickens.

Mail orders for Mr. Bransby Williams' visit will be filled in the order in which they arrive. Mail early. Prices 50c. to $2.00.

AT THE ROYAL.

"THE PRODIGAL SON" AT ROYAL TO-NIGHT.

Another big British production is the main attraction at the Royal to-night. Hall Caine's famous novel, "The Prodigal Son," has been faithfully filmed on exact locations called for in the story, London, Paris, Italy and Iceland. This production ran one week at Massey Hall, Toronto, at 50c to $1 prices. The Royal management announce that their usual prices prevail for this engagement, which is: Matinees 11c and 15c; evenings 20c and 30c.

GLOBE TROTTER IN PERSON AT THE ROYAL TO-NIGHT.

Miss Walker, from Los Angeles, who is on her way walking around the world, will appear in person at the Royal to-night. She is on a wager to visit the capital of every country in five years. She has already covered the United States, Mexico, Western Canada, and is now on her way to Halifax. She has with her some interesting pictures and a ten-minute lecture.

'MASTERS OF MEN' FOR ROYAL

"Masters of Men," which will be shown at the Royal Theatre, beginning Friday, is a story of a boy's fight for honor and love, a story of vigorous youth that endures the hardships of life before the mast and comes back from sea a man's man. It reveals the splendid training and wholesome life on board a man of war and contrast that with the hell-hole forward where ordinary seamen were beaten and flogged in the old days of sailing ships.

DID NOT SING IRISH AND WAS SHOT DEAD

DUBLIN, October 1. Canadian Press. — "Why can't you sing something Irish," shouted a group of men to Herbert Rudderk, aged 24, who was singing as he wended his way home last night from the Theatre Royal with a brother and a friend.

Rudderk and those who were with him resented the advice, and a fight followed.

Later while they were continuing on their way homeward along Harcourt street, fire was opened upon them from the side street, and Herbert Rudderk fell dead with a bullet through his back.

TILDEN, WORLD'S GREATEST TENNIS STAR

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—(United Press)—With the possible exception of Babe Ruth, no athlete in America has become as proficient and as perfect in his line as has Bill Tilden, the tennis champion.

Long considered as one of the best players of all time, Tilden never reached the positive state until this season, largely because until this year he did not feel like showing exactly how superior he was over all other players in the world.

Tilden, in the unanimous opinion of those who have made tennis a hobby and a study, is the greatest player in all the history of the game. Perhaps his skill will never be equaled, and certainly it can hardly be surpassed, as his game is perfect from top to bottom.

The world's champion player possesses more strokes and is more adept at them than any other player in the world. He is so good and his game so versatile that he deliberately chooses to assume the speciality of his opponents and beat them at their own game.

Up until this season, Tilden never had demonstrated how vastly he outclassed every star in the field. His skill never had been exhibited at its maximum because he preferred to ease up an give his opponents a chance, instead of swarming over them an annihilating them with the full power of his game.

In the recent national championships Tilden apparently got the notion to show how wonderful a player he was. He made Manual Alonso the first victim of his demonstration by taking a straight set from him and allowing him only two games. Alonso is one of the finest players in the world and earlier in the season, when he had been touring with Tilden, he had beaten the champion once.

The real demonstration of Tilden's power, however, came in the final round when he completely overwhelmed Billy Johnston, the California star, and won from him in straight sets. Johnston, regarded as being close to Tilden in ability, never had a chance, and what points he earned were only gained because he had a game heart that kept him trying when it was evident that he had no more chance than a novice schoolboy.

There is no doubt now that Tilden is the greatest player in the world and there is no reason to believe that he will not continue his reign for several years. He is big and while not overly rugged, he has great stamina and the fortunate ability to recuperate quickly.

Tilden, in this respect, is very much like Jack Dempsey, the world champion heavyweight. Dempsey has more ability to come back quickly than any fighter in the ring. One minute rest between rounds does as much for him as ten minutes would do for another fighter. Tilden has the same powers of recuperation. After the hardest three sets, Tilden can get a shower and a rubdown and come back perfectly refreshed and invigorated in ten minutes.

Like all masters, Tilden has made a study of his game. In this respect he is also like Dempsey. He looks for his weakness and, once discovered, he works entirely to overcome that weakness. Dempsey, in training for a fight, does not like to look good before the crowd. He tries to perfect his weak points and naturally, while he is doing that, he does not look so good.

Johnston's rout in the final round of the national championships, when he was overwhelmed by Tilden is taken to mean by many qualified critics, the passing of one of the finest and the most popular players in American tennis. Johnston lacked only physical qualifications to become a master almost as great as Tilden. Frail and small, Johnston made the most out of his physical handicap, and in any other day but Tilden's he would have been the world's outstanding player, as he was before Big Bill reached the top of his game.

Johnston may have been overtennised this season. He started early by going to Wimbledon and winning the British championship and he trained hard for the Davis Cup matches in which his slipping form was shown when he was defeated by James O. Anderson, the Australian captain.

The game of the little Californian seems to have blown also, and when Bill Johnston starts to fly off in a match and get wild, there is something wrong with him, because he was always one of the steadiest players in the world.

If Johnston's slip is really permanent, the 1923 season will have brought about the passage of two of America's greatest players, because Mrs. Molla Mallory, for years the ranking star of womans' tennis in this country, seems to be started down hill.

Beaten in the final round of the national championships, by Helen Wills, just as decisively as Johnston was downed by Tilden, it seemed obvious that Mrs. Mallory never would be able to win the championship again, but she has slipped even beyond that.

In the Middle States championship she was again beaten by Miss Eleanor Goss and her game caused grief to her admirers, for it seemed apparent that she had really slipped for good.

SPEAKER AND OTHER STARS IN BALL GAME HERE

Peterborough Will Have a Chance to See the Big Leaguers Perform.

Peterboro ball fans are going to have a chance, thanks to the enterprise of the G.W.V.A. of Marmora, to see a number of big league ballplayers in action. On Saturday, Oct. 13th, a team that will include Tris Speaker, manager of the Cleveland Indians, Peekinpaugh, the Washington short stop, cat her Les Nunomaker, formerly of Cleveland, and now manager of the Chatanooga team, George Uhle, the sensational Cleveland pitcher, and other professional ball players, will clash at Riverside Park, with the well-known Toronto semi-pros, the Wellingtons. The proceeds will go to the G.W.V.A. as a fund for the erection of a memorial hall, and a record crowd from all eastern Ontario wil be here to see the famous American League stars in action.

BIG LEAGUERS COMING SOON

Speaker and Party Will Spend Holidays at Rice Lake.

Mr. Chris Graham has received word from Leslie Nunamaker, manager of the Chatanooga Baseball Club, that he, Tris Speaker, the Cleveland manager, and several others, including either George Uhle or Covaleskie, Cleveland pitchers, will arrive her about October 9th, for their annual outing at Mr. T. H. Hooper's place at Idyl Wyld, Rice Lake.

SOCCER NOTES

All directors and representatives of P. and D.F.A. are requested to attend to-night because F. H. Dearborn, secretary School Athletic Association, will be present to complete the details for the school football competition with the association.

FIGHT FAILURE WORRIES BASEBALL HEAD

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Oct 1— Baseball magnates may have cause to get the fidgets when they consider the situation which caused the Leonard-Dundee fight, which had been scheduled for tomorrow night in the Yankee Stadium, to be called off definite.

This contest for the lightweight championship of the world, between two of the most popular fighters in New York, was postponed first on September 5, when it was said that Dundee had a bad hand and could not fill the appointment.

Dundee denied this so vigorously that it was apparent there were other reasons. Recently the promoters of the fight admitted the real reason for the postponement and the final calling off of the match with the statement that the public was not interested in the fight and that it was an assured "bust."

Leonard and Dundee have the biggest personal following of any fighters appearing in New York and when they failed to interest the public, it is obvious that New York has had too many opportunities to spend money on sports this summer and that too much has been spent.

Perhaps the world's series, which is to start soon, will suffer from the overdose of sport events, just as minor boxing bouts have suffered. Some of the baseball magnates fear that the series will not draw as much as it has in the past.

There have been reasons to believe that in the past season, at least, boxing has supplanted baseball as the most popular sport with the public. It has been apparent for several years that professional baseball is not the "first national sport" that the club owners would have it believed, and it will be most interesting to watch how the series will draw.

Interest in baseball suffered a very noticeable slump in New York after the middle of the schedule had been passed and when fans in the country's greatest city fail to support the two best teams in the big leagues there must be some reasons.

The lull in interest in New York affects not only the Giants and the Yankees, but practically all of the second division clubs who have depended almost for existence upon their share of the games played in the Polo Grounds and the Yankee Stadium.

Cities outside of New York have claimed for several seasons that the Giants and the Yankees were hurting baseball by lavish expenditure of cash which made it possible for them to acquire almost unbeatable teams while the strength of the smaller and poorer clubs has steadily declined.

The runaway race in the American League certainly would have decreased interest in New York if the Yankees did not have such a tremendous drawing card in Babe Ruth, and the fans who are even fighting shy of the American League games, because opposing pitchers give Ruth such few opportunities to hit. When the fans pay money for the lone purpose of seeing Ruth do his stuff, it does not make business to have the Swat King passed every time he comes to the bat in a pinch.

If the Yanks and the Giants get into the world's series again, and it is almost certain that they will, interest may be revived in New York through the growth of the opinion that the American League champions may beat the National League champs, who showed them up so badly in the past two years.

There are no widly partisan fans in New York. The same bugs that go to the Yankee Stadium to root for the Yanks, go to the Polo Grounds and support the Giants. There is no spirit, such as existed years ago, when the White Sox and the Cubs were fighting in Chicago.

The Yanks and Giants may draw capacity crowds to the series this fall, but there may not be the same interest in the game outside of New York. It is certain that a western club as a pennant winner in either league would have aroused more general interest in the series but nothing can be done when there are no western clubs who have shown the ability to take the pennant away from either New York team.

Very little talk has been heard around New York about the world's series. The easy victory of the Yanks in the American League did not arouse any great enthusiasm and the fight in the National League did not work up any frenzied support for the Giants. It was thought in the past that New York would never support a loser, and it is becoming apparent now that the city will not support a winner.

Major league baseball all season has not been up to the usual standard because the leagues have been so poorly balanced. Play has become so mechanical and so slow that there are few thrills remaining for the fans, who want to be entertained. Real bugs may get enjoyment out of the highly scientific play, but real bugs do not support baseball in New York.

High prices charged for admission and the system carried out in New York in the past two years whereby a fan had to buy a ticket for the whole series or a half of the series to get a reserved seat has also hurt the attendance.

New York now has the two biggest baseball parks in the country. The series may fill them for a few games, but it is a bet that there will be plenty of seats available for the last games, if the series should go beyond four or five games.

YOU ARE INVITED TO

A Series of Wednesday Evening Services, in

MURRAY ST. BAPTIST CHURCH

To be conducted by the Pastor, Dr. C. W. ROSE

The Subject will be

"The Fundamental Facts of the Christian Religion"

Only the big things for which Christians generally stand will be discussed in this series. The meetings will last one hour.

DR. ROSE is a forceful Teacher, and his Talks are an inspiration. They will cover his subject in Six Groups of Bible Talks.

WEDNESDAY EVENING is the First, and all are urged to attend the Opening, in order to be in touch with the rest of the Series. It is a wonderful opportunity to get a clear insight into this all-important subject, as interpreted by such an able Student of the Christian Religion.

MARK STREET CANTATA WAS ABLY PRESENTED

The cantata, "Won For Christ," presented at Mark Street Methodist Church last evening under the direction of V. Boorman, organist and choir-leader, was received with close attention, and was the object of many complimentary remarks, both as to its excellent rendition and the quality of careful training displayed in the course of the sacred work, the different sections of which were introduced by Miss Mabel Reynolds and responded to by the choir. Solos were taken by the Misses M. Agnew, M. Sucee, and F. Stenten, and Mr. Boorman sang also in good voice, "A Voice in the Wilderness."
Rally day services were carried out during the morning and eevning, the during the morning and evening, the for the occasion with autumn leaves and flowers.

CONTRACTORS COMPLAIN THAT LABOUR IS SCARCE

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 1.—(Canadian Press).—A. W. Campbell, Commissioner of Highways, and H. K. Carruthers, secretary of the Board of Trade, have returned from a five hundred mile inspection tour of the Ottawa, Point Fortune, Montreal highway, and Montreal to Kingston, via Cornwall and Kingston to Ottawa, via Rideau Lakes route.
The Commissioner was very much impressed with the amount of work accomplished in the time construction had been in progress, and noted particularly that in almost every instance local labor was requisitioned. Many contractors complained of shortage of men in the vicinity, which had delayed work considerably.

LLOYD GEORGE TO GAIN MUCH BY HIS TOURS

Some Political Critics in England Prophesy a Return to Power For Little Welshman—Canadian Trip May Help.

GREAT PUBLICITY

LONDON, Oct. 1. — (Canadian Press).—Canada is in the limelight. In the realm of publicity the Dominion never before had such prominence. This is due largely to extended news service reflecting the life of the country. The Prince of Wales, as a Canadian rancher, Lord Byng, Governor-General as an optimist, and Lord Birkenhead as prophet in the Dominion, have given a fillip to publicity affecting Canada. The prophesy by Lord Birkenhead as to Canada's great development has been widely published here, but it is recognized that the greatest prophet of all is now crossing the Atlantic in the person of Lloyd George. It is expected that the former premier will render great service to Canada as a medium of publicity, his tour in the Dominion will be watched with immense interest here. Although the number of speeches which he will make will be limited, there is little doubt that he will 'deliver the goods.'
His temperament is sensitive to environment and it is believed that he will receive from his Canadian surroundings the right inspiration. No man can speak successfully in cold storage. While his personality has lost some of its charm and his utterances do not kindle the same warmth of feling that he produced when he dominated the parliament as Premier it is still held by many that he will find his way back to seats of the mighty. The possible effect in this direction of his present tour is being discussed in this country. The political correspondent of the Sunday Times says it may easily have a large influence on his future career.

WATCHMEN BOUND AND SAFE ROBBED

Hamilton Police See Hand Of Escaped Convicts in Burglary.

HAMILTON, Oct. 1.—(Canadian Press).—While eating their lunch at ten o'clock last night in the basement of the Wright house, two night watchmen looked up to find themselves covered by the guns of three bandits. They say they were bound by bandits, who then proceeded to blow open the safe. The bound watchmen and the robbery was not discovered until this morning, when the store was being opened for business.
The company says it is not in position yet to say how much robbers took until a thorough check-up of missing valuables, is made.
How the burglars got into the building is still a mystery.
In addition to being bound and blind-folded, the two watchmen, John Gilbert, Hamilton, and George M. Sweet, Grimbsy, were each handcuffed to a bar. Where the thieves got the handcuffs from, is not explained.
While the company says, it is unable to tell its exact loss, the police place the amount at several thousand dollars. They suspect Norman Ryan and the other three convicts, who recently escaped from Kingston penitentiary.

WEEK'S ACTIVITIES BY Y.W.C.A., PETERBOROUGH

The Y.W.C.A. gymnasium is open again, and the first week of October promises to be a busy one, judging by the enthusiasm shown by old and new pupils. Everyone intending to join is asked to come into the classes this week if possible or to register at the office.
Special attention is called to the ladies' class on Tuesday morning and to the fact that the gymnasium will be open Saturday afternoon and evening for badminton games. All equipment will be supplied.
The swimming pool will be open during October for swimmers. A special swimming lesson class will be conducted each Thursday morning. The pool is being kept open at the request of numerous pupils, and it is expected that the Peterboro girls will show their appreciation by using the pool.
The schedule for the week is as follows:
Monday, 8 p.m.—Business Girls' Elementary Class.
Tuesday, 10 a.m.—Ladies' Class (corrective and remedial gymnastics). 7.15 p.m.—Cumjoynus Club. 8 p.m.—Senior Advanced Gymnasium Class.
Wednesday, 4.15 p.m. — Junior Boys' Gymnasium Class. 5.30 p.m. —Classic and aesthetic dancing (Juniors). 8 p.m.—United Club.
Thursday morning—Special swimming lessons. 4 p.m.—Collegiate basketball. 8 p.m.—Ladies' Gymnasium Class.
Friday, 4.30 p.m.—School Girls' (Seniors) Gymnasium Class. 4.30 p.m.—C.O.S. Club. 7 p.m.—Classic and Interpretive Dancing (Seniors). 8 p.m.—Baseball and basketball practice.
Saturday, 9.30 a.m.—School Girls' (Juniors) Gymnasium Class. 10.40 a.m.—Babies' Gymnasium Class. 2 p.m. — Sunshine and Ever Bright Clubs. 7 p.m.—Badminton practice.

ST. GEORGE'S WAS CROWDED SUNDAY

Continuation of Harvest Thanksgiving Attracted Large Congregations.

The Harvest Festival services of Thanksgiving for the good harvest, commenced last Friday at the little Anglican Church in South Peterborough dedicated to Saint George, the patron Saint of England—were continued yesterday. The little church was crowded with earnest and attentive congregations.
The services were fully choral and were conducted by the Rev. W. R. Courage, the rector.

Evening Service
The evening service was especially bright, and in theatrical parlance the S.R.O. boards might well have been exhibited, the little church being quite full.
A special Harvest Psalm of Thanksgiving happened to fall in its proper sequence, being Psalm CXLVI, one of the Psalter according to the Anglican office for the thirtieth evening of the month.

The Anthem
The anthem which at this little church is sung where directed by the rubric in the English church prayer book, viz., after the third collect, was by request, the same as was put up on the previous Friday—"While the earth remaineth" by Caleb Simper of Barnstaple, England, the solo part being taken by Mr. Braun, (not Brown, as a compositor's error was stated in our report of the previous Friday's services).

A Good Sermon
The Rev. W. R. Courage preached a thoughtful sermon on the Prophet Jeremiah's lament "The Harvest is passed, the summer is ended and we are not saved,' from which he drew many cogent observations. Well known harvest thanksgiving hymns were included in the musical repertoire.

St. George's has Many Friends
There are many warm sympathisers with this little church, among the members of St. John's congregation several of whom were noticed among those present. And one family travelled over from South Monaghan from their home some twelve miles distant to be present and offer up their thanks.
The offertory was extremely satisfactory to the Rector and the church awrdens. Mr. Bruce Quin the energetic organist and choir master may well be pleased with the result of this effort. F. R.

RENTS DEATH ROOM TO KILL HIS WIFE

Belgian Soldier Leaves Gloating Letter When He Suicides Following Slaying.

MONTREAL, October 1 (Canadian Press). — "I have rented a room to kill my wife. Never during my life shall I fire such good double shot as the one I am about to fire. Yesterday my wife sent armed men to command me not to bother her. One of them threatened me with a revolver and another, her friend, told me he had something in his pocket for me if I did not keep quiet. Seeing that the law protects these people, I take justice into my own hands.
Above were the contents of a letter left by Jean Goerend, demobilised Belgian officer and interpreter during the war, who shot his wife dead on Saturday afternoon and then committed suicide.
The letter was read at the inquest this morning, at which a verdict of murder and suicide was returned.

PETERBORO MEN AT CONVENTION

Bicycle Dealers' Convention in Hamilton Was Source of Inspiration—Four Attended From Here.

Peterboro was well represented at the convention in Hamilton of the Canadian Bicycle Dealers' Association, when Messrs. K. Simpson and K. Copping of Simpson, Copping & Co. Mr Frank White of White's Cycles and Sports, Ltd., and Mr. T. H. Ashby, attended.
The Peterboro delegates made a strenuous effort to gain the convention for Peterboro for next year, but were ruled out in favor of Hamilton. They expressed the opinion that the annual meeting of the Association, following the general practice in other conventions, should be in different cities, spreading interest and influence.
Many splendid expositions on the bicycle business and its peculiar difficulties, were given by men prominent in the selling and manufacturing business.

Urged Newspaper Advertising
W. M. Gladish, Ottawa Journal, and publicity chairman of the association pointed out newspaper advertising as the surest and quickest way to reach the public. Four features were required in the business—salesmanship, showmanship, storemanship and newsmanship. There are as he illustrated, many ways of obtaining publicity. Thus, he believed and practiced riding a wheel, and thought that the dealer might profit by demonstrating his own adherence to his goods.
As a newspaperman, he found the world composed of two classes of people, those desiring their names kept out of the paper and those who wanted them in. In publicity he gave as a motto: "Keep on telling them and you will keep on selling them."
How important newspaper advertising was he emphasized by reading extracts from the opinions of New York merchant, theatre magnates and others who noted a tremendous drop in business owing to the pressman's strike. He read the opinion of one authority who advocated just one page unit a month advertising, or better, one page unit a week. The speaker called the attention to newspaper advertising as the cheapest means of reaching the public effectively. Other means existed on which he touched lightly.
Mr. Ferries, Sr., spoke on brotherly feeling that should permeate all the dealers, and urged a neighborly spirit rather than a sharp, unfriendly competition. His remarks were greeted with applause.

Few Bicyclists Hurt.
J. W. Gibson of the Canada Cycle and Motor Company, Weston, addressed the meeting. He said that the percentage of accidents to children on bicycles was relatively very small and this should be considered by parents whose children want wheels. He thought that the children on bicycles were safer than those on foot, and the statistics would show that the danger to children on wheels was more fancied than real.
Regarding business he felt that the feeling with regard to depression in the trade was more a mental condition arising from years of depression, than anything else.

VOYAGE OF LIFE SPECIAL SUBJECT

Rev. J. D. Richardson Addressed Massed Sunday School in St. James Church.

Rally day services of special interest were held in St. James' Methodist Church yesterday. At the morning service the Sunday School occupied the centre pews, and the pastor, Rev. J. D. Richardson, spoke especially to the juniors. His subject was "The Voyage of Life," and was illustrated by a miniature sail-boat and flag signals. The pastor was assisted in the service by the superintendent, A. E. Prest, and the assistant, William McLaren.
In the afternoon the Sunday School assembled in full force in the church auditorium, where the special programme for rally service was carried out under the direction of Mr. Prest. Special features of the programme were: Music by the orchestra; singing by the Cognawaga Club; three recitations by children from the primary division; presentation of promotion certificates to a large number of the scholars, and an address by the pastor on "The fourfold growth and how the school may help."
In the evening there was a large congregation present, and the pastor's address was especially directed to the young people, taking for his subject, "The Guiding Star" (Matthew ii., 9, 10).
The church was beautifully decorated with flowers, fruit and vegetables.
The choir, under the leadership of T. W. Chenhall, rendered suitable and appropriate music.

PREDICTS GERMAN CRISIS.
BERLIN, Oct. 1. — (Canadian Press.)— A German Parliamentary crisis is predicted to-day. Political circles say that the Socialists will withdraw from the Government as a protest over the manner the party has been discriminated against in Bavaria, and that Chancellor Stresemann will form a purely Bourgeois government, retaining Chancellorship.

THE BANDITS LEAVE TRAIL OF CRIME IN THEIR JOURNEY WEST

Police Baffled Over Latest Outbreak of Robbery And Violence.

MAY BE CONVICTS

HAMILTON, Oct. 2.—(Special.)—With an audacious daylight bank hold-up in Toronto Thursday, in which $3,000 was stolen, a safe cracked in Hamilton, and $15,000 cash stolen Sunday, a post office robbed in Queenston on Monday, a taxi cab driver relieved of his car drivers's license, cash and watch near St. Catharines the same day, and the description of the criminals who recently escaped from Kingston penitentiary agreeing in some respects with those given for perpetrators of these crimes, a path of violence and banditry seems to be moving westward across the province from Kingston and naturally suspicion falls on the convicts. After thorough investigation the Hamilton police are completely baffled as to the identity or whereabouts of the yeggs who bound and gagged Jonathan Gilbert and George M. Sweet, night watchmen of the Right house, then cooly drilled the safe, blew off the door with nitro glycerine and made away with $15,000 in cash Sunday night. "It was a smooth job and they handled it well. Unless Gordon Simpson was mixed up in it, I don't think any of the escaped convicts from Kingston were in on this job," summed up Detective Joseph Chamberlain, who is working on the case. For men like them it was easy. The watchmen are both old fellows. They were not armed and were caught unprepared. There was no signal service in the building, and carpets, quilts, pillows and everything else necessary to deaden the sound were right at hand. These crooks were of the gentlemen type, too. Why Gilbert there is an old fellow and has been off work sick with rheumatism several times. When the robbers took him up to the wash room and tied him to the bar on the floor he complained, "Don't leave me on this cold, damp marble floor, boys, it will be the death of me."

One of the thieves then went out and collected the oilcloth covers from a half dozen typewriters, put them on the floor, threw a couple of rugs over them, then put the handcuffed watchman on top.

In the opinion of one official of the store, Red Ryan was the guiding hand behind the robbery, but took no actual part. "He had many friends in this city and I think this job was planned with the assistance of an employee of the store, because only at week ends is such a large amount of money in the safe, and outsiders would not know about it. We have a weekly payment system falling due on Saturday and the cash stolen was largely the proceeds of this system."

Chief of Police Green, at St. Catharines, can throw no further light on the robbers' activities in his city, but Fred Flummerfeldt, 18 year old taxi driver for Young's livery, has supplied a fairly good description of the men who held him up.

"I was near the station awaiting a call," he began rather nervously. "There were other cars ahead of me, but three men, all about 5 foot 7 and rather thin, asked me to drive them to Vineland, where they were going to work. They got into the car and did not say much except about trying to get them a job and that being pretty easy, was not listening to their conversation very much. I looked around once and they said go ahead son, keep going. When I neared Vineland they ordered me to drive down a side road and then one of them shoved a revolver at the back of my ear and made me stop the car. They compelled me to get out, two of them pointing revolvers at me, and the other taking the wheel. They kept their heads down and made me look the other way. Prodding my back with a revolver but saying nothing, they made me walk into a field, where they bound my mouth with a clean handkerchief, tying my hands, and roped me about the chest to a tree with my back facing the roadway and almost out of sight. After that they went through all my pockets, took everything I had, saying not a word. They seemed very glad when they came across my driver's license and put it in a club bag. They never hit me and made sure the gag about my mouth was not too tight. Then they drove away."

Embargo On Coal To The Dominion Not Likely Now

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—(Canadian Press).—The action of Representative Rogers of Massachusetts in once more demanding an embargo on anthracite coal, especially aimed at shipments to Canada, is not likely to result in such an embargo.

Had the hard coal strike developed, the demand for an embargo might have proved irresistable, and in any event shipments to Canada would have been much curtailed. With the strike settled, however, and plenty of coal in sight in the United States, neither administration nor Congress is expected to favor cutting off coal shipments to Canada, as it would inevitably re-act unfavorably on United States trade.

STOCK MARKET OPENED BRISK

Both the Rails and Industrials Scored a Number Of Gains.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(Special).—Despite the appearances of heaviness in the general list most of the day, both the rail and industrial averages scored new gains on the day. Over-night news left the general economic sun unchanged, but the stubborn resistance offered to the professional pressure in previous sessions encouraged constructive sentiment and stocks were generally higher in the early dealings to-day.

Baltimore and Ohio led the rails, advancing to a new high for the year at 57 1-2 in response to the belief that the recent levels it had been too near a ten per cent. basis for a high-class railroad stock. Among the industrial leaders fractional gains were scored by Studebaker, Consolidated Gas, Steel and American Can.

Continued improvement took place in the general list in the first hour with the rails displaying most impressive action. New York Central, Baltimore and Ohio, Southern Railway and Wabash Preferred A reached a new high on the movement, while further rallies took place among the leading industrials.

National Enamelling afforded an exception, breaking to 45, off practically eight points from the previous session's high. This decline was based on the size that would necessitate the omission of the dividend. Canadian stocks, which had been the centre of professional attacks in the previous session, scored low at 90 1-2, and Continental Can. 1 1-2 at 49 1-8. American Can. was never in a stronger position from the viewpoint of cash assets.

Opening prices included: Studebaker 94 3-4, up 3-8; Southern Railway 34 1-2; California Petroleum 19¾, up 1-8; Baltimore and Ohio 57 1-2, up 1-2; Consolidated Gas Co. 60¾; Canadian Pacific 142 7-8, off ¼; United States Steel 87 1-8, up 3-8; Baldwin 114 3-4; Pan-American 56 5-8, up 7-8; American Can. 90 1-8; American Telephone 122 7-8; Davidson Chemical 46 5-8, up 5-8.

BLAMES DIRECTORS OF THE BANK OF HAMILTON

TORONTO, Oct. 2.— (Canadian Press.)—Cyrus A. Birger, president, and J. P. Bell, general manager of the Bank of Hamilton, which is being merged with the Canadian Bank of Commerce, in a statement issued yesterday to their shareholders, place the blame for the action of the directors of the Bank of Hamilton on lessened amount of business, shrinking profits and impossibility of reducing overhead expenses below a certain point and maintain efficiency.

WOOLLENS ASK THAT A BY-LAW GO TO PEOPLE

But Council Declines to Grant Request as Fixed Assessment for Company Not Favored.

TO WIDEN SIDEWALK

The question of fixed assessment for the Canadian Woollens Limited again came before Council last evening, when the report of the manufacturers' Committee that the request be not granted.—Carried.

An amendment that a by-law be prepared with a view to complying with the company's request and submitted to the people for their decision was turned down. This amendment was fathered by Ald. Stocker and Holloway.

Talking in support of the company's request, Secretary-Treasurer Tinker stressed two points he had overlooked when addressing the Manufacturers' Committee last week. First, that the Canadian Woollens' directors had in mind a fixed assessment of $150,000 for ten years. Secondly, that when the company closed up their Standard Mill in Toronto, transferring its operations to the Auburn Mill here, employment was provided for one hundred hands, with $100,000 spent in wages the last three or four years.

The company, Mr. Tinker thought, had made a mistake in not asking for fixed assessment at the time such business extension was made here.

Further, Mr. Tinker added, when the Bonner-Worth people got fixed assessment from the city for ten years, now expired, they only agreed to employ some 30 hands, whereas they gave work to 250 people, eight times the number their agreement called for. He urged that the people be allowed to vote on this matter.

Again warmly supporting the company's request, Ald. Stocker emphasised that any company expending about half a million dollars a year in wages is deserving of some concession from the municipality. He also declared the Otonabee Mills in East City really an offshoot of the Canadian Woollens, and spoke for the people having a voice in whatever decision is reached.

Reiterating his position in this regard, as expressed to the Manufacturers' Committee, Ald. Maher declared that Peterborough is carrying so big a load of exemptions that it is time to draw a line. Other ratepayers and merchants on George Street are also under a heavy financial strain, and can get no municipal relief. Personally, he would not recommend to the people an exemption by-law which he could not approve

SMILING BANDIT FACES HEARING FOR MURDER

Charged With Disguising Himself as Fascinating Girl and Slaying an Insurance Broker. Identified by Victim's Wife.

CHICAGO, Oct. 2—(Canadian Press).— Selection of jurors to try Fred Thompson, alias Mrs. Frances Carrick charged with the killing of Richard C. Tesmer, insurance broker who was slain by a smiling girl bandit last June, is expected to be completed to-day.

Eight tentative jurors were chosen yesterday. Thompson appeared in court clad in black trousers, brown sport shirt, brown sweater and grey hose of silk and black pumps. His hair was braided and knotted over the ears and his face was powdered. He complained because he was not permitted to wear complete feminine attire.

Thompson was arrested when detectives believed they noticed a resemblance between him and the smiling bandit who killed Tesmer.

Mrs. Tesmer, who was present when her husband was shot, later identified Thompson as the bandit, according to the police.

BAVARIA MAY GET MONARCHY

Unless Berlin is Able to Put Down Uprising.

MUNICH, Oct. 2.—(United Press).—Proclamation of a monarchy in Bavaria within a fortnight still was forecast by well informed persons here today.

It was the general opinion here that the Reich Government would not be able to muster military forces sufficient to put down the bavarian uprising simultaneously there was indication of collaboration between Hungarian Monarchists and the Bavarians and reports said that the Bavarian uprising would be time to take place with a similar movement in Budapest, aimed to place the infant son of Ex-Empress Zita on the Hungarian throne and to reunit Austria and Hungaria. The order of the Berlin Government for suppression of the official newspaper of the Hitler party has not yet been carried out.

REPORT NEW MINES.

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 2.—(Associated Press).—Mining activities in the Portland Canal Region of British Columbia and southeastern Alaska have been greater during the past summer than ever before in the history of the district, according to advics from various sources reaching Seattle. A dispatch from Hyder, Alaska, centre of the area, says new and important discoveries had been made during the season, more prospectors are in the field than ever before, and development work is being carried on extensively.

Especially important finds were made in the Texas Creek and Chikamen Valley sections, both in American territory, where silver-lead ore running more than $100 to the ton in silver content was said to have been uncovered.

THE REGULAR MEETING OF THE G.W.V.A. WILL BE HELD THIS EVENING, AND NOT ON 7TH OCTOBER, AS ANNOUNCED YESTERDAY. BUSINESS OF IMPORTANCE.

BAPTISTS HAD A GOOD RALLY

District Represented In Gathering at Murray Street.

Enthusiasm ran high at the rally of Baptist Young People held last evening in the Sunday school hall of the Murray street Baptist church. The building was filled with earnest young men and women of the Baptist faith from Norwood, Lakefield, Warsaw, Gilmour Memorial, Park street and Murray street Baptist churches.

A bright song service commenced at 7.45, followed by the moments of devotion, led by Dr. C. W. Rose. Rev. W. E. Morrow, moderator of the Peterborough Association, welcomed the 200 representatives, to which response was was made by Rev. E. Butcher, of Brighton, member of the board of managers of the B.Y.P.A. of Ontario and Quebec. Mr. A. J. Madill, president of the Entertaining Society, made a splendid chairman and piloted the programme to a succesful conclusion.

The unions present responded to the roll call by the singing of a song and a brief report from a member of their society. It was evident from the remarks made by these representatives that Baptist Young People's work in the constituency is in a healthy condition. This was the first of a series of rallies planned to be held throughout this territory, another meeting being arranged for Cobourg this evening.

The first address was given by Rev. N. S. McKechnie, of Belleville, who at Stockholm, Sweden, in July last was appointed vice-president of the Baptist Young People's Union of the World. Mr. McKechnie gave a splendid, illuminating message on his impressions of the Stockholm conference—the third session of the World's Baptist Alliance. He told of the formtaion of the Baptist Young People's Union of the World. Twenty nations were represented at the meeting of organization and the delegations from the European countries told of the persecutions suffered by the people for the faith they exercised in the Lord Jesus Christ.

The second address was given by Rev. Dixon Burns of Toronto, on "The Life of Conquest." Mr. Burns based his discourse on the story of David, who had something to conquer and conquered it. The Philistines were a great enemy and the Israelites were left without swords, but David remembered always the Almightiness of God.

HORSE-DRIVEN VEHICLE AND MOTOR CAR IN A COLLISION

Middle-aged Farmer Living Near Omemee Thought To Have Sustained Fractured Thigh.

OMEMEE, Oct. 2. — Joseph Bradley, a middle-aged farmer living about a mile and a half from the village, was the victim yesterday of a collision between a motor car and his horse-drawn vehicle, which resulted in what is thought to be a fractured thigh. An X-ray examination at the Lindsay hospital, to which Mr. Bradley was removed, is being made by Dr. George Earle.

Mr. Bradley was driving into the village and stopped on the road to speak to Robert Johnson, proceeding in the other direction with a load of sand. A car driven by Will Fee, of East Emily, came up behind Mr. Bradley and tooted a warning. Mr. Bradley attempted to turn out of the way, speaking to Mr. Johnson at the same time, which was evidently interpreted by the horse as a command to stop once more, which the animal did. The oncoming car struck Mr. Bradley and threw him with force to the ground. He was able to crawl back into the buggy and proceed to the residence of Dr. Earle, where he was sent to the Lindsay Hospital.

CANNOT LOCATE GASOLINE TANKS IN ASHBURNHAM

City Council Frowns on McColl Bros.' Desire to Establish a Warehouse and Accessories.

GET ANOTHER SITE

The City Council have no intention of allowing the location of another warehouse and tanks for gasoline and oil in East City, as agreed to by the Property Committee at its last meeting.

This decision was reached last night when Ald. Malcolm McIntyre, on submitting his report of the Property Committee, moved the striking out of the clause recommending that the request from McColl Bros., for permission to erect a warehouse and three 15,000 gallon tanks for oil and gasoline on the Canadian National Railway property south of Hunter street east, be granted.

The motion carried.

Subseqquently Ald. Maher pointed out that residents affected took exception to the proposed location of combustible storage in practically the heart of the city, near hospitals, churches, schools and residential property. Such warehouses and tanks would, he said, constitute a serious menace in case of fire, and the opinion is freely expressed by ratepayers that McColl Bros. should locate on the city's outskirts where the danger would be considerably less.

On motion by Ald. Turner and Maher, McColl Bros. will be asked to seek a more suitable location, and confer with the chairman of the Property Committee in that regard.

Transient Traders' Act.

Through R. R. Hall, Mr. Littener applied for consideration in regard to his license under the above act. It is claimed that Littener had leased the store on George street, onposite Barrie's, and stocked it with fur goods on information from the police station that his license would be $100. Subsequently, however, in applying for a license he found that the bylaw had been amended by raising the fee to $250. Mr. Lettener is not on the collector's roll for this year, and consequently his request for sufficient rebate from the $250 license fee to apply on four months' taxes could not be allowed. However, on motion of Ald. Maher and Fife, the City Solicitor, City Clerk, and the Chairman of the Finance Committee, were authorized to enquire into the circumstances, with power to act in protection of the city's interests

BAN ON WOMEN SMOKERS.

DENVER, Colo., October 1 (Associated Press). — Female prisoners in the Colorado State Penitentiary are no longer permitted the solace of smoking within the walls of the institution, according to Warden Thomas Tynan. The male prisoners are to be allowed to continue the use of the weed, however.

In answer to protests against his action, Warden Tynan said: "It doesn't look well to see women smoke. If they want to smoke, let 'em keep out of the Penitentiary."

Four-fifths of the women inmates of the Colorado Penitentiary smoke, according to statentents made by investigators. A regular tobacco ration is issued to the male prisoners.

IMPERIAL CONFAB OPEN THIS MORNING

LONDON, Oct. 2. — (Canadian Press.) — The Imperial Economic Conference opened at 11.30 to-day, with Sir Phillip Lloyd Graeme, President of the Board of Trade, presiding. The conference is a section of the general Imperial Conference and will discuss economic cooperation of the units of the Empire.

THE TWO MONAGHANS INSIST ON CESSATION OF RIVER'S POLLUTION

Deputation demands from City Council Information as to Just Exactly When Sewage Disposal Plant is to be Installed.

SAY CITY BLUFFING

Reeve H. B. Rye of North Monaghan, Reeve Alex. Anderson of South Monaghan, and some seventeen residents of those townships did not use the padded glove last night, when they waited upon the city council and demanded to know just exactly when contamination of the Otonabee river by Peterborough's sewage was going to cease.

Reeve Rye and at least one other characterized drawing gravel to the lot across the river from the end of Park street for sewage disposal plant purposes as camouflage and a bluff which the deputation had come to call. But council assured the visitors that plans for an adequate sewage disposal plant were in hand, work would be started this week on Park street sewer to feed that plant and that the whole sheme would be pushed through to completion at the earliest possible moment.

Cattle Poisoned

In discussion, members of the deputation pointed out that cattle and horses had died from drinking water from the river contaminated by Peterborough's sewage, and the point was stressed that no doubt some meat sold in this city is affected from the same cause, and by cattle eating pasture also similarly polluted.

Lost Four Horses

Dr. J. D. Deyell, a tax payer here, spoke in the interests of both the townships and this city, and declared that his brother in South Monaghan had lost four horses, whose deaths were due to eating vegetable matter poisoned by Peterborough's sewage. Should that sort of thing continue, he said, the city will find itself sued, like Berlin because of a similar nuisance, which latter municipality had to pay $24,000 in damages and cease dumping its sewage into the waters which flowed through adjacent townships.

An old, old Question

Reeve Rye, delving into history, pointed out that 30 years ago the city, (then a town), was permitted to empty its sewage into the Otonabee for a period of five years only, after which some other means of disposal were to be adopted. But as yet the nuisance has not been abated and for many miles down the river sewage is found lying along the shore in ridges.

Buying property across the river for a disposal plant and drawing gravel thereon seemed to Reeve Rye all camouflage, and he thought the township councils interested had been altogether two lenient in the matter. It is true, he added, that some means for forcing the city into action were resorted to.

Unavoidable Delay

City Engineer Parsons and the aldermen in turn explained to the deputation the delay experienced in getting approval of a sewage disposal system by the Provincial Board of Health, who are now forcing on the city plans for an activated sludge plant, admitted by many experts to be still in an experimental stage where as an Imhoff plant is generally conceded to be the better system of the two.

The deputation was here assured

YOUNG PEOPLE HELD A RALLY

Young Peoples' Societies In District Represented

A Young People's Rally and Conference was held in St. Paul's Church yesterday, with a three-fold programme: "To help solve the Young People's problem in the local Church, to discuss the programme in the new Young People's manual, and to come face to face with the Young People's share of the missionary enterprise."

The Conference, which included members of Young People's societies from Peterboro district, was attended by about twenty-five leaders from the city and district during yesterday afternoon's session, held in the church. Last evening between two and three hundred people gathered in the Sunday School-room, the numbers of city members augmented by about fifty motoring attendants from outside. Representatives were present from Peterboro, Millbrook, South Monaghan, Springville, Omemee, Lakefield, Havelock, Warsaw and Campbellford, and the following ministers from the district were present: Rev. J. C. Robertson, D.D., of Toronto, leader of Young People's work in Canada; Rev. John Griffith, B.A., of Honan, China; Rev. G. L. Craw, Springville; Rev. P. I. Jull, B.A., Lakefield; Rev. Mr. McElroy, Havelock; Rev. Mr. Atkinson, Warsaw; Rev. C. F. McIntosh, Campbellford; Rev. Mr. Black, Omemee; Rev. A. McConnachie, South Monaghan, and Rev. G. S. Gervan, of Millbrook, president of the district organization. Pastors of the city's three Presbyterian Churches, Rev. R. Pogue of St. Paul's, Rev. Jas. Rollins of St. Andrew's, and Rev. M. C. Mackinnon of Knox Church, were present also.

Rev. G. S. Gervan, of Millbrook, was appointed chairman of the Conference, and Rev. P. I. Jull, of Lakefield, the secretary.

Afternoon Session.

The afternoon meeting was taken up mainly with consideration and discussion of an address given by Rev. Dr. Robertson, of Toronto, on "How to Strengthen the Young People's Society in the Local Church," and a short round table conference on the New Young People's Manual, which announces as its aim and object the co-ordination and relation of young people's societies in the church as working parts of a larger whole, outlining its purpose as follows: "It believes that there would be a distinct gain if all these types of work could be so co-ordinated and related each to the other that our young people would think of themselves as parts of a larger whole."

Dr. Robertson spoke of an extended series of young people's conferences which will take place throughout Eastern Canada during the fall months. He emphasized that the programme of Young People's work to-day is one adapted especially to the needs of the youth of the Church

OMEMEE HARDWARE STORE BURGLARIZED A THIRD TIME

Thieves Got Away Last Night With a Bag Containing $50. and Other Loot.

OMEMEE, October 2 (Special to The Examiner). — For the third time within the last seven years, the hardware store of T. J. Parsons was broken into and rifled last night, some time between the hour of 10 p.m., when the proprietor left the premises, and the early opening hour this morning.

A thorough ransacking of the store evidently took place, resulting in the thieves getting away with a bag containing $50.00 in silver, which Mr. Parsons had hidden, securely, as he thought, in the rear of the store, with the few coppers in the till, which was forced, and with some safety razors, jack-knives, and a valuable glass-cutter.

The safe, left open and empty of currency, was also thoroughly investigated, and several cheques left untouched.

Entry was made through the cellar window, where five iron bars were cut, thence up the cellar stair into the store.

Suspicion rests on two young men of questionable character who reside in the district, and who were observed in the village on the same evening.

The Lindsay constable is investigating the case.

"BREAK EMPIRE'S BONDS AND CIVILIZATION WOULD COLLAPSE"

(BALDWIN)

CANADA HOLDS LARGE PLACE IN BRITISH MIND

Frank Yeigh, Noted Lecturer, Impressed By the Publicity Given Dominion Affairs.

AUSTRALIA COMPETES

QUEBEC, Oct. 1.—Mr. Frank Yeigh, well-known lecturer and author of Toronto, who has been on an extended tour of the British Isles and the war areas of France and Belgium, returned on the C.P.S.S. Montlaurier this morning. Speaking of his impressions gained on his travels he said that the outstanding feature of his visit to the other side was his discovery of the prominent position which Canada occupies in London and other cities throughout the United Kingdom, through the government, railway, financial and commercial offices and agencies.

"The Dominion and provincial representatives," he said, "constitute an effective group which is alert in advancing the interests of this country, and the London press is giving much space to Dominion affairs. The relationships forthcoming in the Imperial Conference are most keenly anticipated

Social Interests

"The Canadian ministers there at present or those who are on their way are being deluged with invitations to all sorts of society and other functions," said Mr. Yeigh, "but what impressed me to a great extent was the equal interest which is taken in all the various problems of Canada.

"The question of emigration to the overseas dominions is also to the front,' declared the speaker, "and Canada while finding keen competition in Australia is receiving and will continue to receive a large share.

Immigration Unsolved.

"The immigration problem," he went on to say, "from a Canadian standpoint, is not yet solved and many in Great Britain are expressing the hope and belief that the new ministry of immigration and colonization will do good work in this connection."

The visitor to the Motherland was very much impressed with the burdens which, as he stated, "John Bull is carrying, "and the never-say-die spirit in which he is approaching and handling them."

INQUEST INTO DEATH OF ARTHUR THURSTON

(Special to the Examiner)

LINDSAY, Oct. 2.—An inquest will be held at Bobcaygeon on Thursday to inquire into the cause of the death of Arthur Thurston, who was fatally injured at that village on Friday night. Mr. McNeil, the driver of the car, which crashed into Thurston's buggy was detained only for a short time by the authorities.

THEY CALLED HIM AN "OLD PILL"

THAT was years ago when he packed a terrible grouch, a mighty irritable stomach and a liver that refused to do the things that all good livers should. No wonder his friends called him an "old pill" and stayed away.

But that was years ago—long before he discovered Beecham's Pills and learned that two at bedtime can bring sunshine into a man's life. Today, he's an optimist, a hero to his wife, and a staunch believer in Beecham's Pills.

The cheer that Beecham's Pills bring into a man's disposition, is the incomparable cheer of sound digestion, active liver, and the regular habits that make good health.

At All Druggists—

Wales Would Like To Stay

CALGARY, October 2 (Canadian Press). — Prince Eric of Denmark was at Calgary yesterday, having come from a farm at Red Deer, where he has been staying for two years, to meet Lord Renfrew.

"What did His Lordship say to you?" asked a reporter.

"Lots of things," said Prince Eric. "I am glad I met him before his return home. He said he had enjoyed his stay here in Alberta immensely."

"I think he would like to stay here all the time," Eric added. "Just like myself, His Lordship likes to feel free, and there is no place in the world that one can enjoy this more than in Alberta."

Lord Renfrew played golf yesterday morning with Mayor George Webster; had lunch at the Calgary Golf and Country Club; and then played again with D. J. Young, president of the club, Tom Gillespie, captain of the club, and Major Metcalfe.

He was the guest of honour at a dinner and dance given last night by Sir James and Lady Lougheed.

WOMAN DEAD WITH A GUN BESIDE HER

Had Been Acting Queerly, Neighbors Said.

SUDBURY, Ont., Oct. 1.—Emile Aho, farmer in Neelon Township, retired, Saturday night leaving his wife heating water for bath. Shortly after wards he heard shot and rushing out found his wife dead on the floor with a gun beside her. Neighbors stated that she had been acting in an odd way for some weeks. She was 32 years of age. The body was brought to Sudbury and an inquest is to be held.

STEAMER FOUNDERING WITH CARGO OF LIQUOR

NORTH SYDNEY, N.S., Oct. 1 A small French steamer, reported Yuport, and probably the Yport, 506 tons, went ashore on Scatari Island, Cape Breton, at three o'clock. The message stated that the steamer would be a total loss and that the crew was "sick." It is believed that this should read, "safe."

The Yport sailed from North Sydney about two months ago with twenty thousand cases of liquor for points south and called at Halifax for bunker.

MARKETING OF GRAIN OVER WEEK-END LOWER

WINNIPEG, Oct. 1—The unfavorable weather of the last week is reflected in the grain marketing reports issued by the railway offices here to-day. Marketing on Saturday over the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways aggregated 4,701,277 bushels as compared with 5,566806 bushels for the same date last year, loadings, however, showed an increase with 2,496 cars loaded as compared with 2,475 on September 29, 1922. The Canadian National Railways reports the movement of grain to Vancouver increasing daily.

HARVEST WORKERS ARE TREKKING EAST AGAIN

SASKATOON, Oct. 1.—Eighty per cent. of the harvesters who came here from Great Britain will remain in Western Canada, local Canadian National Railway officials estimated to-day. The homeward trek of eastern harvest workers is well under way, but the bulk of those who came from overseas have decided to stay. A few have gone to the United States but most of them intend to look for permanent jobs in the prairie provinces.

SCHOOL AWARDS.

OTTAWA, Oct. 2. — (Canadian Press.)— Forty-five persons began work yesterday in the graduate schools of the various Canadian universities under Fellowships, studentships and bursaries awarded by the Research Council of Canada. Twelve fellowships, having a value of $1,200 each, eight studentships with a value of $1,000 each and twenty-five bursaries having a value of $750 each, have been granted by the Research Council for the present year and these awards are being held in nine departments of science at nine universities.

RAIL TO JAMES BAY WASTE OF PUBLIC MONEY

The Reported Opinion of Premier Ferguson — Desolate Country and No Business.

HARBOR IMPOSSIBLE.

MONTREAL, Oct. 1. — "I think our recent air trip with the Lieut.-Governor of Ontario and Premier Ferguson of the Ontario government has put a stop to the madness of the idea of building a railway through to the Hudson Bay," said H. D. Wilshire, managing director of the Laurentide Air Services, who returned to Montreal yesterday from a trip to Ontario.

"There is no possibility of making a harbor at the foot of James' Bay. There is no depth of water there, and any channels there are constantly silting up. There is nothing to build a railway for except possibly a little duck shooting in the Fall. The country is wild and desolate, except for a little fur hunting, not enough to attract even the Hudson's Bay Co. So far as traffic to the bay or any possible local business is concerned there is none, probably not more than fifty people going into the Bay there in a year."

"Of course I have no authority to speak for the Ontario government," said Mr. Wilshire, "but from what our pilots could gather from Premier Ferguson on his return from that desolate country he had reached the decision that it would not be worth while to spend any more money on a railway that would have no traffic and a terminal at James' Bay, where there would be no business. He gave us the impression that he had reached the opinion that ex-Premier Drury's idea was a 'washout' and that no further money should be wasted on it."

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCHES ARE TO BE REORGANIZED

NE YORK, Oct. 2.—(Associated Press)—Every pastor of the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A., 10,000 in all, will receive during the next two weeks copies of a new plan for organization of synods, presbyteries and local churches, prepared by the Committee on Reorganization and Consolidation. This is one of the final steps in the reorganization of the church which has been in process for three years.

The plan proposes that each of the 301 presbyteries set up a presbyterial council, a standing committee on promotional program and field activities, and standing committees on the work of each of the four new boards, Christian education and ministerial relief. For each of the 46 synods similar council and committees are suggested.

For each of the 10,00 Presbyterian churches a local church council is planned, to coordinate all the organization and activities of the church, functioning under the session of the local church, and cooperating with the presbyterial committees. The purpose is to effect a harmonized, united and effective effort in all enterprises of the denomination throughout the United States, without in any way sacrificing the individual authority of the local church or presbytery.

BRITAIN OFFERED TO COOPERATE IN LIMITATION OF AERIAL FORCES ON BASIS OF NAVAL AGREEMENT

Premier Baldwin Spoke in General Terms on Foreign Problems in Opening Address to the Dominions' Premiers.

PEACE PREREQUISITE.

LONDON, Oct. 1.—(By the Associated Press.)— The British Prime Minister, Stanley Baldwin, gave a brief talk to-day to the Preimers of Britain's Dominions, gathered here for the Imperial Conference, in which he alluded in general terms to the many problems confronting the governments, but without making definite announcement with respect to any of them.

So far as the situation in Germany was concerned, this was left for Lord Curzon, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, who will make a detailed statement in the course of the week.

The Prime Minster, without referring to the Franco-Belgian occupation of the Ruhr, spoke of the "honest diversion of opinion," between Great Britain and France, and reiterated Great Britain's desire to preserve good relations with that country.

One decisive statement was that the British Government was willing to co-operate with other governments in limiting the strength of air armaments.

The Dominion Premiers also spoke briefly, General Smuts, of the Union of South Africa, laying stress on the need of a complete settlement in Europe.

The conference will not meet again until Wednesday morning.

Relations With France

Premier Baldwin began his review of the Empires' affairs before the Imperial Conference to-day with a sketch of the history of the reparations problem. It was noticeable that he made no allusions to the British Governments' view with regard to the legality or illegality of the Franco-Belgian occupation of the Ruhr.

He remarked that what he described as the "honest divergence of opinion," between Great Britain and France, reflected a difference of temperament and outlook which it would be foolish to ignore, but, he added:

"The last twenty years have shown that they are not incompatible with whole-hearted co-operation in the face of danger. . . I am aware that the patience we have shown in trying to preserve good relations with France have laid us open in many quarters to charges of indecision and weakness, but at least it has borne witness not only to our wish to act, in D'Israeli's words, 'as a moderating and mediatorial power,' in the councils of Europe, but to an ardent desire to preserve the friendship with France."

The Premier would not venture to predict the outcome of the new situation that had developed in Germany, but the promised that Foreign Secretary Lord Curzon would make a more complete statement in the course of the week.

Referring to the conclusion of peace with Turkey, he expressed the belief that the Lausanne Treaty safeguarded all the essential interests of the British Empire, and brought a spirit of reconciliation to this part of the world.

Few Encouragements.

Contemplating the Europe of today, Premier Baldwin could find little for encouragement. The size of armies and the money being spent on munitions were greater than in 1914, while economic solidarity had been rent asunder.

In his reference to armaments he said:

"It will be within your knowledge that we decided with great reluctance to add to our defensive air forces. When announcing this increase in our programme to Parliament, I said, and I should like to repeat here, that in conformity with our obligation under the covenant of the League of Nations, His Majesty's Government would gladly co-operate with the other governments in limiting the strength of air armaments on lines similar to the Treaty of Washington in the case of the navy, and any such arrangement, it is needless to say, would govern our policy of air expansion."

Consolation of History.

With regard to the position of Europe in consequence of the war, the only consolation he could find was to recall past history and the long periods, sometimes centuries, required for recovery after prolonged wars. In a sort of philosophical comment on modern development, Mr. Baldwin said he considered that the mastery achieved over physical forces had been completely out-distanced by the control acquired over human forces.

"The fact is," he said, "that our minds learn far more quickly than our characters change, so that the social and political structure of the world has not kept pace with the growth of its knowledge."

British Influence.

He concluded with an eloquent peroration on the influence that his hearers, representing a commonwealth embracing one quarter of the mankind of all races and lands, could have on the world's progress.

"Like a network of steel embedded in concrete, this commonwealth holds more than itself together," he declared. "It held through the greatest cataclysm that has ever shaken the foundations of the world. Dissolve those ties, and civilization itself would collapse."

Example of Ireland.

The representatives of the dominions, including President Cosgrave, of the Irish Free State, made more or less formal replies to Premier Baldwin's speech. General Smut made the longest, drawing a good augury from the presence of the Free State representative and recalling that two years ago, when the last Imperial Conference was sitting, the state of Ireland was as black as anything existing in Europe to-day, but the difficulties were resolutely grappled with and to-day the Irish Free State was represented in this conference.

"A case like that is to me proof that nothing is really as bad as it looks," remarked the African Premier.

Settlement Essential.

Another point in General Smuts' speech was the great stress laid upon the urgency of securing a settlement in Europe; otherwise, he feared the British Government might find it had undertaken an impossible task in the repayment of the debt to the United States.

"I fear," he continued, "that unless there is a real recovery in the world, unless you can succeed in re-establishing the trade and commerce of the world, you may find you have undertaken an intolerable burden for this country. Our duty, therefore, is to move heaven and earth to have peace re-established in Europe."

Obligation of Debts.

Deprecating the lightness with which some people seemed to regard international debts, General Smuts thrice over repeated this warning, declaring that it was a policy of desperation to suppose that Europe could be left alone in her present stress.

"You cannot have even the possibility of paying the American debt," he said, "unless you can restore peaceful conditions in Europe."

With regard to Empire he thought that without any revolution from Great Britain's settled fiscal policy, much might be done to foster inter-empire trade.

President Cosgrave expressed deep gratitude at the cordial and wholehearted reception extended to the Free State representatives.

Taxi Driver Tied To Tree Even His License Stolen

ST. CATHARINES, Oct. 2.—(Canadian Press)—Local police are of the opinion that the three men who hired a taxi here Sunday afternoon, were driven to Vineland and held up the taxi driver robbed him and drove off, left him gagged and tied to a tree are not the same three that bound up night watchmen and cracked safe of the Right House at Hamilton the night before.

The proprietor of the Chicago Cafe, a cheap hotel operated by a chinaman declares that they spent the night at that house. The taxi was called to that cafe. The driver was first asked what kind of a car he had. On being told it was a Chevrolet sedan the men, who were rough appearing, engaged it for a trip to Vineland. On arrival there the men demanded to be driven off the highway on a side road, stating that they expected a job on a farm. A few hundred yards down the sideroad the driver, Bert Flummerfelt of Young's Taxi Service had two guns poked in his face with an order to stop. The third man pulled him out of the car.

His watch and $5.50 in cash and his Provincial driving license were taken, thre three driving off in the stolen car, leaving him tied to the tree. Twenty minutes later he worked his arms free and phoned the St. Catharine from the nearest farm house.

BOOTLEGGERS TURN ATTENTION TO GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Oct. 2.—"Plug" thieves, who rob railway grain cars as they stand at right in sidings, are the latest menace to the western farmer, according to information obtained from local railway offices. Vast quantities of grain, the total amount of which is inestimable, are lost every year through operations of these "wheat bootleggers" it was reported.

Holes bored in the car floor allow half a bushel or so of wheat to trickle into a sack. The holes are plugged with corks made for the purpose and the loss unnoticed. Many such holes recently have been discovered when the cars are lofted in automatic dumping devices at Port Arthur, it was learned, and now inspectors are watching the car floors for signs of further devastion.

AUTUMN CROPS WELL FAVORED

In Excellent Condition, Says Ontario Department of Agriculture.

TORONTO, Oct. 1.— Autumn growing crops and fruits have been greatly favored by the weather during the past two or three weeks, and are now in excellent condition, according to the report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture to-day. Fall wheat is doing well with the suitable weather prevailing, and fall plowing has been going on briskly. Pastures have also been in good grass, the effect being noticed in the improved cheese and cream, the output of which has been of an average quantity.

WEALTHY WIFE'S DEATH CAUSES INVESTIGATION

Charles Webb of New York Confident Suspicions Will Be Cleared Away.

STOMACH ANALYZED.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1. — Charles Webb, the young New Yorker, who waited ten years for wealthy Gertie Gorman to say "yes" to his ardent suit, to-day found himself the central figure in an official inquiry into his wife's death ten months after she had yielded to his importunities for marriage.

Charlie Webb was waiting again to-day, waiting for the delayed report of the chemists who are analyzing the contents of Mrs. Webb's stomach to see whether or not there is any truth in the charges of her relatives that she was done to death through the administration of a slow poison—probably bichloride of mercury. The friends of the young man say he is stunned by the suspicions as to the manner of his wife's death but is calmly confident that the chemists will sweep away all of the mystery and show that Mrs. Webb, twice millionairess, died of natural causes.

Mrs. Webb's friends always have contended that Gertie Gorman, as they knew her, was not a "man's woman." She had not cared for the companionship of men of an eligible age, she had waited till she was nearly forty years of age before she consented to matrimony. Young Webb's persistence, extending over a decade, broke down her natural aversion to wedlock.

Couldn't Understand it

Gertie's friends—and they included some of the most prominent persons in that circle of New York society which centres in the J. Pierpont Morgan section of Madison avenue —were so surprised at her announcement that she was to wed they openly avowed that some unusually strong influence must have been brought to bear upon the woman whom they had come to regard as a confirmed spinster. Some of the friends were so frank in their comment, that they became estranged.

THE KU KLUX KLAN.

Most Canadians, the Examiner fancies, will agree with Lord Birkenhead's description of the Ku Klux Klan as ludicrous and without an excuse for existing.

That seems to be the whole case in a nut-shell.

What useful purpose is served by this mummery, of the parading around in sheets, the prattel about Kleagles and the "invisible empire" and all the other nonsensical features with which the organization is loaded, it is difficult to imagine.

If our neighbors want to put up with that sort of thing that is, of course, their privilege, but one thing is clear—there is no demand on this side of the line for any organization, Ku Klux Klan or whatever they chose to call themselves, which presumes to usurp the authority of the state.

Any attempt to plant the standard of the klan in this country should be vigorously dealt with.

There is no room here for that kind of thing.

GOOD ADVERTISING.

The fact that over 11,000 of the British harvesters who arrived this summer to assist in taking care of Western Canada's huge grain crop have not made application for a return passage and are evidently going to remain in the Dominion is doubly welcome.

In the first place, Canada gains 11,000 new citizens of more than average calibre, and, secondly, the decision of these men to become citizens here is prima facie evidence that they found the conditions such as to justify their becoming permanent residents, and thus affords an endorsation of Canada that should have a most beneficial effect upon the immigration plans of Hon. J. A. Robb.

It is good advertising for this country, so good that it should be used to splendid advantage in the British Isles by the representatives overseas of the Federal Immigration Department.

Many of these harvesters had no intention of remaining in Canada when they first planned their trip here, and the announcement that the vast majority of them have found the outlook so promising that they decided to remain affords the immigration officials a shot of ammunition that could be most effectively utilized in the United Kingdom.

The opportunity is too good to be lost.

MOTHERS' PENSIONS.

The Secretary of the local board of the Mothers' Allowance Commission in an address yesterday expressed his disapproval of the proposal to have widows with one child considered eligible for assistance under the Act, and he made out a strong case.

Undoubtedly, as he stated, the majority of the women who would come under the class are young and able to earn a livelihood or are living with their parents.

At the same time there are other widows with one child who have a hard time getting along, who find it almost impossible to get suitable employment and at the same time look after their child.

If the regulations could be made elastic enough to allow local boards, with the endorsation of the Provincial board, which is, of course, necessary in any event, to deal with special cases of this nature where the circumstances call for assistance the object of those who are pressing for an extension of the Act would be attained without going as far as the Government will be asked to do so at the next session.

The development of paternalism on a large scale is not a healthy sign, and to admit all widows with one dependent child into the circle of those who receive allowances would logically lead to any early demand that all widows whether with a family or not be included.

More elasticity in the existing regulations rather than a widening out of the Act would perhaps solve the problem.

BEGIN AT HOME.

There is a neat little sermon for Canadians generally in the latest bulletin issued by the Citizens' Research Institute, a copy of which has just been received by the Examiner.

Continuing its delving into the cost of government in Canada and dealing with the Federal Government's expenditures in 1921, the Institute calls attention to some interesting figures.

For example, the per capita expenditure in 1921-22 was almost two and a half times greater than that of 1913-14, and a sum equal to the total expenditure of 1921-22 would have more than wiped out Canada's net debt of 1914.

Furthermore, the total debt charges of 1921-22 were more than nine times those of 1913-14 and equalled 40 per cent. of the total net debt.

Such statistics as these cause the verdict that there are only two ways to lessen the burden—one, to do without some of the less essential services, or, two, to discover some means of cutting down the costs of producing the existing purposes.

Either of these is possible only when economy and efficiency become good politics, and they will become good politics only when the "savers" are as vocal, as insistent and astute as the "spenders," and when citizens and constituencies are willing to have national economy begin at home—their home.

The truth of this last statement should be readily apparent.

Unfortunately, most districts want to see the Government save money in some other locality, and they keep pestering Ottawa for unnecessary public works and expenditures or enterprises that can very easily be deferred if not dropped altogether.

GETTING SETTLERS.

It should not be surprising that Australia and New Zealand are getting a considerable flow of immigration when the details of their methods are looked into. Settlers are not, for example, selecting the Antipodes in preference to Canada after carefully comparing the relative merits of the two countries. They are choosing the southern hemisphere very largely because of the terms offered. Both Australia and New Zealand are giving very strong inducements to those who settle on their lands, and it is well that the people of Canada should know the facts of the matter.

In the first place, Australia pays $60 toward the passage of a selected British settler, and New Zealand pays a sum which is equivalent to half the cost of transportation. The meaning of the word "selected" will be discussed in a moment. It will be conceded at once that a man disposed to emigrate will be strongly influenced by this substantial contribution toward his moving expenses. Then, after his arrival, he is given financial assistance toward becoming a producer. In that regard the amount is not specified; but it comes within the scope of a broad plan which aims to place each settler in a position to reach self-containment as quickly as may be practicable. Back of this is an exceedingly comprehensive social system which has no parallel in any country. It gives particular attention to children and home life, and in that connection New Zealand lays emphasis on its low rate of infant mortality.

Australia and New Zealand not only follow a rigid policy of exclusion, but have as well an excellent organization in Great Britain for the purpose of exercising discrimination among those who apply for assisted passages. For instance, only in exceptional cases are reduced fares given to men and women over 50 years of age, the main object being to select only those who, on various grounds, are regarded as likely to succeed in their new home. It will be seen at once that all this is very important on its bearing on the final results of the general scheme of state aid. Preference is given to those who propose to take up land, and to farm-laborers. Artisans are discouraged, and find it very difficult to comply with the conditions on which they are permitted to remain in the country.

In fact, the word "selected" to which reference has just been made, is given a deep significance. The underlying purpose is to get desirable settlers, and in that regard Australia and New Zealand draw the color line fearlessly. They will not allow Asiatics to land at all, and emigrants from Southern Europe find themselves on arrival in contact with an educational and social test which very few, if any, are able to meet. In connection with the Antipodean scheme one also hears a good deal about "nominated" immigrants. These are people who already have friends or relatives in Australia or New Zealand, or for whom a place awaits. In all such instances the bona fides of the nominator are carefully scrutinized. In short, elaborate care is taken by the state authorities to see that fraud is made impossible, and, on the other hand, that satisfactory settlers are secured.

It would be futile to compare this immigration policy with any thing that is being done by Canada. Few parallels are discernible. We are inviting settlers; but we neither help to pay their passage nor give them any financial assistance after their arrival. To a large extent they have to shift for themselves. We have nothing approaching the broad plan of espionage and help given by Australia and New Zealand to new arrivals, nor have we as rigid a system of exclusion. There was a time when Canada gave assisted passages to immigrants, and paid a bonus to continental booking agencies; but time revealed a good many abuses, a great deal of waste, and some irregularities. Canada was often made a convenient side door for the United States, and, in view of the unsatisfactory nature of our experience between 1880 and 1905, it is scarcely likely that public judgment would approve any attempt to copy the methods adopted by Australia and New Zealand. It would involve a large sum of money, and opposed to all classes of expenditure is a demand for stern economy.

Canada is in urgent need of settlers, and, when our advantages are fairly appraised, we should not need to face all the risks attaching to a system of state aid in order to get them. Whether or not we could find something to appropriate from the Antipodean system of following up immigrants after their arrival is a matter for consideration; but, apart from that, our aim should be to adequately present to the right class of people in Great Britain and certain countries in Europe the inducements we have to offer. Those inducements are so meritorious that we should be able to draw tens of thousands to our shores. The time is fast approaching when no country on earth will have free land of arable richness to give away, and that should count strongly in our favor. However, free land does not attract as it once did. Settlers of the right type do not object to paying a fair price per acre if there are compensating advantages. B that as it may, the people of Canada will approve a comprehensive and aggressive immigration policy on the part of Government, in the belief that population is essential to our national development. Public judgment will not, however, assent to anything wasteful or inefficient in that regard. It demands satisfactory results.—Ottawa Journal.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, October 2. — The market at the Union Stock Yards yesterday morning had quite a holiday appearance, but sellers more ho apathetic, but sellers more hopeful owing to the smaller run. Yesterday morning's receipts were 2,951 cattle, 433 calves, 1,424 hogs, and 2,125 sheep and lambs.

There were 517 cattle on through billing, of which three loads were for export. The total carry-over for last week was less than expected, and only totalled 1,166 cattle. The total offering was therefore a little over 4,000 head, compared with last week's over 7,000.

The average quality of yesterday's cattle was not good. There were only about four loads of heavies and exporters were not particular whether they operated or not. The cooler weather is sending more cattle in from the country north from Barrie to North Bay, and these as usual, are of poor quality. One firm had 16 loads of Western cattle on sale, and all told there were about 500 head of these on the market.

In general there was not much change in prices from last week and no sales seemed to indicate any advance. For a load of plain steers, for killers, around 800 pounds each, Harry McCrae paid $4.75 a cwt. Packers wanted more canners and bologna bulls than were on the market, and the latter sold at $2.75 and $3.00 a cwt.

Lambs had a steadier undertone, as was expected after last week's slump. Trade was slow in opening, and an early bid of 10 cents a pound for bucks was turned down. One load of top lambs was sold by F. Dunn at 12 cents for the ewes, and $10.50 a cwt. for the bucks. This made the market half a dollar higher than last Thursday.

For another load 11 1-4 cents was paid for the ewes, but these were not tops, and included a fair proportion of mediums.

Sheep were quite steady.

Packers' buyers in hogs said they were paying steady prices, but left the inference that they may try to shade the price a little later in the week. Yesterday's quotation was $8.75 a cwt. f.o.b., and 60 cents a cwt. added fed and watered.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 2.—(Canadian Press)—The trade in future cash wheat was very quiet on the local cash grain market today. The foreign demand for grain was limited and the market was dull. A fair amount of business was done in spring wheat flour, the tone was steady. The trade in winter wheat flour was also steady. There was no change in the condition of the market for millfeed, the feeling was firm. Trading in baled hay was quiet and prices were steady. A fairly good trade was done in eggs with no change in prices. A weaker feeling prevailed in the market for potatoes. The butter market was dull and easy.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

CHICAGO, October 2 (Canadian Press). — With corn soaring to new high price records for the season, wheat and oats yesterday developed fresh strength. Reports that frost in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, and Iowa had done corn direct damage equal to 70,000,000 bushels, exclusive of reduction in quality, was the chief bullish influence affecting all grain.

Wheat closed firm, 3-4c to 1 3-8c to 1 1-2c net higher. December $1.06 5-8 to $1.06 5-8 to 3-4, and May $1.10 3-4 to $1.10 3-4 to 7-8.

Corn finished 1 3-4c to 2 5-8c up; oats at 1 1-8c to 1 1-4c up; and provisions varying from 12 cents decline to 12 cents advance.

At first the wheat market showed a downward tendency owing to disturbed conditions in Germany and the lower prices at Lievrpool. The notable strength which soon developed in the corn market, however, brought about a quick reversal of the action of wheat. Buying of corn has been persistent from the outset, and had been more or less stimulated because of continued wet weather West. It was after bullish crop estimates were made public, though, that corn values began to jump in earnest. Throughout the remainder of the day, demand for corn was on a broad scale, with offerings small, and May went above any previous top figures for that month this season.

Profit-taking sales in the wheat market led to only a moderate reaction from the day's best prices. Free buying on the part of commission houses absorbed the offerings.

Meanwhile, talk of the likelihood of Government aid to wheat growers and the absence of export business apparently failed to make much impression.

Shippers of corn bid prices of cash corn up in competition with industries, No. 2 yellow sold as high as 94 1-4c a bushel, the topmost quotation yet in 1923. Oats, like corn, reached new high price records for the seasons.

Provisions were firmer with hogs and grain.

CHICAGO CATTLE.

CHICAGO, October 2 (Canadian Press). — Cattle, receipts 26,000; fairly active; fed steers and yearlings closing 15c to 25c higher; best matured steers, $12.35; mixed yearlings upward to $11.75; stockers and feeders active, strong to 15c higher; bulk, $5.50 to $6.50; bulk bolognas, $4.25 to $4.50; light grass bulls downward to $3.50 and below; bulk vealers to packers, $11.50 to $11.75; few at $12.00.

Hogs, receipts 42,000; desirable kind steady to 10c higher; others mostly 10c to 15c lower; bulk good and choice 180 to 325 pound average, $8.00 to $8.40; top, $8.45; desirable 140 to 160 pound averages, $7.50 to $7.90; packing sows, $7.10 to $7.30; better grades weighty killing pigs, $6.50 to $7.25; estimated holdover, 12,000.

Sheep, receipts 48,000; fairly active; fat lambs unevenly steady to 25c lower; bul knatives $12.25 to $12.75; culls, $9.00; very few fat sheep offered; feeder lambs around 25c lower; bulk, $12.75 to $13.00.

WINNIPEG CATTLE

WINNIPEG, October 2 (Canadian Press). — Receipts, 5,670 cattle and calves, 690 hogs, and 160 sheep and lambs.

With a heavy volume of offerings, trading was dull and draggy on the cattle market yesterday morning. There was a poor demand for the better grades, while plain and medium killing steers sold from $3.00 to $4.00 and butcher cows from $2.50 to $3.25.

On the hog market, thick smooths weighed up to $9.25 and select bacons at $10.17 1-2.

The sheep and lamb market held steady at $7.00 to $9.50 for lambs and $4.50 to $6.00 for sheep.

PRIZE BULL SOLD TO AMERICA.

LONDON, October 2 (Associated Press). — The Jersey bull, Xenia Sultan, has been disposed of for shipment to America. Although the price has not been divulged, the figure is stated to constitute a record.

BURLEIGH NEWS

BURLEIGH FALLS, Oct. 2.—A number of people from here attended the Lakefield Fair on Wednesday last.

Mrs. W. G. Stone has returned after spending a couple of weeks in Lakefield with her daughter, Mrs. Sanderson.

Mr. Albert Bolton took in the excursion to Bobcaygeon Fair on Friday.

Mr. Geo. Mowden passed through here last week with a large drove of cattle.

Miss Olive Drain spent the week-end with friends on Long Lake.

The many friends of Mrs. Norman Bolton regret to learn of her recent illness.

Miss Hazel Winson has accepted a position in Peterboro.

Miss L. Walsh of Peterboro has returned to her home after spending a couple of weeks with her aunt, Mrs. D. Walsh.

Mrs. Robt. Stone visited her daughter, Mrs. A. Batten last wek.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie Dunford and family attended the Bobcaygeon Fair on Friday.

Mrs. C. Montgomery of Lakefield was a recent visitor at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Winson.

The stone crusher was closed down last week. The road gang has broken up after completing a very successful summer's job.

ACCIDENT KILLS YOUNGEST

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., Oct 1.—George Prout, aged four was instantly killed near here last night, when an automobile overturned on the hill. Other members of the family were in the car but escaped injury with the exception of an elder sister, who had a bruised shoulder. The family lives at Kakabeka Falls.

Cobourg and District

COBOURG, Oct. 2.—Several real estate transfers have taken place in town and country during the past few days.

Mrs. J. W. Rowcliffe, Baltimore, has sold her property in that village to Mr. Monroe of Acton who will take possession shortly. Mr. Monroe has two sisters residing in this locality and he himself is not a stranger in the community.

Thomas McKind has sold to Mrs. Ada McGale a house and lot on Albert street, Cobourg.

Mrs. Catharine McKay has sold to Bertram Miller a property at the corner of Ball street and Ball Lane, Cobourg.

John W. H. Nurse has sold to James Tait part of lot 24 in the 8th concession of Hamilton township.

A. C. McGlennon has sold to James Shaw part of lot 1 concession B, Haldimand township.

Mrs. Nobles property at Wicklow in Haldimand township has sold to Wm. Button, Colborne, who will start a garage there, it is understood.

Presentation to Citizen.

Mr. W. E. Barrett who has been employed by the Cobourg Matting Company for some years, is leaving town having taken a position elsewhere. At the regular meeting of the Cobourg Lodge 136, I.O.O.F. he was presented with a handsome three-link stick pin set with pearls. An appropriate address was read by Mr. Arthur Boyle, N.G. to which Mr. Barrett made appreciative reply. Mr. Barrett has been a resident of the town for the past nineteen years and his departure is regretted.

Peterboro Representatives.

Mrs. C. C. Graham, Mrs. Herbert Stinson and Mrs. W. H. Lytle of Peterboro represented Otonabee Chapter at the district meeting of the Daughters of the Empire held in Port Hope on Wednesday.

The Mohawk Fair.

Of all of the fairs on the lakefront district none attracts more interest perhaps than the one arranged for by the Mohawks on the Tyendenaga Reservation, A citizen who attended states that the showing of horses and cattle was excellent, and also the domestic manufacturers. Horse races are of course a feature, there as elsewhere, and there were some close trials of speed. The school children showed their pet stock and a lively interest in the fair is taken by young and old.

Farmers Are Pleased.

The fine weather of the week that has just passed was a matter of general comment with the farmers on the market Saturday. It has given them a chance to complete the silo filling and the digging of potatoes, and also to get down to the fall plowing, the ground being in good condition now. On some farms fall wheat is up, and looks well. The rains have improved the pastures, and the flow of milk is accordingly better.

Half Holidays Over.

The merchants observed their last half holiday for this season on Wednesday of last week, and business will proceed as usual for six days of the week until next spring. The Wednesday half holiday has been pretty well observed heer throughout the summer and autumn so far, excepting by the industries, who take Saturday afternoon instead.

Stark—Morris.

The marriage took place at Ameliesburg last Wednesday, Rev. J. D. P. Knox officiating, of Miss Thelma Leone Morris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Morris of Massassaga to Mr. Floyd N. Stark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Stark of Thurlow. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Rose Fairman of Huff's Island. The young couple left later for a motor trip to Western points.

Fowl Supper.

The annual fowl supper of the Plainville Methodist church held on Monday evening proved to be a very enjoyable affair. There was a record attendance and an abundance of good things to eat. After the supper a fine entertainment was given. Miss Tuite of Albert College, Belleville gave much appreciated recitations. Rev. Mr. Rickard sang, and a number of ministers gave addresses including Rev. Mr. McCord of Harwood and Rev. J. S. Ferguson, Baltimore, Rev. F. J. Horwood is pastor of the church.

Car Stolen.

The theft of a practically new car belonging to Mr. W. J. Bradley of Newcastle occurred recently. The garage is close to Mr. Bradley's residence, but the thieves managed to get away with the car without awaking any one.

Fruit For Hospital.

Orono Women's Institute is asking every member to contribute one quart of fruit towards a supply which is being collected to send to the Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto.

Cobourg C.I. Won.

At Port Hope on Friday Cobourg Collegiate Institute won from the Port Hope High School in an interesting game of ball 8-4. Gibson pitched a good game for the winners. The baseball season is practically closed now, but it has been an interesting one from every point of view. As yet there is little talk about hockey, but the summer-like atmosphere may account for this.

TRENT RIVER

TRENT RIVER, Oct. 2.—Rally Day Service was observed at the Methodist church Sunday by a large congregation. The choir consisted of the Junior Girls and Boys of the Sunday School, Rev. Mr. Seymour gave an address on "Growth."

The Ladies' Aid will hold their regular meeting Wednesday afternoon at the church at 2 o'clock.

Prof. Wayne of Albert College, Belleville, will address the congregation Sunday next.

'First Aid' For Sick Children

THE experienced mother is not alarmed when a child becomes sick. She knows that most of the ailments of childhood are trifling. If it seems serious she calls a doctor, but whether or not she calls him, she gives, first of all, a good laxative medicine. The doctor would advise that anyway. It is his "first aid." Such experienced mothers as Mrs. G. R. Paquette, Pierreville, Que., and Mrs. J. F. Beale, 325 Johnson Av., Winnipeg, always give Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin at the first indication of sickness. Such timely doses have saved them much worry.

The Meaning of "Good"

All doctors agree that a thorough cleaning out of the bowels is of first importance for it removes dangerous intestinal poisons. They will also advise a "good laxative," and by "good" they mean one that is effective and yet harmless. They know that there are physics that never should be given to children — calomel, which is mercury and loosens the teeth; phenolphthalein, a coal-tar drug that causes skin trouble; salts, which concentrate the blood and dry up the saliva. They consider Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin safe for all ages as they know it is a simple vegetable compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and agreeable aromatics. The formula is on the package.

Give Laxative for Colds

Adults should have at least one movement of the bowels every 24 hours, and children two or three. Failure to have it means constipation, then headache, biliousness, drowsiness, lack of appetite. Give a dose of Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin at bedtime, and there will be health and good feeling by morning. A dose costs less than a cent, and a bottle can be had at any drug store. Colds and constipation come together, so if you notice coughing or sneezing stop it at once with Laxative Syrup Pepsin.

NEWS OF HASTINGS AND THE DISTRICT

HASTINGS, Oct. 1.— Rally Day was generally observed in the local churches on Sunday in connection with the Sunday school.

Friends of the school had gone to a great amount of trouble in floral decorations and the programme provided for the occasion was carried out in its entirety.

The service was one long to be remembered and fraught with blessing.

In the evening, in the Methodist church, the annual League rally was held, Rev. Tucker, of Toronto, gave the address of the evening and some good vocal selections were rendered by the choir.

The funeral of the late Sylvester Rusaw was held on Sunday afternoon from his late residence to Merrill's cemetery. A very large concourse of relatives and friends of the family had gathered to pay their last respects to a kind neighbor and friend. Rev. M. L. Hinton, pastor of the Methodist church, spoke very feelingly from the text, "For me to live in Christ but to die is gain," and paid a high tribute of respect to the memory of the deceased, who, though a very great sufferer, bore it all with true Christian fortitude. The funeral was under the direction of the L.O.L., of which he was a respected member and was very largely attended.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Brown left on Monday morning for a visit with friends in Kingsville and Detroit.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Watson, of Norwood, were in town on Sunday attending the funeral of the late Mr. Rusaw.

Dr. J. H. and Mrs. Hess and family motored to Wooler on Sunday to visit the former's sister, Mrs. S. McColl, who is seriously ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lambert were in Toronto on Sunday visiting their son Earl, who is very ill and is about to undergo a critical operation. His many friends here wish for him a speedy recovery.

Mrs. J. Begg, of Peterborough, is visiting at the home of Mrs. S. Rusaw.

Miss Annie Sargent of Westwood, was in town on Sunday.

Miss Bessie Warner spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Warner.

Mrs. Charlie Huycke has returned from a visit with friends in Millbrook.

Paul Bailey and John Howard have left for Montreal to attend college.

Dr. Wade of Norwood, was in town on Sunday.

Tramped Far On Half Loaf

CAMPBELLFORD, October 2. — Chief Duncalfe has sent to the Seymour Council a bill for $13.00 for taking care of four French - Canadians from Waterloo, near Montreal, who were taken into custody while hanging around the premises of W. M. Stephens, after having been refused permission to sleep in the barn.

The men had been lured to work on the C.N.R. section at Beaverton, but found the work too hard, and after four days started to walk home.

All they had to eat on the journey from Beaverton to Peterborough was one loaf of bread. They walked here from the latter city, and were almost famished when the Chief took them into custody.

After being fed and lodged for the night, they were allowed to proceed on their way.

OYSTERS ON HALF SHELL WAS STONE AGE MENU

WINNIPEG, Oct. 2—(Canadian Press).—Oysters on the half shell was apparently no unusal item on the stone age menu in Manitoba, whether our cave-man ancestors had a fondness for the succulent bivalve is not easily determined, but, certain it is that they could without much trouble, gathr a few dozen for the preface of a meal of roast dinosaur.

Plowing along the top of a hill at Pope, Manitba, A. G. Shearer recently unearthed what is believed by scientists to be a relic of the pre-glacial age—a fossilized oyster.

"In all probability he struck a rock carried by the ice of the glacial age and belonged to a period millions of years earlier than the ice age," was the comment of Dr. R. C. Wallace, professor of geology at the University of Manitoba. Mr. Wallace stated that the limestone and clays of this province were full of fossils of millions of years ago. At one time, he said, this whole country was the bed of an ocean. There is no river or lake near Pope now.

TO RAISE BUTTERFLIES.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 2.—(Associated Press)—An application made by John Hewlett, of Redlands, Cal., for a permit to establish a butterfly ranch on 40 acres of land in the Angeles forest reserve near San Bernardino, has forced the national forest bureau to go into extensive research to determine what effect butterfly culture would have on a forest.

According to Forest Supervisor R. H. Charlton there never, to his knowledge, had been such an application before and he held up Mr. Hewlett's request until the mattre could be investigated.

Mr. Hewlett proposed to sow the 40 acres in flowers favored by butterflies and to breed the insects to be sold for decorative purposes.

There are two fox farms in the national forests of southern California, permits for which were granted after it was determined that the animals could not damage the preserves. This section also boasts of alligator, ostrich and lion farms, not, however, on the national domain.

FIVE BYE-ELECTIONS IN QUEBEC OCTOBER 20TH

WARKWORTH NEWS

WARKWORTH, Oct. 2.—Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Drewry motored to Cobourg on Sunday. Mrs. Knight accompanied them as far as Grafton.

Mrs. W. C. Day and son, Oran, also Mrs. Jas. Arkels and Craig of Castleton, were in town Sunday.

Mr. Duncan Macpherson returned to Toronto on Monday after spending the past week at the home of his uncle, Mr. W. J. Baker.

Miss Blanche Baker has returned after spending the past two weeks at the home of her brother, Mr. M. J. Baker, Hastings.

Mrs. Leo Phillips spent a few days at the home of her sister, Mrs. W. Nelson, Castleton.

WEALTHY WIFE'S

Mrs. Webb's relatives, especially her aunt, Mrs. William T. Hunter, of Devon, Pa., were nonplused by the marriage. Naturally these relatives and friends never had a kindly feeling toward Webb. They had known him as Gertie's persistent but unsuccessful suitor for a great many years, had known that he had advised with Mrs. S. Jennings Gorman her mother, about real estate matters but they regarded him as having been definitely placed on the plane of a friend of the family. They suspected no change of status even after Mrs. Gorman died some two years ago. But there was a change. Gertie was left alone with her father Webb pressed his advantage after the mother died and eventually broke down his sweetheart's resistance.

Was Shunned

Still living in his father-in-law's palatial Madison avenue home, Webb complained to-day that he had been shunned at the funeral Saturday. He was not surprised however, to get a request to confer with the New York authorities who desired to question him as to his married life and his knowledge of the various illnesses which led to his wife's death. The authorities admit that in the absence of a definite report from the chemists they have nothing upon which to proceed. In view of the suspicions which have been expressed so freely by her friends and relatives however, they were certain Webb would want to tell his side of the story. It is known that Judge McIntyre consulted the New York city authorities before Mrs. Webb's death and the prosecuting attorneys here have been led into the inquiry on the theory that if any poison was administered the plot began in this city.

Had Large Estate

The chemist's report may not be ready for several days yet. But meantime the relatives who were made the main beneficiaries of Gertie Gorman's $2,000,000 estate under a will signed prior to her marriage have come to New York to make war against any part of the estate passing to Webb under the ten line will in his own handwriting signed during the last illness of Mrs. Webb.

In all its aspects the case promises to become one of the most noted in this city of manifold mysteries.

RALLY SUNDAY AT FAIRMOUNT CHURCH

Address on Possibilities of the Sunday School's Work

CAVAN, Sept. 30— Mount Pleasant and Fairmount Sunday schools had a splendid "rally day" service on Sunday at Fairmount. Mr. Carley sang a solo. The Rev. Mr. Horwood delivered a very interesting address on "Fourfold Growth, and How Our Sunday School Can Help." He kept the primary classes and also the older people interested throughout. At the close of the service Mr. Horwood played a selection on the organ ,which was very much enjoyed.

There was a good attendance from the three Sunday schools. The church was filled to capacity. There were four Sunday school superintendents present: Mr. Gardiner from Mt. Pleasant, Mr. Douglas from Cavanville, Mr. Hooten of Fairmount, also Mr. Snelgrove, who was visiting friends at Fairmount.

The Rev. R. L. Richards and Mr. Richard Matchett attended the district meeting in Frazerville on Thursday afternoon.

Personal Mention.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Armstrong and two little daughters spent a week at Parry Sound visiting Mr. Armstrong's sister, Mrs. Alex. Ferguson. During the hot week they found it very pleasant at the Georgian Bay.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Perrin, Little Britain, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Staples on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lang attended Orono Fair on Friday.

Mrs. Casey, Valentia and Mrs. Staples, Hamilton, are visiting at the home of their brothers, Mr. James and Mrs. Edward Keegan.

Born—In Cavan, on Friday, September 28th, to Mr. and Mrs. Hal Argue, a daughter.

Next Sunday Thank offering services will be held at Cavan Methodist church, at eleven a.m. and seven p.m. Rev. R. Bamforth, B.A., of Peterborough, will preach at both services. The choir will render special music.

The services for the day on the other appointments will be withdrawn.

A LITTLE STORY ABOUT BEER, BUT NOT IN U. S.

BUENOS AIRES.—(By Mail to United Press).—The internal consumption of beer in the breweries of the Argentine is 5,600 litres daily, which represents an annual loss to the tax authorities of 70,213.32 pesos, as beer consumed in breweries is not taxed.

The beer industry is one of the best organized in the Argentine, and is virtually a monopoly, as it is controlled by one financial group.

This industry, with its big profits, increasing annually, has always been greatly favored by the Federal and Provincial tax authorities, who do all within their means to reduce taxation on it. Recently a law was passed reducing taxes by 75 per cent., which means an annual profit for the breweries, but not for the consumer ,of 3,450,000 pesos, as the prices have not been reduced.

IRISH BOY CRUSHED TO DEATH AT CORNWALL

CORNWALL, October 1. — John Morton, aged 18, was instantly killed when he was crushed between the Canadian Merchant Marine Steamer, Canadian Engineer, and the side of Lock 21 of the Cornwall Canal here last night. Morton was was going down a rope preparatory to placing a line to hold the steamer while it was being locked through when he slipped between the coping and the boat. When he shipped with the Canadian Engineer in Montreal, about three weeks ago, he gave his home as Belfast, Ireland.

STOLE ARLIE MARKS' CAR IN CAMPBELLFORD FOUND IN GRAFTON

Taken From in Front of St. Lawrence Hotel — Another Bold Car Theft From Garage.

CHEESE BOARD.

CAMPBELLFORD, October 2. — Auto thieves have begun operations in Campbellford. On Saturday evennig, while Miss Arlie Marks, whose show was at the Opera House, was eating supper in the St. Lawrence Hotel, some one drove off with her $2,000 car which was standing on the street in front of the house.

The theft was reported to Chief Duncalfe as soon as the loss was discovered, and the owner notified all the surrounding towns to be on the lookout. The first trace of the car was picked up in Trenton; the driver headed for Cobourg. Chief Ruse, of the latter town, finally located the missing auto at Grafton, where it had been abandoned at the roadside.

Chiew Duncalfe, Miss Marks and her husband, W. E. Perrie, left for Grafton in Sam. Covert's car and returned about 3 o'clock in the morning with the missing property. The thief had driven the auto over 90 miles, and the engine was hot when found, but the car was not otherwise damaged. It was found in less than three hours after having been stolen.

Chief Ruse got the $50 reward offered by Miss Marks for the return of the car.

Helped Himself to Auto.

On Friday evening some person entered Sam Covert's auto livery establishment about 6 o'clock during the absence of the owner and helped himself to a car. Mrs. Covert, who noticed him, mistook him for one of the employees. When Mr. Covert returned he and Chief Duncalfe started in pursuit and after visiting Havelock returned to Trent River, near which place they found the car by the roadside.

Cheese Brings 22 3-4.

At the last meeting of the cheese board the number of boxes boarded by the various factories was as follows: Brae, 100; Crow Bay, 50; I. X. L. 45; Kimberley, 74; New Model, 32; Trent Valley, 35; West Seymour, 94; Woodlands, 90, a total of 490.

Only two buyers, Ivey and Fitzgerald, were present. The former set the price, 22 3-4, and selected Brae, Kimberley and Woodlands, Fitzgerald taking the balance.

The next meeting will be held Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Stanwood factory and some of the others have definitely decided to sell to the Co-operative Company or direct to Belleville.

Brief Session of Court

Judge E. C. S. Huycke of Peterborough, held division court here Monday. There were only one or two minor cases and the session was soon over.

As Dr. G. A. Hay is clerk of the Division Court as well as of the Seymour Council, the regular meeting of the latter body was adjourned until Tuesday.

LITTLE CHANCE TO CAPTURE BURGLARS

Safe Blowers in Hamilton Made a Clean Getaway Yesterday.

HAMILTON, October 2.—(Canadian Press).—The chances of capturing the three burglars who climbed into the second story window of the Right House, a big departmental store, blindfolded and handcuffed John Gilbert and George M. Sweet, watchmen, blew the safe and made off with more than $10,000, are considered slim.

The only definite information available at the police station last night was that it was not Ryan and his gang of escaped convicts from Kingston who staged the recent Toronto bank robbery. The Kingston convicts belong to a different order of criminals, being daylight bank robbers and hold-up men, whereas the men who looted the Right House are ordinary safe blowers.

PICKED BOXER'S POCKETS.

QUEBEC, October 2.—(Canadian Press)—Jack Johnson and 'Battling' Siki made their Quebec debute here last evening by giving a six-round exhibition at the Arena before a crowd of some three thousand people. Johnson's skill in boxing was a feature. Johnson complained after the exhibition that his pockets had been picked and the sum of $600 taken.

TERRIFIC WINDSTORM.

NORTH SYDNEY, N.S., October 2.—(Canadian Press).—Cape Breton was in the grip of a terrific wind and rain storm yesterday. A heavy easterly gale raged all day, the electric light service was out of commission, the harbot ferry service suspended, and heavy seas washed the low parts of the roads above Upper North Sydney.

CAMPBELLFORD COUNCIL MEET

Refuse Request of Hydro Commission to String a Line in Town—Other Business.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 2.—The Hydro Commission sought to get a foothold in the territory of the municipal power plant, when at the regular meeting of the Town Council last night, G. W. Smith ,of Belleville, manager of the Central Ontario system, wrote, asking permission to string a line on the town poles in order to permit the Hydro to supply light to a private citizen. This request was promptly turned down, Councillor Allan alone being in favour of granting the desired permission.

George Ironside, an employee of the Hydro at Healey Falls, has been transferred to Campbellford and has taken a house on Inkerman street, a residence that is already wired for municipal light. To make it easier for Mr. Ironside the Hydro proposes to light his home, connecting it with the power plant of the Campbellford Woollen Mills nearby, these mills being about the only industry in Campbellford that gets its light and power from the Hydro, this being furnished free of cost under a special agreement, in return for the surrender by the company of certain water rights.

The communication from Mr. Smith seemed to imply that the only reason the use of the town's poles was to lessen the cost and that if this was not granted the Hydro would put up poles of its own.

The majority of the Council took the stand that the Hydro has no right to furnish power to any private citizen or concern within the corporate limits. Councillor Allan contended that as the Hydro is the only customer for the excess power produced in the municipal plant, some consideration should be shown them, but in this contention he stood alone.

Chairman Abernethy, of the Water and Light Commission, was present and on being asked for his opinion, said that if the request were granted it would establish a dangerous precedent that would be likely to create trouble in the future.

The motion to refuse the request was made by Councillor Dorie and seconded by Councillor Carter.

Letter From Port Perry.

A communication was received from the clerk at Port Perry Council asking that Campbellford join in a resolution asking the Ontario government to appoint Col. H. F. Cameron, of Beaverton, to represent the municipalities on the Hydro Commission. As no one appeared to know anything about the Colonel or his qualifications for the position, the communication was tabled on motion of Councillors Dorie and Cole.

More Light Needed.

Four ladies, whose husbands are employed at night, appeared as a deputation to ask that an electric light be installed on Raglan street, near Sebastopol, a number of new houses having been built on the former thoroughfare last summer. Their case was presented by Chairman Abernethy and the request was granted, on motion of Councillors Dorie and Allan. Manager Scott, of the power plant to see that the light is put in at a point where it will do the most good to the residents.

House Cleaning the Bridge

Deputy-Reeve Wilkinson stated that prominent citizens had complained of the accumulation of dirt on the bridge which they said was a breeding place for flies, that were likely to carry disease germs to the stores and residence in the vicinity. These citizens had stated that if the Council did not clean up the bridge the board of health would take the matter up and compell them to do so

With c discussion the Council decided to take the necessary action on motion of Councillors Meiklejohn and Cole.

More Police Protection

There was a long discussion over the matter of police protection. Friday night or early Saturday morning several members of a travelling theatrical troop, reinforced by several local young men were celebrating the success of the Campbellford Fair and while filled with enthusiasm and other inspiring fluids were making themselves heard on Front street near the post office. When some citizens that love quietness protested, it seems there was some heated argument. A call was sent in for the police but Chief Duncalfe could not be located.

Councillor Allan brought this matter up and said that as all his suggestions for better protection had been turned down he wished to resign as chairman of the police committee.

The case was explained fully by Mayor Meyers, Councillors Cole, Meiklejohn and others. When the call was sent in for Chief Duncalfe Saturday morning he was in pursuit of a man who had early on Friday evening, stolen an auto from Sam Covert. The Chief found the car near Trent Bridge, where it had been abandoned.

While Reeve Anderson and Councillors Allan deplored the circumstance, neither held Chief Duncalfe at fault, seeing that he was absent in the discharge of his duty. Both insisted, however that when the Chief is obliged to leave town there should be some one to take his place.

The upshot of the discussion was that Mayor Meyers appointed Reeve Anderson and Councillors Meiklejohn and Allan a committee to find two or three men qualified and willing to act as deputy officers, one or more to act during the absence of Chief Duncalfe.

Sewer on Richmond Street

Residents of Richmond street, a short continuation of Canrobert, asked for a sewer to connect with the new sewer on Garry street,which runs adjacent to their property. This branch means only a small outlay for labor and material, and on motion of Councillor Cole and Reeve Anderson the necessary bylaw for the construction was put through its several readings. Councillors Burke, Carter and Allan voted in the negative, taking the ground that the residents of Rear, Inkerman and Sebastopol streets, whose petitions have been before the council for months, should have been given the preference instead of undertaking new work. The Richmond street sewer is suuch a small affair that it was decided to go ahead with it as the Garry street sewer could not otherwise be regarded as complete.

It was decided to repair the street leading to the elevator at the depot, as there is a great deal of heavy traffic over this thoroughfare.

Personals.

Councillor Carter spent the week-end with his family in Toronto.

Mrs. George McConnell and her grandson, George, of Indian River visited friends here on Sunday. Mrs. Susan Webber, Mrs. McConnell's mother, who has been visiting here for some time, returned home with her relatives.

SAY EUROPE IS ON THE VERGE OF WAR

People Restless and Frenzied, Indicating Advent of a Great Tragedy.

CHICAGO, October 2. Canadian Press. — Europe is on the verge of another war, according to Frederick Stock, director of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, who has just returned from a tour of all the old world capitals.

Mr. Stock bases his deductions upon the character of the new music of Europe, which is swift, hysterical and indefinable, and upon the weird frenzy of new dances and the vivid coloring and daring of clothing worn by the women, all of which indicates that the people of Euurope are "fidgety," and on the point of nervous collapse; also restless and frenzied, indicating the advent of a great tragedy.

"In Germany I found the most dreadful evidences that the people are suffering most cruelly. Austria's great industries have passed into foreign hands, and the balance of power has slipped from the hands of England to those of France; and England does not dare protest, for she is unprepared, while France has acquired a tremendous air fleet and a huge army."

PETERBORO COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS IS DEAD

Robert Hall Died Suddenly Yesterday Afternoon.

Robert Hall, Collector of Customs in Peterborough for the last quarter of a century, died suddenly on Monday afternoon. Mr. Hall is survived by his wife and five children.

Large Shipments on Local Railway Lines.

LINDSAY, Oct. 2.—Never before in the history of great lakes navigation has there been such large shipments in western flour to the C.P.R. terminal at Port McNicholl. Long trains of flour are daily passing through Lindsay and Peterborough for the east, and the shipments will continue for some time yet. The entire fleet of C.P.R. vessels are engaged in the work, and the company has found it necessary to charter one of the large vessels belonging to the Playfair Company, of Midland. The C.P.R. vessels have experienced the busiest season in their history.

of. This question of tax exemptions has developed into a business proposition, and Peterborough is loaded up to the tune of over $4,000,000, he concluded.

Seeking Redress.

John Green petitioned for equitable redress in regard to his lot south of Wolfe Street and west of George Street, the possession and enjoyment of which he had been deprived by encroachments on said land by the C.P.R. and Canadian Packing Company. He wanted immediate attention to his claim, as the lot is advertised for sale for taxes.

This matter was sent to the Legal Committee on the request of R. R. Hall, complainant's solicitor.

Trinity Church Request.

In regard to the request by the Trinity Church Board that the sidewalk opposite the church on Rubidge street, be widened by two feet, the Board of Works adopted the following resolution prior to the Council session:

Moved by Ald. Crowe and Morrison that an eighteen inch addition to this sidewalk be conducted inside the present walk from Scott to Simcoe street; and also that a 2 foot permanent gutter be built within the same block.

An amendment by Ald. McIntyre and the Mayor that in place of the foregoing a foot be added to both the inner and outer sides of this walk from Scott to Simcoe street; also a 2 foot permanent gutter built for the same distance, and that the outer one foot addition to the walk be continued to Charlotte street, was turned down.

In discussion on this section by the Board of Works, Ald. Morrison was informed that there was plenty of room to add two feet on the inside of this sidewalk without interfering with the trees.

It was understood by the Board of Works, which is composed of the whole council, that the foregoing decision settled the matter, but on Ald. Stocker reporting action to council in session, Ald. McIntyre again moved his resolution, which had met defeat in committee, demanding the ayes and nays.

The resolution, this time seconded by Ald. Phelan, was lost on the following division:

Ayes: Ald. McIntyre, Phelan, Turner, Fife and the Mayor.

Nays: Ald. Holloway, Meyers, Stocker, Crowe, Morrison and Maher.

The report, providing for an 18-inch extension inside the present 4 foot walk, with a permanent gutter, as outlined above, was then adopted.

The question of whether this work is to be paid for by general tax, or just how, was sent to the Board of Works, on motion of Ald. Turner and Meyers, Committee to secure a ruling before proceeding with the work.

Danger Spots.

On motion of Ald. Crowe, the matter of more adequate railway crossing protection at Reid street, was referred to the Railway Committee, as also was his complaint that the street railway curve at the corner of George and Charlotte streets is a menace to the public.

Surface Drains.

On motion by Ald. Intyre and Meyers, the necessary surface drains on all streets to be paved will be constructed at times most advantageous, all circumstances considered.

Licenses Renewed.

On motion by Ald. Phelan and Holloway, requests from Coleman Bros., and J. Conway for a renewal of eating house licenses, were granted; also authority passed for renewal of billiard table licenses when applications were made.

There were present Mayor W. H. Taylor, Aldermen M. J. Maher, R. Morrison, Joseph Crowe, Malcolm McIntyre, Walter Stocker, W. J. Meyers, J. O. Fife, W. T. Holloway, Nagel Phelan and Mel. Turner.

BAPTISTS HAD

"We are fit to be God's champions when we learn first to be victors over self. This is the day for every young man and woman to rise up and slay his giants." David was true to small things, in his faithfulness in guarding his flocks. In the morning he was unknown, in the evening he was a hero, and he faced opposition with a brave heart. David trusted in God and God did not forsake him. He had an experimental knowledge of God's rescuing power from the paw of the lion and the bear, and that experience stood him in good stead when he faced his giants.

A social hour followed, during which refreshments were served by the Murray street B.Y.P.U.

BLACKHEADS!

Blackheads go quickly by a simple method that just dissolves them. Get two ounces of peroxine powder from your druggist, rub this with a hot, wet cloth briskly over the blackheads—and you will wonder where they have gone.

FEW PRIZES TO AMERICANS.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 2.—(Canadian Press).—American exporters occupied fifth place in the number of prizes that were awarded foreign exhibitors at the Brazilian Centennial Exposition in this city, which closed late in July. According to official figures prizes were awarded to foreign exhibitors as follows: France 585, Belgium 211, Portugal 201, Italy 180, United States 147, England 110, Argentina 108, Luxemberg 79, Denmark 47, Japan 45 Norway 32 and Czechoslovakia 31.

There was a total of 9,926 exhibits from foreign countries and 6,013 from Brazil, of which 898 belonged to state and municipal governments and the rest to companies and individuals of this country.

The official figures place the total attendance of the exposition at 3,626,402, or an average of 12,723 persons a day from the time it opeoed September 7, 1922.

A PETER ROBINSON CHAPTER MEETING

A Number of New Officers Elected by Board.

The regular meeting of the Peter Robinson Chapter I.O.D.E., was held at the Public Library, the regent, Mrs. F. C. Weber, in the chair.

On account of several removals of members, the following officers were appointed in place of those who have already gone from the city or who will leave shortly:

Mrs. Lennox McLaren to replace Mrs. J. A. MacNab, as secretary; Miss Gladys Mulholland as treasurer, in place of Miss Genevieve McCarthy; Miss Maida Connor, as first vice-president in place of Miss Helen Stapleton, and Miss C. Cruikshank, as counsellor, replacing Miss Rita Cavanah.

It was decided to hold a dance on the Friday evening of Christmas week and the organization of a chain of bridge teas to be held during the winter months, with Mrs. F. Hooper as convenor, was also discussed.

The Chapter will send the sum of $25.00 to the Japanese relief fund, and will cooperate with the 57th Regimental Chapter in the holding of an armistice tea on November 9th, in aid of the National Educational Fund. A committee for this tea includes Mrs. F. C. Weber, Mrs. F. Hills, Mrs. Homer Meyers and Mrs. Jack Gillespie.

YOUNG PEOPLE

between the ages of eighteen and twenty-four years, in other words, the youth that has come to the stage where it decides most things for itself, where it cannot be led, but can be controlled and guided wisely by older heads.

"It is pretty nearly as a person lives from the ages of eighteen to twenty-four that he or she will live for the rest of life," said the doctor. "God made it easy for young people to do new things and hard for older people to do new things. It is the unlimited possibilities available in the lives of those who are old enough to decide for themselves and yet young enough to learn new things that we should try to grasp and capitalize for the church and for themselves."

Methods Advised.

In order to strengthen the Young People's societies in the local churches, the speaker advised (1) a complete list of the young members of each church, with a note of their church service, their Sunday school record and their attendance at through the week meetings of any sort; (2) the consideration when such a list is completed of the two classes of young people in any church; those who are zealous workers in its activity, and those who are thoughtless and indifferent, not gripped by what the Church stands for. The loyal followers of Christ should make their own lives tell in the lives of the indifferent ones; they should organize to bring those others into relation with church services, with classes for Bible study and with through the week meetings of various kinds. The services of the minister, of one or two elders who are closest to the young people in sympathy, of several enthusiastic Young People workers, of leaders of any sort in Young People's work, should be enlisted in this endeavor. Distinctly religious topics, missionary study, and patriotic discourses should alternate in the discussion period of the meetings. A booklet entitled "Some Canadian Questions" was recommended, containing material for discourses on such things as, "What is the Rural Question?" "Community Interest in Industry," "Social and Industrial Discord," "Internationalism and the War," "Internationalism and Christian Fellowship," etc.

In the evening, discussion of a proposal for a permanent organization in Young People's work, which is designed to associate the young people themselves with the committee in the church concerned with Young People's work, resulted in the election of Rev. G. S. Gervan, of Millbrook, as president. The vice-president will be chosen by the Young People's Society of Knox Church, the secretary-treasurer by the Young People's Society in Campbellford, and two executive officers by the officers themselves, when finally elected.

Interesting Addresses.

"Ideals for Young People" was the subject of a short talk by Dr. Robertson, of Toronto, at last evening's meeting. The ideals of the young, declared the speaker, should be based on the ideals of Jesus Christ. When they came to a time of decision in their lives, they should choose with regard to their relationships in their own home, they should be thinking of making and building a home for themselves, than which nothing is more important, "for in the Christian home there is hope for the Church, hope for the nation, hope for the world," and they should think of the good of their community, in consideration of good schools and proper recreation. They should take an interest in Dominion problems, and in the troubles of the world, in an ever-widening circle of domestic, community and national relationships, "to strive to make themselves worthy of their great heritage."

Illustrated Address on China.

Rev. John Griffith, B.A., returned missionary from Honan, China, gave an illustrated address, showing interesting and instructive views of the life, customs and scenery dwellers in Honan.

Harking back to the earthquake which devastated much of Northern China about four years ago, involving in later famine and distress nearly thirty millions of people, Rev. Mr. Griffith explained in graphic style the endeavors of his mission to relieve the sufferings of the native population. Old and blind women, abandoned children, ragged and hungry groups of people shivering by the city walls, were shown, in all the wretchedness of a famine-racked countryside. One picture showed the vermin-ridden inhabitants coming to the home of a doctor, who conceived the idea of making the people help themselves by offering to pay for these vermin, if captured and delivered to him.

Distribution of grain to the sufferers by the mission, which collected money for the purpose, amounted sometimes to service to as many as 15,000 people in one day, and was carried out with business-like precision by the mission authorities and their helpers.

A portrayal of the various modes of transportation in use in China was an interesting one. Some of the roads, worn down by centuries of use and neglect, are as much as fifty feet beneath the surrounding territory, and modes of travel along them are varied and unusual. Sedan chairs, drawn by coolies, whose name, said the speaker, is derived from the two Chinese words, "coo" for "bitter," and "lie" for strength, meaning that the vehicle is propelled by hard labor, donkeys with side baskets, strings of camels used for transport, curious carts with solid, heavy wheels, the Chinese wheelbarrow, which utilizes the wind, and sometimes goes along under a full white sail, these were all shown, with the river junks, their sails dyed pink and the house-boats, often towed by men along the banks, taking sometimes three weeks to progress three hundred miles.

Women with bound feet were shown, the speaker remarking that the custom of foot-binding has by no means decreased throughout many sections of China, and a Chinese kitchen, with its curious stoves. Mortuary temples were a contrast in their luxurious splendor, and the Altar of Heaven at Peking was thrown on the screen, wonderful in its whiteness, its three great marble terraces extending upward, the place where once a year the Emperor worships Heaven, and where whole black cattle and webs of costly silk are offered as burnt offerings to the heathen gods. Men hitched to primitive plows were shown, the Biblical method of threshing the grain is still in use here, and the sawing of wood is a slow, laborious process. Natural large barley forks grown in the form of small trees, cut and shaped so as to result in strong, many-tined forks of hard natural fibre, were pictured, and the latest arrival in the transportation system of the Celestial Empire, the little car which has made its way to so many of the earth's dark corners.

Meeting in Cobourg.

A Young People's Conference of the same nature is being held to-day in Cobourg, and an announcement was made of a Provincial Sunday School convention to be held in Napanee from October 23rd to 25th.

The Ladies' Aid of St. Paul's Church served supper to the visitors in the assembly rooms yesterday.

SOVIETS TO CIRCULATE THEIR MONEY IN SIBERIA

VLADIVOSTOCK, Siberia, October 1 (Associated Press).—An attempt is to be made to put Soviet money into circulation in the Far East. Mr. Barishnikoff, director of the local branch of the State Bank, who went to Moscow for the purpose of regulating the currency in the Russian Far East, is the main sponsor of the scheme.

Mr. Barishnikoff points out, however, that no attempt will be made to interfere with the present Japanese currency circulating here, and that the Soviet money tokens will only circulate on an equality with the foreign money and will be changed at the bank for foreign money or gold as the holder may desire.

The money to be put into circulation will be the Russian "tchervonets," a banknote of the denomination of ten roubles gold, but the rate of exchange of which, although comparatively stable, still fluctuates a little.

This is the smallest piece of guaranteed currency in Russia, hence for any less amounts either silver currency or Japanese small money tokens will have to be used.

In order to keep up the price of the silver exchange the importation of small silver money of other countries into Far Eastern Russia has been prohibited.

Ladies' Ready-to-Wear, Corsets and Millinery are back in their former places on the Second Floor

THE J.C. Turnbull CO. LTD

Silks and Dress Goods now located on the Second Floor. It is now the finest Fabric Department in Eastern Ontario

AN IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT

Our Second Floor, which has been completely renovated, will be open for business to-morrow, Wednesday. Charred wood and blackened walls have been completely transformed, making this the finest floor of its kind in the city, and the atmosphere of newness and cleanliness so apparent well repays for the months of toil, care and expenditure.

In addition to the departments formerly located on this floor, we have taken our silks and dress goods from the main floor and placed them across the rear of this second floor. This has been done for various reasons, some of which are a maximum amount of daylight is available, a large increase in floor space can be taken for the better display of merchan dise, and customers will be able to shop with a minimum amount of disturbance. Finally, we feel that we can serve you better and more satisfactorily in this new location than it was possible to do downstairs. We also find that progressive firms in other cities who have made this same move, have found it to be very successful, enabling them to give better service to the public which showed by their response that they appreciate the change.

To introduce the new location of the Silks and Dress Goods Department to the public, we are opening with a sale of Silk so remarkable for value that after investigating you will readily agree with us when we say this is the biggest bargain that has been offered in Silks in Peterboro.

850 Yards of Swiss Satin Duchesse

This is a Silk Fabric that is always a favorite, and is unsurpassed for durability, rich lustre and soft texture, and having such splendid draping qualities, it can be readily adapted to any style of garment desired.

The Reason

Two men who were joint owners of a manufacturing concern making ladies' ready-to-wear garments, decided to dissolve partnership. This meant the immediate raising of cash. Hearing of this, our buyer investigated. The result was the purchase of this beautiful quality of Swiss Satin Duchesse at a very low rate on the dollar.

Regular $2.50 Value for

$1.19

Yard, 38 Inches Wide

The Colors

Sky, maize, buttercup, gold peach, orchid, zinc grey, rose, opal blue, coral, azure blue, purple, amethyst, light and dark navy, also shot effects.

Facts to Remember

Over 40,000 bales of Silk which was all ready for shipment to the different markets of the world were destroyed in the recent great catastrophe in Japan, causing a tremendous shortage which resulted in an immediate advance of from 20 to 25 per cent. on the prevailing prices of silks both in Europe and America.

Another fact to remember is this sale would have been impossible but for the peculiar circumstances under which it was purchased.

Fact No. 3 is, this is the biggest silk bargain ever offered in Peterboro.

VIMY RIDGE LODGE HAD EUCRE DANCE

Victoria Hall was Scene of Enjoyable Event—Visitors from Keene.

Vimy Ridge Lodge, L.O.B.A., held a very successful dance and euchre party in Victoria Hall recently. There were thirty tables occupied by one hundred and twenty eager participants, striving to win the prizes. At the conclusion of the contest a dainty luncheon was served and the prize-winners announced as follow:

Ladies—1, Mrs. J. Bradley, silver meat fork; 2, Mrs. B. Pearson, silver butter dish; 3, Mrs. Ballard, tin horn.

Gentlemen—1, J. Bradley, box of cigars; 2, Mr. Millard, pair of gold cuff links; 3, Mr. Soucie, tongueless bell.

After the prizes had been distributed, an impromptu concert was held, the following taking part:

Bro. W. G. Morrow sang a solo entitled "Sis Hopkins' New Bonnet," in a pleasing tenor voice.

Bro. George Porter gave a recitation entitled "My First Pair of Kilts," which was repeatedly encored.

Bro. Harry McLachlan, of Quenesba Lodge, I.O.B.A., Keene, asked permission to contribute to the programme, and furnished the surprise of the evening when he fully demonstrated his ability as an elocutionist by reciting the poem entitled, "The Duckling and the Frog."

The convenors, Mesdames Burnham and Manley, thanked the members of Quenesba L.O.B.A., Keene, who to the number of twelve, motored in to help make the party a success.

Sister Burnham thanked Brothers Manley and Burnham for their services as doorkeepers. These two gentlemen sang a duet entitled "Moving the Old Log Barn."

A pleasing feature of the dance part of the proceedings was an old-fashioned square dance executed in a very able manner by the heavyweights of Vimy Ridge and Quenesba Lodges, their aggregate weight being 1,800 pounds.

Brothers Wright and Wigg provided amusement throughout the dance programme.

The party came to a close at midnight, everyone reporting an excellent time and requesting the ladies to have another ni the near future.

The receipts of the evening amounted to $50.00.

German Marks Still Hitting New Records.

NEW YORK October 1. — German marks to-day dropped 18 points to 299 cents a hundred million, the lowest point ever recorded, in direct reflection of th week-end cable reports of political disturbances in Germany. About three weeks ago German marks sold as low as 32c a hundred million, but upon the accession of the Stresemann Ministry and the abandonment of passive resistance in the Ruhr, the rate rallied to 98 cents a hundred million. The subsequent decline was based on reports of internal troubles and the enormous increases in note circulation.

Other European exchanges also lost ground. Demand sterling dropped 3-8 of a cent to $4.54 1-16; French francs dropped 9½ points to 6.05 cents, and Belgian francs eased 3 1-2 points to 5.25 cents.

An Unfailing Way To Banish Hairs

(Beauty Notes)

Ugly hair growths can be removed in the privacy of your own home if you get a small original package of delatone and mix into a paste enough of the powder and water to cover the hairy surface. This should be left on the skin about 2 minutes, then removed and the skin washed and every trace of hair will have vanished. No harm or inconvenience can result from this treatment, but be sure you buy real delatone.

AUTOMOBILE CRASHED INTO TORONTO TROOP

TORONTO, October 2.—(Canadian Press)—What might have proved a fatal accident occurred last night at University Avenue and Dundas Street, when a motor car crashed into the rear of the procession of a Toronto regiment.

The car, which is said to have been going more than 15 miles, ran into the thickest part of the ranks, scattering men right and left, knocking down a score, and injuring seven. Much confusion ensued, and had it not been for the excellent discipline maintained by the officers of the regiment, the driver of the motor probably would have been mobbed by the men.

The injured men were taken to the hospital and two were detained. John McClure, driver of the car, was arrested on a charge of criminal negligence, and Will Webster, of Chicago, the only other occupant of the automobile, was also arrested on a charge of being drunk.

DEATH WHISPER ANSWERED.

Premier of Quebec Points With Pride to Response to the New Dominion Loan.

QUEBEC, October 2 — The best answer that could possibly be made to the "Whisper of Death" articles which have recently appeared in the Montreal Star is to be found in the alacrity with which the people of Canada have subscribed to the new Dominion Government Loan, is the opinion expressed by the Hon. L. A. Taschereau, Premier of Quebec Province.

WOMAN SUFFERED FOR MONTHS

Weak and Nervous. Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Webbwood, Ont.—"I was in a very weak and run-down nervous condition, always tired from the time I got up until I went to bed. Sleep did not rest me at all. My sister recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to me and others told me about it, but it was from my sister's advice that I took it. It did not take long until I felt stronger, headaches left me and my appetite came back to me. I am a farmer's wife and have many things to do outside the house, such as milking, looking after the poultry, and other chores. I heartily recommend the Vegetable Compound to all who have the same trouble I had, for it is a fine medicine for women."—Mrs. Louis F. Elsasser, Hillcrest Farm, Webbwood, Ont.

Another Nervous Woman Finds Relief

Port Huron, Mich.—"I suffered for two years with pains in my side, and if I worked very much I was nervous and just as tired in the morning as when I went to bed. I was sleepy all the day and didn't feel like doing anything, and was so nervous I would bite my finger nails. One of my friends told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it helped me so much that I soon felt fine."—Mrs. Charles Beeler, 501-14th St., Port Huron, Mich.

Women who suffer from any feminine ailment should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. C

THE TWO MONAGHANS

that work would be started this week on the outfall sewer to feed the disposal plant over the river; and Ald. Crowe took exception to the camouflage charge. It was through him, he said, that gravel has been drawn across ice to the disposal plant's site, as an economic measure in saving hauling.

Reeve Rye could not see why the disposal plant should not be built before the sewer which latter is the least of the city's troubles. "You are trying to bluff the townships," he asserted, "and it's time they called your bluff."

Give Relief Soon

Ald. Phelan did not propose to be bulldozed by Reeve Rye, or anybody else. "The city has spent $30,000 on a site for the sewage disposal system and intends giving the townships relief as soon as practicable," he asserted.

Reeve Anderson of South Monaghan, replied that his municipality would not suffer any further delay.

Get Together Amicably

Ald. Meyer counseled all parties interested getting together amicably to expedite matters. Incidentally, he understood that water purifies itself in a distance of six miles.

Ald. Turner and Maher thought the whole question might be referred to a special committee on the principal that a small body works more expeditiously than a large one like the board of works. But this did not find favor and the matter remains in the board of works' hands.

CITY BETTERMENT TALK TO BE HELD IN ATLANTA

ATLANTA, Oct. 2.—(Associated Press).—A study of the engineering aspects of the water-power projects at Tallulah Falls, Ga., near this city, is expected to be made by visitors to the annual convention of the American Society for Municipal Improvements to be held here November 12 to 16. The falls, one of the state's beauty spots, was harnessed several years ago and now furnishes hydro-electric power for the industries of this section.

The reading of papers, and general discussions of subjects relating to engineering, city zoning, transportation, sanitation and municipal improvements will take up most of the time of the meeting. The society has a membership of between 1,500 and 2,000, composed largely of engineers, contractors, city and county officials and supply men. It has never met twice in the same city, the purpose of the society, according to its officials, being to disseminate by personal contact, as well as by publication, information and experiences upon the best methods to be employed in the management of the municipal departments and construction of municipal works.

All of the officers of the organization, including W. W. Horner of St. Louis, President, are expected to be in attendance.

"I Can Now Do My Work Without Feeling Tired"

Mrs. A. Moffatt, Roxton Falls, Que., writes:

"I suffered from a run-down system and nervous debility. I could not sleep or rest at night, and felt so weak I could not walk any distance. I took several tonics, but they only helped me while I was taking them. Mother advised me to take Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and I felt great benefit from the first box, and continued taking several boxes. To-day I feel like a new woman, and am able to do my work without that dreadful tired feeling."

PRINCE ERIK MEETS THE PRINCE OF WALES

CALGARY, Alta., October 2. Canadian Press. — Prince Erik of Denmark was in Calgary yesterday having come from his farm at Red Deer where he has been staying for two years to meet Lord Renfrew.

"What did His Lordship say to you?" asked the reporter.

"Lots of things," said Prince Erik. "I am glad that I met him before his return home. He said that he had enjoyed his stay in Alberta immensely."

"I think that he would like to stay her eall the time."

GOVERNMENT URGED TO FOREGO PRIORITY RIGHT

Winnipeg, October 1. — Government saving funds in the Home Bank and now in the position of preferred creditors will be urged by the local depositors' association to forego their claims, it was stated here to-day. The Province of Ontario is a creditor of the bank to the extent of $1,000,000, and the Winnipeg depositors feel that the government can well afford to take its place as an ordinary creditor when so many depositors lost all that they had in the world.

REVOLUTION HAS BEEN PUT DOWN

Reinforcements not Needed Now Says a Berlin Despatch.

BERLIN, Oct. 2. — (Canadian Press) — The revolutionary movement originated by Nationalist organizations at Kuestrin has been put down, says a communique issued by the Minister of Defence, and reinforcements which had been requested will not be required. The Communique says that the commander of Reichswepr troops by energetic action was speedily master of situation.

Censorship is being rigorously enforced, and little is known of what is happening.

SIR HENRY CRITICIZES HON. M'KENZIE KING

Drayton Agrees With Meighen that Government is Decrepit.

MONTREAL, Oct. 2.—(Canadian Press).—An answer to the claim of improper war financing which the Right Hon. Mackenzie King made at Quebec, coupled with the trenchant criticism of the Government's failure to properly protect Canadian industries and furnish employment to Canadian workmen, and the denunciation of the million dollar deposit of the National Railways with the Home Bank, were the main portions of a speech which Sir Henry Drayton, ex-Minister of Finance, made at a meeting of the Liberal-Conservative Association here last night.

Sir Henry expressed his satisfaction that Mr. Fielding, taught by experience, was this year using the old victory loan organization to sell refunding loans, since in that way the loan would be made a complete success. Turning then to Mr. King, Sir Henry said that the speech which he had made before leaving for the Imperial Conference left the country quite in the dark as to where he stood in connection with the confe ence. Instead of clearing up his position, he had directed a broadside against Mr. Meighen and the "whisper of death" for daring to criticize him and his decrepit government. Sir Henry criticized Mr. King's statement in his speech that not a dollar of Canada's colossal war expenditures had been met by the Government of the day out of the taxes of the people. The truth was, Sir Henry pointed out, that some 28 per cent. of the war expenditures had been met out of that revenue.

SAL ELECTRIC CURRENTS ARE CURE FOR CANCER

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.— (Canadian Press.) — High frequency electric currents have been developed as a positive cure for cancer of head, neck, face nose, throat, mouth and other organs of the body, where the knife is of no avail, it was announced yesterday at the opening of the sixth annual convention of the central society of physical therapeutists at the Hotel Lasalle.

Dr. T. Howard Plank, opened the convention with his paper, in which he told of numerous cures. Members of the organization from all sections of the country eagerly discussed his success with a Chicago physician and watched with intense interest his slides demonstrating it.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS
By Olive Roberts Barton

MISTER DODGER'S HOUSE

"It is part of Fairyland!" he said mysteriously.

Mister Dodger's house in the corn field was nothing more nor less than a corn-shock.

There were many other corn-shocks in the field and they all looked exactly alike, piled up in points like Indian wig-wams. But they weren't alike at all—that is, from the others, as the Twins were to find out.

Once inside the narrow doorway they shouted with delight, for the large room in which they found themselves was lighted up with jack o'lanterns and decorated with autumn leaves of every color.

"Isn't it lovely!" exclaimed Nancy. "Why, it's like Fairyland!"

Mister Dodger took off his corn-husk hat and knocked the ashes out of his corn-cob pipe. "It is part of Fairyland!" he said mysteriously. "It's a great secret. No one knows it at all—or about me. And now if you will sit down, I'll tell you all about everything."

Down popped the Twins. They had met many fairies on their adventures but none more interesting than Mister Dodger, and they were anxious to hear what he had to say.

"It's this way, children," went on the queer little fellow. "It's my duty to look after the barnyard folk and see that nothing happens to them. Did you ever think how the cows and pigs and sheep and chickens and ducks and turkeys are allowed to run around all day without a soul to look after them?

"Farmer Brown thinks that after they're all fed and turned out for the day, that that is all there is to it. He expects the cows to come home at milking time, and the chickens to come home at roosting time, and the pigs to come home at feeding time just as though they all wore wrist-watches and knew just when to do things.

"Well, sir, they don't know a thing! That's why they're called dumb animals, I suppose. At least, they don't know much, and I have to be the brains for the whole shooting match. Besides, I watch them every minute to keep them from danger. When they quarrel, I straighten out their troubles. If they get lost, I bring 'em home. That's why I'm so thin. I'm always on the jump."

"It's funny we never saw you before," said Nick thoughtfully.

"Not funny at all!" cried Mister Dodger. "You wouldn't see me now if you hadn't your magic shoes. They not only take you any place you wish to go, but give you all sorts of fairy gifts besides. Well, well, well! Time's going and we'd better get to work."

The Million Dollar Doll
By C. N. and A. M. Williamson
Authors of "The Lightning Conductor"

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY

Miles Sheridan, aware of his wife's infidelity is attempting to facilitate her obtaining a divorce by creating a scandal about himself. To this end he offers $20,000 to

Juliet Divine, a beautiful showgirl known as the Million Dollar Doll, if she will take a yacht trip with him. Juliet is unable to go herself, but greedy for the money, she persuades

Teresa Desmond (Terry) her lovely and unbelievably innocent half-sister an exquisite counterpart of herself, to go in her stead, masquerading as the Million Dollar Doll. Ever since a kindness Miles did her in childhood, Terry had made him her Dream Prince.

Betty Sheridan, Miles wife, is in love with

Paul Di Salvano, a handsome Italian.

Eustace Nazlo, a wealthy Greek, who does not know of Terry's relationship to Juliet, is in love with the younger girl, and is surprised to meet her at Monte Carlo with Miles.

Mrs. Harkness, Miles' old servant, prepared to hate the "Million Dollar Doll" is won over by Terry's sweetness and charm. Miles has stipulated that he will have nothing to do with the girl, on the voyage, but his resolve is wavering although he does not recognize the little girl whom he befriended so long ago.

Miss Caroline Sheridan, his aunt, sojourning at Monte Carlo, is horrified at Miles' action, and comes on board the yacht to talk to Terry.

CHAPTER LV.
A Horrible World

"My poor unfortunate, young woman," Aunt Caroline burst forth, "I know heaven has sent me to you. You have sinned. You have led an evil life, but God forbid I should judge you. I do not. My heart is filled with pity. You may have been led astray when you were not far beyond childhood. Even now you are in your early youth. Reform Reform This is the moment. I am here to help you."

Terry stiffened. "I have not led an evil life," she almost whispered. "It's not true. Nobody could have told you so. I'm sure Mrs. Harkness wouldn't."

"Your name has told me," stated Miss Sheridan. "That is, I had not heard it till today. In my world I do not hear of yours. But sitting on the terrace after you had gone, I was joined by an American friend who recognized you, after having seen you appear on the stage, and was very much surprised you should be with—ah, we need not go in to that.

"What I am here for, is to beg you to leave my nephew at once. He may have treated you as a gentleman should. Mrs. Harkness says he has. I hope she is right. But that is not the point. He was most misguided to undertake this expedition. Break with him, I beseech you, before his wife comes to throw herself at his feet."

"I'm sure Mrs. Sheridan would never do anything like that," said Terry.

"I spoke figuratively. For your own sake, my child, if not for hers and my unhappy nephew's, do what I ask."

"I can't leave Mr. Sheridan unless he wishes me to," the girl maintained, all Mary Desmond's quiet obstinacy in her young face, and something of Terrence's temper in her eyes.

"He will wish it if you tell him it is your wish, and best for you," persisted his aunt. "I will find you a kind home in Mentone, till your future can be decided, if you will place yourself in my hands. I will even take you into my own home for a time. I am sure our dear chaplain at Mentone will approve the invitation, and he will come and talk with you himself. He will lead you to a new way of life."

"I don't want a new way of life," answered Terry. "I'm not wicked. Indeed, I'm sure I'm not—and the name of Juliet Divine surely isn't as black as you say it is. You must—oh, I know you're Mr. Sheridan's Aunt, and I hate to be rude to you, but I shall be, if you don't stop—I think you must have a horrid mind."

"My mind is full of peace and good will—even to those who despitefully use me," said Miss Sheridan, with a pinched look about the nose. "I pray that yours may be the same. But I am very much afraid from this talk that you are past my helping, as you don't even admit your own sin. I will leave you to hear the still, small voice—as you may yet do. And remember that my offer is open. I am loath to give you up, though, alas, we cannot change a heart without the consent of that heart itself I will go, and continue to pray for you at home, Miss Divine. But before we part, I must tell you what I wrote this afternoon to my newphew's wife in New York.

"I chose each phrase after reflection, and I described you as an attractive girl, too attractive, in appearance and manner. I said that Miles was treating you so chivalrously, and you were trying to create so good an impression on the personnel of the yacht (I gathered this from Mrs. Harkness) that it seemed to me your aim for the future was marriage with him,—nothing less. I warned Betty that a man wasn't likely to behave so well to—to a woman of your world, unless some idea of the same sort was in his head. Propinquity, I said, in such circumstances, was most dangerous. I added that Miles would be lost to her forever, unless she hurried in person to the rescue.

"And my friend who discussed the—the sad affair with me as we sat on the terrace this morning, mentioned that she would write to my niece too. She is a worldly woman and I am not, I thank heaven; and I daresay her point of view will be presented to Betty differently from mine. But her advice will be the same. Had you not better be gone before my niece-in-law arrives to join her husband?"

Sheridan opened the door with ostentatious loudness, but neither occupant of the salon had consciously heard.

"Still harping?" he exclaimed. "I hope Miss Divine won't desert me on your persuasion, Aunt Caroline. I should be in rather a hole if she did. But I don't think she's that sort. I'm dressed and ready to take you on shore now. In half an hour, Miss Divine, I'll come back to you."

"Very well," Terry said, in a low voice that sounded sullen.

When aunt and nephew were gone, Terry rushed below to her own cabin and cried as she had never cried before. It was useless this time to remind herself how silly it was—according to father—to "squeeze juice out of her face." It would come There seemed no end to it. How horrible the world was

GERMANS PROTESTING HIGH TAX ON LIQUOR

BERLIN (By Mail to United Press.)—Berlin wine and beer hall owners have protested against the new liquor taxes which must be immediately added to the price of the drinks. They claim the tax burden is driving drinkers away and that the cost of collecting the taxes by government machinery surpasses the income therefrom—through devaluation of the mark in the meantime.

They point out that government taxation of mineral water was given up when it was determined beyond doubt that it cost more to collect the money than it was worth. They even threatened closing their shops, following the example of their colleagues in Kiel and Mannheim.

MORE PRODUCTION.

BERLIN, Oct. 2. — Production, and still more production, abandonment of the eight hour fetish and drastic curtailment of Government jobs, constitute some of the issues on which Chancellor Stresemann and the Socialists are likely to disagree in the near future. The Bavarian situation has also furnished an unexpected supply of combustibles, which threaten the present solidarity of Stresemann's Socialist - Bourgeois Cabinet.

GOMPERS SAYS HE'S NOT RED NOR PINK

Annual Convention American Federation of Labor Opened at Portland.

PORTLAND, Oregon, Canadian Press. — A declaration that child labor instruction is the vital one of the hour was emphasized President Samuel Gompers in his annual address at the opening of the 43rd annual convention of the American Federation of Labor here yesterday. He summed up his remarks on Radicalism by saying "The Labor movement should be a movement of wage-earners for wage-earners, by wage-earners."

Discussing the "Reds" he said:—"Those who know me and my attitude know that I am not even pink."

The convention received the report of the executive council which denounced the Klan and the Facisti movements.

Don't starve the "Kiddies"

Stuffing them with indigestible foods may please their appetites, but it does not build perfect, robust bodies. There is more real muscle-building material in Shredded Wheat Biscuit than in potatoes, eggs or mushy porridges—and the crispness of the shreds of baked wheat encourages thorough chewing, which means good digestion and sound teeth. Shredded Wheat Biscuit contains just enough bran to prevent that disease-breeding bane of all childhood—constipation. It is an all-day food, delicious for breakfast, for lunch, for dinner.

C.G.E. EVEN UP SERIES WITH BROCKVILLE AND PLAY OFF IN NAPANEE

Ray Rose Pitched the Electricians to Victory That Upset the Calculations of the Confident Visitors

SCORE WAS 9-2.

The Brockville ball team with a record of seventeen straight wins and one hundred and fifty rooters headed by Mayor Reynolds, paid a visit to Peterboro yesterday for the purpose of quietly burying the local C.G.E. outfit and thus qualifying for the Ontario Intermediate finals against Welland.

The programme, however, failed to materialize for the C.G.E. crew staging a comeback that took the Brockville gang off their feet galloped away with the big end of a 9-2 score.

Now instead of arranging their excursion to Welland, Brockville are busy figuring their chances in the play off game which will be staged at Napanee on Friday. And they don't find the prospects just as rosy as they appeared up to yesterday afternoon.

Ray Rose was the individual who threw sand in the Brockvile gear box. Tossed into the game as practically the leader of a forlorn hope, to do the gunning, Rose who had only pitched part of a game this season was a suprise packet to the Easterners, his speed and fast breaking proving a puzzle that most of them failed to solve. He held the hard hitting visitors to six hits, three of them scratchy, and was invincible in the pinches, Brockville failing to score in two different innings after they had filled the bases. Outside of the seventh inning when they bunched three hits to score their two runs, the second with the assistance of a wild throw, Rose had the visiting outfit thoroughly subdued.

His team mates played nice ball behind him, Barrie, Ranger and Hall pulling off some sparkling fielding while Ross and Jackson combined to cut a man off third when Brockville were decidedly dangerous. At the bat the home talent showed an enjoyable appreciation of the offerings of Mr. Whiting the heaver who has won a long string of games for Brockville, cracking out fifteen hits in the seven innings the visitors first string pitcher was allowed to stay in there. They opened on him early and kept it up steadily all the way through the piece until finally he was shelled out altogether. Howson officiating in the eighth inning and escaping unscathed. McCarney led in the attack with four hits out of five times up. Rose helped win his own cause along with three timely swats and Dugan and Ross contributed a pair of useful wallops.

Brockville should some nice fielding, the work of Lesperance the peppery little third baseman standing out. He pulled of several flashy plays that robbed the batter off a hit in each case. McLean and Taber both worked nicely and Simon made some pretty catches in centre.

The visiting rooters were a loyal band of fans who never stopped yelling until the final out. And then they turned around and gave three cheers for the winer. They were a good natured band of enthusiasts and their sportsmanship was appreciated.

Umpires Barnes and Skitch of Cobourg handled the game in faultless fashion.

First Inning.

Brockville—Ross tossed out Hunter. Taber flied to Hall. Simon was safe on Ranger's fumble. Lane walked. Oakley fanned. No runs or hits, one error.

Peterboro—Whiting threw out Barrie. McCarney singled to center. Dugan walked. Rose flied to Simon in centre, a fine catch. McCarney went to third after the catch. Dugan stole second. Ross doubled to left centre scoring McCarney and Dugan. Lesperance muffed McPherson's pop fly. McPherson stole second. Jackson lined to Simon in left centre. Two runs, two hits, one error.

Second Inning.

Brockville—McLean doubled to left. Lesperance hit to Rose and McLean was caught off second. Lesperance stole second. Reilly walked. Whiting also drew a pass. Hunter fanned and Ross picked Lesperance off third. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Peterboro—Hall rolled to Lesperance. McLean tossed out Ranger. Barrie fanned. No runs, hits or errors.

Third Inning.

Brockville—Ranger lost Taber's roller. Simon popped to Ranger. Lane forced Taber Jackson to Ranger. Oakley fanned. No runs or hits, one error.

Peterboro — McCarney singled through short. Dugan forced him at second. Rose doubled to centre scoring Dugan, Ross singled over second. Ross stole second. McPherson rolled to Taber, scoring Rose. Jackson flied to Simon. Two runs, three hits, no errors.

Fourth Inning.

Brockville— McLean fouled to Ross, a fine catch. Lesperance fanned. Reilly fanned. No runs, hits or errors.

Peterboro— Hall flied to Hunter. Ranger walked. Barrie sacrificed to Reilly unassisted. Lesperance threw out McCarney on a bunt. No runs, hits or errors.

Fifth Inning.

Brockville—Rose tossed out Whiting. Hunter beat out a hit to Ranger. Taber scratched a hit down the first base line. Simon forced Hunter at third, Jackson unassisted. Lane walked, filling the bases. Oakley fanned. No runs, two hits, no errors.

Peterboro—Dugan singled over Lesperance's head but was out at second trying to stretch it into a double. Rose singled to right. Ross flied to centre. McPherson singled to third and took second on Lesperance's bad throw. Jackson popped to Whiting. No runs, three hits, one error.

Sixth Inning.

Brockville— McLean hoisted to Dugan. Lesperance fouled to Jackson. Reilly fanned. No runs, hits or errors.

Peterboro— McLean tossed out Hall on a fast play. Ranger singled past first and stole second. Barrie hit to Whiting who threw to third to late to get Ranger. Barrie stole second. McCarney doubled to left scoring Ranger and Barrie. McCarney was caught off second. Dugan singled to centre and stole second. Rose singled to right scoring Dugan. Ross forced Rose, Taber unassisted. Three runs, four hits, no errors.

Seventh Inning.

Brockville—Ranger tossed out Whiting. Hunter singled to centre. Taber beat out a hit to Dugan. The Simon singled to right, scoring on runners advanced on a wild pitch. Simon singled to right, scoring Hunter and Taber came in when McPherson threw over Ross' head, Simon going to second. Ranger threw out Lane. Ranger also got Oakey. Two runs, three hits, one error.

Peterboro—Lesperance made a beautiful stop to get McPherson. Jackson walked. Hall singled to centre. Ranger flied to Lesperance. Barrie singled to right scoring Jackson and going to second on the throw in. McCarney beat out a hit to short scoring Hall. Taber threw out Dugan. Two runs, three hits, no errors.

Eighth Inning.

Brockville—McLean rolled to Barrie. Hall made a fine catch of Lesperances's long foul. Reilly walked. Howson batting to Whiting rolled to Rose. No runs, hits or errors.

Peterboro—With Howson pitching for Brockville, Rose rolled to the box. Howson also tossed out Ross. McPherson fanned. No runs, hits or errors.

Ninth Inning.

Brockville—Hunter popped to Dugan. Barrie tossed out Taber on a fast play. Simon popped to Rose. No runs, hits or errors.

Ladies Carry Golf Charms

RYE, N.Y., Oct. 2.—(Canadian Press)—In a gale that made play doubly difficult and caused many of the players to carry all sorts of fetishes from four-leaf clovers to race-horse shoes in their golf bags, the qualifying round for the women's national championship over the Westchester-Biltmore Country Club course today developed an unexpected contest for the 32 places of honor.

Miss Alexa Stirling, of New York, a native Georgian and a three time title winner, was the medallist with 84, and the other thirty one qualifiers needed scores of 95 or better.

Miss Glenna Collett, of Providence was among the lower scores with an 89.

FOOTBALL NOTES

Saturday's game will be the Peck Cup final between the Canadian Woollens and the G.W.V.A. Referee, J. Ruussell; neutral linesmen, Messrs. Cairns and Low. In all probability this final will be played at Riverside if it can be arranged.

Messrs. Steer, F. H. Dearborn and Mr. Munro, were officially appointed as representatives to the association for the School Association, and the Draw will take place next Monday evening. There will be six public schools and two Separate schools enter for the Alex. Kay trophy.

Duration of the school games shall be twenty five minutes each way. It has been suggested that the games be played on Saturday morning or to be played before the senior games which will give the juveniles an opportunity to witness the seniors.

A local soccer record was created on Saturday afternoon when Richmond, the Thistle centre-forward, scored the lost goal against Woollens. He has played in every scheduled game for the Thistles and has scored forty (40) goals during the season. Overheard in a discussion —"and that's not counting the many he missed!"

At a meeting of the P. and D. Junior Association last evening held in the Chamber of Commerce, the question as to the game that should have been played last Saturday was discussed before the Board. The C.P.C. claim the game through default of the DeLavals, but the De Lavals claim that they did not receive notification until Friday afternoon at 5:10 and could not get a team together through a number of their players being engaged in other sports. Mr. Willis, as president, tried also suuggested various ways to a settlement, but all fell on a deaf ear. No settlement was made but another meeting will be held ou Wednesday evening to try and make an amicable settlement.

THE DIXIE SERIES.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 2.—(Canadian Press)—New Orleans, Southern Association champions, swamped Fort Worth, Texas League winners, here this afternoon in the fifth game of the Dixie championship series, the finals being 11 to 0. The game was called in the seventh because of darkness. The series now stands 3 and 2 in favor of Fort Worth.

HALF A GAME LEAD.

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—(Canadian Press)—Kansas City is leading St. Paul by one half game last night in the hot American Association pennant race, as the result of an even break in a doubleheader with Columbus yesterday, while Indianapolis defeated the Saints. The standing follows:

Kansas City ....Won 105 Lost 54
St. Paul ..... Won 105 Lost 54

CARPENTIER SCORED SWIFT KNOCKOUT IN JUST TWENTY SECONDS

Joe Beckett Counted Out On His Feet in London Bout — All Over in a Flash.

Great Disappointment.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—(Canadian Press)—It took Georges Carpentier, the French fighter, just about twenty seconds tonight to put the quietus on the championship aspirations of Joe Beckett, who holds the heavyweight title in Great Britain. Carpentier used both lefts and rights in a brief series of exchanges, and Beckett remained on the floor for the final count.

The two men received a great ovation when they entered the ring for their twenty-round bout, and for a fleeting moment Beckett was wreathed in smiles. His supporters, however, could hardly have witnessed a speedier or greater disappointment than awaited them.

Beckett led with a light left to his opponent's jaw, but there was no power in the blow, and Carpentier shot over a left followed by a right to Beckett's jaw with terrible force, and Beckett went down for a count of five.

The Englishman got to his feet rather groggy, and the Frenchman dashed in and with right and left beat Beckett down again near the ropes, falling on top of him. On rising, Carpentier stood back. Beckett gripped the bottom rope in an effort to pull himself to his feet, but he was so badly spent that apparently he had lost all sense of what was going on, and before the count had been completed his seconds threw in the towel, and thus ended one of the quickest and most sensational of heavyweight contests.

After the fight Carpentier said it was all over so quickly that there was nothing to talk about. Asked about his future plans he said:

"I am off to the United States next month, and if I beat Tom Gibbons, I expect to meet Dempsey again. Indeed, I hope so.

M'GILL STARTS FINAL GROOMING

Meet Champion Queen's Next Saturday in Opening Game.

MONTREAL, October 1. — McGill started its final week's drill today in preparation for the opening of the intercollegiate Rugby football season on Saturday, when the Red and the White will meet the champion Queen's team at the Percival Molson Memorial Stadium.

Fast scrimmage practice against a substitute team was meted out to the senior squad for the greater part of the afternoon with Coach Shaugh nessy and his assistants paying particular attention to checking the players on the new interference rule that will mark the biggest change in the game this fall.

The heavy work outs are beginning to take their toll and the casualty list is growing apace, the line players forming the majority of those on the injured list. With Roscoe Wilson definitely out of it with a broken ankle, the week-end has brought two added casualties in Art Manson, first string middle wing player, and Captain Doug. McGregor, the snap back. Manson is down with a badly sprained ankle and will not likely be ready for the opening struggle with Queen's. McGregor was only slightly hurt yesterday, and it is probable that the injury to his leg will not keep him long out of play.

Local Rugby followers are keen to witness the battle to see the respective merits of the coaching of the two teams. Hughes was taught his football by Frank Shaughnessy during the championship days at McGill around 1912, and the meeting will in some ways be a test of the ability of teacher and pupil..

DISPUTE OVER RACE DISTANCE

In Preliminary to Determine the Competitor of Papyrus.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—(Canadian Press)—Trainer Sam Hildreth came forward to-day with a compromise proposal to race Zev, against My Own, Admiral Grayson's winner of the elimination sweepstakes, at a mile and an eighth, to determine which horse should run the international mile and a half race with Papyrus, the English champion.

Admiral Grayson tonight transmitted to August Belmont, chairman of the Jockey Club, a renewal of his offer to race My Own against Zev, at any time or place, for a purse or without it at a mile and a half, but declining to enter any elimination contest which was not for the same distance as the big race itself.

Admiral Grayson pointed out that English Derby, which made Papyrus champion, was for a mile and a half and that the elimination sweepstakes, which were run at Belmont Park on September 15, for the purpose of developing a winner to meet Papyrus, also was for a mile and half.

The international cup race itself, in which Papyrus is to meet an American horse, yet to be selected, for the world's three-year-old championship, is also to be for a mile and a half, he said.

NEW FACES IN WORLD SERIES

Most of Players of Both Teams Are Veterans of the Classic.

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Only a few debutantes will make their first bow in world's series society when the Giants and the Yankees line up for the 1923 classic.

Both managers McGraw and Huggins probably will decide to start practically the same teams that played in the series last Fall and most of the players will be veterans of at least two previous inter-league combats.

The Giants have three star young players and at least two of them are almost sure to be seen in one or more of the games.

Jimmy O'Connell, the youngster for whom the Giants paid the San Francisco Pacific Coast League club the record sum of $75,000, will no doubt get a chance in some of the games in centre field. Manager McGraw may not start him, as he is a nervous youngster, and Casey Stengel, the veteran warrior, might get the assigement in the early games.

Jack Bentley, the $65,000 southpaw pitcher who came from the Baltimore International League club, probably will be picked to pitch one of the games, and he is sure to get some work as a pinch hitter, as he is one of the most dangerous batters in the National League. When right he is also a very good pitcher.

Chance for Jackson.

Travis Jackson, the young shortstop who came to the Giants from the Little Rock club of the Southern Association, will be put to work if Heinie Groh, the veteran third baseman, should not be able to hold up during the series.

Jackson was called uupon to fill the place of Dave Bancroft, the Giant captain, who was out for six weeks during the mid-season, and he gave promise of developing into a great player. He is a game kid, a good fielder and a fine hitter, and with more experience he might have been given a place as a regular.

Unless the Yanks should have a walkaway in the series, it is doubtful that any new players will be able to break into the lineup. Huggins, with the exception of Haines and Hendricks in the outfield, and Benny Bengough, a third string catcher, has no new material on the team.

Herb Pennock, former Red Sox southpaw, no doubt will be started in one game. He had a very good season and it is almost sure that he will get a chance to pitch one of the games.

Huggins's Reserves.

For infield reserves Huggins has Mike McNally, a veteran and Ernie Johnston, who was added to the roster in mid-season when the White Sox asked waivers on him.

Elmer Smith, hero of the 1920 world's series when he was playing with the Cleveland Indians, will get the first call for outfield duty in an emergency.

The Yanks have two young pitchers, Pipgrass and Roettger, who may be called upon as pall-bearers if the Giants should get mean with any of the star Yank pitchers.

"Mule" Watson, who came to the Giants from Boston in a mid-season deal, may also get a chance to do some pitching. McGraw is sore on him for breaking training rules, however, and he may not be used unless it is absolutely necessary.

The big apple crop we reported recently is a big cider crop now.

Winter will be hard on men who are broke. Keeping their hands in their pockets keeps it on their minds.

Rate Young of Giants a Real Wizard in Outfield

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—While one doesn't hear a great deal about Outfielder Ross Young of the New York Giants, the Chicago White Sox players consider him one of the greatest outfielders in the game.

For the past two years the White Sox and Giants have played a spring exhibition tour of about 15 games. According to the Sox, Young played phenomenal ball against them.

The other day in a fanning bee Catcher Ray Schalk of the Chicago club remarked:

"Young is more than a mere outfielder, he tries to get into every play. In a game that we played at Johnson City, Tenn., this spring, Righ Fielder Young made the put-out at the plate while one of our players was being run down between third and home. Mighty few outfielders would have the interest to come into the plate from right field and complete a play at that base."

Said Eddie Collins:

"My idea of a great outfielder is a player who cannot only field and bat well but always throw the ball to the right place. Young never seems to err in making the proper throw, and on a ground ball he handles himself like an infielder."

Kitchen Cabinet Tactics Wreck St. Louis Browns

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 2.—From a contender to an also ran in one short year. That is the experience of the St. Louis Browns, the club that lost the American League pennant to the New York Yankees in 1922 by the scant margin of one game.

Under Lee Fohl as manager, harmony was supreme on the Browns last year. That was the dominant factor in the club's success. This year, deprived of the services of baseball's biggest star, George Sisler, Fohl still kept the club in the race.

Then for some reason Fohl was let out in mid-season. The Browns have a "kitchen cabinet." Several directors of the club sit over the Browns' bench, and with the second guess at their command have made things very unpleasant for the manager. It is said that kitchen cabinet politics resulted in Fohl's dismissal.

Upon starting on the last invasion of the east, the team despite kitchen cabinet interference had an excellence chance to finish second. Then came the suspension of Pitcher Shocker. It seems the star of the staff had been promised that the club would permit him to take his wife on the last trip through the east and pay all her expenses.

In mid-season the executive head of the club, Bob Quinn, departed, taking over the presidence of the Boston American Leagfiue club. When it came time to make the trip, Shocker was informed the club had no intention of paying his wife's expenses. He then decided to take his wife along at his own expense. The club forbade this, said if he attempted to do so, he would stand suspended. That is what happened.

This action on the part of the club destroyed the team's spirit. Without Shocker the players didn't believe they had a chance. In the east the team has simply gone through the formality of playing. The loss of second place means about $1,000 or more per man. The players feel the policy of the club in suspending Shocker has deprived them of such a sum. Whoever manages the Browns next year has his work cut out for him.

HOPPE IN TOURNAMENT.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(Canadian Press) — Willie Hoppe, world's champion balk-line billiards champion, today filed his entry papers for the international 18.2 balk-line tournament, to be held here October 20.

Hoppe won the 1922 tournament and successfully defended his title in a match with Jake Schaefer early this year.

PROPOSE MEET OF YANK AND BRITON

Athletes of United States and British Empire May Clash.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—An athletic meet with United States athletes pitted against British Empire stars, will be staged in an English setting on July 19, next year, according to the present plans of the British Amateur Athletic Association. The committee of the Association which reached this decision was also unanimously in favor of an alliance between the British body and the Amateur Athletic Asociation of America.

The pledge of American A.A.U. corporation in holding the athletic meet here has been received by cable from Secretary F. W. Rubien. If agreeable to the A.A.U., the United States track athletes, after completing their part in their Olympic games at Paris, will come to London for the games here, which will be held either at the Stamford Bridge grounds, or at the new Wembley Stadium, in the British Exhibition grounds.

The present plans are for the United States team to compete against a British Empire team, but before such arrangements can be made the cooperation of the British overseas athletes must be obtained. Hitherto they have preferred to compete in the big athletic events as individual Dominion teams, rather than under Union Jack colors, but the A.A.A. officials beleive the Dominion athletic organizations will agree to combine their strength for a test against the United States.

BALTIMORE WIN AGAIN.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 2.—(Canadian Press)—The Orioles, five times pennant winners in the International League, defeated the New York Yankees in the second game of the three-game series, 4 to 0. The locals beat the American League champions yesterday, 10 to 6. Babe Ruth retired after the first inning to give his injured ankle a rest. Score:

Baltimore 4 7 0
New York 0 8 2
Groves, Bender, Ogden and Cobb; Bush, Pennock and Schang, Hoffman.

BOBBY EBER, HAMILTON STILL RETAINS CROWN

TORONTO, Oct. 2.— (Canadian Press.)—Bobby Eber, of Hamilton, is still bantamweight champion of Canada, but his crown is mighty shaky. He just managed to hold young Mack of Toronto to a draw in a title bout at Jack Corcoran's show at the Arena here last night, and incidentally etched his name on a brand new surcingle, emblematic of the bantamweight championship of the Dominion.

Mack proved to be of real championship calibre and gave clever Eber one of the best bouts of his career.

PROBE AFFAIRS OF HOME BANK

To This End Dominion Government May Appoint Royal Commission--Cabinet Discussed The Matter.

OTTAWA, Oct. 2. — (Canadian Press).—The Home Bank affairs are understood to have occupied a prominent place in discussions at a Cabinet meeting this morning. It is thought that the report of the curator who was appointed by the Canadian Bankers' Association to investigate the status of the bank has been received by the Minister of Finance, and this has brought to a head the question of whether the Government should institute an additional inquiry into the causes of closing the bank's doors.

Two courses of action are reported to have been considered by the Government in this connection, either the appointment of a Royal Commission to probe the conditions of the bank and the conduct of its management, or to authorize a special investigation by a Government auditor.

The latter was much the line taken in the case of the Merchants' Bank. In that instance, George Edwards, who has frequently acted as accounting advisor to the Department of Finance, made an examination of the books of the Merchants' Bank, and his investigation went a long way to supply the evidence upon which Sir Montague Allan and S. D. C. Macarow, formerly president and general manager of that bank, were prosecuted, the proceedings resulting in acquittal. It is pointed out here that the banking law under which officers of the Merchants' Bank were prosecuted, is also the law under which the proceedings, if any should be instituted, would be taken in the case of the Home Bank.

It is expected that the curator's report on the assets and liabilities of the suspended Home Bank will be given out officially to-morrow. Hon. Howard Ferguson, Premier of Ontario, again asserted that the Province, through the department of the Attorney-General, was prepared to take whatever action the report of the curator proved to warrant. Such action would be immediate and emphatic, he said.

It is understood that Curator A. B. Barker had a conference last night with the Premier and the Attorney-General, and that certain details of the curator's findings were made known to them.

POLICE RESPONSIBLE FOR GERMAN RIOTING

DUESSELDORF, Oct. 2—(United Press).—French military forces were still patrolling the streets here to-day, following Sunday's fatal rioting between Germany: police and Separatists.

An official statement on the riots said seventeen Germans were killed and 400 were wounded. Of the dead twelve were civilians, three safety police and two blue police. Ninety of the wounded were in hospitals

Responsibility for the riots was placed on agents of the police, who acted independantly without orders from Berlin.

HUNTING

Keep Down If You'd Bag Ducks Instead of Excuses

BY MORRIS ACKERMAN

Nationally Known Authority and Writer on the Great Out-of-Doors, and Editor of Ackerman's Sportsmen's Guide

FINAL ARTICLE—BLINDS

The other day I got a letter from a fellow out west who wanted the name and address of a manufacturer of duck blinds. As far as I know every duck hunter must be his own blind manufacturer. The nearest maker to a duck blind is the chap who makes chicken wire. No matter where you make your duck blind, chicken wire always makes a good frame to work on.

Twenty to twenty-five feet of wire 6 inches high should answer for most blinds. Of course, if you are making a blind in open water to cover a row or duck boat you will need more. Enough to cover both sides and one end. The rest of the story is one of judgment, nothing more or less.

Correct Blind Camouflage.

When you are building a blind in a marsh it should be built of marsh grass. If in the rushes, it should be built of rushes. In rice fields it should be covered with rice stalks. When shooting from a point of land it shoud be made to match the surroundings. If shooting close to wooded shore on an inland lake, the blind can be made of brush and leaves taken from the immediate vicinity.

The whole trick—and it is a trick—is to keep the ducks from suspicion. It is well to remember that at least some of the ducks that pass your blind have been coming that way for years. Remember, too, that their stopping off places are not so numerous that they will forget what they saw on the last flight.

Keep Down and Unseen.

If convenient, it is well to build two blinds. Build them a fair ways apart. Shoot from one this fall and the other next fall. Let the birds get used to the one where no shooting is done. That's the way the goose hunters do in Newfoundland and Labrador. In fact, they never build a blind and shoot from it the same year.

Above all keep your blind as small as possible and as close to the ground as possible. Make your blind just like the surroundings, dress just like your blind, cut out smoking and keep down. You'll get some shooting if you will follow those few simple rules. KEEP DOWN! KEEP DOWN! A duck is above you. He can see farther than you can, quicker than you can. He can see you fore and aft. If he sees you and keeps coming on he isn't a wild duck.

NOSE BLEEDING

The nose is perhaps more apt to get in trouble, and epistaxis result, because it protrudes from the general contour of your face into the world. The tender nasal bones are often subjected to painful fractures. Bleeding is usually the result with pain and discomfort.

Epistaxis may be the result of any one of many important disturbances. Its attack comes from within and not from contact or surface blows. Nose bleed calls for careful, expert treatment, where a loss of blood may mean days and even weeks of lost vitality, severe heart strain or vertigo. Frequent periods of epistaxis often come with a gush when least expected.

The latest study and treatment of this trouble ascribes some of the important causes as cerebral congestion, haemophia (hereditory tendency to profuse bleeding or hemorrhage), sexual trouble particularly among young girls at the period of puberty, high blood pressure at middle age, kidney trouble of certain types and as a result of local disease or ulcer. To these may be added common nasal colds with the inflamation, congestion and rupture of the blood vessels in the mucous membranes of the olfactory system.

In many cases the bleeding will cease or control itself in a short time. But not the real epistaxis, and freqently heroic treatment has to be given to avoid exhaustion.

In the more severe attacks, adrenalin, which has come to be such an aid as a stimulant and heamonstatic may be used to check the flow. A little wad of absorbent cotton saturated with adrenalin and inserted rather tightly in the nose will usually prove effective.

Another good home treatment is to use a piece of lemon or a small soft cloth wrung out in vinegar, as an astringent. If these do not stop the bleeding the nose must be plugged and a physician called at once.

In milder cases try cold application to the outside of the nose or pressure on the nose or upper lip. Another convenient method is to place a roll of bandage (about one-fourth inch in diameter and one inch long) under the upper lip. This also gives the desired pressure.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

"Ruggles of Red Gap," the current attraction at the Capitol is one of the finest comedies seen in Peterboro for a long time and is remarkable in that the picture follows the story so that hundreds who read it in the Saturday Evening Post know just what to expect next and so are ready to anticipate the wonderful comedy the picture contains. The audience were kept in a continual roar last night. Out west in the small burg known as Red Gap live a family who have reached the pinnacle of social fame as fame in Red Gap goes, but who are constantly being annoyed by the social errors made by one of their relatives known as Uncle Egbert. Egbert believes in being human and does what he likes when he feels like it, even to getting drunk with the cowboys in the bar. Society with all its formality, has no appeal for him. In an effort to elevate him his family take him to Paris where they meet a poverty stricken Englishman whose sole asset is Ruggles his clever and discreet valet. In a poker game with Ruggles as the stake, the Englishman loses and Ruggles comes to America as Uncle Egbert's "man'. From then on the picture is filled with laughs; not slap stick comedy but real laughs arising from cleverly humorous situations such as Harry Leon Wilson knows how to conceive and that have been transferred to the screen with all their delightful whimsicality. Ernest Torrence as the rough and ready Egbert shows himself to be a splendid comedian; Lois Wilson, Fritzi Ridgeway and Louis Dresser are also in the cast. "Ruggles of Red Gap" is a real comedy that will appeal to everybody and especially those who are tired of the conventional slapstick that is too often called "comedy" in the movies.

AT THE ROYAL.

"THE PRODIGAL SON" BIG BRITISH FILM

Unusually Beautiful Iceland Setting —Powerful Novel Powerfully Filmed.

Screen drama of a most satisfactory sort, drama that defies many movie traditions and takes no count of film footage, is the big British production of "The Prodigal Son." This is not always a pleasant story —it's too human a one for that—and the people who made the picture resorted to no tricks or subterfuges to sweeten or soften it for the pampered palate. You may take it or leave it, but we strongly urge the former course; first because it is that rare thing a powerful novel powerfully filmed and faithful to the author, and again because the settings are unusually betutiful nd introduce us to a heretofore unknown land—in a movie sense. Iceland is the background chiefly. It is becoming almost unnecessary to add nowadays that the scenes were filmed "on the spot."

Two brothers, one a hard-working unselfish, stay-at-home fellow, and the other a wanderer and a wastrel, love the same girl. With the perversity of human nature, as is found in many a feminine heart, the girl prefers the bounder to the decent chap —and suffers accordingly.

The prodigal is not altogether a sinner no more than the self-sacrificing brother is all hero, so the tale moves along in a series of surprises with some almost sublime moments, and at least three strong climaxes, where even the unemotional will breathe hard. Glimpses of Paris, London and Italy vary the background. Ot the end—which is a happy one—the prodigal wins every heart. The cast of this production is a most capable one, each player fitting his part to the life.

"MASTERS OF MEN,"

Morgan Robertson's Great Sea Story the next Attraction at the Royal.

"Masters of Men," Morgan Robertson's great sea novel, adapted for the screen by C. Graham Baker, which will be shown at the Royal Theatre next Friday, is a real good story.

The hero, Dick Halpin, is the sort of a boy every American admires, sensitive to hurts, rebellious against snobbery, quick to fight and big enough to carry a secret wrong to save the girl he loves from humiliation. Dick is falsely accused of theft and runs away from home. He joins the United States navy, and there he learns how to be a man. While on shore leave he and his superior are shanghaied on board of a four master and sent before the mast. They endure the brutality of captain and mate and the filth in which they are compelled to live until they manage their escape just as the United States declares war on Spain. The boys rejoin their ships and take an active part in the battle of Santiago when Cervera's fleet was destroyed as it came out to sea.

The naval battle is thrillingly presented and through courtesy of the United States Navy Department at Washington is authentically reproduced, the Navy permitting Vitagraph producers to take real shots on board men of war when stripped for action and indulging in gun fire. The cast is an exceptionally strong one of fan favorites.

AT THE GRAND.

BRITISH COMPANY AT THE GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

Bransby Williams, the English actor, whose name has been almost world-wide in its popularity as an exponent of Dickens characters, has, during the last two years, joined the rangs of British actor-managers and toured with his own company of players. His first essay as a manager was to present a new version of "David Copperfied" with himself doubling the parts of Micawber and Peggetty. His personal success in the rapid changes has been acknowledged a wonderful tour de force. It is a play that interests and grips from a dramatic point of view and at the same time affords more real hearty laughter than any farcical comedy has done for years. In England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales it has been one long triumphal march for himself and his company. The eldest playgoers have turned out and become young again in their memories and enjoyment, and boys and girls from schools and colleges have made their first acquaintance with characters of fiction in the flesh. Playgoers in this city will have an opportunity of seeing this clever actor and his All-English Company at the Grand Opera House for a matinee and evening performance next Saturday. Mail orders now. WEDDING BELLS

CHAPMAN—HUNT.

The wedding was solemnised on Saturday, 29th September, at the parsonage of Mark Street Methodist Church, by the pastor, Rev. R. Bamforth, of Mary Elizabeth Hunt and Clifford Henry Chapman, both of this city.

CONLIN—O'BRIEN LEAHY—O'BRIEN

A double wedding event of great interest was solemnized in St. Joseph't's church, Douro, on Tuesday, September 25th, when Agnes Veronica O'Brien was united in marriage to James Conlin, of Peterborough, and Rita Margaret O'Brien to Mr. Michael Leahy, of Douro, both brides being the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice O'Brien of Douro. Rev. M. J. McGuire performed the ceremony. Miss Mabel Allan, of Douro, played the wedding march. Both couples acted as attendants for each other in turn.

The brides wore stylish suits of navy tricotine, Miss Agnes O'Brien wearing black picture hat with willow plume and corsage bouquet of columbia roses, her sister wearing sand picture hat with ostrich plume, sanchilla choker and corsage bouquet of ophelia roses.

After the ceremony, the bridal party and guests drove to the home of the brides' parents, where a dainty wedding breakfast was served to about thirty-five guests. The house was profusely decorated with autumn leaves and flowers, white streamers and wedding bells.

Later the bridal party left for the C.P.R. train to Toronto and points west.

Mr. and Mrs. Leahy will reside in Douro, Mr. and Mrs. Conlin in Peterborough.

As this was the first double wedding in Douro during the last fifteen years, it was quite an event and was attended by a number of friends who motored from Peterborough, also by Mr Eugene Torpey and Mrs. J. Frank Barry, of Toronto and Mr. Jack Flannigan, of Cobourg.

OBITUARY

ROBERT HALL

Robert Hall, Collector of Customs and Inland Revenue passed away suddenly at the family residence, 507 Homewood avenue on Monday evening, October 1st at six p.m.

Mr. Hall was born January, 17th., 1849, in Smith Township and was the youngest son of the late Adam Hall.

In March 1873 he entered into the partnership at its formation of Hall Innes and Co., successors to the firm if Nicholl, and Hall, and was an active member of the firm until its dissolution. Following this he conducted a dry goods business for a few years in a portion of the premises now occupied by Cressman Ltd

On September 7th 1899, he was appointed Deputy Collector of Customs and on June 23rd 1900, Collector of Customs, in which capacity he has acted, up to the day of his death.

The immediate relatives are his wife, three daughters, Miss Lillian, Mrs. A. P. MacLean and Mrs. Harry Marsh, two sons, Robert S., and Harold F., one sister, Mrs. W. G. Ferguson and one brother, Mr. Andrew Hall both of this city.

Mr. Hall was a member of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church.

The funeral will be held from the family residence to Little Lake Cemetery, at two o'clock, Thursday, October 4th.

IRISH FREE STATE IN A BRITISH CONFERENCE

DUBLIN, Oct. 2.— Participation of Irish Free State in British Imperial Conference at London, it is felt here, will have a direct bearing on immeditae Irish interest and attiude to be adopted by Irish delegates was exhaustively discussed at cabinet conference here.

Joseph McGrath, Minister of Commerce, was unexpectedly selected to accompany President Cosgrave and this is taken as an indication that the problem of unemployment will be one of those to occupy attention of conference. Questions of political relations of Dominions to the Imperial government will not, it is believed here, be raised. Irish opinion holds that independence of various members of the British commonwealth will be greater if these relations are left vague.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED.

HAMILTON, Oct. 2.—(Canadian Press).—Col. and Mrs. William Hendrie announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary, to Mr. Wilfrid Stratton, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Stratton, of Peterboro.

ALLIES LEAVE TURKEY TODAY

Brief Military Ceremony Marked The End Of Occupation.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 2. — Canadian Press. — The allied occupation of Constantinople formally ended at noon to-day. For weeks transports have been evacuating troops and material, while one by one the warships have slipped away, thus making to-day's function merely a brief military ceremony that lasted about half an hour.

At 11 o'clock the allies and the Turkish detachments took positions in the open square of Dolma Bagtche. Generals Harrington of Britain, Mombeli of Italy and Chorpy of France, with their staffs, were received by Prince Seba Heddin Pasha and staff.

After an inspection parade the four commanders took up positions on the left of the allied colors while the bands played the national anthems of the countries represented. The color stands were replaced by the Turkish flag while the anthem of Turkey was played.

Immediately afterwards the allied companies passed in review to the quay, where they embarked on trans ports. Three hours later the foreign vessels of war and transports weighed anchor and steamed seaward, leaving Turkey to the Turks.

STRESEMANN ASKS EMPOWERING LAW

The German Government Wants Free Hand to Deal With Internal Situation.

BERLIN, Oct. 2.— (United Press.)— Chancellor Stresemann is preparing to ask the Reichstag to pass "an empowering law," giving the government wide powers to deal with the internal situation, it was learned to-day.

The Chancellor is scheduled to go before the Reichstag at 7 p.m. to make important announcements. It is probable the request for the special powers law will be made at that time, although the foreign official informed the United Press it is not certain the request can be made this afternoon as Stresemann must first consult all the party leaders, who will confer with him during the day.

Cabinet Crisis.

Meantime threats of a Cabinet crisis continued. The Cabinet met last night and an official statement given after the meeting said the government was "united."

It was considered, however, that the clerical party leaders at the same met and declared themselves in favor of a Bourgeoise cabinet. Chancellor Stresemann was reported ready to dissolve the Reichstag if the Socialists attempted serious obstruction to his plans for economic reconstruction.

A strict censorship continued on all military news to-day. News regarding internal disorders was limited to the official statements of the government. All other messages were refused on instructions from the government.

The censorship was applied to newspapers in Berlin as well as on dispatches of foreign correspondents.

Session of the Reichstag, at which Chancellor Stresemann is expected to deliver his statements on foreign affairs and present the government's new economic programme, has been called for five o'clock this afternoon.

Mr. J. Frank Barry has returned to Toronto after spending the week-end in Peterborough with his wife, who is visiting relatives in the city.

Many showers for brides-to-be have been held in Douro during the past few years, but none was more successful than the shower held recently for Misses Agnes and Rita O'Brien, whose double wedding took place last week. It was held at the future home of one of the prospective brides, Miss Rita, who married Mr. Michael Leahy, of Douro, and over three hundred guests attended for a jolly evening spent in the enjoyment of cards, dancing, and a sumptuous midnight supper. The numerous pretty and costly gifts received by the young people testified to the esteem in which they were held by a large circle of friends.

HELP EDUCATE BOYS.

TYLER, Tex., Oct. 2.—(United Press).—Young men of Tyler, desirous of obtaining a college education, need not be downcast because of lack of funds. For T. E. Swann, wealthy citizen, has started the "T. E. Swann Student's Loan Fund," with a donation of $1,000.

Each year $1,000 is to be added to the fund until a total of $10,000 is reached. The first thousand has been placed in the hands of a committee of five, who will use the money to the best possible advantage, as stipulated by the donor.

The plan contemplates that a certain amount shall be loaned to boys who desire an education. The amount is to be limited and each boy will give his note, with the name of his parents or some other persons, as guarantors. Interest will be charged, but no security required.

GERMAN CRASH SEEMS TO HAVE BEEN STAYED AT LEAST A FEW HOURS

After Five Hours Deliberation Socialist Party Agrees Tentatively To Chancellor Stresemann's Economic Programme With Modifications.

COUP IN THE MAKING

BERLIN, Oct. 3.—(Special).—The impending German Cabinet crash to-day appeared to have been averted for at least some hours.

After five hours' deliberation the Cabinet session adjourned at 3 a.m., the Socialist party agreeing tentatively to Chancellor Stresemann's economic programme with some modification.

The Socialists' consent came only after a long and bitter debate, and was not final. Additional Socialist conferences were being held this morning, and a last statement of the position of the party was to be given the Chancellor at noon.

Agreement Hoped For.

"We believe the Socialists will acquiesce," a Government spokesman told the United Press. 'Otherwise, a most serious crisis is anticipated."

It generally was indicated that in the event of a Cabinet break, Stresemann will declare a complete dictatorship.

The Eight-Hour Day.

At two o'clock this afternoon the Reichstag parties were still stubbornly deadlocked on the issues raised by the Socialists. The latter were in caucus all forenoon and adjourned in order to report the party's sentiment to the Cabinet. The Socialists are demanding the assurance that Chancellor Stresemann's proposed legislation will not discriminate against the working conditions with regard to the eight-hour day, and are also insisting that the central Government assert its undiminishing political and military authority in Bavaria.

Gathered For Coup.

The military to-day arrested 300 men in the neighborhod of Doebritz Camp, outside of Berlin, charging them with gathering for a military coup against the Government.

The authorities said the plot was similar to that at Kuestrin, which was broken by the loyalty of the Government troops.

Doebritz was the starting of the Vancapp coup of March, 1920, and always has been a centre of monarchist plotting. It has a large and important garrison. An official statement of the events at Kuestrin was issued, bearing out in detail the previous despatches of the United Press. The fate of the 300 plotters taken prisoners when the outbreak finally was crushed yesterday morning has not yet been made known.

Peterborough Man Named Instructor Sheet Metal Work

HAMILTON, Oct. 3.— (Special.)—Vocational committee of the Board of Education met last night and W. E. Rambo, of Peterborough, was appointed instructor in sheet metal work at the Hamilton Technical College, conditional upon a report from a small committee to the effect that a sheet metal instructor was not available in Hamilton.

K.K.K. AN ISSUE AT N.S. CAPITAL

Question Will Bob Up to Embarrass Members of Congress.

By Lawrence Martin

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—(United Press).—The K.K.K. issue will bob up in all sorts of ways to trouble and embarrass members of Congress and candidates for office in the next few months.

It is one of those issues based up on that fundamental human trait—dislike of any man or group of men who disagrees with you. It is an issue based upon bitterness, hence it will beget bitterness.

The prospect that the Klan question will come before Congress and probably before the national conventions of both parties is giving many a politician deep grief these days. They are wishing to goodness it had not been added to the complications of an American political career. For some men in public life injection of the K.K.K. issue is just like being caught between the devil and the deep blue sea. They are going to get into trouble whichever way they jump, but there is no way to avoid the jump.

Here are some of the ways in which the K.K.K. question will figure in political history shortly:

Issue in Many States

1—It will be a local issue in many States, entering into thousands of election contests for local offices, from constable to governor.

2—It will affect the fortunes of candidates for Congress in 1924, both new ones and some who seek renomination and re-election.

3—It will be the subject of resolutions to be introduced in Congress this Winter, demanding investigation or the Klan's activities on a national scale to determine whether it is an un-American organization.

4—It will figure in a fight in the Senate to prevent seating of Earle Mayfield of Texas, elected to succeed Senator Culberson.

The possibility that the disturbances in Oklahoma, the ostensible cause of which is a row between Governor Walton and the Klan, may get into the United States Supreme Court, also looms up as another means of keeping the Klan issue alive.

The Klan in Washington

Washington is a veritable hotbed of K.K.K. rumors and reports these days. In this respect it hardly differs from any American city where the Klan has or had a branch, or where its real and reputed doings have brought it into notice locally. Members of Congress by the score are said to belong to the Klan. As a matter of fact, some of them either are members or have been, but the number is small. They are not the ones who worry about injection of the issue into politics.

The worried ones are those who don't belong, but who are afraid if they repudiate the Klan they will get into trouble if they don't repudiate it. They come, obviously, from States, where the Klan is strong, and that always carries with it the corollary that its enemies are strong also.

WORRIED OVER CHILDREN'S EYES.

BOSTON, Mass.—(United Press).—New England educators are deeply concerned over revelations made by Guy A. Henry, of New York, general director of the Eyesight Conservation Council of America, before the recent conference of juvenile agencies here recently. Henry said that one-fourth of America's 24,000,000 school children are handicapped by poor eyesight. This results in serious interference with school work and an impairment of general health.

MERCHANT FEIGNED DEATH TO COLLECT HIS INSURANCE

Murdered Aged Man and Arranged Body to Appear As His Own in a Wrecked Automobile—Confesses Crime.

EUREKA, Cal., October 3 (United Press). — Alex. Kels, a wealthy merchant o Lodi, to-day confessed he had murdered a man and arranged the body to appear as his own in a wrecked automobile, in an effort to collect $100,000 insurance, the authorities here announced.

Kels was arrested a month after he was supposed to have lost his life in the automobile disaster a few miles from Lodi.

Relatives had buried the charred body as that of Kels, but insurance companies held up the payment of the policies.

LLOYD GEORGE STILL STRONG SAYS VISITOR

Mr. Charles Thorpe Returns from an Extended Trip to England—What He Saw.

CONDITIONS BETTER

Mr. Chas. Thorpe, of the firm of Grant and Thorpe, has just recently returned from a trip to England, and has some interesting things to relate of his visit. Mr. and Mrs. Thorpe spent about nine weeks in England, chiefly at the former's old home at Brighton, leaving Canada on July 7th by the Empress of Scotland and arriving in England on the 15th. The Empress of Scotland, the re-converted Kaiserine Wilhelmine, came to grief later, when she struck a submerged wreck, and passage back was taken on the Empress of Britain, Mr. and Mrs. Thorpe reaching Quebec on their return journey, on September 24th.

In England, Mr. Thorpe found conditions very unsettled owing mainly to the uncertainty over the European situation generally, but he is of the opinion that the decision with regard to the Ruhr problem will have an almost immediate stabilizing effect in England. There was litle actual want, owing to the unemployment relief system, which, in Mr. Thorpe's opinion is relied on to far too great an extent by the majority of the men. "They may not have much money, but everywhere you go, you see people taking the trains somewhere. The stations art acked with those who stations are packed with those who are going off for holiday jaunts, and they must have their play too. They are almost too much interested in cricket and football for their own good, to my mind."

Although the Municipal Housing Scheme is operating successfully, there are still not enough houses to supply the demand. Mr. Thorpe is of the opinion that those who were content in war time to parcel out their domiciles to various families are now demanding bigger quarters for themselves, thus making the situation more acute. In Brighton, the house shortage was painfully apparent, and still there were long sections of new houses that had gone up in the past few years, mainly of the bungalow type. Mr. Thorpe knew of one man who offered a bonus of five pounds for two rooms and was unable to procure them, and during Bank Holiday Week, people on vacation leave slept on the stones and under the piers.

Those who are unable to buy news papers are accommodated by a sort of bulletin arrangement. The "work wanted" columns of the dailies are cut out and pasted outside the Library for ready reference by the crowds that come daily to study them Women do not suffer so much from the widespread unemployment problem, as they can always get work of a domestic nature to do.

With regard to general business conditions, Mr. Thorpe was of the opinion that this winter would not be any worse than those of a few years back, as long as the Unemployment doles were kept up. In Brighton, a diamond factory that was in flourishing condition shortly after the war, manned by returned soldiers who had been taught the art of diamond-cutting, was now closed up, and the Government was unable to do anything toward its re-opening. In London, the manager of a wholesale jewellery and fine china establishment, catering to a rich and exclusive trade, informed the visitor that his former turnover of between twelve and fifteen thousand dollars weekly had dropped to about a hundred and

FIRES FIRST SHOT IN BYE-ELECTION

Labor Member for Calgary Blames The King Government for Home Bank Failure.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 3.—(Canadian Press).—William Irwine, labor member for East Calgary, last night fired the first shot in a verbal barrage, which is expected to continue until Octobe 24, when Hon. E. J. McMurray, recently appointed to the King cabinet, as solicitor-general, will seek re-endorsation of the electors of North Winnipeg in the bye-election.

Speaking on behalf of Alderman A. A. Heap, labor, Mr. Irvine characterized the King administration as one of "Stand Pat Policy, which had outlived its usefulness."

"The Liberal Government represents a few eastern financiers who completely control and dominate the Dominion and endorsation of Mr. McMurray would mean return of a representative of finance," he said. Declaring blame for the failure of Home Bank must be left ot the doors of the King Government, which he asserted knew of the impending crash and was aware of the fact that further failures would occur during the next ten years under the banking system.

Whole Apple Crop of Ontario Orchard Sold For $8,400

COBOURG, Oct. 3.—Special.—The apples in the large orchard owned by T. W. Phillip and situated on the provincial highway, west of this town, have been sold to David Coyle, of this town, for $8,400. This is one of the best orchards in this district.

The apples are mostly Spies, Kings and Baldwins, and the crop is expected to be around 2,200 barrels. They are further stated to be very fine in quality.

SCHOOL BOARD MET

At the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Education held last evening, Mr. J. T. Braund, the newly elected member of the Board, made his initial appearance and was warmly welcomed by the members. Other members present: Mrs. W. R. Morris, Messrs. J. A. McKone, J. M. Greene, A. B. Fowler, Dr. F. C. Neal and R. Denne.

Mrs. Morris brought up the question of night classes for matriculation and it was left with the Supervision Committee to investigate the need for such classes in Peterboro. The committee was given power to act Mr. H. R. H. Kenner, who is a member of the Educational Committee of the Y.M.C.A., reported that night classes for matriculation are being conducted by the Y. M. C. A. It consists of a three-year course with four papers each year. Mr. Kenner did not think there was a need for additional classes.

Dr. A. W. McPherson, medical officer for the schools, reported that during the month of September 288 children were examined and 123 defect slips sent out, or a total of 43 per cent. The defect slips covered enlarged tonsils, defective teeth, malnutrition and other physical shortcomings. Children to the number of 260 were examined by the school nurse.

It was left with the school inspector to take up with the Principals of the various schools the question of taking up a collection among the school children for Japanese relief. The Red Cross Society is behind the movement.

The average daily attendance at the Collegiate Institute for the month of September was 488, with a total of 501 on the roll. This represents a percentage of 97.

In the public schools of the city the average daily attendance was 2,755, or a percentage of 94.

Manual and domestic science classes are still suffering from lack of accommodation. The need for a new school is still a pressing problem for the School Board.

For a half a dozen six-footers in the Collegiate Institute special desks will be provided to keep them from getting round-shouldered.

SEE CROP MOVED.

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., October 3. — Canadian Press. — That the Board of Grain Commissioners will see that the crop is moved from the head of the lakes, was the general conclusion reached following the meeting of the commissioners here which lasted until early this morning. Yesterday's figures prepared by the statistical staff were analyzed and the commissioners left to-day for Winnipeg to continue their session.

WARRANT ISSUED FOR ARREST OF H. J. DALY FOLLOWS DISCLOSURES MADE BY CURATOR OF HOME BANK

THE TWO GOVERNMENTS WORK TOGETHER IN BANK ENQUIRY

H. J. Daly is Being Arrested on Two Counts—Other Officers of the Bank Placed Under Arrest — R. P. Gough May Resign From Railway Board.

TORONTO, Oct. 3.—(Special.)—A warrant has been issued for the arrest of Herbert J. Daly, President of the Home Bank, after information had been laid before Magistrate Jones this morning by Bennett John Roberts, an official of the Finance Department at Ottawa. This was the information given by H. J. Scott, K. C., who is acting on behalf of the Dominion Government in the Home Bank case.

Mr. Daly is being arrested on two counts. In the first it is charged, under sub-section one of section 153 of the Bank Act, that he did "wilfully" make false and deceptive statements in a certain monthly account, statement, return, report, and document prepared, signed, approved and concurred in by him for the month of May, 1923, respecting the affairs of the said bank, and containing false and deceptive statements relating to railway and other bonds, debentures and stocks, call and short loans in Canada, other current loans and discounts in Canada, over due debts, bank premises and other assets, and as to the assets, financial position, condition and affairs of the said Home Bank, the said return being made and sent by the said Herbert J. Daly as such president as aforesaid to the Minister of Finance and Receiver-General of the Dominion of Canada, and received by the said Minister of Finance and Receiver-General, thereby committing an indictable offence. The second count on which President Daly was ordered arrested is that he negligently prepared, signed, approved, and concurred in a monthly statement, return, report and document for the month of May, 1923."

THE OTHER REPORT.

The information that a warrant had been issued for the arrest of H. J. Daly was contained in an official statement issued here today at noon by Right Hon. W. S. Fielding, Minister of Finance, which states that as a result of the curator's report and other investigation, the Department believes that the chief officials of the bank shortly before the suspension, made returns to the Minister of Finance containing false and deceptive statements of the bank's affairs.

Returns in which these false and deceptive statements were contained were signed by Herbert J. Daly, President of the bank and J. Cooper Mason, general manager.

Mr. Mason, it is recalled in the official announcement, died soon after the returns were made.

An officer of the Finance Department left here last night for Toronto and upon his application a warrant was issued for the arrest of President Daly.

Mr. Fielding said that investigation whether action would be taken against other parties would be considered in due course.

F. J. D. Russell and Casey Wood, directors of the suspended Home Bank, and O. G. Smith, accountant, were placed under arrest by Provincial officers this afternoon, following the action taken by Federal and Provincial authorities. It is understood that police are on the way to Lake Simcoe to arrest H. J. Daly, president, at his summer home here.

It is announced in Ottawa unofficially, that the resignation of R. P. Gough, vice-president of the defunct Home Bank, from the Board of Directors of the Canadian National Railways, is expected.

The Wrecked Bank Failed To Make Adequate Provision for Losses During The Last Five Years.

A Gloomy Prospect For The Depositors.

The Report Places Further Action Up to The Ottawa Government — Report Did Not Reveal Much.

TORONTO, Oct 3. — (Special.)—Issuance of warrants for the arrest of President H. J. Daly and other directors of the Home Bank of Canada, which suspended on August 17th, statements by the curator that payment depositors might expect was quite indefinite and that he would not hasard any estimate, and further statements that the question of calling on shareholders for double liability, was matter for the authorities or the incoming liquidator to decide. These were some of the developments today following publication of a report on the affairs of the institution by the curator, A. B. Barker.

The Curator's Report.

The anxiously awaited report of A. B. Barker, curator, appointed to report on the condition of the Home Bank, which suspended payment on August 17th last, was made public to-day.

The Curator submits the preliminary statement of assets and liabilities as of date of the suspension which shows total liabilities of $18,486,978, of which $2,955,426 are preferred claims, and $15,531,552 to depositors and other creditors.

The assets total $15,848,000 and are divided into three classifications, viz. quick assets, other assets and bank premises.

The quick assets total $5,643,051. Other assets or "special" assets, the "value of which is substantial, but the definite worth of which cannot be determined except upon realization, and to a large extent over an extended period of time, aggregate $9,229,997. While bank premises, real estate, etc., aggregate approximately $1,000,000.

The deficiency between assets and liabilities accounts so far as creditors only are concerned, amounts to $2,638,578, but to this must be added paid up capital of $1960,592, a general reserve fund of $550,000 and contingent fund, profit and loss balances and other reserves amounting to $110,206, leaving ascertained losses and depreciations to be accounted for to the total amount of $5,259,376.

"It has been found impossible with in the limited time at my disposal," says the curator in his report, "to prepare a statement which will indicate with complete accuracy losses which have contributed to and have produced the deficiency above mentioned, but I have been able to prepare a statement which I feel is sufficient for the purpose of my report, and which accounts for all such losses except to a minor extent."

In his report the curator estimates the losses on loans for which adequate provision has not been made, at $3,794,915.

Included at their book value, in statement of assets and liabilities are certain assets which have substantial value, but definite worth of which can be determined only with their realization, and to a large extent over considerable period of time

MARKETS SHOW A STRONG TONE

Improvement In Economic Position of Agriculture and Live Stock Interests in West.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—(United Press). — Speculative confidence had been installed by the impressive action of the market in the previous session and prices displayed a strong tone in the early doings to-day.

Improvement in the economic position of the agricultural and live stock interests in the middle west was reported by the Kansas City reserve bank, which added to the feeling spreading at the financial community that business conditions were steadily getting better. Good sized gains were scored on the initial transactions by Dupont, American Can, and other industrial leaders, while the Rails continued the upward movement started Tuesday.

Industrial Gain

Covering which had been in set motion by a survey showing that short contracts outstanding were probably nearer 2,000,000 than 5,000,000 gathered vigor as the first hour progressed. Industrial leaders gained additional ground on the recovery and conspicious strength developed in a number of specialties. Confidence regarding trade outlook was strengthened by C. W. Barrons optimistic interview in which he said country was producing and consuming as never before, and that wage earners were never more prosperous. Cluett Peabody reached a new high on the movement at 73. The directors met in Troy to-day to act on the common dividend and an increase in rate to 86 would not be surprising. Earnings have been at rate of over $15 a share against $12 in 1922. Savage arms gained three points on top of a 7 1-2 point rise on Tuesday.

A SPLENDID MEETING OF HOME AND SCHOOL ASSN.

The monthly meeting of Queen Alexandra Home and School Association was held on Monday evening, 1st October, the president, Mrs. S. F. M. Touchburn, in the chair. As the secretary, Mrs. W. H. Bolton, had resigned, Mrs. Karl Simpson, treasurer, was asked to combine both offices for the remainder of the year. A quantity of business was gone through. It was decided to present the diplomas to the successful entrance pupils next Monday evening. The Association will also help, as far as possible, in the good work about to be done by the Rotarians in connection with defective feet. It was suggested to award prizes to pupils for good work during the year, Mr. Park and teachers to decide which grades would be most benefited by stimulation of that kind. A donation was also made for school sports, as football for smaller boys. A banner will be given to the room having the greatest parental attendance at meetings throughout the year.

FORD EXHIBIT AND BANQUET

Travelling Aggregation of Ford Products will Demonstrate on Market Square Tonight And Tomorrow.

The public are reminded that the monster Ford travelling exhibit of Ford products, so much lauded wherever shown, may be seen on the market square this evening and all day to-morrow. The many and varied products of Ford, including cars, trucks and tractors which enter so largely these days into agriculture, commerce, industry and pleasure will be demonstrated, and movie pictures shown of their operations and utility this evening and to-morrow night.

This remarkable exhibit which is truly worth while and replete with interest and instruction was demonstrated in Campbellford this morning and also at Keene Fair this afternoon on the road to Peterborough. It is under the direction of Wallace Murdock, B.S.A., who enjoys the capable assistance of twenty Ford experts. Nothing more unique and acceptable to the public in the way of an industrial exhibit has yet been staged in Canada, and more should miss an occasion of so informative and pleasing in character.

Commencing at 6.30 this evening, and in the Empress Hotel, Duffus Motor Sales will banquet the men in charge of this wonderful Ford travelling aggregation, together with Fordson Tractor owners, of whom there are quite one hundred in Peterborough district. No pains nor expense has been spared to make this function positively the last word in entertainment, followed by an after-dinner programme at once interesting and illuminative.

ASPIRIN

Say "Bayer" and Insist!

Unless you see the name "Bayer" on package or on tablets you are not getting the genuine Bayer product proved safe by millions and prescribed by physicians over twenty-three years for

Colds	Headache
Toothache	Lumbago
Earache	Rheumatism
Neuralgia	Pain, Pain.

Accept "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" only. Each unbroken package contains proper directions. Handy boxes of twelve tablets cost few cents. Druggists also sell bottles of 25 and 100. Aspirin is the trade mark (registered in Canada) of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid. While it is well known that Aspirin means Bayer manufacture, to assist the public against imitations, the Tablets of Bayer Company will be stamped with their general trade mark, the "Bayer Cross."

CHILDRENS' WEEK IN PETERBOROUGH

Real Aim is to Increase Local Interest in Child Welfare.

What is it? Everyone knows of "Children's Day" at the Toronto Exhibition and the Peterborough Fair.

"Children's Week!" A whole week when churches and teachers and fathers and mothers turn their hearts toward the children.

This week, October 14 to 21, has been set apart by the Children's Work Board of the Religious Education Council of Ontario. The purpose of this week is: First, and the real aim, to increase interest in child welfare by impressing parents and teachers with the importance of religious education of children. Second, to educate and entertain children by story telling and parties by different grades of our church schools.

The religious education of the child is the greatest opportunity and the highest responsibility of the Church. Those who had the privilege of hearing Dr. Morgan recently must have been impressed with the importance of the Bible in the life of the individual and the nation.

The work of teaching the Bible to the children seems to be relegated to the church schools.

This "Children's Week" aims to awaken in our church people a sense of the vital and urgent importance of the impelling call of the child, for the religious instruction that is his God-given right, and without which his life can never attain to its highest possibilities.

Schools taking up the work of the week may find helpful literature by writing to the different publishing houses. "In the Odour of Sanctity" and "What Grandmother Knew," two readings for parents' meetings, may be had at The Pilgrim Press, 156 Fifth Avenue, New York.

Some suggestions for the week are:

1—A children's workers' conference.

2—A community parent teachers' meeting with exhibit.

3—A pageant, song festival parade, a story-telling hour.

4—A house-to-house canvass.

5—Illustrated lecture on child welfare work.

All teachers of elementary grades and superintendents of schools and pastors of churches are asked to meet Friday, October 5, in Reid Street Hall at 8 o'clock to confer upon the observance of Children's Week in our city.

M. Lewis,
By Order of Children's Work Board.

fifty dollars in the same period, due to the falling-off in the buying power of his former customers. Many of the rich landowners, taxed to the limit, said Mr. Thorpe, are renting out their big country houses and living in town, finding this a more economical mode of life. A change in the law with regard to tenant and owner has also wrought a betterment in renting conditions. Formerly, a non-paying tenant could not be evicted for six months by the landlord, and even then, it was a difficult matter to dislodge him. Now, things have been made easier for the owners, many of whom were imposed upon under the old system.

Public opinion in England, according to the observer, was strongly in sympathy with the French movement in the Ruhr. Unable to understand the attitude of the governing powers who were anxious above everything else to resume trade relations with Germany, the man on the street and the daily press had not yet forgotten the devastated condition of the French countryside. Also, according to Mr. Thorpe, Lloyd George of whom the people tired, when he had been too long in office is regaining once more a measure of his lost popularity, and is regarded by many as the strong man of the Government.

Immigration, according to Mr. Thorpe is more widely considered just now in Scotland, than in England. The general paternal attitude of Governmental supervision of affairs in England, was evidently irksome, to a returning son, for Mr. Thorpe declared that he would not want to live in England again, preferring the Dominion as a place of residence.

"Electrically," he said, "they are many years behind us. They have no fixtures in their homes of the up-to-date sort we have here, and the use of electric appliances, such as we use is not at all general. The Government tax on radio outfits is almost prohibitive."

A circumstance that appeared to impress the visitor keenly was the presence on every street corner and in many public places of beggars of every description. "One could a great deal of mon the pleas of ther many who ap ed. Soldiers selling beads instrument money."

AI EXPECTANT AIR PRECEDES BANK REPORTS

Criminal Proceedings will Follow—Provincial Officers Re[illegible]

DIRECTORS MEET

TORONTO, October 3 (Canadian Press). — It is understood that criminal proceedings will be launched in connection with the Home Bank of Canada immediately after the publication of the curator's report.

At a conference in the Attorney-General's Department last night, the Provincial officers were given their instructions and upon these orders action will be taken contemporaneously with the release of the curator's report to-day.

Details of the report have been in the Provincial office of the Minister of finance and the Minister of Justice at Ottawa and the Attorney-General's Department in Queen's Park for several days.

The curator has been working in close co-operation with both the Federal and Provincial authorities, and it is part of his official duties to keep the Minister of Finance fully informed on all points that are likely to have a bearing on the criminal action in the Courts.

The Minister of Finance, in turn, notifies the Minister of Justice and the Provincial authorities.

The report, which is being made public by A. B. Barker, will indicate upon what ground the charge will be laid.

Unusual scenes of excitement were noticed around the head office of the Home Bank of Canada yesterday afternoon. There was an air of expectancy, not unmixed with anxiety, as to what the curator's report would bring forth.

Officials of the bank were engaged in hurried conferences.

There was a meeting of the board of directors. R. P. Gough, the vice-president, presided in the absence of H. J. Daly, president, who is reported ill at his summer home on Lake Simcoe.

Mr. Barker's committee of advisers were also in consultation with the curator during the afternoon.

To-day should bring a climax in the Home Bank affairs.

The Minister of Finance and the Attorney-General of Ontario had requested the speeding up of the report. They insisted that there should be no delay beyond to-day, intimating that the Dominion Government would take action otherwise.

D. LLOYD GEORGE WOULD RETURN TO GOVERNMENT

TORONTO, Oct. 3.—(Canadian Press).—"David Lloyd George is prepared to again accept the responsibilities of Government, but will do so only when he is assured of sufficiently solid backing."

Such is the political prognostication of Sir Alfred Moritz, Monkbart, distinguished parliamentarian and leader on many vast business enterprises, who arrived in Toronto, last night. Elected at the beginning of the last session of imperial parliament as vice-chairman of the National Liberal Party, Sir Alfred is both personal and right hand man of Welsh statesman.

FELL OVERBOARD AND DROWNED IN THE LAKE

TORONTO, Oct. 3.—(Canadian Press). — Fred Roode, fifteen year old deck hand on the Tug Sarnia City fell overboard at nine mile point five miles from Kingston on Monday and was drowned. All efforts on the part of the crew to rescue the youth were futile. When Tug arrived in Toronto, yesterday, police headquarters were notified. Roode's home was in Prescott.

PEMBROKE HAS AN EPIDEMIC SKUNKS

Poultry Yards Suffer as a Result—Meet at the Market Place.

PEMBROKE, Oct. 3.—(Canadian Press). —This town is having a plague of skunks. In all parts of town little striped animals that no one wants to meet may be seen leisurely wandering their way at dusk to different poultry yards. The market place itself is redolent with their presence.

LORD RENFREW ENJOYED TRIP

Train with Royal Visitor Is Now Speeding East.

CALGARY, Oct. 3. — (Canadian Press).—"Good-bye, we hope to see you next year." "Good-bye, I hope I can."

These were the parting words of Lord Renfrew to Calgary, expressed to Prof. W. L. Carlyle, manager of the E. P. Ranch, as the special train bearing Lord Renfrew to the East began to move out of the Canadian Pacific Railway station at two o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Lord Renfrew's departure was as informal as his arrival. He left the hotel with his party, including Brig.-General Trotter, Sir Godfrey Thomas, Major Metcalfe and his secretary, Mr. Peacock, while a large crowd stood with their hats off. Lord Renfrew lifted his hat, and, smiling right and left, walked briskly out to the train, accompanied by Prof. Carlyle, President E. W. Beatty of the C.P.R., and his party of railway officials.

On the station platform, Lord Renfrew exchanged good-byes with everyone.

Previously, Lord Renfrew had conversed for half an hour with Prof. Carlyle, taking especial pains to impress on his ranch manager how exceedingly pleased he was with his stay at the ranch, and how much good he has derived physically and mentally from his vacation in Alberta.

Lord Renfrew was anxious to have it known that he was sincerely delighted with his visit and that his expressions of pleasure were not mere formality, but came straight from the heart.

PROTESTANT TEACHERS ASSEMBLE IN MONTREAL

MONTREAL, Oct. 3.—(Canadian Press)—One thousand teachers from all parts of the province are expected to assemble in Montreal for the 59th annual convention of the Provincial Association of Protestant Teachers of Quebec, which opens in Montreal on October 10. The convention will extend over four days.

A feature of the convention will be the visit of Dr. Payson Smith, Commissioner of Education in the State of Massachusetts and president of the National Education Association of the United States. He will address the association on the evening of October 11.

ALBERTA REPORTS A RECORD WHEAT CROP

CALGARY, Oct. 3. — (Canadian Press).—Alberta reached a world's record for wheat production in 1915 when the average yield was 31.30 bushels to the acre, and judging from threshing returns now being received, 1923 promises to be another record season. Yields ranging from 27 to 60 bushels to the acre have been recorded, and many reports of 50-bushel yields have been received here. In the Lacombe district one farmer threshed 56 1-2 bushels to the acre, while in the Vulcan distrfict a sixty-bushel yield was recorded.

THE MINISTER WELL PLEASED WITH SUCCESS

New Dominion Loan Testifies to Strength and Stability of Country.

PUBLIC STATEMENT

OTTAWA, Oct. 3.—(Canadian Press).—"Apart from war loans, this is largest piece of government financing ever carried on successfully in any of British Dominions. Great success of loan again testifies to strength and stability of Canadian Financial Institutions and determination of Canadian citizens to participate in such investments and to prove their faith in Canada."

These are concluding words of an announcement made public last evening by right Hon. W.S. Fielding, acting Prime Minister and Minister of Finance of tremendous success won by Conversion loan recently issued by Dominion Government. On November 1, next, Victory Bonds for total of over $172,471,000 mature and for the redemption of these, Minister of Finance had to find some ready money and a lot of it.

Canada's financial houses with hardly an exception as no monopoly in this business would be permitted offered to handle $50,000,000 of this conversion issue the government selling bonds outright to bond dealers. So successful were they that a few days after original issue they informed Minister of Finance that they could take care of whole sum to be met on November 1. Minister readily agreed. The 172,471,000 was soon passed and finally Right Hon. Mr. Fielding on their suggestion set the mark at $200,000,000.

DRY FORCES IN CANADA UNITE

Organized Into One Nation-Wide Federation—Chancellor Whidden is The First President.

TORONTO, Oct. 3.— (Canadian Press.)— All prohibition forces in Canada united in one nation-wide federation at a meeting in the Y.M.C.A. hall yesterday. Fifteen organizations sent delegates and they came from Nova Scotia in the east, and British Columbia in the west. They unite to form a prohibition federation of Canada and they elected Chancellor Whidden of McMaster University as their first president.

The new organization is Dominion-wide in its scope, and includes amongst its representatives officials of Dominion councils of the Dominion Alliance. For over a year, Dr. T. Albert Moore has been seeking to create such an organization as this, which he believes will be a great force in the fight for a dry Canada.

Dr. T. Albert Moore called the meeting to order and acted as chairman of the provisional organization which has been working out the programme. Dr. E. I. Hart acted as secretary and the meeting was, throughout, harmonious and on nearly every point unanimous.

Two former groups will be represented by five delegates each, while the latter will each elect two delegates. The churches will also elect one additional delegate for every fifty thousand members over the first fifty thousand.

COLONIZATION FOR MARITIME PROVINCE

MONTREAL, Oct. 3.—(Canadian Press).—Following the announcement made by W. D. Robb, vice-president of the Canadian National Railways, on transportation day at the Canadian National Exhibition, regarding the colonization campaign proposed for the Maritime Provinces, "which offers singular opportunities to the people of the British Isles, a conference has been called at Halifax for next Friday, October 5th.

This will be attended by representatives of the Dominion and Provincial Governments, the railways and prominent citizens.

An announcement from C. N. R. headquarters says: "The Canadian National have already under way a survey in the Maritime Provinces for the purpose of determining the conditions prevailing throughout the country, and its needs, also the compilation of a record of lands and farms available for settlement and colonization activities.

"It is realized that in the past little, if any, real attention has been given to the promotion of settlement in that part of Eastern Canada, which badly needs more population under favorable conditions."

WILLIAM GRAHAM WILL ESTIMATE WHEAT CROP

REGINA, Sask., Oct. 3.—(Canadian Press).—Wm. Graham, Indian Commissioner, estimates the wheat yield from the Indian reserves of the three Prairie provinces at 1,500,000 bushels. He states that the Indians are now enjoying the most prosperous times in their history.

BRITAIN WOULD EXTEND TARIFF FOR DOMINION

The Imperial Preference Referred to at Opening of Economic Conference

FOR CONCESSIONS.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—(Canadian Press).—Imperial preference received preliminary mention at the opening sitting of the Imperial economic conference to-day.

An official report of the proceedings, which were held in private, will not be available till to-night, but it is reported that Great Britain expressed a willingness to extend her present tariff preference within certain limits.

These limits are understood to be articles on which duties are now imposed, with some addition, but not including such foodstuffs as wheat

For these extensions, it is stated Great Britain will probably request a quid pro quo.

Although not mentioned in the conference, the extension by the dominions of their preference to 50 per cent., is suggested in this regard.

PREMIER KING GAVE A SPEECH

Dealt with Canada's Attitude Towards Immigration.

LONDON Oct. 3. Canadian Press. —At the session of the economic conference yesterday, Premier King spoke of the Canadian attitude towards immigration. He had gathered, he said, that the impression prevailed in some quarters that Canada was not anxious to receive immigrants from the British Isles. Nothing could be farther from the truth than an impression of that kind.

"I think," he added, "we are now at the point where we can welcome immigration of the right kind to our country. Certainly no stock could be more welcome than British stock of the kind which helped to make our country and our empire what it is."

It is important, however, continued Mr. King, that regard be had to the economic conditions of the country, to position of industries, and to what it might be possible for industry to absorb. He urged finally that as far as posible, the channels of trade and communications had been cleared of obstructions.

AN ARREST WARRANT WILL BE TAKEN OUT

MONTREAL, Oct. 3.—(Canadian Press). — Arrest warrants will be taken out to-day for the apprehension of two principals in a scheme to foil the attempts of the auto investigation department of the Merchants' Association of Montreal to recover stolen automobiles in this district. This action is being taken, following the discovery of a vacant factory in the rear of 163 Visitation Street, where stolen cars are believed to be altered and disguised over night, so that definite identification by the owners is made difficult. It is expected that arrests will take place before night.

GENERAL VON LOSSOW WILL SEND SOLDIERS TO SEIZE THE OFFICES

Whole City Fire Swept

SOFIA, Oct. 2. — The city of Vratza, 40 miles northeast of Sofia, with a population of 50,000, was destroyed yesterday by a fire originating from a mysterious explosion, popularly attributed to the communists who have been opposing the Government.

Minister of the Interior Russeff took charge of the situation and sent the entire Sofia fire department to the scene together with medical and relief expeditions.

Efforts to stay the conflagration were unavailing in the face of a high wind, and the flames not only razed the city proper, but also some of the suburbs.

PLANS VOYAGE TO NORTH NEXT YEAR

Premier Howard Ferguson Well Pleased with His Recent Trip.

TORONTO, October 3. — The Premier Howard Ferguson's northern trip this year, is probably but the forerunner of a similar trip next year, Premier Ferguson stated yesterday.

"Next year I propose to make a more exhaustive inquiry into the lignite deposit and other alleged minerals supposed to be in the Hudson Bay regions.

"This year our trip was primarily to gain information as to the forest resources and the general characteristics of the country."

OVERSEAS MAN CHARGED WITH TWO SLAYINGS

Jack Stevenson on Trial For Murder of His Wife And Mother-in-Law.

AT PARRY SOUND

PARRY SOUND, Oct. 3.—(Canadian Press). — Jack Stevenson, of Seguin Falls, charged with the murder of his wife and her mother, Mrs. McKinnon, is being tried at the fall assizes, at which Mr. Justice Masten is presiding.

The evidence produced by the Crown yesterday afternoon was that Stevenson came to this country from England when quite a young boy, and settled in Seguin Falls, where he grew up. He went overseas with the first contingent, and had a creditable war record. He was blown up in a mine explosion in Sanctuary Woods, being wounded. He returned to duty in 1918, and was discharged in February, 1919. In July of that year he married Pearl McKinnon, and two children were born to them.

Frequently Quarrelled.

Evidence went to show that Stevenson and his wife had frequently quarrelled, but most of the disagreement was between him and his mother-in-law, who complained that he did not support his family. Finally, Mrs. McKinnon ordered him out of her house, and at the urgings of his wife he went out in search of work.

On February 21 last he stopped at two places near Bear Lake, asking employment. In one of these places he picked up a revolver and cartridges and started back for Sequin Falls. Going to the home of his wife and mother-in-law "to fix things up." He got into an altercation with Mrs. McKinnon and fired a shot which killed her instantly, according to an ante-mortem statement made by his wife.

The statement continued that he then turned threateningly to his wife who begged him not to shoot her. She had her eldest son in her arms. He replied that they had forced him to it and fired two shots into her body. It is claimed by the defence that Stevenson was insane at the time.

ONE FROM THE "OLD MAN."

CALGARY, Oct. 2. — From the "E.P." Ranch comes a story of how Lord Renfrew found his manager distressed over the death of a valuable bull.

"Never mind," said the noble lord. "The old man has a good one. Perhaps we can get it away from him."

CONVICT MUSICIANS GIVEN INSTRUMENTS

One Band Disbands, and Penitentiary Starts One

KINGSTON, Oct. 3.—Portsmouth penitentiary will have a convicts band in the near future. The band of the G.W.V.A. has disbanded and at a meeting of the members it was decided to give their instruments to Warden J. C. Ponsford in trust for the use of the convicts. It is understood that quite a number of the convicts are musicians.

FRANCE CROWS ON WORLD PEAK

Sits on Top of Europe and Views Work of Summer In Self-made Content.

PARIS, October 3. — France is pointing with pride to her history in the summer just ended. Her record, she feels, entitles her to the position politicians long have sought —holder of the balance of power in Europe, dictator of European destinies.

France is especially satisfied because it has usually been Great Britain who has really ruled Europe. But during the so-called warm months, which by the way have not been so terribly torrid this year, France has—

1—Maintained her reparation policy against that of Great Britain with such success that Germany, prostrated, finally decided to surrender unconditionally.

2—Stood with Italy against Great

THE HAMILTON SAFE ROBBERS WERE EXPERTS

Detectives Locate Store in Which the Tools Were Purchased.

SEVERAL CLUES

HAMILTON, Ont., Oct. 3.—That the safe blowers who robbed the Right House here of $15,000 Sunday night purchased the tools with which the safe was cracked from local hardware dealers Saturday afternoon, and that the description of the actual purchaser fits that of Gordon Simpson, who recently escaped from Kingston, and later is thought to have held up a Toronto bank, are the discoveries of Detectives Crocker and Chamberlain yesterday afternoon. The crowbars and sledge hammer were purchased by a man of about 32, with dark hair and complexion, about five feet eight, and 160 pounds, wearing a dary grey suit, from the Mills Hardware Company, and the same man also bought two steel drills from the Stanley Mills Company the same afternoon. The tools have been identified by David Clark and J. Williamson of the stores mentioned as sold by them. It will be remembered Simpson was convicted for cracking safes of the United Cigar Stores in Toronto in 1921.

Fingerprint Expert W. J. Pinch said he had developed the pictures of the fingerprints left on the safes, and they had come out well, but he could not definitely say as to their identity until he received the originals of the escaped convicts' from Ottawa. He refused to advance any personal opinion.

LESS HOME-WORK, FEWER FRILLS.

Hon. G. Howard Ferguson's dictum that there are to be fewer frills about education in Ontario's public schools, and that most of the home-work will be abolished, is likely to be well received—especially, in the latter case, by the school children.

The details of Mr. Ferguson's plan have not yet been made public, but it involves a curtailment of the number of subjects which at present public school pupils are obliged to study.

Essentials are to be retained by the Minister of Education, but there are some branches that can be regarded as non-essentials and that can be eliminated in order that the pupils may get a more thorough grounding in the really important subjects.

With this opinion laymen will readily agree, and many teachers will be glad to learn that their work is to be simplified to a considerabl extent.

The changes, if carried out, will allow home-work to be very considerably reduced, for they will leave more time during school hours for the consideration of essential subjects.

And that is a feature about the new policy that will be commended in many quarters.

Fewer frills ,less home-work, sounds like a popular policy.

THE STAMP NUISANCE.

The new regulations in regard to the use of excise stamps came into force on Monday, and there is already reason to believe that the change will prove a decided inconvenience to many people.

Ordinary postage stamps are no longer accepted on cheques or other business documents, the purchase of a special excise stamp being required.

Business firms will not find the change an annoyance inasmuch as they will buy their excise stamps in bulk, but the private citizen is likely to condemn the regulation as a nuisance, despite the fact that the stamps are on sale at banks and at customs and excise offices.

The trouble will be most acute in small places where there are no banks. People living in the country will be especially inconvenienced by the enforcement of the regulation.

And the worst of it, there is so little justification for the change.

It has been made merely to see whether the Post Office or the Excise Stamp Department produces the greatest revenue, surely not sufficient reason for causing inconvenience to so many people.

If revenues were to increase or economies made possible by the passing of this rule, there would not be so much objection.

But there is nothing of that sort aimed at by the Government.

THE GRAND TRUNK DEAL.

The Canadian Government is preparing a statement regarding the case of the Grand Trunk from a Canadian standpoint, for the benefit of the British public is pursuing a wise course.

The situation is very much misunderstood in the United Kingdom and the wails of the British shareholders, if allowed to continue without a word of explanation from Canada would do considerable harm to the reputation of this country.

The statement that has now been issued is designed to put the facts squarely before the people of Great Britain and it should result in a very different opinion on their part.

No fair-minded person can expect that Canada should accept responsibility where there is no obligation whatever.

In the first place the British shareholders complain that the Grand Trunk Railway Company was forced by the Canadian Government to enter into the contract for the construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific, a totally unfounded charge.

The contract was entered into voluntarily by the directors of the Grand Trunk Railway, able men in the railway and financial world who of their own free will and after long consideration signed the agreement.

There was no compulsion.

Again it is asserted that the property of the Grand Trunk was confiscated by the Canadian Government.

What are the facts as shown by the Government statement?

The Grand Trunk enterprise was in the hands of its London directors.

Again and again the Canadian Government had come to the aid of the Company to the extent of many millions of dollars.

When at last the Company admitted its inability to carry on its work, the Government of Canada took over the property under the terms of a contract made voluntarily by the Company's authorized representatives, the board of directors in London.

This was done because of the desire of the Government to prevent an entire collapse.

They were at the end of their tether and so they asked the Government which had already helped them so liberally to assist them further by taking over the property. And the Government consented.

That is all there is to the confiscation charge.

The English shareholders complain too that Canada has acquired a profitable enterprise from the Grand Trunk and that the profits are being diverted from the English shareholders to the Government.

Canadians know how much truth there is in that allegation.

Canada has not acquired from the Grand Trunk a profitable enterprise.

On the other hand she obtained a bankrupt concern which had been helped by the country in many ways and which at last confessed its inability to carry on its work.

Every day and every hour since the Grand Trunk came into the possession of the Government it has been a liability and not a benefit to the Treasury of Canada.

Other complaints made include the charge that the agreement gave some stockholders better terms than were offered to other classes of stockholders.

That clearly was not the fault of the Canadian Government. If in any respect the agreement between the Government and the directors was not satisfactory to any of the Grand Trunk people the blame must rest upon the directors who were acting for their shareholders.

As for the declaring of certain classes of Grand Trunk securities of no value, there too Canada cannot be held responsible seeing that the decision was made by an arbitration tribunal agreed upon by both sides.

There are the facts of the situation and the Examiner has summarized them from the official statement feeling that the information will be of value to Canadians as well as to the British shareholders.

In view of the explanation the charges made of unfair dealing must fall to the ground.

FRANCE AND GREAT BRITAIN.

There seems to be an idea entertained in some quarters that the British people as a nation were against France in the occupation of the Ruhr district, says the Kingston Standard. This arose, principally, we suppose, because the British Government was. The truth is that there was a vast opinion in favor of France which ilncluded many leading papers. One instance of the latter is Blackwood's Magazine which for many a long year has been regarded as one of the highest literary productions, and as one which readily grasps the trend of public opinion. Thus is pointed out recently that co-operation with France was essential and went on to say that "Four years after the war we have forgotten the meaning of the word 'Security.' We are drifting aimlessly back to the situation which existed in 1914, and unless we make up our mind to some course of action we shall be faced by the same problem which faced us when Germany invaded Belgium. Why did we go to war in 1914? Not for any sensational reason, such as to please France or to help the smaller nationalities, but to save ourselves; and if we encourage Germany, as we seem to be encouraging her, the tragic history of 1914-19 will be repeated. Germany with a population twice as large as that of France, and with far greater wealth than her neighbor, will not stay her hand a day longer than she need. What will be our policy then? Shall we connive at the extinction of France, or shall we hasten, as we did before, to France's aid? Prudence and respect for civilization will point us to the same road." There is little doubt that the knowledge of this strong British public opinion in his favor strengthened Premier Poincare's hands and enabled him to gain his victory over the Huns.

INDICATIVE OF CANADA'S FINANCIAL POSITION.

The extent to which institutions and private investors are subscribing to the new refunding loan of the Dominion Government may be taken as a reflection of Canada's financial condition as well as an evidence of confidence of the character of the security itself.

That the refunding loan is decidedly of the gilt-edged description there can be no shadow of doubt. But possession of inherent quality in this respect is not sufficient in itself to ensure the successful flotation of even a Federal Government security of this character.

Capacity of the market to absorb that which is offered is equally important. In other words, the determining factor in the final analysis is the general condition of the country's finance and trade.

That Canada's position in this respect six months ago was scarcely such as would warrant the Minister of Finance venturing upon the home market for a $172,000,000 loan there can be little doubt. Authorities as a rule agreed that this was a desired consummation provided success was assured. But in view of the general conditions obtaining many questioned the wisdom of such venture. Judging from public remarks made by him some months ago on the subject, the Minister of Finance was somewhat "at sea" as to which was the better course to pursue. He undoubtedly favored the home market, but evidently recognized that it would not be wise to venture thereon if it curtailed Canada's financial position a few months ago, that it has since materially altered for the better there can be no doubt.

Never in its history has the Dominion experienced a harvest equal to that now being garnered. In wheat alone the yield is 70½ million bushels in excess of any previous crop, while in the five principal grains the increase of 1922 is approximately 119½ million bushels. With fodder crops for live stock practically every part of the Dominion has an abundant supply.

In other branches of the country's industrial activities similarly encouraging conditions obtain. Taken as a whole, the mining industry may be said to be in a more promising condition than at any time in its history, while the aggregate value of output for the first half of the year shows an increase of more than 26¼ million dollars over the corresponding period of 1922. Increased activity marks the leading manufacturing industries, while iron furnaces and steel mills are experiencing the largest output in three years. Foreign trade, like the domestic, is undergoing decided expansion, exports of domestic merchandise during the twelve months ending August having, by an increase of over 221½ million dollars, again exceeded the billion dollar mark.

That funds available for investment are in larger supply than a few months ago there is no doubt. Total deposits with the banks at the end of August, amounting to $1,708,477,366, exceeded those of the same month a year ago by nearly 69 millions. But evidence as to the supply of money available for investment is not confined to statistics covering bank deposits. The extent to which institutions are subscribing to the refunding loan may be taken as further evidence, particularly when we are authoritatively assured that most of the institutional subscriptions, running into several millions each, have their origin in new money and are not derived from funds coverted from one form of investment to another.—Monetary Times.

PASSPORT RULES.

VIENNA, Oct. 3.—(Associated Press)—An air traveler in Europe has to get his passport for every country over which he may fly, even if he does not intend to land in that country. This measure was found necessary in order to prevent a passenger, through accident or forced landing, finding himself in a strange state without the proper documentation.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

Although Monday's and to-day's run of cattle at the Union Stock Yards are comparatively light they are far too heavy for the present buying power. On Monday's market there were 4,535 cattle and the sales registered at the close were only 1,666 head. This morning's receipts were 303 cattle, 188 calves, 1,859 hogs and 593 sheep and lambs. The cattle offering this morning all told was 3,172 and in these there were far too many of the one class, common butchers.

Frank Hunnisett looked the market over and left early. He wanted some good killers, but these were not to be had. All-round the market had a very lackadaisical appearance and would-be buyers were quite indifferent about doing business. John Rogers had few orders for export and dealt mostly in a few bulls at around 4 1-2 cents a pound. He bought two loads of export steers late on Monday at 6 1-2 cents a pound, but these were only second raters.

There is quite a little selling going on in the stockers and feeders and the price of these does not show much, if any, change from last week. Good Ontario short-keeps are selling up to $6.50 a cwt., but John O'Keefe bought a load of feeders to go to Chatham at $5.90, and he says these were good. A load of medium 900-lb. stockers sold this morning at 5.25 a cwt. Western stockers are selling easier and a fair load of these, about 700 lbs. each, sold this morning at 3 1-2 cents a pound.

Packing plants are getting a good supply of western butchers and this is making a bad market for Ontario stock. The butchers on to-day's market are selling easier by 25 cents a cwt. than last week and unless the buying power spruces up the decline will increase. Two loads of rough, heavy steers from the west sold this morning at 53-4 and 6 1-4 cents a pound.

There was no evidence of any change to-day in the calf market. Prices were steady at the high prices made on Monday.

With less than 600 lambs on sale buyers tried to pry the market a little higher than yesterday. Firm bids were made for the best ewes, at 11 1-2 cents and one load sold at 11 3-4. Breeding and choice sheep are firm at 7 to 7 1-2 cents a pound.

Hogs are quoted unchanged again to-day aat 8.75 f.o.b.

MILLBROOK VILLAGE AND THE DISTRICT

Fairmount Church Held Successful Circuit Rally—Young People's League.

MILLBROOK, Oct. 3.—A very successful circuit rally was held at Fairmount Church on Sunday afternoon, the Sunday Schools from Cavanville and Mount Pleasant joining with the Fairmount school for this annual occasion. The church was filled to capacity when the hour for opening arrived, this being considered one of the most helpful gatherings of the year and indeed always proving a "red letter" day among the special Sundays observed by the schools of the Cavan circuit. Mr. George Hootan, superintendent of the Fairmount Sunday School, presided, the address on "Fourfold Growth and How Our Sunday School Can Help" being given in a most helpful and interesting manner by Rev. Fred. Horwood, Mus. Bac., of the Camborne circuit. The latter was preaching on the Cavan circuit on Sunday, exchanging with Rev. R. T. Richards, who was taking charge of anniversary services at the Gore's Landing appointment. The special rally day programme was followed throughout, with the addition of two extra musical numbers, including a vocal solo by Mr. B. F. Carley of Cavanville and a male quartette under the leadership of Mr. Frank Gardiner from the Mount Pleasant school.

At the conclusion of the regular service, Rev. Mr. Horwood, who is an accomplished musician, by special request played an organ selection to the great enjoyment of the listeners, and again after the evening service at Cavanville Church Mr. Horwood gave an organ recital, and this with a vocal solo by Mr. B. F. Carley provided an unusual treat for the congregation, none of whom left the church until the player, tired after a heavy day's services, was obliged to bring the impromptu entertainment to a close.

Young People's League.

The Young People's League on Monday evening was in charge of the Devotional Committee, the President, Miss E. Hetherington, taking the chair in the absence of Mr. Irwin Hatherly, Chairman of the Christian Endeavor Department. The attendance was encouraging, and the singing was led by a choir of boys' voices, three of whom, Keith Barnard, Lawrence and Nelles Rowland, sang as a special number "Brighten the Corner here You Are," the former singing the verses as a solo, and all joining in the chorus. During the opening worship period Miss Hetherington read part of the 17th chapter of John's gospel, the final prayer of our Lord with His disciples before His betrayal and death on Calvary, Mrs. Tucker and Miss Dean leading in prayer.

The league Secretary, Miss Olive Fallis, having taken a position in Cobourg, on motion, Mr. George Elson was appointed in her place. Miss Margaret Luxon took up the chapter, "What About Human Nature?" from the study book, "The Christian Venture," and Eldrich Todd read the poem, "Christ Has No Hands But Ours," which very appropriately carried out the thought of the evening's lesson.

Rev. J. Wilks, whom the leaguers are always pleased to welcome to their meetings because of the helpfulness of his presence and the cheerful manner in which he assists with the devotions or other part of the programme, closed the meeting with prayer.

It is hoped to have the boys' choir as a part of the league service each week, providing doing so does not interfere with their studies for the following day at school. Three of the boys, Walter Sayles, Nelles and Lawrence Rowland, gave a selection, "Sowing," at the Sunday morning service. The choir leader, by interesting the boys in using their voices for praise and worship during their habit-forming years, is giving excellent training for further usefulness later on in life.

FRANCE FACES PROBLEM OF UNSEAWORTHY SHIPS

PARIS, Oct. 3. — (Associated Press)—French freighters of a certain type have earned such a bad reputation among seafaring men, that today sailors are refusing to go to sea on them, while naval draughtsmen declare they should be taken out of service altogether.

Twelve such vessels were built by government during the war. Their holds are clear, with no bulkheads, which permits the sudden shifting of cargo, and their water ballast tanks have a trick of filling unexpectedly. Five of them have already turned over. The last was the Emile Durant, which rolled over without warning and drowned 19 members of the crew.

Nevertheless, some sailors are occasionally found, from time to time, who will take a chance, so several of the craft are still at sea.

SHANGHAI LEADS CHINA IN CUSTOMS REVENUES

SHANGHAI, Oct. 3.—(Associated Press)—More than a third of China's revenues was derived from entries through the port of Shanghai according to the annual trade riport for 1922 just issued. The gross collection in the year was 21,93,000 taels.

Great Britain, including the British dependencies and Honkkong, still maintains a big lead in the gross value of Chinese trade, but the United States leads all individual countries, followed by Japan.

A report issued by the American consulate shows that declared exports from Shanghai to the United States in the hali year ending June 30 last amounted to $20,507,211, an increase of more than eight million over the 1922 figure for the period.

Realize what Kellogg's Bran means to your family's health?

Eaten regularly each day, Kellogg's Bran will permanently relieve constipation; it will free you from dangerous toxic poisons that lead to 90% of all human illness; it will remove the cause and sweeten a bad breath; it will clear a pimply complexion through its work on the bowels. In fact, Kellogg's Bran, through its natural action as a bulk, indigestible agent, will tone-up the whole system!

If you knew exactly what constipation means from a medical view-point you would lose no time eating Kellogg's Bran yourself and serving it daily to your family. And, Kellogg's is actually delicious, its nut-like flavor adding greatly to the enjoyment of eating cereals. Eat at least two tablespoonfuls each day; in chronic cases, with each meal.

There are many attractive ways to serve Kellogg's Bran. Eat it in winter with hot milk as a cereal. Or, mix it with cereals before serving. Many housewives cook it with cereals, in each case adding two tablespoonfuls for each person. You will also enjoy the nut-like flavor of Kellogg's Bran when it has been sprinkled over hot or cold cereals.

You have missed some of the joys of life if you have not eaten raisin bread, muffins, griddle-cakes, etc., made with Kellogg's Bran. Recipes are printed on each box.

Don't delay your fight against constipation; don't lose a minute in the great battle against illness! You can buy Kellogg's Bran from all grocers and you can have it served in individual packages at first-class hotels, restaurants and clubs.

GERMANY NEEDS SEAMEN

BREMEN, Oct. 3.—(Associated Press)—The need for officers to man Germany's navy and merchant fleet is so great that three sailing ships soon will be in operation to train young men to follow the sea.

Germany always has insisted upon training under sail for the men who officer her steamships.

LAKEFIELD OPENS SOFTBALL LEAGUE

Schedule For October Starts To-Night — New Church Organ Arrives.

LAKEFIELD, October 2. — To-night the Indoor Baseball League opens with a double-header in the Lakefield Rink. Games will be played every Tuesday and Thursday evening during the month of October, and as the teams are well balanced picked teams, there should be lots of excitement. Certainly there will be no lack of "pep," as the players are all keen. This baseball league really means just a little more than a game, it is groups of them getting together in a common ground where they will become better acquainted, and establishes a common viewpoint which will undoubtedly have its effect on the community life. A real game played on the square is never a lowering influence in the community but the reverse, and good clean sport never hurt anyone.

Sport is not paying another fellow to play for you but playing the game oneself.

The following is the schedule of games:

Oct. 2—Grove vs. Business Men. U.F.O. vs. Veterans.

Oct. 4—Firemen vs. Masons. Business Men vs. U.F.O.

Oct. 9—Grove vs. Veterans. Firemen vs. Business Men.

Oct. 11—Firemen vs. U. F. O. Masons vs. Business Men.

Oct. 16.—Grove vs. Masons. Veterans vs. Business Men.

Oct. 18—Masons vs. U.F.O. Firemen vs. Veterans.

Oct. 23—Grove vs. Firemen. Masons vs. Veterans.

Oct. 25—Grove vs. U.F.O.

Rally Day Services.

On Sunday morning Rally Day services were held in both the Methodist and Presbyterian Churches. These services were well attended, and the children took a prominent part in the exercises which were especially designed for the Sunday School children. Addresses suitable to the occasion were delivered and the interest in the work of the Sunday Schools was stimulated.

The A.Y.P.A. meet for the adoption of the year's programme and other business on Monday evening, October 1st, proceeding afterwards to the Young People's Rally in the Methodist Church, under the auspices of the Methodist Young People's League.

The W. A. of St. John's Church resumes meetings this week, the first being in the Sunday School-room on Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Mrs. S. White is the president and Mrs. T. Waldon the secretary.

The Girls' Auxiliary will hold their first meeting of the season at the home of the president, Miss M. Hampton, on Tuesday evening.

A Beauty Spot.

The grounds at the Post Office are indeed an ornament to the village, in spite of the adverse weather conditions this summer, the succession of blooming flowers has been the admiration of visitors and the pride of the village.

New Organ Arrives.

The organ recently purchased by the Organ Committee of the Presbyterian Church has arrived and is to be installed during this week.

Will Give Mission.

The mission which has been announced for St. John's Church will be held during the second week in November. Rev. R. Seabourne, M.A., of St. Cyprian's, Toronto, will be the missioner.

Lakefield Personals.

Mrs. S. Ridpath, of Toronto, is visiting in the village.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon K. Fraser and daughters, of Burleigh Falls, were in the village on Saturday.

Dr. J. R. Fraser, Dr. J. C. Smith, and Dr. H. E. Moore attended the district meeting of the Ontario Medical Association in Cobourg on Thursday.

Miss Gwendoline Simpson, of Buckhorn, spent the week-end at her home in the village.

T. J. Watson, of Cobourg, was in the village last week visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Watson.

Mrs. Stroud, of Montreal, is visiting her mother, Mrs. R. H. Jackson.

Arthur I. Murduff, of the Royal Bank staff, Hamilton, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Murduff.

Miss Muriel Boyce, of Young's point, was at her home near the village for the week-end.

R. J. Jory has returned from a visit to his brother, Mr. F. Jory, at Beamsville.

W. J. Lemay, who spent the summer at Port Arthur, returned to the village last week.

Mrs. C. H. Scherck, of Indianapolis, is visiting her father, Mr. Wellington MacDonald.

MARY GARDEN AND TILDEN VS. MOLLA, M'CORMACK

NEW YORK, Oct 3.—A tennis struggle with Mary Garden and W. T. Tilden against John McCormack and Mrs. Molla Bjursedt Mallory has been promised soon by the opera star.

"Some day soon Billy Tilden and I are going to play tennis with John McCormack and Mrs. Mallory," she said.

"Billy is a dear—and we're going to win that match."

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

Boy Knocked Down and Killed by Automobile.

MILLBROOK, October 2. — Mr. Fred McIvor received the sad intelligence on Monday evening that the youngest son of his brother, Mr. George McIvor, of Cobourg, was knocked down and killed by an automobile while on his way from school that afternoon.

The boy was about eleven years of age.

Less than a year ago the eldest son in the same family lost an arm and leg as the result of a railway accident.

The driver of the car in Monday's accident has been apprehended, and an investigation will be held.

Details of the accident were not available, the message announcing its fatal results being all that was received over the telephone. Further particulars were promised later.

The annual Rally Day service was observed in the Methodist Sunday School on Sunday at 2.30 p.m., when the programme on "Growth," with the appropriate verse, "And the child grew," which had been specially prepared for the occasion by the General Board of Religious Education, was taken up.

Mr. F. W. Fallis, superintendent of the School, was in charge, and the attendance of the orchestra was a decided advantage during the musical part of the service. The hymns and Scripture readings all had to do with the subject for the day, the entire gathering taking part in the general order of service.

A junior girl, Hazel Morton, recited the poem, "How the Corn Grows,' and a junior boy, Lawrence Rowland, the one entitled "Garden Grace." Walter Sayles read "The Parable of the Sower," and F. N. Alcorn the selection, "Build thee more stately mansions, O my soul," while the Scripture lesson, "Growing Up Into Christ," was taken by Swart Tucker.

In place of the pastor's address called for on the programme, the Wide Awakes C.G.I.T. group gave the Rainbow Bible Drill, a beautiful exercise which, being practically in Bible language throughout, carries a lesson not easily forgotten either by speakers or hearers. Those taking part were:

Central figure, Jean Burnham; Bible, Marjorie Sayles; Old Testament, Gladys Tucker; Law, Wilma Fallis; History, Eleanor Fallis; Poetry, Hazel McMahon; Major Prophets, Lillian Sanderson; Minor Prophets, Elsie Spence; New Testament, Margaret Lang; Promises, Gladys Willis; Primary Children, Bryer Edmunds and Mary Burnham; Gospels, Jean Stinson; History Marian Earle; Pauline Epistles, Ruth King; General Epistles, Bertha Lang; Prophecy, Flossie McMahon.

The report read by the secretary, Mr. W. G. Rowland, showed an attendance of 230, and an offering of $11.60. The report for the quarter was: Total attendance, 1,511; average per Sunday, 108; total number of verses recited, 566; average per Sunday, 40; total collections, $51.66; average per Sunday, $3.69.

The quarterly meeting of the S. S. executive will be held on Wednesday, 10th October, at 8 p.m., the superintendent urging a full attendance, as the Sunday School anniversary services at the New Year and other important business must be settled at this meeting.

Rev. S. T. and Mrs. Tucker, Mrs. Rea, and Miss A. Hampton were visitors to Peterborough on Monday.

Mrs. John Gray, who has been in St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, for the past three weeks, having undergone an operation for a serious attack of appendicitis, was able to return to her home on Sunday.

Miss Eileen Higgs, of Port Perry, who is a student at the Normal School, Peterborough, this term, spent the week-end in Millbrook the guest of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Burnham and Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Richards.

WAR HATREDS STILL LIVE.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—(Associated Press)—It is too soon to expect the end of racial antipathies engendered by the war, in the opinion of the rector of a small town in Norfolk. He recently learned a lesson that was pointed and conclusive.

Wanting to embellish a war memorial in the town with some carved figures, the rector took it upon himself to order the work done. In due time the figures arrived and were installed. Then the trouble began, for it was learned that the figures had been carved in Germany. A storm of indignation broke upon the head of the rector. He appealed to his church superiors for support, which was not forthcoming, and then retired as gracefully as might be from his impossible position.

FIRST PRIZE ESSAY BY THEODORE BARR

Subject Was "History of Dummer," For Which Three Prizes Are Awarded.

WARSAW, Oct. 2.—Following is the first prize essay on the "History of Dummer" written by Theodore Barr. The award given for this essay by the Warsaw Women's Institute is $3, for the second best essay $2, and for the third $1.50.

"In the latter part of the eighteenth, and beginning of the nineteenth century there was a great deal of trouble in the countries of Europe, caused by war, religious persecution and poor crops. This made the people very dissatisfied and many of the braver hearts gathered together their few belongings, and left for Canada in the old sailing vessels. This voyage would take from one to three months, according to the weather. On reaching the new land they travelled on foot, carrying their luggage over a blazed trail, into the heart of the unbroken forest, to the spot that was to be their home.

Most of the settlers of Dummer came from the British Isles, and as the land was not surveyed quickly enough to accomodate the settlers as soon as they arrived many were given temporary homes at Perth. But in the year 1826, Dummer township was surveyed by Richard Birdsall and Elizabeth Johnston, and John Davis received the first deeds for land in that year. But by 1831 and 1832, the greater part of the township was settled by people held over at Perth.

The first council was held in March, 1850, at Colquehoun's Corners, now Cottlesloe, where the meetings were held until 1882. They appointed George A. Hill clerk; Thomas Choate treasurer; Hugh McFee and John Speers, auditors; Abraham Ferrier, Thomas Speers and Wm. McMillan as assessors; Hugh Drain, collector of taxes. Mr. Francis Crowe was the first reeve, but the councillors were not recorded 1862, when Francis Crowe was reeve, and Wm. Wigmore, John Kidd, George Payne, Robret Corrigan, were councillors and Thomas F. Riggs, clerk. The township of Burleigh formed part of the municipality of Dummer until 1865.

Through the influence of Rev. Mr. Rogers of Peterboro, the first church was built at Cottesloe in 1847 on a clergy reserve. The first resident minister was Rev. Archibald Colquhoun. The first school was at Colquhoun's Corners, with Charlie Murphy acting as teacher.

A grist mill was erected in 1835, on Squaknegossippi creek, now Indian River. This was followed by furniture shop, woollen and cloth mills, tannery, saw mill and a cheese factory between Warsaw and South Dummer, some of which were burnt, and never replaced.

This place was named Warsaw, by Thomas Choate. In 1839 the post office was established there. Other post offices followed at Hall's Glen, Clarina, South Dummer, Cottesloe, Centre Dummer. The first rural route came in 1912. The first motor stage in 1913, run by Wm. Bell, Municipal telephone 1921.

In the rebellion of 1837 and 38, Dummer did her share, by sending six officers and thirty five privates under Col. Robert Wigmore; they marched to Port Hope, but their services were not needed.

Our cemeterys at Warsaw, Cottesloe and 5th line, 2nd line and Paynes contain the remains of those brave souls, who endured such hardships that their children might enjoy a home in a land of freedom.

CHURCH SERVICES AT BAILIEBORO

Special Features in Presbyterian and Methodist Worship.

BAILIEBORO, Oct 1.—In place of the weekly Sunday morning service, the children and adult members of the Presbyterian Sunday School Centreville, held their annual Rally Day service.

The church was beautifully decorated and Rev. A. H. McConachie, took full charge of the programme.

There was a splendid turn-out of members, making a large parade of both young and old.

At Methodist Church

At 7 p.m. Sunday the scholars and teachers and officers of the Bailieboro Methodist Sunday School, held their annual Rally Day programme.

The church was beautifully decorated with coloured leaves, and fruit of various kinds, also many handsome autumn flowers.

The long parade of both young and old members of the Sunday School was led by small children, who carried large bunches of coloured asters, and many other kinds of flowers, and all of the seating capacity which was not taken up by the members was soon filled to overflowing with outsiders from near and far.

Rev. R. M. Patterson took charge of the programme and during the proceedings, addressed the children, taking the illustration on the front page of the programme for his text "And the child grew." Comparing the growth of a little child until it reaches the stage of manhood, with the vegetables and trees, and seed-weeds and other objects shown in the picture, and telling how God had caused each to grow to maturity and asking the small boys and girls many questions about the different objects in the picture included:—Scripture reading by Harold Barnard The parable of "the sower."

Recitation by Ethel Falls.

Scripture reading by Frank Dawson, "Growing up into Christ."

Offering for the denominational board and drill by eight girls.

News Briefs

Mr. Eddy and son Floyd of Buffalo, who have been staying at Rice Lake, for the past week returned home on Sunday.

The Bensfort Methodist church are holding their annual anniversary services on October 14th and a fowl supper and entertainment will be held the following evening October fifteenth.

The Ladies Aid of the Bailieboro Methodist church are holding a bazaar in this village on the afternoon and evening of October twenty-fourth.

SOFTBALL AND FIREMEN'S BALL AT LAKEFIELD

Grove School Trimmed the Business Men in Opening Game—250 at Dance.

BUSY EQUIPMENT.

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 3.— Grove School defeated the Business Men by the score of 24 to 21 in the opening game of the softball league last night. The teams were as follows:

Grove—Griffith, ss; Barnard, c; Massie, p; Rainnie, 3b; Griffith, 2b; Christmas, 1b; Fawcett, rf; Little, lf; Robertson, sub.

Business Men—Tanner, ss; Lake, c; Erskine, p; Everett, 1b; Renwick, 2b; Manning, 3b; E. Wannamaker, lf; F. McFadden, rf.

Umpires—G. G. Connell at the plate and Dr. Kennedy on the bases.

Score by innings:

Grove School .....40343144T—24

Business Men ..... 011219313—21

The batting features of the game were Tanner's home run in the third for the Business Men and the circuit clout by Griffith, the youngest and smallest player of the school team.

Scratch Game.

The other scheduled game for the evening between the Veterans and the U.F.O. did not materialize and was apparently defaulted by the U. F.O. A scratch team, however, gave the Veterans a three inning workout, the ex-service men winning by 12-8.

The teams were:

Veterans—J. J. McFadden, c; Dr. Kennedy, ss; A. H. Clarke, p; Marling, 1b; Stenner, cf; F. McFadden, 2b; Morin, rf; G. Wannamaker, lf; Junkin, 3b

Scratch team—Tanner, p; Abbott, ss; Millar, rf; Hamblin, lf; Manning, 3b; Erskine 1b; Everett, 2b; Connell, c.

Umpire—J. R. Hill.

The next games are drawn for Thursday evening.

Firemen's Dance.

One hundred and twenty-five couples or more attended the Firemen's dance in the town hall last night. It was a notably large gathering, many of the dancers being visitors from the surrounding country and neighbouring villages, with quite a number from Peterboro. Hendren's orchestra of Lakefield played for the dances.

The attendance must have been exceedingly gratifying to Fire Chief Wilbert Webster and his staff of volunteers. Their efforts to acquire a little funds for the purchase of new equipment have been rather disappointing for several years, but last night's assembly must have cashed in enough to pay for new hose for the chemical engine. The firemen undertake this work for the public benefit, and the materials they buy for their department raises its efficiency to that extent. During the last year Chief Webster and his men have acquitted themselves well in fighting a number of fires, and the financial success of their dance may be regarded as an indication of the people's appreciation of their work.

APSLEY VILLAGE AND THE DISTRICT

Harvest Thanksgiving Services Well Attended — Heaviest Rainfall of the Year.

APSLEY, Oct. 3.—The annual harvest thanksgiving service of St. George's Church was held on Thursday evening last and was attended by a large congregation, who listened attentively to the appropriate sermon preached by the rector on the text, "They did all eat and were filled." During the service the choir sang two anthems. "O Lord, How Manifold Are Thy Works," by Eastham, and "I Will Feed My Flock," by Simper, the solos being taken by E. L. Spence and Marjorie Spence.

The church was very prettily decorated bp the ladies of the congregation and presented a very charming effect, the glorious coloring of the maple leaves adding beauty to the whole scheme of decoration.

A very large congregation also attended the harvest festival at St. Paul's, Lasswade, on Sunday evening, nearly every family within a radius of seven miles being present. A bountiful supply of first fruit offerings adorned the church, and the service was bright and inspirational. E. L. Spence presided at the organ.

Heavy Rainfall.

One of the heaviest rainfalls of the year occurred on Friday morning, amounting to three-quarters of an inch in one hour. The total rainfall for the month of Septembre registered at the Apsley Meteorological Station was 3.99 inches.

Enlarge Library.

The St. George's Institute Library has been further enlarged by a consignment of books and magazines from Mr. W. Buller, Peterborough, a gift that is much appreciated.

News Nuggets.

Mr. Richard Lees made his periodical inspection of the schools in this district last week. As a result of his visit several changes will be made in the teaching staff of nearby schools.

Quite a number of people from Apsley motored to Bobcaygeon to take in the Fair on Friday.

John McColl, who has been doing the carpentry work on Stanley Windsor's house, returned to Peterborough on Saturday, having completed the job. The young people organized a dance in his honor on Friday evening, which was held in the parish room, and a very enjoyable time was spent.

Mr. Spence attended te chapter meeting of the Peterborough Rural Deanery at All Saints', Peterborough, on Tuesday and Wednesday last week, and this week will be in Toronto attending a Quiet Day at St. Alban's Cathedral in preparation for the general mission, which will be held throughout the diocese during October and November.

Born—To the Rev. E. and Mrs. McTavish, at the Methodist parsonage, on Saturday, September 29th, a daughter.

Mr. Howe of Toronto is spending a vacation with his brother-in-law, Mr. James Downing.

BARBERS OUT OF LUCK.

BERLIN (By Mail to United Press).—Berlin barbers are out of luck. Since the hard times set in everybody has taken either to self-mutilation or to being a beaver. The consequence is that many shops are working their men on shifts, one-half appearing one day, the other half the following day.

One prominent jeweller allows that business with him is so poor that he not only cannot afford to be barbered, but that he can only shave himself every other day because soap is so expensive.

WORLD WAR VETERANS TO ASK LEGISLATION AT LEGION MEETING

San Francisco Convention to Pass on Recommendations From Many State Gatherings--World Peace and the Bonus Coming Up.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 3—(United Press)—The American Legion at its national convention in San Francisco Oct. 15 to 19 will take a stand on numerous questions of internation al and national policy, as well as problems relating purely to aifairs of the veterans, according to reports received at national headquarters here.

Resolutions adopted at the various State conventions during the last few months and which will in turn be presented at the national gathering embrace many problems of national concern.

One of the principal issues to come before the gathering in San Francisco is the question of the convocation of an international air disarmament conference. The movement was started a few months ago by Commander Owsley through The Legion Weekly.

A poll taken of all United States Senators, Congressmen newspaper editors, college presidents and other prominent citizens expressed overwhelming indorsement of the Legion proposal to hold an international gathering in Washington to reduce military air forces.

Recommendations made by a number of States conventions of the Legion are that the national body should continue its campaign for the conference until President Coolidge agrees to invite the European nations to confer.

The Legion claims the support of a number of national leaders for the proposed gathering, including Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War, and others.

Immigration Proposition

A proposal to suspend all immigration to this country for a period of five years is certain to receive the consideration of the Legionnaires. The Legion's national Americanization commission has maintained a steady flow of propaganda favoring total exclusion, and 400,000 school children are writing upon the subject, "Why America Should Prohibit Immigration For Five Years," in the Legions national essay contest.

State convention resolutions charge that present immigration laws are unsatisfactory, because 800,000 aliens have been permitted to enter the country during the past year, nearly twice the quota actually authorized by law.

Americanization for foreigners already in America is proposed in a number of resolutions to be presented at the national gathering. Means suggested are compulsory Government school for aliens, registrration of all persons of foreign birth, and a broadening of the scope of patriotic work of Legion posts among foreigners.

It is also suggested that the Legion support a bill providing for the deportation of foreigners who have not become citizens within five years after they come to this country.

Russian Recognition

The Iowa department will propose a resolution protesting the recognition of Soviet Russia by the United States. The resolution occasioned a sharp tilt between Hanford MacNider, past national commander of the Legion, and Senator Brookhart, a Legion member, at the Iowa gathering.

Alaska will propose the creation of a "floating court" to naturalize foreigners.

All indications are that adjusted compensation will be again indorsed at the national gathering. Almost all State conventions held to date have expressed approval of the "bonus" measure, which provides a choice of land settlement, home aid, vocational training and adjusted back pay, based on the length of service, to all men who served during the war.

Adjusted compensation received the unanimous vote of the last two conventions and Legion leaders say the sentiment for compensation is increasing in the ranks of the organization this year.

The welfare of disabled veterans will be considered in many details at San Francisco. Many State conventions have gone on record favoring the liberalization of the Sweet bill to provide compensation for several thousand veterans who do not come within the present regulations particularly veterans suffering with tubercular and neurapathic diseases.

A number of States desire the construction of additional hospitals by the United States Veterans' Bureau.

The convention is expected to express a strong sentiment in favor of the retirement of disabled emergency officers on the same status as those of the regular army.

Care of Orphans

Another problem to be discussed will be the care of orphans of deceased veterans of the war. A Legion committee has predicted that within eleven years after the close of the war 35,000 children of war veterans will need care.

Various State organizations will bring resolutions favoring American participation is an international court of justice.

Creation of a standing committee in the House of Representatives to consider all veterans legislation is the subject of another resolution.

The legion is expected to reaffirm its stand for a universal draft of capital labor and industry as well as man power in the event of another war.

PRINCE LEAVES HIS RANCH FOR HOME

Will Not Visit Toronto on Return Trip.

CALGARY, Alta., Oct. 2. — Just before Lord Renfrew left this afternoon, accompanied by Prof. Carlyle, he went shopping. Evidently this morning's round of golf had refreshed him after his almost continuous dancing last night. He was looking as fit as when he left for the dance with his festive red carnation in his dinner coat. As for those rumours of the prince's health his ranch manager is the one who denies them the most completely.

"He's got the greatest energy of anyone I know," says Prof. Carlyle. "He is positively tireless. I get winded before he does."

Lord Renfrew reaches Ottawa Saturday at noon and will remain there until the ninth, when he goes to Montreal, sailing on October 13th. As already announced Toronto is not even to be passed through.

"What would anyone go to Toronto for?" asked a Montreal man with the Royal car.

GOVERNMENT MAY AUDIT BANK BOOKS

Federal Cabinet Said to Have Discussed Two Lines of Action.

OTTAWA, October 2. Canadian Press. — Home Bank affairs are understood to have occupied a prominent place in the discussions at the Cabinet meeting this morning. Two courses of action are reported to have been considered by the government in this connection, either the appointment of a royal commission to probe the condition of the bank and the conduct of its management, or to authorize a special investigation by a government auditor. The latter was much the line taken in the case of the Merchants Bank. In that instance, George Edwards, who has frequently acted as accounting advisor to the Department of Finance, made an examination of the books of the Merchants Bank and his investigations went a long way to support the evidence upon which Sir Montagu Allan and D. C. Macarow, formerly president and general manager of that bank, were prosecuted, the proceedings resulting in acquittal.

FREIGHT STEAMER BURNED.

SAN PEDRO, Calif., October 2.—The burning freighter, Diana Dollar bound from Genoa to San Pedro, has probably been abandoned and then beached in Banderas Bay 1125 miles south of San Pedro, according to word received here by the Radio Corporation of America.

OVERWORKED MOTHERS

We all know them. Mothers who in their anxiety to keep their homes neat and attractive and their little ones as well dressed as their playmates, toil on day in and day out, sweeping, dusting, mending and cooking, often suffering from backache, nervousness, sleeplessness, all symptoms of more serious ailments. Thousands such women have found relief from such suffering by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as is evidenced by the letters of recommendations continually being published in this paper. For nearly fifty years this old-fashioned root and herb medicine has been restoring ailing women to health and strength.

Too Hot For Even Firemen

Firemen were forced to abandon their equipment when fire destroyed a big furniture store at Erie, Pa., with a $200,000 loss. So intense was the heat that the firemen were unable to get close enough to the blaze to throw water upon it. Several firemen were injured. The pumper in the foreground of the equipment was abandoned by its crew a minute after it had started to work when flames shot out from the windows of the store.

HIGHWAY'S DEPUTY MINISTER TO BE REMOVED FROM OFFICE

Order - in - Council Going Through to Relieve W. A. McLean of His Duties.

TORONTO, Oct. 2.—Opening up the general re-organization of the Ontario Department of Highways, hinted at from time to time by Hon. George S. Henry, Minister of the department, The Telegram is informed that an order-in-Council will be passed to-day or to-morrow removing from office W. A. McLean, Deputy Minister under Hon. F. C. Biggs. Mr. McLean in 1916, was provincial engineer.

It has been the opinion of Premier Ferguson and Hon. Mr. Henry that the department was overstaffed particularly as far as the engineering department is concerned. The Premier has had on his desk a lengthy list of their names. Just what all of them were supposed to do in connection with Mr. Biggs' costly road programme up to the present has not been discovered by the present administration. Some weeks ago several junior officials, including those known under the general term of "land buyers" were quietly laid off.

The release of Mr. McLean is the first step toward bringing the department back to its one-time basis. While no official information can be secured, as Mr. Henry is in Buffalo attending the Safety League convention, it is understood that the decision of the Government is a result of the investigation into the Canadian Color Type motor marker deal with which Mr. Biggs was connected. Mr. McLean, before the Public Accounts Committee of the Legislature, staunchly defended the contract.

FRANCE CROWS

Britain in the Jamina squabble with Greece.

3—Checkmated the League of Nations.

4—Managed to stick an important finger in the Fiume pie, where she was not presumed to have really the slightest interest.

France thus is "sitting pretty." She has held to one policy since the war, and her every move has been in furtherance of that policy. That policy has been to keep Germany down both as a military and a financial power, and to build up around Germany a ring of states whose interests would be bound up with those of France—considering that the armed might of these nations, all of them depending on the peace treaties, the strict enforcement of those treaties, and France's determination to insist on their enforcement, is a far more efficient protection than the League of Nations, or any guaranty that Great Britain could furnish.

Driven by Fear.

The United States and Great Britain both helped to force this policy on France—America by declining to ratify the Peace Treaty and the supplementary treaty guaranteeing France's safety ,Great Britain in refusing to act alone as France's guarantor.

Mr. Lloyd-George believed himself clever in holding back the British guaranty, making it a possible recompense for French agreement with the British reparation policy. He held it back too long. The astute French managed to dispense with the British guaranty by means of a military agreement with Beligum, and another pact with Poland.

The two strongest military powers on the Continent to-day are France and Poland, one maintaining a large army on the plea that it may be needed some day for protection against Germany, the other insisting that she has to protect herself against both Germany and Russia.

Furthermore, France has made herself solid with the Little Entente. Roumania has always looked up to France, the strongest Latin Power—Roumania, who claims direct descent from the Romans, and whose language belongs to the Latin group. Her vastly increased territories are the result of a treaty France is sworn to protect.

Czecho-Slovakia, lying between Germany and Hungary, former allies who may one day join together again, also feels that friendship for France spells the greatest measure of safety, and has been bending her efforts recently toward the creation of stronger ties with Poland.

The third member of the Little Entente ,the Kingdom of the Serbs, Croats, and Slovenes, looks to France as a counter-check to Italy. Thus through her relations with Belgium, Poland and the Little Entente, France is far stronger on the Continent than she was in 1914, and her favour is of the greatest importance.

Using Her Power.

In the Italo-Greek dispute she has insisted on being the arbiter. While declining to commit herself entirely to the Italian view, she has nevertheless insisted that the matter could be settled diplomatically without the interference of the League of Nations. Her argument was that the assassmation of the three Italian officers was a crime against Italy, certainly, but also a crime against the Conference of Ambassadors, under whose auspices the delimitation of the Albanian boundary was being carried out. It was therefore the duty of the Conference of Ambassadors, rather than that of the League, to lay down the penalty to Greece. France could maintain this view only as long as Italy insisted that the seizure of Corfu was not to be regarded as an act of war, and promised to hand the island back to Greece as soon as Greece fulfilled the obligtaions demanded.

The French view prevailed against that of Great Britain, who held that the occupation of Corfu constituted a threat of war, and that therefore the League had power to act. The League, according to the French view, thus was "saved" from a crisis that might have wrecked it, because Italy was determined to withdraw if the League insisted on its competence.

France thus emerges a protector of the League, as well as an "upholder of justice on the Continent." She has gained, moreover, the good opinion of Italy; the Italian press has been filled with bitterness toward their old friend, England, and gratitude for France.

"Buy no more British coal,' 'the Italian newspapers are advising their readers. "Better an understanding with Germany than with England."

At which France smiles, for when the treaty coal deliveries begin again, Germany will have scarcely enough coal for her own industries, and France will have a surplus to sell to Italy.

Keeps Eyes on Italy.

Nevertheless, France has no intention of playing Italy's game for her. When it comes to a dispute between Italy and Jugoslavia, French interests are not Italian. France is in no mood to help Italy's programme either in the Adriatic or in the Mediterranean. France is fully aware of the Fascist claim that France robbed Italy of Tunis, and of Nice and Savoy. She also knows that Italy has a growing population of 40,000,000; has already as many people as France; and a few years hence will be considerably more populous than France. Italy is therefore not a nation whose territory designs France wants to favor.

France's interest in the Fiume dispute therefore is on the side of an arrangement which the Serbs can accept, and by which Italian susceptibilities will not be hurt. Italy's friendship is worth keeping for the moment at least; but the friendship of the other Adriatic kingdom and of the Little Entente is worth more, in the long run, than that of Italy.

Apparently —at least for the moment—British prestige on the Continent is waning, while that of France is increasing. The negotiations with Turkey, culminating in the Treaty of Lausanne, were a defeat for British policy. After M. Poincares' long and careful answer, in a Yellow Book, to Lord Curzon's reparation arguments, Great Britain dropped the controversy and failed to act in any way, contenting herself with waiting to see what might develop, and European observers registered another victory for France.

In the Italo-Greek dispute, French diplomacy was all for the arrangement that finally prevailed, and France scored again.

Whether France has been right or wrong in the world's opinion, she has certainly been successful.

At the moment, France is strong, but will she be strong a generation hence? It is a question over which Frenchmen bother their minds little. They say that France can look out for herself to-day, and as for to-morrow—pouf!

ELECTORS DEFY GOVERNOR AND CAST BALLOTS

Martial Law Edict in Oklahoma Prevents Polling in Few Places.

GUNS ON TABLE.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Oct. 2,—Oklahoma laid its six-shooter on the table to-day and called for its ballot.

Polling places opened generally throughout the state at 7 a.m., ready for voters to cast their votes in the special election, banned by Governor J. C. Walton.

Armed and deputized citizens actually slept on the ballot boxes in many cities to insure the security of the election supplies.

Long lines of voters waited before the polling places at the time of opening in Oklahoma City.

Reports throughout the state were that the balloting started in an orderly manner, in nearly all counties. In only a few counties where Governor Walton's political supporters are in charge of the election machinery the polling places failed to open.

Walton last night issued a call for an election on December 6 at which the measure allowing the legislature to convene itself would be submitted to the people.

"If the Oklahoma people want to amend the constitution so that the Ku Klux Klan legislators can impeach me, thereby removing all restraint on lawlessness of the Klan, I don't want to be governor," Walton said.

The governor said he would not use the military forces to prevent the election. He said he mobilized his 22,000 state police, 75,000 volunteer "minute men," and the national guard of the state to suppress rioting and lawlessness which might arise in connection with the balloting.

In Oklahoma City a woman in whose home the ballot box for a township is placed was warned by an unsigned letter to "get that box out of your house by morning or something will happen." In no case, it was said, have similar threats been noticed.

UNEMPLOY SAY QUESTION NOT BEING ATTENDED TO

LONDON, October 2. — Canadian Press Cable. — Premier Baldwin replying to the request of the Trades Union Congress Council and Labor Party executive, urging that an immediate meeting of Parliament should be called to deal with problems of trade depression and unemployment, says that these questions are now engaging the attention of government.

The situation is not such, he adds, as to render advisable any modification in the arrangements made for assembling Parliament next month.

ROMAN CLAIMED RECORD

ROME, Oct. 3. — (Associated Press)—The record for long distance swimming is claimed by the Roman swimmer Armando Sannibale, one of the water fans of the Tiber. Sannibale swam a distance of 100 kilometers recently, and contends that such a feat constitutes a record. The distance is roughly 60 miles, and ran on the Tiber from Rome to the sea. The time was 15 hours.

His accomplishment seems phenomenal, but it should be remembered that the Tiber is a very swiftly flowing river, the current moving at the rate of two or three miles an hour.

WHERE STOLEN CARS GO.

Montreal Factory Makes them over So owners Can't Recognize them.

MONTREAL, October 2. — A "quick change" factory for stolen automobiles has been discovered in the east end of the city. It solves the mysterious disappearance during the past few years of hundreds of automobiles here. In this workshop stolen cars were taken apart and a body of one set on the chassis of another, so as to preclude the possibility of recognition on the part of former owners. Officers of the Merchants Association of Montreal raided the plant and the raid led to the recovery of three stolen cars together with a large number of bodies, chassis, parts, etc., belonging to many others.

SINS OF SOCIETY SERMON BY REV. JOHN COBURN AT MARMORA

Race Track Gambling, Liquor and Other Causes of Evil Emphasized — Social Service Urged.

MODERATION LEAGUE

MARMORA, Oct. 2.—On Sunday evening last, the Rev. John Coburn, representative of social service and evangelism departments of the Methodist church, preached in the Methodist church at Marmora.

His text was "The Battle is the Lord's." He spoke of the fight between David and Goliath and compared it to the fight of the church against the evil of to-day.

We sometimes hear it said of a minister, "He has no enemies, he is everybody's friends. It is no recommendation. If a man is fighting evil he will have enemies and to fight is the work of the church to-day.

Mr. Coburn said: "I belong to the fighting department of the Methodist church and represent it here to-night. The first evil I will mention is the race track gambling. Every other form of gambling is breaking the law, but race tack gambling is allowed by the laws of this fair land.

In a recent agitation against this evil, one step was gained. Now the owners have to report to the government every six months all their returns from the race track.

Last year, the authorized report was that $56,000,000 was spent on race track gambling. Now, last year was the hardest year financially, Ontario ever knew, in the memory of the oldest residents, yet the sum of $56,000,000 was spent on race track gambling.

At the same time this department of our church was $15,000 behind. Does it not look as if the followers of the devil and his work were more liberal than the Christian people of the churches who are fighting this evil?

Dump Yard For Touts.

But it isn't the money question alone. United States has been fighting this evil and in all but three States race track gambling is prohibited.

What is the result? Fair Canada has become the dump yard of all the race track followers, bootleggers, thieves and riff-raff that follow the race track.

We like to think we are ahead of United States on moral issues, but, in this, they certainly beat us. Another problem we have in our department is the temperance question.

Liquor Not Dead.

Some think because we have prohibition, the question is settled, but that isn't so. The fight is on and on now. The enemy have many plans. Now they have formed a moderation league. They say, "We don't want the bar room back again, but we'll have government controlled shops." We'll fix the bottles up in white tissue paper, put a nice seal on the top and have it handed out, by a smart government official in uniform."

Mr. Coburn said, "It is no good. The stuff inside is going to make our boys drunk just the same as if it was handed over the bar. Government controlled liquor shops have been a complete failure in the three provinces where they have been tried.

Money From Scotland.

But the liquor people and their friends are working hard and working together. The Scotch brewers sent over $2,000,000 to help the liquor fight in Alberta.

They are circulating all kinds of stories abotu the violation of the O. T.A. Sometimes we hear, that everybody is making their own liquor. Also that a person could get all the liquor he wanted. How many people can prove these statements. It usually ends up with "they say." We shouldn't repeat these statements unless we can prove them.

If we can prove them, it is our duty as citizens to do so. If there were murder or theft and we didn't tell all we knew, we are "accesories after the fact" and share the guilt. This should hold in the temperance law. We also break the law if we don't help to see the law enforced.

Women's Wages.

A third problem dealt with in the social service department is the low wage for women.

Until recently there was no law regulating wages for women in factories, shops, etc. One instance was given of a factory in a small town in Ontario and the payroll for three women employees was $55 a month, $18.33 for one woman for a month. No woman could live on that and live a decent life. It was through Dr. Moore, head of our department, that the dreadful conditions in some of the factories in Toronto were brought to the notice of Sir James Whitney. He at once took up the investigtaion, and the result was a law was passed setting a minimum wage for women.

The fourth branch of work mentioned by the department was the rescue work for fallen girls. This work was undertaken first by the Methodist and Presbyterian church. Afterwards the Baptists and Anglicans joined.

We have rescue homes in Winnipeg and Montreal.

Until recently there was no place in the Maritime province where a fallen girl could be sent. So a large farm was bought at Truro. Our church undertook the maintenance of it. The girls are taught domestic science, given religious instruction and assisted back to a straight, upright life. In the past years 85 p.c. of the girls have made good.

In closing, Mr. Coburn asked for liberal support for this work from the Christian people.

Personal Notes.

Mr. Harry Garbutt, Mr. Elwood Garbutt, Miss Vera Taylor and Miss Dora Osborne of Warsaw, spent Sunday at the home of Miss Osborne here.

Mr. Ross Suce of Frankfort, is working here in the station with his brother, Mr. Grant Suce.

Mrs. Edith Homes, Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Hubbell motored to Belleville Monday.

CHAUFFEUR DIDN'T STOP

Writes to Newspaper that Victim of Accident was to Blame.

MONTREAL, Oct. 2.—In connection with the death of Mrs. Fred Fulton, of this city, who was struck down and killed by an automobile on September 20th, the Montreal Star to-day publishes an unsigned letter purporting to come from the chauffeur of the car that caused the accident. The writer claims that he would have stopped after the accident but for the fact that he had no witness with him at the time, and I know I would have been arrested and everybody against me." He adds that he has been driving for seven years, and has never so far had an accident.

The writer while regretting the accident with all his heart, says that he was not to blame "as it was pure negligence on the part of the woman to get off the car (street car) the way that she did."

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By SISTER MARY

EMERGENCY MENUS

Every housekeeper has had the experience of having a visitor on the very day there's hash for dinner and no dessert and not a minute's time to run to the market. Or perhaps there is time to prepare a "company" dinner of a simple sort, but in the flurry of the necessary change of plans the question of "what on earth shall I have" looms large.

To this end it's very much worth while to keep some "stock" company menus and recipes in mind.

As to the hash, if the meat is veal or pork or a fine cut of beef and there is time why not make timbales and serve the potatoes in a cream sauce? If the hash is necessary try serving it on toast with a poached egg in a small depression on each portion. Perhaps this menu will suggest other possibilities to you:

Tomato Cream Soup
Toasted Bread Sticks
Hash with Poached Eggs on Toast
Shredded Cabbage or Pickles or Celery
A Second Vegetable
Hot Biscuits or Plain Bread
Jelly or Preserves
Tea or Coffee, and an
"Emergency Dessert."

The dessert can be omitted if warm biscuits and preserves are served. If the whole meal is served neatly and carefully there is no reason for any housekeeper to feel the least bit embarrassed or apologetic.

In place of hash try these timbales:

Left-Over Timbales

One cup chopped cold meat, 2 tablespoons butter, ½ cup stale bread crumbs, 1 cup milk, 1 dessertspoon minced parsley, 2 eggs, ½ teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper.

Melt butter, add crumbs and milk and cook until thick and smooth, stirring constantly. Add meat, salt and pepper, parsley and eggs slightly beaten Mix thoroughly and turn into buttered molds. Fill molds a little more than half full and put in a pan of hot water. Cover with buttered paper and bake Cover with buttered paper and bake half an hour in a hot oven. Remove surrounded by creamed peas or carrots. Or garnish with sprigs of parsley and serve creamed potatoes and baked squash or the other vegetable simply dressed with butter.

Ham and veal, ham and chicken, all veal or all chicken, cold roast pork, cold roast beef or lamb can be used for these timbales.

An excellent emergency luncheon dish is made with cheese, eggs and milk If there are potatoes to be warmed up serve them "hashed brown." Canned tomatoes, served scalloped or stewed are always good with cheese.

This luncheon menu may offer suggestions:

Cheese Fondue
Hashed Brown Potatoes
Stewed Tomatoes
Bread and Butter
Ginger Bread Apple Sauce
Tea

Serve little cubes of toast in the stewed tomatoes.

Any kind of canned fruit may be used in place of apple sauce.

Cheese Fondue

Two cups bread crumbs from soft part of loaf, ¾ cup milk, ½ cup fine chopped cheese, 4 tablespoons butter, 3 eggs, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon mustard, ¼ teaspoon pepper.

Cook crumbs and milk, stirring constantly, until hot and smooth. Add butter, cheese, salt, pepper and mustard and cook long enough to melt the cheese. Remove from fire and add yolks of eggs beaten with a dover beater until thick and lemon colored. Mix thoroughly. Fold in whites of eggs beaten until stiff and dry on a platter with a wire whisk. Turn into a buttered baking dish and bake 20 or 25 minutes in a moderate oven. When firm to the touch the fondue is done. Serve at once.

Hashed Brown Potatoes

Three cups finely chopped cold boiled potatoes, 6 tablespoons bacon or ham fat, ¼ teaspoon pepper.

Melt fat in frying pan. Add potatoes and shake pan until potatoes are coated with fat. Stir over the fire until very hot. Then let stand over the fire until brown and crisp underneath. Ford like an omelet and serve on a hot platter.

Ginger Bread

One-half cup granulated sugar, 1 cup molasses, ½ cup lard and butter mixed, 2½ cups flour, 1 teaspoon each cinnamon, ginger and cloves, 2 teaspoons soda, 1 cup boiling water, 2 eggs.

Cream shortening and sugar. Add molasses and mix well. Mix and sift flour and spices and add to first mixture. Dissolve soda in boiling water and stir into dough. Stir until perfectly smooth. Add eggs well beaten. Pour into two buttered and floured pans or a dripping pan. Bake 40 minutes in a moderate oven. Serve warm. The addition of whipped cream makes this a real dessert "fit for a king."

There will be no meeting next Monday, October 8, owing to a Bible Society meeting in the basement.

Mrs. Jas. Balfour Dead.

News of the death of Mrs. James Balfour of Carberry, Man., formerly of Omemee, reached Omemee on Wednesday. Mrs. Balfour was the daughter of the late James English and was born in Omemee over ninety years ago. Her first husband was the late James Ivory, who conducted a flourishing lumber and shingle business. To bless this union there were five children, James, George, William, Mrs. John Miles and Mrs. Metcalfe, of whom only James and William of Toronto survive. The late James Ivory died early in life, and some years later his widow married Mr. James Balfour, another well-known and much-respected resident of Omemee. Mr. and Mrs. Balfour made their home in Carberry, Man., where, as in Omemee, "Aunt Eliza," as she was lovingly and popularly called by young and old, made many warm friends. The remains of the aged lady were tenderly laid to rest in the Carberry Cemetery.

To the sorrowing loved ones left to mourn, the sympathy of many old Omemee friends is extended.

Military Appointment.

Lieut.-Col. Mossom A. Germain, now of Moose Jaw, Sask., an old Omemee boy and son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Parsons, has received the following appointment, which is of interest to his many friends in Omemee:

Although it has not as yet been officially reported, Lieut.-Col. M. A. Germain will for the future command the Second South Saskatchewan Regiment, in lieu of Lieut.-Col. Stanley Anderson, D.S.O., who has been transferred to the reserve of officers.

For some months past Col. Anderson has been resident in Vancouver, and for that period the duties of commanding officer have devolved upon Col. Germain.

The new officer commanding the Second South Saskatchewan Regiment saw service in France during the Great War with the 28th Battalion, which formed part of the famous "Iron Sixth" Brigade. He was one of the original members of that battalion, going to France with the rank of lieutenant. After a lengthy period in the trenches he was transferred as second in command of a training battalion in France, this unit being commanded by Lieut.-Col. Norman Gentles, who was also one of the original officers of the 28th Battalion. On his return to Canada in the year 1918, Col. Germain took an active interest in the local militia regiment which interest has culminated in his being appointed to the command.

SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA EXECUTIVE IN SESSION

All Express Pleasure at Progress Organization Is Making.

The executive of the Peterboro Symphony Orchestra met last night at the Conservatory. All present were well pleased with the progress made so far. Applications for honorary mebership, a means of financial assistance to the organization, are coming in nicely, and there are 35 playing members on the active roll. It was decided to purchase three new instruments, a Bassoon, Oboe and Bass Clarinet, which will be the property of the organization. These instruments will be of the latest improved makes and styles, in a low pitch, the same as are used in the largest symphony orchestras. Qualified musicians are ready to take up these instruments as soon as they arrive, and they will certainly fill a big gap in the instrumentation. Later on, in order to complete the symphony instrumentation, three or four more instruments will be required, and they hope to secure them at an early date.

Splendid rehearsa' are being held, and it is expected that a concert will be given some time this fall. The organization will enter in the musical competition to be held in Toronto in the spring, and all are looking forward to the event. Citizens will be glad to get behind such an enthusiastic group of musicians who have the patience to go through the long preparation required to place the orchestra on a high plane of efficiency and the nerve to go abroad and try conclusions with the best organizations of like class in the country. Such efforts are bound to bring Peterboro into prominence, and should be encouraged in every way possible.

Your Health

By DR. CLIFFORD G. ROBINSON

Physicians who examine life insurance applicants frequently detect high blood pressure. Examinations in New York by the Life Extension Institute and by war examining boards showed the same thing.

High blood pressure is a symptom that something is wrong. It means the heart has to exert undue force to drive the blood through the arteries, which have become thickened, restricted, narrower, so that they supply less blood to organs and tissue for cell building and repair.

In other words, heart and arteries are degenerating or, wearing out, through some cause you have created, by improper diet, lack of exercise, or habits that tend to break down your resistance and health.

The main cause of arteriosclerosis (hardening of the arteries) is high living and high nervous tension. Rich and poor alike suffer.

Another cause is stimulating the adrenal glands (small organs adjacent the kidneys) by smoking. This secretion by these glands, in excess, affects the blood vessels, constricting them and increasing blood pressure.

Don't invite high blood pressure by intemperance in eating or working. Seek your physician before you have to live the hygienic life you should have developed in youth.

EXTREME CONFUSION IN POLITICAL SITUATION

Chancellor Stresemann Fails to Gain United Approval For His Proposed Economic Dictatorship.

BERLIN, Oct. 3. — (Canadian Press.) — Chancellor Stresemann's efforts to construct a national parliamentary coalition, giving united approval for his proposed "economic dictatorship" have failed to win the undivided support of all the Reichstag parties, and up to a late hour last night the political situation was in a state of extreme confusion.

At the end of a day devoted to party caucuses and deliberations over the Chancellor's "authorization bill," by virtue of which he would receive sweeping authority in dictating economic measures, the United Socialists informed him that, while they were not altogether opposed to some of the cardinal features of his economic programme, they were opposed to the existing state of emergency and would support the Communist resolution demanding its immediate repeal.

Upon receipt of this ultimatum, the Chancellor immeditately proceeded to President Ebert and apprised him of the Socialists' attitude, which, if put into execution, would jeopardize his majority. After a long conference with the President, the Cabinet again went into session for the purpose of reaching a compromise, if possible.

Bold Tactics.

The parliamentary situation last night was not unlike that obtaining when the Cuno government retired after the Socialists had informed Chancellor Cuno that they could not avoid supporting the Communists' "no confidence" resolution. While the demand by the Socialists that the existing state of emergency be raised, is viewed as a bold piece of party tactics and a high price for the radicals' further participation in the present coalition, it also throws a fierce spot-light on the gravity of the crisis, which, it is assumed, will have a decisive influence on the further trend of national politics, in that it now will be demonstrated whether the dictatorial regime demanded by Stresemann as an indispensable pre-requisite for the nation's economic salvation, can be put into operation without an active working majority in the Reichstag.

It is not improbable that President Ebert in the present crisis is destined to play a historic role, inasmuch as he is likely to meet the situation by putting the Chancellor's programme into operation without awaiting the Reichstag's approval.

Sequel of defeat.

With the defeat of its endurance test along the Rhine and the Ruhr, and its sequel, as reflected in sober contemplation of trillions wasted on passive resistance, Chancellor Stresemann and such leaders of big business as were not wholly blind to the laws of economics, promptly launched a plan for salvaging the nation through an economic dictatorship, which would be removed from the partisan intervention of the Reichstag, but which would not be so constructed as wholly to eliminate parliamentary sanction.

This was the problem which occupied the coalition parties in their caucuses throughout the day and which caused postponement of the Reichstag session, at which the Chancellor was to present the Government's new programme. While Stresemann ostensibly figures as the author of the scheme installing a business dictatorship, it is well known that the idea originated with the leading industrialists, who have been urging adoption of a platform demanding increased production, added working hours and rigid curtailment in the governmental wage budgets. These men told the Chancellor after the Ruhr battle was over that Germany had lost a costly economic war and that the nation could only be saved through the immediate mobilization of every ounce and fibre of man-power at its disposal.

Defies Orders.

Dr. Von Kahr, Military Dictator of Bavaria, continues to defy Berlin's orders. General Von Lossow, who represents Dr. Gessler, the Military Dictator of the Reich, transmitted a new order for the suppression of the Voelkische Beobachter, but Von Kahr ignored it, and the paper is still being published.

Many incidents of royalist tendency are happening in Bavaria, indicating that to all intents and purposes, Bavaria is already independent of the Reich, although a rupture is not yet officially admitted.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

CITIZENS' RIGHTS

Editor of the Examiner,—

Sir,—To people who do any thinking it must some day occur that when the fundamental principle of any right thing is treated with contempt a wreck is only a matter of time. The curator, report of the Home Bank may disclose a really terrible state of things. But it is not long since the doctrine was laid down in this province that no matter what the apparent or theoretical rights of decent citizens may be, if others think that it is all right to seize and appropriate them it should be done and it was done.

Now rights are rights and rest up on a solid foundation, but when the doctrine is laid down that rights are only rights when other people choose to think them so, the end is not far off and as a natural and absolutely unavoidable consequece.

We have banditry, bootlegging, bank-smashing and Bible-wrecking. If A does as he likes with the sacred rights of B why shouldn't B be expected to do the same with A Just the moment some people began to ignore the rights of others, that moment news of the new doctrine spread like wild-fire. The peopl, of this province have only themselves to blame. I have been contending in my feeble way for the maintenance of the doctrine as formerly practised which was that in any effort to do a great good it is absolutely necessary to see that we respect most carefully the right of those who have not forfeited them. Since a recognition of rights is the basis of all morality the absence of it means the loss of all morality and it certainly looks as if Ontario at least was on the road to moral ruin. We must hew to the line; there is no other way; there is no escape, no patent legislation that can provide a remedy It has already reached a truly tragic state with us and if we will not see our mistake widespread and total disregard of all decency must follow as now appears with apologies.

Yours,
J. H. BURNHAM

Those listening to the radiophone Sunday evening would hear the Rev. Dr. Norwood of the First Methodist Church of Schenectady, N.Y., say from thepulpit that "I reverence the Bible, but the lives of good Christian people are worth more than the Bible and the sacrament put together" and the Rev. Dr. M. C. Carthy of Pittsburg, say that "the revelation of the Bible was suited to the times in which it was given but is not suitable to our times at all."

And these are the people who insist on reforming other people."

Yours,
J. H BURNHAM.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

CRAZY CALF RUNS OFF

Crazy Calf was so amazed he mee kly let them ride him home to the pasture.

"We'd better be going to work," said Mister Dodger, the fairyman, stuffing his corn-cob pipe with dried corn-silk and putting on his corn-husk hat. "Are you Twins ready?"

"Yes, indeed!" said Nick, stamping around to make sure that his magic green shoes were on tight, while Nancy ran to open the door. "What shall we do first?"

"Count noses!" nodded Mister Dodger, looking up and down the cornfield to make sure that no one was coming. "I'll have to go over the farm and count all the chickens and pigs and turkeys and everything to make sure that none of them are missing. Come on!" he motioned. "It's as safe as a bank. We'll go to the pasture field first, for I've had my eye on Crazy Calf for a week. He's silly as a goose, and now that he is old enough to be away from his mother, she doesn't pay a bit of attention to him."

"But the field has a fence around it, hasn't it?" asked Nick.

"Fence! Humph! As though that made any difference to a frisky young calf!" scoffed Mister Dodger. "One, two three, four—yes, sir! What did I tell you?" he cried. "Crazy Calf is gone."

Nick and Nancy looked toward the place where a lot of cows were lying under the shade of a tree, chewing and chewing at nothing at all. Crazy Calf was indeed missing.

"There's no time to lose!" cried Mister Dodger. "Nick, you go this way, Nancy you go that, and I'll go the other way. Here's a whistle for each of you. If you find him, blow as hard as you can."

So away they all went in different directions.

It was Nick's whistle that blew first and Mister Dodger came like a flash—followed by Nancy, who lost no time, you may be sure.

"He's going into that patch of blue flowers," whispered Nick, pointing. Everybody looked just in time to see Crazy Calf putting down his nose to eat.

"Stop! Stop!" screamed Mister Dodger so loudly that Crazy Calf jumped as though a bullet had hit him. "What's all the fuss about?" he asked crossly. "I've had my eye on this patch of blue flowers for weeks, and just when I go to take my first bite, you have to come along and spoil it all!"

"Thank goodness, it isn't too late!" declared Mister Dodger, mopping his face. "Don't you know that stuff is larkspur and a bite of it would kill you? You'd better stay at home where you belong, young fellow. Jump on, Twins!"

Crazy Calf was so amazed he meekly let the three of them ride him home to the pasture.

"We've just saved your son's life," said Mister Dodger sternly to Missez Cow. "You'd better keep him at home after this."

WARM TRIBUTE TO LATE F. J. VOADEN

Former Teacher in Peterboro Was Popular at Port Stanley.

The many friends of Mr. Frederick J. Voaden, Principal of the Port Stanley Public School, were greatly shocked to learn of his untimely death on August 1 from a sudden attack of heart failure. Mr. Voaden had given a lifetime of enthusiastic and highly successful service to the public schools of Ontario. Mr. Voaden was born at Talbotville fifty-five years ago. Educated at St. Thomas High School and Ottawa Normal, he began his experience as a teacher at Kingsville. For some years he was Principal of the Wellington St. Public School in St. Thomas. From there he went to Peterboro as Principal of the Central School. For the last five years he had been Principal at Port Stanley. A fine tribute to his work as a teacher was expressed by Inspector J. A. Taylor, of St. Thomas to the St. Thomas Times-Journal: "He was one of the best teachers I have met. Thorough, energetic, enthusiastic and earnest, he early acquired and retained not only the confidence of his pupils, but also of their parents. A born teacher, he was a veritable fountain of inspiration for his pupils. He worked to the limit of his capacity. His work in the classroom was an inspiration. Decision of character, sincerity of conviction, thoroughness of work, intensive of his pupils' sucess, perfect discipline, an ardent love for everything Caradian and British, were the outstanding characteristics of his teaching. He closes his career with a record seldom equalled and never excelled in this province—of passing his entire class of seventeen at the Entrance Examination, every one with honours.

ADVICE TO MOTORISTS

The Ontario Motor League's Standing Committee on Safety commends the following fifteen commandments to motorists:

1.—Put yourself behind the other man's steering wheel.

2.—Don't laugh at timid passengers. They're your guests. Make them comfortable.

3.—Don't expect children to look out for themselves. The fact that it was the child's "fault" doesn't make death less terrible.

4.—When a man in the wrong insists on the right-of-way, let him have it. You can't argue with a fool.

5.—Get the hand-signal habit. It protects you as well as others.

6.—When the man behind wants to pass, slow down and draw over. It's safer to have him speeding ahead of you than alongside you.

7.—Donot dash by street cars as they are about to stop.

8.—Don't try to pass the car ahead when another car is approaching from the opposite direction.

9.—Slow down and keep to the right as you come to the crest of a hill.

10.—Don't disputte the crossing with a railroad train. What's the hurry?

11.—Think of the other road users when you have to splash through mud or water.

12.—Remember that the pedestrian at the crossing has a right to cross.

13.—Don't drive jerkily. It keeps the man behind you worried.

14.—When your brakes aren't working the time to get them fixed is NOW.

15.—If you forget the rules of the road you can safely fall back on the Golden Rule.

BRUIN COMES TO GRIEF.

SOFIA Oct. 3. — (Associated Press)—The carcass of the largest bear killed within the memory of present inhabitants of Bulgaria was brought triumphantly into Vatisha, almost within sound of the cathedral bells of Sofia, by a party of peasants recently.

For more than three weeks the animal has raided flocks and spread terror throughout the countryside. No obstacle seemed to trouble the bear, which had broken down fences, and climbed high walls in its raids, during which it carried off 57 sheep, cattle and goats and defied the herdsmen. Reinforced by a party of soldiers the villagers set out in pursuit of the beast, which was not overcome, however, before it had badly mauled two of the hunters.

Canadian Mothers Have Healthy Children

WHY? READ THIS!

London, Ont.—"Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was so beneficial to me that I feel it my duty to send this statement for publication, so that it may be of help to other young mothers. During my last expectant period I felt just miserable, nauseated so that I could not retain my food, my back ached and I just seemed to ache and pain all over. Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription put me in perfect physical condition. I was able to eat my meals without that awful sick feeling and I kept well and strong right up to the last. My baby seemed to be benefited, too—was as strong and healthy as a baby could be. I think so much of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription as an aid to nature in motherhood that I would not go through expectancy without its help."—Mrs. Ernest Morris, 3 Webb St.

A NEW CARUSO IN THE MAKING

Banana Pedlars and Section Hands Helping to Have His Voice Trained

NEW YORK, October 3. — Broadway may soon be paying $6.50 a seat to hear a voice that has been thrilling banana peddlers for years.

Caruso's successor is believed to have been found in a dingy third floor rear apartment in narrow congested Mott street, in the Italian section of the east side tenement district. He is Mike Angelo Raginni, aged 29 years.

For years his tenor voice has been the only soothing sound in the neighborhood.

When the plaintive notes of his ballads and Italian operas filtered through the windows to the street below, the dogs stopped barking, the children ceased crying, the rasping bark of the street peddlers halted—even the clattering traffic seemed reduced to a murmur.

To-morrow he sails for Italy on the Conte Rosso as Mott street's $10,000 vocal investment. Many of these cave dwellers have purchased $25 shares in the singer's future.

Joe, the section foreman; Pedro, who peddles cabbage; Guiseppe, the druggist—and all the rest of the Italian settlement — have bought stock in their favorite's voice.

In a year he will return to America—a dividend payer or bust.

The talented Mike is dark eyed, black haired, tall, athletic—handsome. For years he has been the support of his mother and her brood of nine fatherless children.

The investment company was formed that Mike's family burdens might be lightened and to afford him a year in a room in a "finishing school."

"He's been humming and singing sweet strains since he could utter a sound," said his mother. She speaks little English and is wrinkled with years of tenement hardships.

Mike Angelo was reared in a district where the kiddies udse the sidewalk as a slate and increase their knowledge at night schools.

"He will be such a success," admired brown eyed, raven-haired Edith, Mike's sister, who plays his accompaniments.

"You never have to coax Mike to sing," commented one of the members of the neighborhood club.

"It will be so lonesome without his singing," aded the druggist on the corner.

OLD AGE PENSION BY VOTE OF THE PEOPLE

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 3.—(United Press).—Campaign of the Eagles Lodge to pass old age pension legislation in every State in the Union has been extended to Missouri where, instead of through a legislative measure, an attempt is being made to secure enactment of the measure by means of a popular vote of the people.

The twenty-two aeries of Eagles in the State are busy circulating petitions to secure within the next 12 months the 12,000 signatures necessary to get the measure before the people through the initiative.

The measure is in the form of an amendment to the State Constitution, and is planned to be submitted to the voters for decision in the general election in November, 1924.

It proposes a pension of $30 a month to indigent persons over the age of 65 years who have lived in the State ten years or more. It provides that an exception shall be made in the limitation of the power of the legislature to grant money by adding the following clause:

"Provided, that the General Assembly of the State of Missouri shall cause an annual tax to be levied for the purpose of providing a fund, to be devoted in the manner provided by law to the pensioning of indigent persons of the age of 65 years and upward, should have been legal residents of the State of Missouri for ten years; each such person to receive $30 per month. If any balance shall exist in such fund after such indigent persons have been pensioned, then the same, or so much thereof as may be necessary shall be used in the administration and expenditure of such fund.

"And if there shall be a balance in said fund after such indigent persons have been pensioned and the expenses of administering and expending such funds have been met, then the same shall be transferred to the public school fund."

Old age pensions system similar to this one are now operating in Pennsylvania, Nevada and Montana, having been enacted into law by legislatures of those States within the last twelve months. A score of other States also considered the scheme.

C. M. L. ROAD SIGNS GREATLY INCREASED

Over 10,000 Miles of Roadway Chartered During Past Season.

Wonderful work has been accomplished by the Ontario Motor League during this summer in the placing of signs along the highways of Ontario, more than 10,000 miles of roadways having been provided for since last year. This has meant many thousands of signs, but the result has been that the motorist who traverses the main arteries of the Province no longer has to travel an uncharted sea, so to speak, but can always "find his bearings" by consulting one of the innumerable O.M.L. sign guides, which in time of need are as welcome as an oasis in the desert and far more easy to locate.

An important work in this regard has been the placing of signs marking town limits, the importance of which will readily be recognized by all who have the experience of passing through a village after nightfall with all the inhabitants gone to roost and no one but vicious watch dogs to answer questions. These signs not only give the name of the town, but also bear the number of miles to more important towns beyond. This feature has already proved such a welcome one that the league plans to put up a very considerable number of "mileage signs" next season, so that passing motorists in addition to knowing where they are will also have the additional information as to how far they are from their point of destination.

The O.M.L. sought the co-operation of the Post Office Department in the work of having the Province well charted with signs. They requested that the name of the Post Office be placed on each building in every town and village in Ontario, but were met with the excuse that the expense would be too great. Accordingly the individual postmasters were asked to erect these signs voluntarily, but the response has been disappointing. This has been followed by asking the local municipal and township councils to undertake the task and some measure of success has attended this latter effort.

WORLD DAIRYMEN AT U.S. CAPITAL

Men and Women From 40 Nations Gather For Big Congress.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—(United Press).—Dirt farmers, scientists and noblemen rubbed elbows here to-day as men and women from forty nations gathered for the opening session of the World Dairy Congress.

From Norway to South Africa, from China to Latvia, experts in dairying, men of science interested in the health of the race, men high in international commerce came together to hear an address of welcome on behalf of the United States Government.

President Coolidge was scheduled to deliver the welcoming address. If business prevents him, Secretary of State Hughes willy offer the delegates from foreign lands a hospitable greeting.

Sessions of the congress will keep it here today and tomorrow. The whole congress will then move to Philadelphia for a day, and thence to Syracuse, N. Y., where, in twenty-three sessions the real work of the gathering will be done.

Means Much to Millions.

The Washington sessions will be held in Memorial Continental Hall, where the Arms Conference met. Speakers will emphasize the fact that this conference, like the disarmament parley, will have a definite upon the well-being and happiness of millions of people throughout the world.

Topics of international scientific and economic importance will be be discussed at the Washington sessions. The larger and more important aspects of the dairy industry in science, in public health and in international affairs will be covered here. Later 200 speakers, many of them men and women from foreign countries, will go into detail, principally at the Syracuse meetings.

Following the welcoming address on behalf of the Goverment today, H. F. Van Norman, President of the World's Dairy Congress Association, will welcome the delegates on behalf of their American colleagues. Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, Secretary of Commerce Hoover, who is also President of the American Child Health Association, and Jules Maenhaut, Brussels, Belgium, President of the International Dairy Federation, will be other speakers at the opening session.

Cobourg and District

COBOURG, Oct. 3.—Sunday was rally day for the Sunday schools in several of the local churches. At the Methodist church, a very interesting session was held and there was an attendance at the school session of about 350. Rev. R. F. Stillman, pastor preached good sermons in the regular services, morning and evening.

Presbyterian Church.

At the Presbyterian church, the pastor Rev. W. A. Bremner, it was a rally day for every one, and at the morning service Mr. Bremner took up the pertinent subject, "Is the church receiving justice from its own members?" At the Sunday school in the afternoon there was a grand rally day service with special music and recitations. Sunday evening was Mr. Roy Brignall's last service before leaving for California where he takes a position as organist and choir director, and there was a special organ recital and musical program.

The Baptist Church.

Rev. J. N. Norton pastor preached able sermons at the Baptist church at both services, and in the afternoon the Sunday school observed the general rally day.

Rev. James Pedley Here.

Rev. James W. Pedley of Toronto, again had charge of the sermons at the Cobourg and also at the Coldsprings Congregational church, which were of a specially interesting character.

St. Peter's.

Rev. Canon F. J. Sawers, M.A. who recently returned from a trip to the West, had charge of the services at St. Peter's church on Sunday.

The Salvation Army.

The special rally day services of the Salvation Army were conducted by Staff Capt. Cameron of Toronto, who was here over the week-end. The service hitherto held Sunday afternoons at Victoria Park has been discontinued. Tonight there was a harvest festival sale of goods that was well patronized.

Enjoyable Social Event.

On Friday afternoon the ladies of the Methodist church held an afternoon tea and sale at the parsonage that passed off very enjoyably. It afforded the people of the church a very pleasant opportunity of meeting socially their new pastor, Rev. R. F. Stillman, formerly of Omemee and his wife and family.

Death of John English.

Mr. John English formerly of Baltimore, Ont., died recently at Coronation, Alta., wheer he located in 1917. A brother, Samuel and two sisters, Mary and Susan reside at Baltimore. He is survived also by four brothers, James and William of Kalso, B.C.; Jansen of Montana, and George of Minnesota, while of his immediate family circle there are left his wife and two children, John and Alice. Mr. English was taken ill with typhoid fever about six weeks ago, which resulted in his death. He was in his 54th year.

Full Day of Sports.

For some time the Cobourg Collegiate Institute have had their sports day, but this year it is suggested that the Public School pupils join with them also and devote an entire day to sports. It is expected that this will be arranged for and the boys and girls, both junior and senior are looking forward to it with much interest.

A Valuable Find.

Chief John C. Rose made a valuable recovery for a citizen in the form of a wallet containing $195.70. It had been dropped in the back yard of a merchant, it is stated, and a little girl found it. It was handed over to the Chief, who found the owner.

Timetable Changed.

Yesterday the railway assumed their winter time table, which contain some changes of which the travelling public will do well to take notice.

Salem Church.

Rev. Mr. Wolfriam of Consecon was the preacher at the services at Salem Methodist church on Sunday.

Hilton School Fair.

The School Fair at Hilton passed off very successfully attracting the usual amount of interest in both young and old, although the weather was not so favorable as could be desired. Codrington School again holds the cup donated for the best parade.

Death of Nurse-In-Training.

The death took place at the Ontario Hospital of Miss Laura Coward, a nurse-in-training for a couple of years past. About a month ago Miss Coward was taken ill, the trouble being pulmonary tuberculosis, it is stated, which all told speedily sapped her strength and vitality. She was a daughter of Mr. Henry Coward of Cardinal and was 21 years of age. She was a young lady who was held in high regard.

Oregon—Bradd.

The marriage took place very quietly at Kew Beach Presbyterian church, Toronto on Saturday, of Hazel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Bradd of Brighton, to Wallace B. Oregon, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Oregon of Colborne. Rev. Mr. Mr. Cranston officiated. The bride wore her travelling suit of navy blue with grey hat and wore a corsage boquet of Ophelia roses and lily of the valley. She was attended by her sister, Miss Helen Bradd. Mr. and Mrs. Oregon will reside near Colborne.

CLEARLY DEFINED AND AGGRESSIVE FOREIGN POLICY

U. S. President Coolidge Prepares Plan Embracing New Pan-American Solidarity—Progressive New-World Relationship.

BY HARRY B. HUNT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Development by the Coolidge adminstration of a more clearly defined and aggressive foreign policy than the country has known since the World War is anticipated in official government circles.

The first moves toward charting this policy, it is understood, already have been taken, and the full program probably will be revealed within the next three months. Such steps as are not disclosed in the meantime are expected to be presented in President Coolidge's first address to Congress Dec. 4.

The policies as they are understood to have been outlined, fall into major groups; the first dealing exclusively with relationships on the western hemisphere, including Canada and the Latin Americas, the second covering world relationships with particular application to the nations of Europe.

World Court Up

Considering the second group first, because of the popular and political interest that will be aroused, this is expected to present, among other matters:

1. Advocacy of American adherence to the World Court, perhaps without insistence on the court being divorced from the League of Nations.

2. American economic assistance to Europe, covering both the matter of debts owed by European nations to the United States and advances of new capital to assist in reconstruction and industrial development.

The extent of American help in these matters of debts and investments, however, would be made contingent on Europe's willingness to further reduce expenditures for armament. A second conference on disarmament, to extend the limitations set on naval preparedness by Harding conference of November, 1921, would be necessary under this program.

Pressure for such a conference, along the lines urged by Senator Borah last winter, already is developing and is expected to grow as senators and representatives who have studied the European conditions at first hand during this summer get back to Washington. Already preliminary "feelers" to sound the sentiment of European nations toward a second Washington conference, have been discussed.

Fast fighting cruisers of 10,000 tons or less.

Submarines, their size, armament, and use in warfare.

Military and naval aircraft.

Land armaments, while a big factor in Europe's economic as well as her peace problem, are scarcely likely to be on the agenda. Reductions in the land fighting forces would be expected to follow, not precede, a more prosperous, harmonious Europe.

FOR CLOSER TIES

For the western hemisphere, the attempt will be to foster closer economic, commercial and political understandings which will bind the whole of the three Americas in a distinctly progressive new-world relationship. Both the departments of state and commerce will be utilized in this effort. Among the possible moves suggested are "All-American" trade agreements and arrangements for the settling of political controversies. Possible reciprocity arrangements are also being studied.

The desire for a more closely unified western world, with South America, Mexico and Canada looking more and more to the United States for manufactured products with the U. S. providing a market for their raw materials, has been increased by the growing opinion here that no likely settlement of European affairs will provide any considerable additional European market for American goods.

A settlement in the Ruhr, for instance, would more than offset, through stimulated industrial production, any advantages that might come to the United States from increased purchasing power. The only big market for America in Europe that would result would be a market for money, not for American commodities.

Europe is already underselling American manufacturers in their own market on goods which carry a 90 per cent. tariff, notably laces and embroideries, and European manufacturers, assisted by their governments, are actively seeking markets other than the U. S. for raw materials. Belgian cotton mills at present, for instance, are using only 40 per cent American cotton. The 60 per cent is obtained in India.

It is increasingly apparent that no tariff will be adequate to protect American manufacturers in the face of European industrial co-operation and expansion.

American First

Canada's freedom to enter into reciprocity or other special trade agreements with the United States will soon be one of the questions before the Imperial Conference of the British Empire, which convenes in London in October. Another will be the sending of a Canadian ambassador to Washington.

This already has been authorized by the Canadian Parliament but the Canadian Premier — probably at a hint from 10 Downing street—never has made an appointment. England's objection to a Canadian ambassador to the U. S. is that Ireland, now on an identical status with Canada, undoubtedly would follow suit.

In following the development of any announced foreign policy by Coolidge, it will be necessary hereafter to bear in mind the new position which Pan-American affairs has gained as a factor in Uncle Sam's future status. Both economically and politically, a right and tight little western hemisphere is becoming recognized as no less important to the future than a peaceful and reconstructed Europe.

SHOULD WOMEN KNOW

Should women know the whole races now living have never seen a case of cancer, tuberculosis, goitre, heart, liver, or kidney disease and that science attributes their immunity to the foods they eat? Surely yes, since women know that these diseases are rampant among civilized race whose foods differ radically.

Races who know nothing of "denatured" white flour, polished rice, refined cereals, white sugar, etc., but who live upon nature's whole grains, milk, eggs, nuts, beans, vegetables and fruits are free from the above "denatured" foods, they soon die out with our dread diseases.

The greatest curse of civilized man is the refining of the "Protective Substances" out of his grain foods.

Roman Meal contains three whole grains. It is rich in the "Protective Substances" 'refined out of flour, other cereals, rice, sugar, etc. It keeps the blood non-acid, "cool," and invigorating, being the only alkaline cereal.

Blood should be kept naturally alkaline by using alkaline foods, but flour, other cereals, meats, fats, and sweets are "Excess Acid" and largely consumed by civilized races. Might they not cause disease? Science says they do, because they are acid-formers and "Deficient" in "Protective growth and repair substances." Acid foods heat the blood." Roman Meal is alkaline enough to correct the acids in flour, other cereals, meats, and sweets. Use it as porridge, muffins, pancakes, johnny cake, etc., or mix with white flour in the proportion of 25% in all domestic baking. Roman Meal is sold by your grocer.

GOOD EXAMPLES OF DOMESTICS

Eight Hundred Brought To Canada Last Few Months Under Auspices Salvation Army.

MONTREAL, October 3 (Canadian Press). — Eight hundred women, said to be excellent examples of that rare avis, the British domestic, have come to Canada during the past few months under Salvation Army auspices, but although well nigh frantic Montreal housewives have humbly begged that at least a proportion of them stay here, the domestic tide has practically flowed Westward.

Why? the officer in charge of the Salvation Army immigration matters here was asked yesterday.

A definite, conclusive answer was forthcoming without hesitation. One reason, he said, is that the Salvation Army have no receiving home for such girls in this province, whereas it does maintain such a home in Ontario ensuring facilities in distributing the newcomers to advantage not otherwise possible.

But there is another reason, one which constitutes an irrefutable argument in favour of the girls being sent farther inland than Quebec.

To be quite frank Quebec, it seems, does not want the British domestic—at least her Government are not sufficiently interested to offer the inducement the neighbouring province of Ontario has eagerly extended the Salvation Army.

Ontario avowedly wants British domestics, and she has adopted that most practical way of demonstrating the sincerity of her desire, the advancement of the money necessary to pay for the passage of the girls to this country.

As a consequence it is not surprising the immigration official said, that of the eight hundred young women who have come here under Salvation Army auspices during the present season, no less than five hundred have been placed in Ontario.

Berlin reports the tourists nearly all gone. They have just about finished the last one.

Consider The Lilies, Neither Do They Toil Nor Can Co-Eds Eat Sweetmeats

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 3.—Publication of a vade-mecum destined for consumption among the sweet young things of freshman college life has just started the rounds of the country's cathedrals of higher education.

Author of the tract is Miss F. Louise Nardin, dean of women of the University of Wisconsin here. She entitled it "If I Were a Freshman Again."

It's Really Serious.

By no means is the book to be taken facetiously, stern literary critics warn. It is a sincere thought purposed to guide nimble steps far from home in the gentle art of campustry and the mystic ethics of dietetics and self-control all in one.

A glimpse behind the covers reveals such interesting tid bits as follows in parahprased form:

The right sort of girl beginning college is loyal to her school. She is thoughtful and staunch in her zeal to make the right things prevail. Likewise she is most careful of every word of her obligations.

Ice Cream and Sleep.

Further on we find that a real co-ed gets at least eight hours of consecutive sleep. Dances but one night a week. Is in bed by 11. And she partakes of no sweetmeats between times, but slakes her hunger and thirst with the following:

"Fruit, milk, soups, graham and white crackers, bread and butter, plain ice cream and ices."

This guiding addenda running thus—"the college girl refuses to associate with men who have been drinking"—finds sandwich room between more prosaic instructions on hygiene and is interpreted as a cooperative [illegible] use of [illegible] which state authorities claim in times past have found appetite among the student body.

The book has been welcomed with such popularity here that further editions have been printed for distribution among other schools making the request.

The Million Dollar Doll

By C. N. and A. M. Williamson

Authors of "The Lightning Conductor"

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY

MilesSheridan, aware of his wife's infidelity is attempting to facilitate her obtaining a divorce by creating a scandal about himself. To this end he offers $20,000 to

Juliet Divine, a beautiful showgirl known as the Million Dollar Doll, if she will take a yacht trip with him. Juliet is unable to go herself, but greedy for the money, she persuades

Teresa Desmond (Terry) her lovely and unbelievably innocent half-sister an exquisite counterpart of herself, to go in her stead, masquerading as the Million Dollar Doll. Ever since a kindness Miles did her in childhood, Terry had made him her Dream Prince.

Betty Sheridan, Miles wife, is in love with

Paul Di Salvano, a handsome Italian.

Eustace Nazlo, a wealthy Greek, who does not know of Terry's relationship to Juliet, is in love with the younger girl, and is surprised to meet her at Monte Carlo with Miles.

Mrs. Harkness, Miles' old servant, prepared to hate the "Million Dollar Doll" is won over by Terry's sweetness and charm. Miles has stipulated that he will have nothing to do with the girl, on the voyage, but his resolve is wavering although he does not recognize the little girl whom he befriended so long ago.

Miss Caroline Sheridan, his aunt, sojourning at Monte Carlo, is horrified at Miles' action, and comes on board the yacht to talk to Terry.

Miss Caroline's well-meaning advice to the "Million Dollar Doll" leaves Terry bewildered and miserable.

CHAPTER LVI.

A Review of the Past

If Eustace Nazlo had had his way with Terry Desmond in New York and all had gone "according to plan" she might have been for him only a pretty little thing in a long line of pretty little things.

But she had run away from his love. She'd played him a trick, and he had lost her. He could not bear to be thwarted. It made him feel physically depleted.

Few women had stumbled on this peculiarity of Nazlo's because few had ever tried to thwart him. Girls who attracted the Shoe King were ready to dance with joy at their luck, and were in consequence too "nice" to him for their own ultimate good.

He tired soon of what he got easily; and because a third-rate French dancer from Marseilles was clever enough to guess this, she had contrived to become Mrs. Nazlo, at a time when the Shoe King was scarcely established in his kingdom. The affair had happened in Paris, just before the war. It had been a case of "Marry me, or goodbye, and I'll marry someone else."

Natalie Coreze had eyes like wells of ink, and red lips that asked for kisses and then refused them. But she was scarcely above the peasant class; and when they had been married for two months Nazlo was sick to death of her.

If she had not been going to have a child he would have bribed her heavily to divorce him, but one of the man's rare weaknesses was his intense love of children. He waited. Natalie's baby was a boy, and the miniature image of his father. Nazlo offered the woman five hundred thousand francs (as big a sum as he could then afford) to give up the child and return as Mademoiselle Natalie Coreze to her native Marseilles. But what was Nazlo's weakness was Natalie's strength. She, too, loved children. She adored the boy. There wasn't money enough on earth to buy him.

By this time she was developing a downy black moustache the shadow of a coming—and inbecoming—event. Nazlo knew that he could not stand her as a wife. She would ruin what he thought of as his "career" if he took her to live with him in New York. Yet he wanted the boy; and a compromise was arranged. He hired an apartment in Marseilles for the young woman, and engaged a trained English nurse to care for the child. Natalie was promised four thousand francs a month, to combine motherhood with silence and discretion. Once a year, on the excuse of a flutter at "Monte" Nazlo went for a month—slightly out of season—to the South of France.

Only once or twice had he failed to make this visit; during two years of the war when travelling had been difficult. During that period Eustace the Second had grown to be a fine boy, but such fineness as the mother had possessed was blurred. She missed stage life. Home existence bored her.

She dared not take a lover, for she suspected that Nazlo was having her watched. Instead, she took to absinthe —the beautiful green, forbidden drink, which those who worshipped it, still knew how to find

When Nazlo had seen Terry Desmond at the Blue Moon Inn he had been married for seven years, and had been in love at least seven times seven since then. In a way, his marriage protected him. He could always say, "My dear girl, I can't marry you, I'm married already"; though, except in such cases, he never spoke of his wife.

It was in this thought, that, if a chance ever came to marry some princess of society, he might induce Natalie to change her mind and free him. He had ten times the money now that had been his when first he tried bribery.

As for Terry, Julia had been right when she warned Desmond that Nazlo would harm the girl if he found her. But his knowledge that the "kid" had disliked him enough to run away was more maddening than Natalie's classic holdup.

When he motored back to the Blue Moon, his car empty of Terry, a sensation of sickness had him by the throat. He didn't hate the child. He was afraid that something might happen to her in New York, and that if she returned, she would be worse than lost to him.

Deep under his anxiety was this dread of loss for himself; but he believed that his fear was for the girl. He wished with all his heart that he had kept more self-control, and had not frightened the "convent kid." If now be sale. I never meant to hurt her he had been more careful, she would peated, though he knew in his heart that he would have hurt her, given the chance.

The morning after Terry's escape he telephoned for Desmond, her father, asking if the girl had come back, and was told that she had not come. But he was far from satisfied with this news. Ill with a violent headache after a sleepless night, he went again to the Blue Moon and questioned Desmond, fortunately for Julia, some time before she arrived.

"This thing isn't my fault," he insisted, "but I feel responsible. We can't let the matter drift. If you have no idea where your daughter is, I'll engage a private detective to find her, at my own espanse."

Desmond took alarm at that. A smart detective would soon come upon Julia's trail. He saw that between two evils, he might avoid the greater by owning knowledge of Terry's whereabouts. He couldn't let Nazlo suppose her to be in New York, however, lest even that hint should lead to Julia. The unlucky resemblance was the danger He told Nazlo she was staying with old friend's of Teresa's who disapproved of him and the Blue Moon. They had wired: "Have no anxiety for your daughter. She is safe."

"I should like to see the telegram," Nazlo suggested.

Desmond hadn't thought of that; but he did not hesitate long. "I tore it up," he answered. "I don't worry now, so there was no good keeping a bit of paper. Terry's all right. But I'm afraid, Mr. Nazlo, neither you nor me will get sight of her for some little time. When she comes back," Desmond said, "if you want to explain things to her, I'll let you know she's here. But I expect you'll have clean forgotten a child like her, before then."

BESPOKE VALUE OF YOUNG PEOPLE IN CHURCH WORK

Addresses at Lakefield Rally of Methodist Young People's League.

Delegations Present.

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 3.—The Young People's Rally of the Methodist church held on Monday evening under the auspices of the Young People's League, fired the first gun in the year's campaign. There was a large attendance which included delegations from the Anglican Young People's Association, the Baptist Young People's Union and the Presbyterian Young People's Guild.

The meeting was opened by Mrs. A. E. Higgins, past president of the league, after which Rev. C. S. Reddick installed the officers for the year: President, A. B. Burrows; 1st vice-president, Miss Bessie Madill; 2nd vice-president, Hilliard Payne; 4th vice president, Warren Payne; secretary, Sam R. Sherin; treasurer, A. E. Higgins.

Mr. Burrows the newly elected president, made a graceful little speech, expressing his belief in the high ideals of the league and asking the co-operation of the members in carrying out the programme of the year.

E. H. Northey gave an address on the importance of Young People's Work in the Church. Mr. Northey has unbounded faith in the value of young people's work as their field of work is one not done by any other church organization and means a great deal in the present and even more in the future.

Co-operation makes work easier and that is one of the tenets of the league. The church is the mother of all religious organizations and to her we accord loyalty with punctuality and regularity of attendance. Work the league can do in the local church includes increasing the church membership, improving and beautifying the church property and as the president is a member of the church board one feels that the opinions of the young people in church matters will receive more consideration. Young people should be encouraged to offer their tithes and offerings proportionately to their earnings. A congregational rally can be greatly improved by the energy of the young people who should put their shoulder to the wheel. Mr. Northey urged athletics as a valuable asset in young people's work and suggested an athletic contest as a means of bringing young men into the church.

In Mission Field

Mrs. W. W. Leonard spoke on the value of the young people's work in the Mission Field.

There is an imperative need of proper training of teachers and leaders of young people upon whom a call to service and sacrifice always finds a ready response. The young people's organizations are building on a foundation already laid, one of Christian training and influence. All the young people of the church should take some part in the various phases of missionary endeavor or parochial enterprises, viz., acting as deaconesses or social service workers. The interest in Missions for young people can be stimulated by study which is an essential part of religious education by which missionary zeal is created and maintained. Careful study of the missionary text books in mission study groups is of untold benefit.

In National Life

"The young people's movement in our national life," was the aspect of the topic taken up by K. S. Madill, who spoke of the value of proper training to fit young men and women to take their places as citizens of Canada and members of that great federation of nations known as the British Empire.

We are not always properly grateful for the privileges we enjoy in this citizenship or the debt we owe such men as Hudson, Cook and Cabot and many others for their part in earning this, our great heritage. We are apt to become cock sure and feel that our Empire can't be lost but we have only to look at the great Empire of Rome to see what may happen if we allow ourselves to deteriorate. The Roman Empire was in its time the greatest in the then known world, but it fell because the people fell and no empire is stronger than its people. Young people must have high ideals for, in the case of Rome, the young people must have fallen first otherwise the Empire would not have gone, they became lax and their morals corrupt or that their life rotted away. In order to become a good citizen a man should first become a Christian and then should have a knowledge of the history and geography of the country, of the immigration laws and problems of Missions, of capital and labor and the many problems which face the leaders of the nation. In a few years the young people of today will be governing the country and it is our business to see that they are trained to undertake the responsibility. If the present leaders don't know how, there will be no excuse for us as the league and the young people's organizations are training schools for the future leaders. The young people's movement will play a great part in educating the young people to be good citizens.

Summarized Addresses

Rev. C. S. Reddick gave a brief summary of the points taken by the various speakers and as there were no debatable points brought out there was no need for discussion. Mr. Reddick felt in the near future the undenominational National Boys and Girls' Movement would be supplemented by the national young people's movement which would be a valuable asset in making for Christian citizenship.

Mrs. Burrows and Miss Effie Webster contributed very much appreciated solos which were enjoyed by the company.

After the more serious side of the programme was ended the company formed into four groups and a singing contest was held and a prize was awarded the group containing the best songsters according to the decision of the judge. The prize, which was donated by E. H. Northey, consisted of delicious chocolates, which were shared by the winning group.

Refreshments were served by a capable committee who had provided bountifully for the visitors.

The evening was closed by the singing of the National Anthem.

DEAD

Al Spencer Is Gone, But Bandit's Life Is Vividly Recalled.

AL SPENCER

BARTLESVILLE, Okla., Oct. 3—It's Al Spencer's life people talk about now. Not his death. This super-bandit, victim of a diseased mind and a misguided love of adventure, was the inspiration for years for writers of dime novels. Now he is gone—shot down on a highway near here as mercilessly as one would kill a poisonous snake.

Yes, Al Spencer's gone, as they say out here. And townspeople are breathing easier. For th terror of the Osage is no more.

They called him "Will o' the Wisp" Spencer. He who robbed banks, looted stores, scaled prison walls, and fled to the hills.

Young, romantic, fearless—he couldn't help appeal to that portion of the population of the country that fed on false idolatry.

"Someone may get me," he always said. "But I'll manage to get someone while they're doing it."

But he didn't.

Shot Down.

The end came suddenly. Trapped on the Washington-Osage road by Marshal Alva MacDonald, and a group of others whose duty it is to rid society of human menaces, he broke to flee. Sharp commands to halt met only with the bark of a rifle in the hands of the bandit. A half dozen guns spoke, and Al fell.

Banks especially are glad it's over now. They had many rewards posted for his capture, "dead or alive." For Spencer was the most notorious raider since the days of the James and Dalton brothers. The Government recently added $10,000 to the general reward.

He operated in the southwest. Oklahoma was his favorite state. For then he could raid and dash to the Osage Hills, where he knew every craig, cliff and cave. He has been reported in Kansas, Texas, Arkansas and Missouri.

Recently he walked into one of the biggest hotels in Oklahoma City. He talked with several persons, smoked a cigar, and drove away.

At times he would adopt the modern bandit's auto. But once his "work" was done, once the "job was pulled" he would mount his horse—just like they do in the movies.

At his death he was 36. He had the typical cold steel grey eyes of the bandit—the kind that shine hatred of law and its consequences.

Escaped.

Spencer started his desperado career in youth. His escapades were famous when he was arrested as a cattle rustler at Nowata, Okla. Given a 10-year term he finally was made a trusty. That trust was misplaced—for Spencer disappeared.

Then commenced a long list of raids, and one escape from prison. Dozens of banks fell his victims, it is said. At Gentry he was shot down, but dragging himself to his horse, escaped.

He had his own gang, man-picked for individual cruelty, desperate characters willing to take chances, and born to the thieves code of "once captured, never talk."

It is said Spencer had a romance in his life. The girl thought to have won his heart now is under arrest, captured during a train robbery at Okesa.

When killed, Spencer had $10,000 in bonds.

BE CAUTIOUS OF SUBSTITUTES

There are several medicines on the Canadian market to relieve Kidney and Rheumatic Ailments, but there is one preparation that seldom fails to give quick relief and for that reason Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills are in a class by themselves.

This statement is vouched for by well known residents of this city. For instance Mr. Arthur Pinch, well known in the city, states that he was unable to work and suffered severe pains from backache, but after using three boxes of Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills, he was able to go back to work and is as well as ever.

Mr. Thos. Oldham, another well known Simcoe street resident, has no hesitation in saying that for Kidney and Rheumatic Ailments, there is no equal of Dr. Banta's Pills.

Never neglect Kidney Ailments as they are liable to lead to other complications, but always keep on hand a box of Banta's Pills. If they fail to do what we claim for them, return your box to your dealer and your money will be refunded.

Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills are sold at Lynch's Drug Store, 168 Hunter street. Mail orders attended to promptly. m.w.-84

CHICAGO BABIES THRIVE

CHICAGO, Oct., 3.—Chicago is four times as safe for babies as it was seven years ago, according to a report of the Infant Society of Chicago.

The death rate of one and thirty-nine one-hundredths of one percent for August among th babies cared for by the society in 1916 was reduced to thirty-five one-hundredths of one percent among 6,515 babies and children cared for by the organization at its 27 stations this year, said the report.

Nurses and dietitians with the society made 8,735 visits this year giving advice to mothers in the poorer districts as to proper methods of preparing food, dressing, bathing and other details of infant and child care.

COLD MUTTON.

Cold mutton, cut in thin slices, may be served with a dressing of two tablespoons of oil to one of vinegar and a dessertspoon of dry mustard with salt and pepper. The ingredients should be mixed together and poured over the meat.

Makes a Family Supply of Cough Remedy

Really better than ready-made cough syrups, and saves about $2. Easily and quickly prepared.

If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you probably could not get as much real curative power as there is in this simple home-made cough syrup, which is easily prepared in a few minutes.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with syrup, using either plain granulated sugar syrup, clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, as desired. The result is 16 ounces of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made and saves easily $2. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and Syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the nasty throat tickle and heals the sore, irritated membranes so gently and easily that it is really astonishing.

A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma, there is nothing better.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations to break up severe coughs.

McGraw Versus Ruth

Can the Manager of the Giants Again Outguess the Big Threat of the Yankees?

(By Billy Evans.)

John McGraw vs. Babe Ruth.

There you have the battery for the coming world series.

Can John McGraw, manager of the New York Giants, outguess Babe Ruth, baseball's king of swat," the big threat of the New York Yankees?

Sitting in the dugout, far from the view of the thousands of fans who attended the series last year, Manager John McGraw did the pitching for the New York Giants. It was McGraw who outguessed Ruth and the rest of the Yankees, making it possible for the New York Giants to win its second world series in a row.

On every ball pitched in the 1922 world series, Catcher Frank Snyder leaned in the direction of the Giants' bench before he crouched down to give the signal to his pitcher. Snyder was looking to Manager McGraw for instructions.

McGraw's Word Is Final.

The supposition is that McGraw gave the final decision on every ball pitched. Some experts argue that only in the pinch did he pass the signal to Snyder. Even so, he accomplished his purpose, for he had the Yanks paying more attention to him than the pitching.

McGraw, in the 1923 clash with the Yanks, will again occupy the same seat in the Giants' dugout. Frank Snyder or Hank Gowdy, who will probably do the catching for the Giants, will be looking toward the bench as was the custom in the last series.

The theory of McGraw is that Ruth cannot hit a pitcher with a good curve who is able to slow up. Give Ruth a diet of slow ball pitching with a curve mixed in, keeping the ball low and outside and you have him stopped, says McGraw.

Slow Ball Ruths Weakness.

There is no secret about McGraw's theory. Ruth can go into the series prepared to look at a lot of slow ball pitching. Incidentally, if it is necessary to use a fast ball, make him hit a bad one, is McGraw's orders to his pitchers.

During the season just closed, American League pitchers have tried McGraw's theory with only ordinary success. It doesn't seem to be so positive over the long route.

In the two world series between the Giants and the Yanks, Ruth has tightened up. His only ambition was to knock the ball out of the lot. He took a terrific swing at every ball pitched. Slow ball pitching is poison to such a style.

Match Wits With McGraw.

During the American League season, the moment a pitcher slowed up on Ruth, he shifted his position and swung. He attempted to time the ball rather than swing wildly.

Ruth must enter the coming series feeling that a timely single with a couple on the bases is worth more than a home run with the sacks empty. Ruth, instead of playing into McGraw's hands by swinging wildly at every pitch, must try to outguess McGraw, the master strategist.

When Ruth is hitting the Yankees are a different ball club. If McGraw can stop Ruth the big threat of the Yanks, the Giants will have a decided edge.

McGraw versus Ruth. There you have the leading actors in the 1923 series.

They're Rooting For Yanks

Waite Hoyt, pitcher for the New York Yankees, is sure of plenty of support when he steps into the box during the world series. And here is the major part of it—his wife and baby boy.

FANS NOW DRIVE INSTEAD OF GOING TO BALL GAMES

Only Two Circuits Are Doing Well.

(By Hugh Fullerton.)

Minor league baseball, in practically every section of the United States, is in dire straits. The season of 1923, which has been less profitable in the majors, but which shows only normal slump in attendance due to lack of interest in the races and bad teams in some cities, has been one continual story of poor attendance and heavy losses in the minors.

There are half a dozen leagues carrying on the finish with some difficulty and a number of clubs are hanging on hoping to sell players to the major leagues to recoup the losses of the season.

The reason for the failures and the lack of interest in minor baseball is a mystery to many baseball men.

Only Two Do Well.

The Southern and the Coast Leagues, both the big things in their sections and near major quality, have done well enough. But baseball men all over the country admit that attendance at games, even to the semi-pro contests, has decreased to a point where conducting a minor league club is practically a certain loss, unless it can develop a few players to sell at high prices.

The majority of the minor league owners and managrs declare that the big reason for the falling off in attendance and in the interest is the automobile. I talked recently with the owner of a club in one of the richest and most prosperous towns in the middle west. The plant of this club is a beautiful one, better than that of any major league club of twenty years ago, although the team is in class B. The merchants of the town subscribed to the support of the club and carry it for the sake of the town. The club president said that even season ticket holders and pass holders did not attend games.

Autos and Golf Hurt.

"In our league," he said, "the trouble is double, automobiles and golf. The wealthy citizens either drive out to the country club and golf, or out to the lake for Sunday. The merchants put up money to support the club, but even they will not come to games. The town now has one auto to every four and a half inhabitants. The factory and store workers who used to support the team now load their families and friends into the cars and are off to the lake or into the country from Saturday to Monday—and busy working the rest of the week. Our two real paying days are entirely lost. I find conditions much the same in every city in the country."

Billy Nissen, the well-known Chicago veteran leader of independent teams, who takes his club into many of the smaller cities of the central west, says:

"I do not think interest in baseball has declined, but it seems to me that the majority of people have too many other amusements. The fellows who used to attend games regularly now go once a month and attend to their golf or their auto riding the rest of the time. The situation is serious for the smaller leagues, and the small towns which formerly supported independent teams and poured out to games when there was a good attraction are in need.

Takes Neighbor Along.

I think that the automobile is the big cause. The fellow who has a car not only prefers riding on Sunday, but takes his neighbor with him, which takes two or more away from the games. I notice that the crowds in one town will be largely composed of people from nearby towns. A lot of them prefer riding twenty-five or thirty miles and attending a game somewhere else than to attend a game at home."

The situation indirectly affects the major leagues and the larger minors as the supply of young ball players appears to be diminishing steadily, and if the minor leagues do not function the development of new material to replace the worn-out veterans of the majors will cease.

WILSON'S DAUGHTER TURNS BOXING FAN.

Mrs. McAdoo Disappointed Over Missing Dempsey Bout.

LOS ANGELES, October 3. — Mrs. William Gibbs McAdoo, wife of the former Secretary of the Treasury, and daughter of former President Woodrow Wilson, is an ardent fight fan.

Indeed, she said it was only an engagement of the most urgent proportions that kept her from crossing the continent to be at the ringside at the Dempsey-Firpo fight.

It was while she was promoting charity events that Mrs. McAdoo began to develop her taste for boxing, for she noticed that it was at entertainments where boxing was a feature that the most money was forthcoming.

Mrs. McAdoo was hostess for some entertainments at the Hollywood Stadium recently, among the West Coast amateurs. Her chief aide was Mrs. R. D. Shepherd, formerly Odette Tyler, of stage fame.

RUGBY OPENING HERE SATURDAY

Excelsiors Play Crescent—Belmont Team at Riverside.

The opening game in the city rugby series will be played at Riverside Park on Saturday between the Excelsiors and the amalgamated Crescents and Belmonts. Both teams have been practicing nearly every evening at Central Park with fairly large average turnouts.

Peterboro's applications to the O.R.F.U. in the intermediate and junior classes have been received, and each team is given a bye, which means that both will have to rely on city league games and any exhibition matches they may arrange for the seasoning that is necessary for the second round contests. The junior certificates have arrived, and the club is now well started in the Ontario Union's schedule.

Among the candidates for the Excelsiors are: Pete Mulholland, Fred Green, Jack Turner, E. Sheehy, Max Sloan, B. Cowan, G. Griffin and A. Griffin, L. Ashmore, L. Brown, Johnnie Ward, Scottie McPherson, J. McClelland, Frank Collins, J. Clancy, "Frenchy" Holland and G. Eastwood.

Others are turning out with the team, and there is room for more aspirants for the regulars.

The Crescents and Belmonts have fused into a big strong team with lots of ability.

Excelsiors are paying a lot of attention to learning the rules, not only as to brushing them up for those of last year's team but especially for the benefit of the newcomers. Frankie Collins of baseball and hockey fame has apparently taking a liking to rugby, and is working out with Excelsiors.

BASEBALL SCORES IN BOTH LEAGUES.

Arrangements have been completed for the big game between the American League All Stars headed by Tris Speaker and the semi-pro Toronto Wellingtons, which will be played at Riverside Park on Saturday, Oct. 13, under the auspices of the Marmora G.W.V.A. This promises to be the most notable baseball exhibition Peterboro has ever seen for it will afford the fans a chance to see in action Tris Speaker, the Cleveland manager and one of the greatest outfielders and hitters of all time. Roger Peckinpaugh the great Washington shortstop, who this year had the best season of his career; Leslie Nunamaker, manager of the Chatanooga team and formerly one of the best catchers in the big show; George Uhle the Cleveland pitching ace and other stars. The team will be rounded out with several Toronto players while the Wellingtons who are headed by Corney Burns, once upon a time manager of the Peterboro Midland League team will have Les O'Connell and Alex Graham as pitchers; Eddie Beaume as catcher; Jack Beatty, manager of the London M. and O. League team, Bert Donahue, Irish Eagleson, Art Lammond and Herver, infielders, and an outfield including Babe Dye of the Buffalo International League team, Andy Kyle, M. Burns, Pennock, Freeman and other well known players.

OFFER TO CARPENTIER.

COLUMBUS, Ga., October 2. — Major John Paul Jones, of the American Legion, promoting the Young Stribling-Mike McTigue light heavyweight championship bout, has cabled Georges Carpentier an offer to meet in Columbus the winner of the fight here on Thursday.

Both McTigue and Stribling announced that they were ready to meet the French fighter.

The message to Carpentier was in response to one from Carpentier challenging McTigue for a championship fight.

EASY VICTORIES IN GOLF GAMES

First Round of Womens' National Championship At Rye, N.Y.

RYE, N.Y., October 3 (Canadian Press). — In a gentle zephyr that followed the gales of Monday and brought the finest sort of golf, the first round of the women's national championship was played yesterday over the undulating course of the Westchester-Biltmore Country Club, resulting in easy victories for Miss Glenna Collett, the defending champion, and Miss Alex Stirling, her chief rival, and other stars.

There were but two upsets, the defeat of Miss Louise Fordyce, of Youngstown, the Ohio champion, and of Miss K. Gorman, of Parkersburg, West Virginia's title-holder.

The golf of Miss Collett and Miss Stirling was of the first water, and was not equalled by any other players excepting Miss Edith Cummings, of the Onwentsia Club, of Chicago.

There were few faults noticeable in the game of any of this trio. Long off the tee, excellent with their irons, and up to the standard in their putting, they were well up on their opponents all the way round.

Miss Collett defeated Mrs. Fred C. Letts, one of the keenest match players in the tournament, 4 and 3.

Miss Stirling won five and four from Miss Marjorie Anable, of Montreal, one of the leading players of Canada, and turned in a fine medal card in doing so.

Miss Cummings won 5 and 4 from Mrs. Quentin Feitner, of New York, a veteran tournament player.

Miss Miriam Burns, of Kansas City, the western champion, was taken to the eighteenth hole before she defeated Miss Bernie Wall, of Oshkosh, Wis., 1 up.

Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd won at the nineteenth hole from Miss Bessie Feun, Poland Springs, Maine.

Mrs. Melvin Jones, of Chicago, eliminated the West Virginian, Miss Gorman at the eighteenth, 1 up.

The card of Miss Stirling and Miss Anable:

Miss Stirling:
Out ..... 445554355—40
In 35566

Miss Anable:
Out ..... 547556455—46
In 57656

In the upper half of the second round Miss Stirling will meet Miss Burns.

In the lower bracket: Miss Collett will play against Miss Dorothy Higgins and Miss Edith Leitch against Mrs. H. Blumenthal.

SHAMROCKS WILL NOT BE ON HAND

Team Decides Not To Compete in Lacrosse Finals.

OTTAWA, October 3 (Canadian Press). — It was definitely announced here last night that the Shamrock lacrosse team would not compete in the O.A.L.A. finals with Weston.

The locals have been ready for a period of three weeks, but the draw did not put them in play earlier.

The O.A.L.A. executive ordered a sudden death game in Weston on Saturday next, but the Shamrocks will not be able to fulfill the date.

Encroachments on their playing strength by the rugby season and the lateness of the date are given as the reason for the withdrawal.

KANSAS CITY RETAINS MARGIN OF HALF GAME

CHICAGO, Oct. 3. — Kansas City retained its margin of one-half a game over St. Paul in the close American Association pennant race by defeating Columbus 4 to 1 while the Saints defeated Indianapolis 4 to 2. The season closes October 7th. The standing of the clubs:

MAY PUT HORNSBY ON THE BLOCK

Manager Rickey of the Cardinals Silent Since the Recent Rumpus.

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—The latest sensation in the National League concerns a right hook delivered by Rogers Hornsby, against the jaw of Branch Rickey, manager of the Cardinals.

Of course, Rickey was not on the receiving end throughout the fistic battle, for reports have it that after Hornsby challenged with the first blow there was a wild exchange of looks and opponents that only came to a finish when players in the clubhouse separated the two battlers.

And the final result may be that Hornsby, admired for years by the manager of the Cardinals, held up by Rickey as one of the most ideal players he has ever met in his career, may be put on the auction block this winter.

Imagine the scrambling to the pie to bid for Rogers Hornsby!

What sweet words to John J. McGraw and the Giants.

For whenever anything is offered for sale, who in the league has a chance in competitive bidding against the Giants? No one.

McGraw Wants Hornsby.

If McGraw paid $100,000 for Pitcher Hugh McQuillan of the Braves, how much in cash would he put out for Hornsby?

During the middle of the 1921 season the Giants, trying to regain their feet as a pennant contender, offered $250,000 for Hornsby. This was refused by Rickey and President Samuel Breadon of the Cardinals.

It is reported that the Cubs were in communication with Rickey a few hours after the news leaked out announcing the row between Rickey and Hornsby. Charlye Hollocher and others form the bait Bill Killefer is ready to exchange for Hornsby.

While the Cubs have not stirred the financial market to much of an extent, there are as many millions behind them as the Giants.

Cubs Also in Market.

A player of Hornsby's ability would balance the Cubs and make them a legitimate pennant contender for 1924. Killefer already has been given credit for rebuilding a snappy young ball club.

Following the rumpus with Hornsby, Rickey has been silent. He has refused to say whether peace will be declared or whether Hornsby will be offered for trade.

Reliable information says that Rickey's pride has been hurt and that he will accept a fair bargain offered for one of the greatest hitters the game has ever developd.

Rickey is planning a big shake-up in his St. Louis organization. He intends to knock off the dead timber and develop youngsters. He recently handed Catcher Eddie Ainsmith his unconditional release.

Pitcher Ed Pfeffer, a belligerent, will be traded during the winter, not because he is slipping but because he objected to obeying rules put down by the Cardinals' manager, Milton Stock also is booked for trade. Johnny Lavan will not return to the knotholers and other veterans are due to pass out.

DETROIT TEAM BUNCHED HITS

And Made it Two Straight from Chicago—St. Louis Victors in Eight Inning Rally.

DEFEAT FOR YANKS

CHICAGO, Oct. 3. — (Canadian Press.)— Detroit bunched hits and made it two straight from Chicago, winning yesterday's game, 6 to 5. The visitor scored five times on Ted Lyons, who started his first game for Chicago, and counted another run on Castner. Daus was hit freely but managed to tighten up in the pinches.

WILL NOT RACE ZEV AGAINST COLT MY OWN

NEW YORK, October 3 (Canadian Press). — Harry F. Sinclair, owner of Zev, declared yesterday afternoon in a statement that he would not race his colt at a mile and a half against My Own to determine which should represent the United States in the international race against Papyrus.

The original proposal of Sinclair's trainer, S. C. Hildreth, for a race at a mile and an eighth next Saturday, was rejected by Admiral Grayson.

Mr. Sinclair's attitude was interpreted as removing the likelihood of a final trial race, unless Admiral Grayson should consent to the shorter distance.

When declining the issue now at a mile and a half, Mr. Sinclair said he would be ready to race Zev against My Own at that distance after 20th October, the date of the international race, regardless of which horse is chosen to meet Papyrus.

ROYALS FOR GALT.

Riverdale Champions Meet Terriers in Ontario Senior Ball Finals.

TORONTO, Oct. 3.—Royal Canadians leave for Galt tomorrow morning, where in the afternoon they meet the Terriers in the first game of the Ontario baseball finals. The return game will be played at Scarboro Bach on Saturday at 3 p.m. Geo. Drysdale, the clever southpaw who won in Belleville and Port Dalhousie, will likely be sent against Galt, and judging by past performances will likely give the Galt team some trouble. A large crowd of supporters will accompany the Royals.

MAY SIDESTEP GERMAN CRISIS

Socialists are Prepared to Make Few Concessions.

LONDON, Oct. 3, Canadian Press. —There is a possibility that the German ministerial crisis will be avoided inasmuch as United Socialists have said that they were prepared to make a few concessions, says an Exchange Telegraph despatch, from Berlin to-day.

The Nationalist party has requested the appointment of Minoux, the managing director of the Stinnes concerns as Minister of Finance, in place of Herr Hitferding.

The Socialist group in the Saxon district has decided to invite communists to join the government on condition that they recognize the constitution, the despatch adds.

HEAVY SHIPMENTS ON THE LAKE GRAIN LINE

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., Oct. 3.—Nearly two and a half million bushels of grain went down the lakes yesterday in eleven boats and there are thirteen now here loading grain. During the four days, from Saturday, to Tuesday, inclusive, the fleet has taken out eight million bushels, an amount that is about equivalent to that which is coming down from the west. Two boats are in the harbor waiting orders, no charters being yet available for them. The elevators complain of being greatly delayed by the amount of weed seeds in the grain that is coming here, some passe having from ten to twelve per cent. dockage.

CANADIAN ARTISTS ARE FINDING WORK

MONTREAL, Oct. 3.—(Canadian Press).—An increasing employment of Canadian artists for commercial and advertising purposes, instead of getting such work done in New York by American artists, unacquainted with Canadian conditions, was reported at the annual meeting of the Artists' Guild of Canada, which was held here yesterday.

In his annual report, the president, A. C. Valentine, showed that a highly successful year had been accomplished. The financial report showed that the year closed with a comfortable balance in the bank.

TUG-OF-WAR IS FATAL TO COLGATE STUDENT

UTICA, N.Y., Oct. 3.—En route home on one of the fastest steamships, Mr. and Mrs. William Burke, of Summit, N.J., lost a race with death when their son, William Burke, Jr., 17 years old, a Colgate freshman, died at the Colgate infirmary, from injuries received in a tug-of-war between lower classes last Thursday.

Burke was anchorman and tied the rope about his body. The rival classmen won the event and dragged Burke and companions for a distance. Burke's stomach and intestines were ruptured.

His parents were in London when they learned of his illness.

YANKS ARE FAVORITES.

NEW YORK, October 3. Canadian Press. — The New York Yankees, despite their defeats at the hands of the Giants in the last two world's series, have been established as slight favorites in financial circles for the 1923 diamond classic. Several wagers were recorded in Wall street yesterday at odds of 6 to 5 and 11 to 10, on the American League championship.

A NEW SPEED LIMIT AT STREET INTERSECTIONS

TORONTO, October 3. Canadian Press. — Warning was issued to motorists yesterday by Chief of Police Dickson against driving at a speed of over ten miles an hour across intersections or around corners.

Cutting down of speed with which motors will be allowed to cross intersections, it is hoped, will prevent a great number of accidents.

Divisional inspectors have been instructed by Chief Dickson to notify the traffic men to arrest any drivers exceeding this new speed limit.

OKLAHOMA GAVE GOVERNOR HOOK

Fight on Invisible Empire Has Just Started Declares Walton.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 3 — (Canadian Press) — With virtually one-third of the State heard from late last night, it was indicated that the constitutional amendment to open the way for the State legislature to consider the official record of Governor Walton had swept to victory with the greatest majority ever recorded in an election in this State.

"The fight of the Invisible Empire has just started," said Governor Walton, in a statement. "I am still Governor of the State."

Opponents of Governor J. Walton scored a sweeping victory yesterday in the most spectacular election ever held in Oklahoma. The constitutional amendment empowering the State legislature to meet on its own call to consider impeachment charges against the Governor was passed by a decisive majority.

Indications early to-day were that the heaviest vote for a referendum election in the history of the State had been polled. While the future intentions of the Governor have not been made known, it is considered probable that he will seek through the courts to bar an immediate assemble of the legislature under the provision of amendment, and thereby test the validity of the election.

BODIES OF TWO BOYS FOUND WELLAND CANAL

ST. CATHARINES, Oct. 3 — (Canadian Press) — The bodies of both Willie and Norman Meek, aged 8 and 5 years, were yesterday found in the old Welland Canal. That of the older lad was recovered in the level above Lock Two, just as it was about to go over the weir at the Welland Vale Works, yesterday morning. The remains of the younger boy was located yesterday afternoon in the Canadian Henley course in the level below, 2 miles farther away, and four miles from the spot where they fell into the hydraulic raceway last Thursday.

HOLD OUT ON BECKETT.

LONDON, Oct. 3. — (Canadian Press.)—The morning newspapers to-day print the announcement that Joe Beckett's share in the stakes for Monday night's fiasco with Carpentier has not been paid the English fighter.

Major Wilson, the promoter of the contest, refused to give a reason for withholding the money.

COTTON PRICES JUMPED BUT FELL WITH CRASH

NEW YORK, October 3. Canadian Press. — Feverish speculation in cotton sent prices sky-rocketing 88 to 100 points soon after the opening of yesterday's market on the publication of a bullish government report against Liverpool cables.

The publication of government condition report one hour later, however, struck the market like a thunderbolt and prices crashed 155 to 185 points, or as much as $9.25 a bale below the earlier high levels as thousands of bales, representing long contracts, were thrown into the trading ring.

BILLIARD CHAMPIONSHIP.

NEW YORK, October 3. Canadian Press. — The entries of two foreign cue stars—Erich Hagenlacher, of Germany, and Eduard Horemans, of Belgium—were received to-day for the world's professional 18.2 balkline billiard championship, to be held here beginning October 29th.

WARSHIPS VISIT SWEDEN.

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 3.—(Associated Press)—Sweden has been host to more naval visitors from foreign countries during six weeks this summer than ever before within so short a period, and the people look on these courteous attentions as a sign of growing interest in the country's trade and political position in the north of Europe.

Ten countries in all have sent war vessels to Sweden, and ten different ports, including Stockholm, Gothenburg, and Malmo, have been visited. The U. S. cruiser Pittsburg has just left Stockholm, where its officers participated in the memorial services for the late President Harding. The U.S. battleship North Dakota was also in Swedish waters this summer.

Canadian Generals and Brockville meet at Napanee on Friday afternoon to settle their argument. The winner goes into the finals with Welland for the Intermediate championship.

NORTHERN WELLS LEFT TO WINTER

First Time Since 1920 That Cold Has Gripped the Deserted Oil Camps.

CALGARY, Alta., Oct. 2.—(Canadian Press).—When the deep-toned whistle of the big steamboat "Distributor" blew a sonorous blast on August 29, last, 53 miles below Fort Norman post on the Mackenzie River, the million dollar three-year northern adventure of the Imperial Oil, Ltd., came to an end. Aboard the steamboat there were loaded all the camp paraphernalia, a score or more of men—drillers, tool dressers, fireman and mechanics, dog teams, half-breed helpers, everybody right down to the camp cats and all outward bound.

The men, under the leadership of Dr. W. A. Richardson of Vancouver, who was in charge of the medical work and health supervision at the camps, reached Calgary from Edmonton on Sept. 15, and dispersed to various destinations throughout Canada and the United States.

No one, not even the local officials of the Imperial Oil, Ltd., know the future plans of the big company with regard to its far north search for oil. But this is the first year since the northern drive started in 1920 that the camps have been entirely abandoned in the winter. Whether the drilling will ever be resumed is a matter that probably has not even been decided by the eastern directors themselves. At any rate, no oil has been struck except in the original "Discovery" well on the right bank of the Mackenzie River, about 53 miles north of Fort Norman, and just about 100 miles from the Arctic Circle.

Two other deep wells are drilled and came in "dry". They were located on Bear Island, just opposite the "Discovery" well and at "C" camp on the opposite or left-hand bank of the big river.

No Living Creature.

"Yes," said one of the drillers, "last winter seemed a long time up there, but we had signed on for the season so we just stuck it out for the drilling during the summer months. Are we glad to get out? I'll say we are. Believe me, that's going to be a lonesome country up there this winter. There's not a soul left at any of the camps, not even a dog. And the white population of Fort Norman will be just one man this winter, I believe. Last year there were seven counting the Royal Canadian Mounted Police contingent, but I believe they are due to come 'outside' this winter also."

The drillers, of course loyal to their company, would say nothing concerning the depth of the wells drilled or their state, but it was learned positively that the Bear Island well and the "C" camp wells are "dry" holes. The original "Discovery" well, rated by the company as a 100-barrel per day well, is still as good as ever, but there is no demand along the river for the oil to make it worth while operating.

In 1921, the company sent in a small but very modern and complete distillation plant to distill gasoline from the crude oil of the "Discovery" well. Gasoline manufactured from the crude oil of this well was used successfully by the Imperial Oil, Ltd., all-metal airplanes in their northern flights during the early spring and summer of 1921. Various "crashes" resulted in the abandonment of the aerial enterprise and the gasoline produced was then used in the motor boats. But the still was not operated at all during the present summer as it was found that the cost of producing the gasoline there was such it could not compete with gasoline brought in around the Alaskan coast to Herschel Island and to the mouth of the Mackenzie River by whaling vessels. This gasoline costs from $1 to $1.25 per gallon along the lower Mackenzie River, which gives some idea of the production cost of gasoline from crude oil in the far north when it cannot be sold in competition.

Putting in Time.

"How did we spend the winter months?" said one of the drillers. "Well, we were kept pretty busy cutting wood for fuel right through November and December up until January, and then we just put in the time till the days began to get longer. We did not have many storms up there and the cold was endurable, but there isn't much daylight in the middle of the winter. Besides, in the winter months, it seems to snow just a little every day and the skies are grey and overcast most of the short time that the sun is above the horizon.

"The first snow comes to stay about the 18th of October, as it did last fall and the big river freezes over solid about the first of November. It is running with slush ice for three weeks before that. I crossed it on good solid ice on November 10 last year.

"But the spring weather is fine. Right through the first of May, we had almost continual daylight. Even in April the long days begin and in the latter part of that month we found it necessary to use artificial light only about two hours of the 24 when we were running day and night shifts. Both last summer and this summer were fine, very hot weather through the middle of the summer and practically no rain."

A Happy Family.

The closing of the camps and particularly the departure of Dr. Richardson, will be a great loss to the far north. Dr. Richardson, stationed at Fort Norman, some 900 miles north along the river from Fort Smith, the northern boundary of Alberta, was the only doctor in that vast stretch of territory reaching on beyond there for another 500 miles to Herschel Island in the Arctic. All the medical and surgical cases up and down the river from Fort Norman outside of the company employees were brought to him for attention and he had a great deal of work to do which kept him busy.

"We were a happy family at the camp," said another of the drillers. "Not the slightest bit of trouble among the men all this year, and quite a few of them have got so used to the north that they won't feel at home outside."

CROPS IN PHILIPPINES

MANILA, Oct. 3.—(Associated Press)—While optimistic reports of crop progress are pouring in from certain provinces, the pest control division of the Department of Agriculture realizes that it has hard work cut out for it during the coming season, if many regions of the Philippines are not to be laid waste by some crop pest.

The locusts are always in evidence, and their damages to crops run into the millions of pesos annually. In one or two provinces they have cut the sugar crop in half for two successive years.

A fungus disease of which little is known, is destroying vast areas of abaca, the plant from which hemp for Manila rope is made, and the source of the Philippines' principal wealth. The province of Cavite, one of the greatest hemp producing sections of the Philippines, has been swept almost clean of abaca. The plant pest control division of the department is investigating the plants and disease in the hope of finding some means for fighting it, but so far the only remedy has been to try to prevent its spread to other areas by strict quarantine.

Rice cut-worms, said to be a dangerous infection, have appeared in the province of Tarlac, invading more than one-half of the rice plantations in the municipality of Paniqui.

FOR EFFICIENCY.

Study drawings with the greatest care. Learn to read them and understand just what they mean. This is the secret of rapid, efficient and satisfactory work. Be sure to understand both drawings and specifications before touching a tool. An observance of this rule will not only save time, but prevent the waste of material and temper.

Bransby Williams the famous English character actor, now touring Canada as Peggotty, one of the two characters he plays in his production of Dickens' "David Copperfield", coming to the Grand Opera House for a matinee and evening performance, Saturday next, October 6.

Investments in Port McNeill Timber Co., Limited, (Vancouver Island, $1,004,804.

Howe, Son Pulp and Paper Co., Limited (British Columbia, $975,026.

Advances and loans made in connection with South New Orleans Light and Power Co., $1,143,333.

and Investment Corporation, Montreal, $1,409,845.

The Double Liability.

In an interview after making his report public, Mr. Barker declared that he would not hazard an opinion as to what dividend would eventually be paid to the depositors. Neither could he say whether the shareholders would be called upon for payment of their double liability. These were matters for disposition by the liquidator.

The matter of an interim dividend of 25 cents to be paid by other banks was under consideration, but the machinery for payment had not been completed.

"How was the bank wrecked?" Mr. Barker was asked.

"Because it did not have sufficient assets to meet its liabilities," he replied.

Mr. Barker declined to say whether he thought the condition of the bank before suspension made way for criminal proceedings.

"That is a matter for the Government authorities," said the Curator.

Mr. Barker declared that he found the books of the bank, as books, were well kept. It was a matter for the Federal authorities to decide the other reports made to the Minister of Finance were in accord with the Act. It was a matter of opinion, he said, whether there was really a deficiency between the books and the returns made to the Government. It depended largely on the possibility of realising on sundry assets of nine million dollars which had to be further investigated and determined possibly by the lapse of time.

Mr. Barker was asked about the connection between the Home Bank and the British Dominion Holding and Investment Company of Montreal, which was reported to have owned ships in the rum-running business.

"There is nothing in the books of the Home Bank to indicate there were ships in the rum-running business," said the Curator.

"I am unable to say anything about that."

The Larger Loans.

Mr. Barker said that Grant Morden of Montreal, Edward Bristol, M.P., and the late C. D. Warren, president of the one-time Traders' Bank, were interested in negotiations for advances of $1,143,334 to the South New Orleans Railway Co.

The Curator thought that this would eventually realise more than the bank's investment in this concern.

It was Sir Henry Pellatt who obtained advances of $1,700,000 from the bank in connection with various real estate enterprises in Toronto, said the Curator. He thought these advances were well secured. He was unable to say just how far the directors knew of the advances.

This transaction originated with smaller transactions many years ago between the Home Savings and Loan Company, which preceded the Home Bank. It depended on the working out of these properties whether they would produce his amount.

Sir Henry Pellatt held the opinion that there would be a surplus of one million dollars over this liability on the properties in question.

The question of reported heavy sales of shares by H. J. Daly, president of the bank, and "others close to the president" was then taken up.

"I haven't investigated that," Mr. Barker said. "It is a matter for the liquidator. There is no evidence that the bank was advancing money against these shares."

Mr. Barker later added that it was a matter that should be gone into as a subject of careful inquiry."

Up to Government.

Although the report of the Home Bank failure, issued at noon to-day from the office of A. B. Barker, curator, does not recommend what course of action should be taken to decide whether to place the onus of responsibility, the curator and his solicitor, Mr. Glyn Osler, K.C., put the matter strictly up to the Ottawa Government. Messrs. Barker and Osler submitted themselves to a drastic cross-examination by twenty newspaper reporters present after the report was issued. Scores of times they gave the answer, "I do not know," when pressed for important information. They made clear, however, that the wrecked bank had not made adequate provision for losses during the past five years. Two copies of the report were handed to each newspaper and the Canadian Press. The first question asked was:

"What does your report disclose in relation to the last report to the Government in June?"

"We haven't attempted to compare it with the figures of the last report," replied Mr. Barker. "There is a deficiency accounted for there in to-day's report of $5,291,000. That is the estimated shrinkage in the value of assets. The difference arises in the liquidation of liabilities either by payment out of deposits or realization of securities, or the offset of the securities against claims. In regard to offsets there are many cases where the customer will have a deposit as well as a loan. In regard to the loan we will have an offset in respect to the deposits and the statement would show merely the net result of the loan so it would reduce the amount of loans and deposits by the amount of the loan."

"What was the shrinkage in deposits in the last 30 days before the bank suspended?"

"I don't think there were very many," said Mr. Barker.

"It was stated that there were about five millions withdrawn," the reporter suggested.

"I don't think they were significant," said the curator. He gave the deposits as $15,531,000, as against $19,000,000, but aded, "It should be remembered that there were a number of offsets."

"How much are depositors likely to get, judging from your valuation of the assets?"

"If you read the report you will find there are quite a number from among the nine million that we don't care to value. We have not had time to value them with the means at our disposal. There are substantial values in those assets."

Mr. Osler—"To considerable extent those values to-day would be a matter of opinion."

"Does this estimate of yours include the collection of double liability from the shareholders?"

"No, that is set out in the following page."

"How will it be possible to realize on the assets to make payments to depositors?"

Referring to the assets covered in the report, Mr. Osler said the amount mentioned were special assets. "The only way to state that is in this way," he said. "There are preferred assets amounting to $2,955,000, and the quick assets look as if they would realize $5,614,000, so that there is a balance of $2,600,000 available for the ordinary depositors. In addition there are special assets with a book value on page 3, including real estate fixtures, etc., which amount to $975,000."

Mr. Barker explained the advances to customers readily realizable amounted to $4,101,169. Those are merely the strictly banking assets that is our valuation of the realizable value of those loans, allowing to any shrinkage and cuts out anything bad or indifferent.

"Does this estimate the double liability?"

"No, we have not treated that in our report at all," Mr. Osler. "That is not for the curator to deal with now."

"Would you make an estimate of the final dividend which may be paid depositors?"

"I could not do that it depends on the realization of the assets."

"Then the deficit of two and a half millions will not require the double liability?"

"That deficit may be increased by losses on special assets," put in Mr. Osler.

"Then the losses may be nine million?"

"No, I would not say that nine million is the book value of these assets."

"We made out a balance sheet for August and when these advances are realized, what deficit there is, will have to be added to the Home Bank deficit," explained Mr. Barker.

"Were the books in good condition?"

"Yes."

"When will depositors get first payment and how will it be made."

"I don't know. There is a certain amount of mechanical work to be done. When it will be completed I can't say."

SEND MONOLISH TO N.Y.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 3.—(Associated Press)—A monolith of Soignies stone containing Belgian earth taken from the site of the monument to native heroes in the great war, will be the contribution of Hainaut Province to the tri-centenary celebrations of the founding of New York, which have been tentatively set for 1926. This was announced at Mons, following a meeting of the Provincial Council of Hainaut, at which the necessary credits were voted.

In a cavity in the monolith will rest an iron box, containing the sacred soil. A parchment telling of the decision of the council and chronicling Hainaut's war record will be included. A special delegation of Americans will bring the relic from Mons to New York.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

A mystery photoplay of unusual type is Goldwyn's "Red Lights," coming to the Capitol for three days, starting Thursday, directed by Clarence G. Badger, from the Edward Rose play, "The Rear Car," in which Richard Bennett and Taylor Holmes were starred. In it a half-crazed inventor discovers a means by which he can project his voice by using red lights. He makes use of his discovery to terrorize the abducted daughter of his brother who had won the girl both men loved. The girl hears mysterious warnings and threats issuing from balls of red light which hover about her room in the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles and on the Overland Limited on which she is travelling back to her father. The girl escapes death at the hands of Ezra Carson, her uncle, and Kirk Allen, an unscrupulous lawyer, through the intervention of the "crime deflector" whom her lover John Blake, has engaged to protect her.

The picture contains thrill upon thrill of a most surprising kind. To tell them in advance would take away from one's enjoyment of the film. The melodramatic pseudo-scientific story contains much comedy, but it is through its attacks upon the spinal column and the nervous system that it reaches its highest point. Nothing so thrilling, it is stated, has been done in the films before. The "crime deflector" is a new sort of detective who prevents crime.

The cast is a most capable one. Raymond Griffith cast the part of the crime deflector, Marie Prevost that of the abducted daughter of a railroad magnate about whom all the mysterious and thrilling events centre. Others in the cast are Alice Lake, Johnnie Walker, Dagmar Godowsky, William Worthington, Frank Elliott, Lionel Belmore, Jean Hersholt, Charles B. Murphy and Charles B. West, not to speak of a gorilla, which appears as itself.

To-night, "Ruggles of Red Gap" will be shown for the last time.

AT THE GRAND.

For the past quarter of a century the name of Charles Dickens has been coupled with that of Bransby Williams, who has set many of the famous novelist's characters to life on the stage. Refusing many tempting offers to go to the United States, Bransby Williams has brought his company and production of "David Copperfield" to Canada and is making a tour out to the West Coast. Next he will arrive here in this city and present the play at the Grand Opera House for a matinee and evening performance on Saturday next. Mr. Williams will play the roles of Peggotty and Wilkins Micawber. Two more dissimilar characters it would be hard to find. Bransby Williams is a "star" among "stars" in the theatrical world, so we may be sure that what we shall see during his visit here will be the very best of British humor and British stagecraft. He was presented this production of "David Copperfield" in all the large cities in the British Isles, where it was welcomed by the public with eclat. The Canadian tour was recently opened in Montreal, and it is on record there that never before in the history of that theatre has a play been presented that has so stirred the emotions of the audience as did "David Copperfield," and what one part of the Dominion says to-day another corroborates to-morrow. The box office opens to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock.

AT THE ROYAL.

"PRODIGAL SON" CLOSES ENGAGEMENT TO-NIGHT.

Hall Caine's novels are all pretty strong stuff, so much depth that it is surprising that the film adoption has so closely followed the printed version. Most American producers nowadays change a novel around to suit their own ideas or requirements, or to suit the censor. The "Prodigal Son" is well done and the company visited Iceland, England, France and Italy to get exact backgrounds called for. Our only fault with it is that it is too sombre, but then——, Hall Caine wrote it and none of his works are very cheering. It is evidently liked by the majority of playgoers, as the Royal has been playing to large crowds with this production. It will be shown to-night for the last time.

"MASTERS OF MEN" BY MORGAN ROBERTSON ROYAL TO-MORROW

"Masters of Men," by Morgan Robertson, the world's most noted writer of sea stories, is to be shown at the Royal Theatre Thursday, Friady and Saturday. Critics have unanimously acclaimed this picture as the greatest sea story ever screened. The picturization by C. Graham Baker has retained loyally the atmosphere of the novel by America's master teller of sea stories and Vitagraph, who offers it, has provided a lavish production, with an all star cast.

"Masters of Men" tells the story of an American boy who accepted the shame of another's crime that he might protect the girl he loved from humiliation. Branded in his home town as a thief the lad runs away and joins the United States navy. While on leave he is shanghaied and suffers the brutality accorded to men before the mast on board of a four master sailing the Spanish Main. How he effects his escape and aids in the destruction of the Spanish fleet at Santiago provides a thrilling drama which holds interest throughout every foot of the screening.

There are four principal parts, as the story involves the love affairs of foru young people. Earle Williams, one of the most popular stars of the screen, plays Lieutenant Breen, the officer who assists Dick Halpin (played by Cullen Landis) to win back honor and manhood. Pretty Alice Calhoun who has been starred in many Vitagraph productions, and Wanda Hawley, long a popular star, play the chief women's roles.

It is a picture of types and of vivid realism. The selection of types is said to have been perfect, particularly of those actors who play brutal hard fighting men who comprise the crew of the "Mary Earl." Dick Sutherland and Jack Curtis who play the mate and captain of the four master, are known to fans as the most brutal looking actors in motion pictures. They give realism to Morgan Robertson's description of the brutes who made life a hell for men before the mast.

"Masters of Men" should provide excellent entertainment at the Royal Theatre.

ELABORATE SCREEN FEATURE IS COMING

"Merry-Go-Round" is coming to the Royal Theatre.

The elaborate Universal Sutter-Jewel spectacle film which was months in the making and cost an impressive figure, will be the local theatre's attraction beginning Monday next.

"Merry-Go-Round" is a dramatic love story involving a poor girl of the Prater, the Coney Island of Vienna, Austria, and a high-born count who goes to the Prater and courts the girl while pretending to be a "necktie salesman."

War, sublime and terrible, wrecked the imperial glory of Austria, but it helped free the jurious thought and military philosophy which kept its under classes tied down to misery for centuries before 1914.

It is on the basis of the social change just after the recent world war that the plot of "Merry-Go-Round" is built.

Norman Kerry, Mary Philbin, Cesare Gravina, George Hackathorne, George Seigmann Dale Fuller, Maude George, Spottiswoode Aitken, Dorothy Wallace, Sidney Bracy, Albert Conti de Cedassamere, Maurie Talbot, Edith Yorke, Lillian Sylvester and other noted artists of the screen tak part in the moving scenes of the story.

The Efficient Way to Health and Happiness

THE bright sides of life are always visible when we have our health. Life's pleasures depend upon our ability to enjoy the good things which we have.

The full measure of that enjoyment is dimmed when our physical condition becomes deranged.

Appetite, pep, sleep, work and play suffer accordingly. But it is good to be alive when you do feel fit.

Only then is it possible to maintain a keen interest in the good things of the world.

Thousands who formerly suffered are now enjoying health. They were not blinded by custom, superstition or prejudice, they lifted the veil of skepticism to look into the wonderful results obtained by Chiropractic.

What greater argument could there be for the science that removes the cause of disease without the aid of surgery or drugs; that promotes health and efficiency; that helps the sick to get well and keeps the well fit.

PETERBORO WON GAME WITH NIAGARA FALLS

Both Teams Played Good Ball in Play-off in Hamilton To-day—Story of Game.

HAMILTON, October 3 (By Staff Reporter). —The Niagara Falls, Central champions of Western Ontario, and the Peterborough Lakeviews, winners of the Eastern Ontario title, met at Victoria Park here this afternoon to decide the Junior Ontario championship.

Niagara Falls had a following of over 400 fans via special train and automobiles, the Mayor having declared a half-holiday for the occasion; while Peterborough's representation consisted of an even dozen—ten players, Manager Lebarr, and The Examiner representative.

The Falls pinned their faith upon Lefty Smith on the rubber, while Whitehouse was, of course, Peterborough's selection.

The umpires were Messrs. Hennessy and Jackson, of Hamilton.

The Petes won the toss, and took the field first.

The line-up:

Niagara Falls—Clark, 2b; Clunie, ss; Dumas, m; Arscott, c; O. Smith, p; F. Steele, 3b; Slinn, rf; Crossman, 1b; L. Steele, lf.

Peterborough—Cameron, ss; L. Lebarr, 1b; Moore, 2b; Whitlow, m; Collins, c; Whitehouse, p; Bradshaw, 3b; McIntyre, lf; J. Lebarr, rf.

First Innings.

Niagara Falls. — Clarke doubled through third. Clunie bunted and was safe when Whitehouse threw to third too late to get Clarke. Clunie stole second. Dumas fanned. Arscott bunted to L. Lebarr, who made a sensational one-handed catch and doubled Clark off third. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Peterborough— Cameron fanned. L. Lebarr grounded to Crossman. Moore bounced a hit over Clark's head. Whitlow walked. Moore died stealing third, No runs, one hit, no errors.

Second Innings.

Niagara Falls —Smith singled to right. F. Steele forced Smith at second, Cameron to Moore. Slinn walked. Crossman's roller hit Steele on the way to third and he was out. Hudson fanned. No runs, two hits, no errors.

Peterborough—Collins was out on strikes, the third one hitting him. Whitehouse singled past third and went to second on Arscott's low throw to first. Bradshaw popped to Clark. McIntyre fanned. No runs, one hit, one error.

Third Innings.

Niagara Falls—Clark singled past third. Clunie sacrificed and was safe when Lebarr dropped the throw, Clark going to third. Clunie stole second. Dumas flied to Whitlow, Clark scoring after the catch. Arscott fanned. Smith grounded to Lebarr, One run, one hit, one error.

Peterborough— J. Lebarr fanned Cameron lined to Smith, who threw him out at first. L. Lebarr was safe on Clark's fumble. Moore singled to right. Whitlow tripled to left, scoring Lebarr and Moore. Collins fanned. Two runs, two hits, one error.

Fourth Innings.

Niagara Falls— F. Steele reached second on Cameron's high throw to first. J .Lebarr lost Slinn's drive and the batter got three bases, Steele scoring. Crossman fanned. Slinn was caught between third and home on a squeeze play that failed. Hudson fanned. One run, no hits, two errors.

Peterborough — Whitehouse singled over second and went to second on Arscott's bad throw to catch him napping. Bradshaw fanned. McIntyre singled to short and stole second. J. Lebarr fanned. Cameron singled over second, scoring Whitehouse and McIntyre. L. Lebarr rolled to Clark. Two runs, three hits, one error.

Fifth Inning.

Niagara Falls — Clark hit left centre for the circuit, Whitlow misjudging the drive. Clunie walked. Dumas rolled to Whitehouse, Ascott hit to Cameron, who got Clunie at third. Smith fanned. One run, 1 hit, no errors.

Peterborough — Moore was safe on Clunie's fumble. Whitlow forced him at second. Collins fanned. Whitlow stole second. Whitehouse fanned. No runs, no hits, one error.

Sixth Inning.

Niagara—Steele singled to left. Slinn singled to right, sending Steele to third. Slinn stole second. Crossman fanned. Bradshaw threw out Hudson. Cameron tossed out Clark. No runs, two hits, no errors.

Peterborough—Bradshaw was called out on strikes. Smith threw out McIntyre. Lebarr fanned. No runs, no hits or errors.

Seventh Inning.

Niagara Falls—Clunie fanned. Dumas fanned. Arscott flied to Whitlow. No runs, hits or errors.

Peterborough—Cameron flied to centre. L. Lebarr got two bases when Hudson dropped his fly to left. Moore singled to left, Lebarr stopping at third. Whitlow singled to right, scoring Lebarr and Moore, and going to third when Slinn let the ball roll through. Collins hit over first base for a home run, scoring Whitlow. Whitehouse singled through the box. Smith retired from the box, Hudson replacing him. Bradshaw popped to Steele. McIntyre singled through short, and Whitehouse was caught off second. Four runs, four hits, two errors.

Eighth Inning.

Niagara Falls—Smith tripled to right. Steele singled over second, scoring Smith. Crossman hit to centre for a home run. Moore replaced Whitehouse whose arm was lame, the latter going to second. Crossman fanned. Hudson was hit. Clark fouled to Bradshaw. Clunie rolled to Lebarr. Three runs, three hits, no errors.

Peterborough—Halliday batting for J. Lebarr walked. Cameron forced him at second. L. Lebarr fanned. Cameron stole second. Moore walked. Whitlow singled to centre, scoring Cameron. Collins singled past first, scoring Moore and Whitlow. Three runs, two hits, no errors.

Ninth Inning.

Niagara—Dumas singled back of second. Arscott forced him at second, Cameron to Whitehouse. Arscott stole second. Smith flied to Halliday in right. Steele fanned. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Final Score.

RUHR RAILROADS' TRAFFIC IMPROVES

COLOGNE, Oct. 3.—(Associated Press).—Constant improvement, in efficiency and economic results, in the operation of the German railway system in the occupied areas is pointed out in statistics tabulated by French officials. Every month, according to these statistics, shows an unanticipated increase in the number of passengers carried and merchandise transported, as well as additional trackage brought under the control of the occupation authorities.

In order, however, to obtain an accurate perspective of what this railway system, one of the most complicated in the world, was like before the occupation as compared with its present status—undoubtedly greatly improved within the past few months—it is necessary to compare it as it is to-day not only with what it was a few months ago but also with what it was before it was taken over by French and Belgian administrators.

Trackage: In March of this year the occupation authorities were using 865 miles of track, and in July —the latest month on which figures are available—they were using 2,130 miles. The whole system in the Rhineland and Ruhr occupied areas, as operated by the Germans before the occupation, consisted of 7,150 miles of track. Since very few miles are still being operated under German management, therefore, some 5,000 miles of track are still rusting.

Personnel: In March 11,080 French and Belgian train operators, six German trainmen and 2,360 German auxiliary workers were employed on the occupied system; or a total of 13,446 persons. In July, 19,383 French and Belgian trainmen, 357 German trainmen and 9,224 German auxiliary workers—a total of 24,964 persons—were employed. Before the occupation the total personnel, including officials and workmen, amounted to 267,000. Of this number, about 200,000 have left the occupied area, or have been expelled, leaving about 65,000 former employes still in the occupied zone to do whatever emergency work they can.

Passenger Traffic: In March 600,000 passengers, including German civilians and military travellers, were carried on the trains, whereas in July the passenger traffic had increased to 2,410,000 persons, of whom about two-thirds were German civilians. This, of course, was despite the German edict, tacit or formal, against the use of French trains by German civilians.

During the months of October, November and December, 1922, the passenger traffic over the German-managed lines, judging from the number of tickets sold, amounted to 97,254,000 persons, making the monthly list of passengers about 32,418,000, as compared with 2,410,000 carried on the French trains during July, 1923.

TAX SCHOOLS ALIKE.

HONOLULU, Oct. 3.—(Associated Press)—Private schools in Hawaii conducted by nationals other than those of the Far East may be compelled to pay the tax of one dollar annually for each pupil enrolled, which was set by the alien language school laws adopted by the recent legislature, according to some legal authorities.

The situation has arisen because the Makiki Language School is incorporated and teaches English as well as Japanese. If this institution is compelled to pay the tax, the other private schools, conducted mainly by Americans and English, which teach any foreign language, must pay the tax, likewise, it is contended.

TO ENFORCE DRY LAW.

SAN LUIS POTSOI, Mexico, Oct. 3.—(Associated Press.)—First steps to comply with Article 119 of the Constitution of 1917, which provides that all states take measures against alcoholism, have been taken by the state of San Luis Potosi. Under a law just promulgated by the retiring governor, Rafael Nieto, the establishment of new breweries and distilleries is prohibited and existing plants are enjoined from increasing their capacity.

Ten per cent. of the liquor licenses granted by the municipality of San Luis Potosi will be cancelled yearly by lot, and the manufacture of liquor of high alcoholic content will be prohibited entirely after July 1, 1928. The law is being violently opposed.

HARVEST FESTIVAL IN ST. LUKE'S MUCH ENJOYED

At the service last night in St. Luke's Church the choir, under Mr. Wm. C. Thomson's direction, gave a fine rendition of Barnby's richly harmonised anthem, 'O Lord, How Manifold Are Thy Works" and Turner's Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis in F. The choir numbered about twenty-five fine voices, and with the proportion of male choristers in excess of former years, the necessary fullness of tone in the climax was more easily obtainable.

The soloist, Mrs. George Perks, with great beauty of tone and flexibility of voice, sang the recitative and aria from Haydn's "Creation," "With Verdure Clad," the inspiration of a "great master" nobly interpreted.

To sum up, there was nothing in the service to detract from the spirit of thanksgiving intended, which was evident in the hearty singing by the congregation of the appropriate hymns.

Mr. Thomson is preparing Maunder's 'Song of Thanksgiving" to be given as soon as possible in the church, and would like at least ten more voices, contraltos, tenors and basses preferred. Address him at 73 Robinson Street, East City.

PREPARING TO SEND MEN TO PARIS OLYMPIAD

MADRID, Oct. 3 — (Associated Press).—Spaniards interested in the athletic standing of their country are turning their eyes toward Paris and the Olympiad of 1924, and considering what should be done to secure the best possible representation.

A member of the Spanish Olympic games committee said recently he thought Spain's chances were good in nine of the 16 principal branches of sport; for the others he had little hope.

The sports in which Spain believes she has chances of success are lawn tennis, horse riding, polo, football, golf, hockey, yachting, fencing and rowing. Those in which she admits she is poor are boxing, wrestling, swimming, cycling, running and other field sports, winter sports and Rugby football.

Gabriel Maria de Lafitte, president of the Royal Athletic Federation of Spain, spoke recently with King Alfonso about the games. The King was much interested and said: "The government must be asked for support, but we must not rely solely on this aid. We must do what is being done in England and the United States and open a national subscription in which sporting clubs, lovers of athletics and the wealthy class should join freely. I shall be one of the first to subscribe and will also encourage others to do so. Spain should be represented properly in these games. The Spanish competitors must be trained thoroughly, and for this purpose funds are necessary. We must take practical means to find the money, and I think we shall be able to do so."

CABINET WILL BE COMPLETED AT EARLY DATE

New German Cabinet will Be Smaller than Usual Chancellor Declares.

MUST ACT AT ONCE

BERLIN, Oct. 4—(United Press).—Chancellor Gustav Stresemann at noon to-day was completing his conversation for the formation of a new Government. It was expected the new "small cabinet" will be completed immediately so there will be little delay in Stresemann's plan to rush through his ambitious economic programme. Stresemann was said to believe that the greatest haste is necessary in beginning the work for the economic restoration of the Reich, to show the Allies he intends to increase Germany's earning capacity for the payment of reparations.

"The Chancellor feels he must act at once to free Germany's economic wheel from the mud in which they are now all but hopelessly buried," one of Stresemann's supporters said. Stresemann tendered his own resignation with that of his Coalition Cabinet to President Ebert early to-day.

It was immediately accepted and the President charged Stresemann with the formation of a new Government.

CABINET APPROVES.

PARIS, Oct. 4.—(United Press).—The Cabinet this afternoon unanimously approved the attitude which Premier Poincare has assumed toward Germany — that no proposals from the German Government are on thee table for consideration. The resolution adopted by the Ministers upheld Poincare's policy of neutral observation of the internal events in the German Reich.

All Germany's previous offers to France, the Premier explained, must he considered null and void, since they come from the Cuno Government, which no longer is in existence.

Officials withheld comment on the news of the fall of the Stresemann Government in Berlin early this morning, but it was indicated a new German Cabinet will meet the attitude Premier Poincare has maintained up to this time.

Any attempt to glue the tottering Coalition together, after the temporary compromise on the cardinal points of divergence, would have resulted in dubious makeshifts in the opinion of Reichstag leaders, as expressed now after the failure of recent efforts.

Although Chancellor Stresemann kept at his desk until three o'clock this morning, he was up early and took a long constitutional in the spacious park adjoining the Chancellery. Up to noon to-day, he had not made the slightest revelation of the plans he has in mind for carrying on.

SOVIET RUSSIA NOT RECOGNIZED

Labor Delegates Get Down To Business at Conference.

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 4.—(Canadian Press). — Action began here to-day at the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor, the resolutions all being in the hands of committees, and the preliminary business of the gathering having been disposed of. The defeat of the proponents of the resolution for the recognition of Soviet Russia in an attempt to have the resolution transferred from the Resolution Committee to the International Affairs Committee was interpreted by the leaders as a straw in the wind, showing the strength of the conservative element in the convention.

EXPRESS AGENT DEAD.

BROCKBILLE, Oct. 3.—(Canadian Press). — Arthur J. Courtice, aged 50, agent of the Canadian National Express Company here for the last ten years, died very suddenly late last night at his home. He is survived by his wife and three sons. Burial will be made at Oshawa.

THE WEATHER.

The rain last night totalled .11 of inch. The total for September in Peterboro was 1.65. This summer and fall there has been a decided shortage in the rainfall in a narrow stretch of country from here to Lindsay, while both north and south as well as east and west the rainfall has generally been much heavier. Even last month Apsley (forty miles north) had a total of 3.99 inches, as compared with the local 1.65.—W.P.

FALKIRK, Scotland, Oct. 4.—(Canadian Press).—Five of the forty miners buried alive more than a week ago were brought to the surface in fairly good health to-day. The first thing asked for was cigarettes. The first day in the mine they had bread; since then nothing but water. They succeeded after the explosion in crawling to a ledge, where they got air and water. Others may be rescued.

SAY SOCIALISM IS UNTENABLE

And Would Strike at the Foundation of Britain's Greatness — Lord Birkenhead Speaks in Toronto.

TORONTO, Oct. 4.—(Canadian Press).—Rambling all the way from "The Five Clashing Colors" with which the youthful Disraeli was wont to adorn his person to success or failure of woman suffrage, the future of the British labor movement and his own and other relation to the Irihh question, Lord Birkenhead last night entertained an audience in Massey Hall with a potpourie of reminiscence, argument and prediction.

In one instance prediction hinged on argument that the British Labor movement was essentially serialistic and socialism was an untried doctrine. The British people, he said, was inherently conservative, hence the British electorate would not vote the Labor party into power.

The utmost in the way of probability was the return of a Labor government only when the Labor movement has been shorn of its distinctive economic creed.

As for Socialism, that doctrine was untentable he declared, and if implemented in practice would strike at the very foundation of that which had made Britain great.

One incident held more than a touch of the dramatic. The conference whih resulted in acceptance of the Isish treaty had just concluded. Said Birkenhead to Michael Collins, "I may well have signed my political death warrant." Collins' reply held the suggestion of reproofing, when he said, and I may have signed my actual death warrant."—"And we well knew that he had said Lord Birkenhead.

ZOO BURGLARS TRY TO STEAL DEADLY SNAKE

A New Type of Burglar Discovered by New York Zoo Officials.

EFFORT FAILED

NEW YORK Oct. 4.—Dr. William P. Hornaday, director of the Bronx Zoo said he would give a lot to know what possessed the man who tried to steal four deadly cobras from the east wing of the reptile house yesterday morning. Dr. Hornaday termed it a lucky failure.

The director said the four reptiles on which the visitor apparently had designs—two common hooded and two spectacle cobras—were healthy specimens of the Indian variety which annually took a death toll of probably 18,000 lives in its native land. He said he was particularly curious to know why the snake house prowler slighted the assortment of rattlers moccasions, pythons, boa constrictors and anacondas.

When Head Keeper John T. Tommey opened up yesterday he found in the rear of the cage of the cobras various tools, sawdust, splinters, burnt mach ends and the like. This led to the discovery that a hole had been bored in the tin-lined wooden door in the brick wall. Fortunately, cheesecloth had been stuffed into the hole, otherwise Dr. Hornaday was confident that a snake chase might even now be stirring the city.

Head Keeper Tommey also found a five-foot "snake stick' on the floor This stick was a long handled device along which a string operated a pincer attachment at the end, which snake handlers use as a sort of tongs to hold their charges at a safe distance.

Further investigation revealed that the intruder had attempted to cut through the plate-glass front of the cage, but had given up after his diamond glass-cutter had merely traced an arc in the lower corner of the glass. Tommey decided that he had then come around to the rear and started boring confident, he could snare the cobras with the "snake stick' and extract them through the hole.

Dr. Hornaday believed the intruder was both exper, and also familiar with the arrangement of the reptile house. He must have known, according to Dr. Hornaday that the snakes were worth only about $10 apiece, and that the Philadelphia Zoo was the only other market in this country.

POPULATION PANICKY FOLLOWING A QUAKE

PEKIN, Oct. 4.—(United Press). — A strong earthquake shock in Tokio yesterday threw the population into a panic, a despatch from Osaka said to-day. The people rushed into the streets as soon as the earth tremor began, fearing a repetition of the disastrous earthquakes of last month. The shock also was felt distinctly at Osaka.

GIRL INHERITS LARGE FORTUNE FROM RELATIVE

"Money Isn't Everything But it is Nice to Have Lot of It."

HOW TO SPEND IT

DETROIT, Oct. 4.—"The very first thing I'm going to do when I get my money," began Myrtle Torongue, the 19-year-old girl who has just received word that she has inherited $22,000, "is to fix the spring in our phonograph. It's been broken for months and I'm getting tired of winding it up."

"Then—let's see—I believe I'll buy a sport car. After that, I'll get just oodles of clothes and, oh, yes, mother and I are going to take a trip to California and—"

She stopped confusedly and frowned. Her sudden riches had become a tremendous burden. Then, her eyes sparkled once more.

"Why, I almost forgot! I'm going to give my sister, Josephine, enough money to finish her lessons in toe dancing. You know Josephine—she's just a year younger than I am—has always wanted to go on the stage and now is my chance to help her."

But Not Foolishly.

"But whatever I do, I won't spend my money foolishly," she added.

The telegram which informed Myrtle of her good fortune was from a Houston, Tex., attorney and read:

"You have inherited $22,000 from an uncle in Texas. Will get it about October 31. Full directions later."

The uncle, on whom Myrtle evidently made a $22,000 impression, is Eli Cousineau, an oil magnate. The only time she ever saw him, she says, was two years ago when he came through Detroit, on his way to Texas, to see some of his relatives. He stopped over but two hours, Myrtle says, but in that short time they managed to become fast friends.

Yes, Why Not?

"He was worth at least a million or two, so why shouldn't I have been nice to him?" says Myrtle covly.

So the entire Torongue household is quite hilarious, although sister Josephine knits her brow now and then, wondering why the gods of fortune did not single her out, too. The father, Alfred Torongue, sighs happily in the belief that his days of toil are numbered and Mama Torongue is contemplating the price of such household luxuries as a vacuum cleaner and an electric washing machine. Even the canary bird flits ecstatically from one perch to the other and the gold fish cut joyous capers in their bowl on the kitchen table.

Myrtle summarizes the situation with a delightful platitude.

"Money isn't everything, but it's awfully nice when you've got lots of it."

There are bees in some parts of the world whose honey is poisonous.

TEMPERATURE TAKES DROP LAST EVENING

A Drop of Forty Degrees Calgary and Winnipeg

TORONTO, Oct. 4.—(Canadian Press). — A drop of forty degrees in temperature from a maximum of 68 yesterday to a minimum of 28 last night was recorded in both Calgary and Winnipeg, according to the official readings of the thermometer reported to the Observatory here to-day. At Prince Albert, where as high as 74 was reached during the day, the mercury fell to 36. From Sault Ste. Marie to the Atlantic seaboard the lowest temperature during the night, reported to the Observatory, was 36 at the seaboard. Frost is predicted in many localities in the lower lake and Georgian Bay regions in Ontario, and in Ottawa Valley and Upper St. Lawrence to-night, with cool weather in Manitoba and little change in temperature predicted for Alberta and Saskatchewan.

THE STUDENTS AT A DINNER

Lord Renfrew had Chance To Inspect Manitoba Art Men in Full Regalia

WINNIPEG, Oct. 4. — (Canadian Press).—Great amusement was provided Lord Renfrew last night when the Art students of Manitoba University, in "evening dress and full war paint," marched to the home of Sir Augustus Nanton, where he was the honor guest at dinner and a dance in connection with the initiation of freshmen. The students extended greetings in the form of vociferous "Ijis," "Rip Rams" and songs in which merry allusions were made to the Royal guest.

Entering into the spirit of the students, Lord Renfrew left the brilliant ball-room for the verandah, and after shaking hands and chatting with several, asked the leaders to give all the Varsity students his good wishes.

In the course of the evening a number of dissatisfied British harvesters endeavored to make a representation to Lord Renfrew regarding getting transportation back to Great Britain. Through his secretary he agreed to meet representatives of the men this morning.

OLD MEDICINES.

Every six months it is a good plan to go through the medicine cabinet and throw away the most ancient remedies. Often medicines lose their efficacy by standing a long time, and others undergo chemical changes which make them unfit for use.

STATE TO TEST MOTHER'S LOVE IN HAREM CASE

Mrs. Bamford Called To Hear Daughters' Own Stories of Benjamin's Attacks.

HOPE TO BREAK HER

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., Oct. 4. — Mother love will be put to a test today when Mrs. Elisa Bamford, of the House of David, is confronted in the grand jury chambers by Ruth Bamford Reed and Gladys Bamford Rubel, her daughters.

Investigators hope that the Bamford sisters' rehearsal of their experiences in the alleged harem of Benjamin Purnell will shatter the mother's faith in the self styled seventh messenger" and dispel permanently the influence which he holds over her. Promptd by Cora Mooney and Mary Purnell, Mrs. Bamford publicly renounced her daughters Sunday. To-day there will be no Israelites with her at the meeting.

Whether Mrs. Bamford's love for her daughters is greater than her attachment for her spiritual overlord is highly speculative. The subpoena for Mrs. Bamford was drawn this morning. Last night Homer H. Quay, assistant attorney general, announced she would not be called, but his plans were changed this morning after a conference with Judge Harry J. Dingeman.

Reconciliation is Doubted.

The majority of those who have closely followed the recent fortunes of the nearby Gethsamane shake their heads at the prospect of a reconciliation between mother and daughters, for the memory of the former's verbal attacks when they met for the first time in two years in Sunday's raid is too recent history.

At that time Mrs. Bamford, her eyes aglow with the fanaticism, repulsed her daughters' attempts to embrace her, branded them as "scorpions who had brought shame on the colony by lying about Benjamin," and declared that she never wanted to see them again.

Ruth Bamford Reed and Robert her husband, went on the stand at the beginning of the day's activities. Mrs. Deed told again of the rites which she said were inflicted on her by the "Seventh Messenger" from the time that she was a little girl in short dresses, to October, 1922, when she says, she left the House of David in a delicate condition.

Her sister testified last night that Benjamin forced his attentions on her within an hour after she had been married to her present husband in the parlor of Shiloh.

Benjamin in South Bend?

That Benjamin is hiding in or near South Bend, just across the Indian border, is the theory of state investigators after William Berk, a Berrien County deputy sought unsuccessfully last night to subpena at the colony William Boyette, his son, William Boyette, Jr. and George Sassman who maintain a station in the Israelite underground railway system in the Indiana city.

THE NATIONAL BANK SELL MARKS AS JUNK

Near Four Hundred Tons Of Paper Money is Disposed Of.

LONDON, Oct. 4. —(Canadian Press.) —The National Bank of Belgium has just sold 362 tons of German marks as waste paper according to a Brussels dispatch to "The Daily Express." Acquiring the money in a business transaction with Germany, the bank found that the stacks of marks had outgrown all safes and would need a new building to house them.

The offer of a junk dealer, who accepted the marks as usual waste paper rates, was 100 p.c. more than the cash value at present exchange.

DIRECTORS IN POLICE COURT

Cases Adjourned Until October 12th — Bail is Granted.

TORONTO, Oct. 4.— (Canadian Press.)—Adjournment till October 12th was made to-day in the cases against ten directors and officials of the suspended Home Bank. All appeared in court with their counsel and bondsmen except President H. J. Daly, who, it was stated, was detained through illness. A formal bench warrant was issued in his case, but it is understood that his bail will be renewed as it was for the others.

Following were the directors who appeared in court this morning: R. P. Gough, F. J. Russell, J. F. M. Stewart, S. Casey Wood, K.C., all of Toronto; C. A. Barnard, K.C., and Lieut.-Col. Clarence Smith, of Montreal. Also A. E. Calvert, acting general manager, Olean S. Smith, chief accountant, and Sidney H. Jones, auditor, all of Toronto.

When the name of Mr. Daly was called, T. P. Phelan, K.C., appeared to represent him and produced a certificate from Mr. Daly's physician to the effect that the president was ill at his Lake Simcoe home and was unable to appear.

"That certificate will not satisfy me," said Assistant Crown Attorney Murphy, who prosecuted. "And I ask for a bench warrant for Mr. Daly." "That's just adding indignity to these proceedings," said Mr. Phelan, "It's not at all necessary in this case."

"I say it is absolutely necessary," retorted Mr. Murphy, "and I want the bench warrant issued."

"Magistrate Jones consented to issue the warrant, but stipulated that it be not executed until Oct. 12th, when, if Mr. Daly is not in fit condition to appear in court, bail will be renewed.

Mr. Daly was bound over in the sum of $100,000, Mr. Gough in $100,000, Charles Barnard $100,000, F. J. Stewart $100,000, Lieut.-Col. Smith $50,000, S. Casey Wood $50,000, F. J. B. Russell $50,000, A. E. Calvert $25,000 ,Sydney Jones $50,000 and O. G. Smith $25,000.

WELSH MALE CHOIR HAVE FINE VOICES

Will be at Murray Street Baptist Church Next Week.

The Rhondda Welsh Male Glee Singers who come to Murray street Baptist Church on the evening of October 10th, are making a tour through Canada touching at some of the important centres, Beginning in Halifax a few weeks ago, they have come through the Maritime provinces and Quebec and are now entering Ontario.

They are receiving very favorable comment from the press. The Amherst "Daily News' of Amherst, N.S. of Sept. 15th ,states that the Rhondda chorus has been lauded by the press of the country as being something exceptional.—No one was disappointed." The Montreal Daily "Star' of Oct. 2nd under the caption "Welsh Male Choir Possess Fine Voices and Use Them Well", and among other things state:—"The Rhondda Welsh Male Chorus who sang at Windsor Hall, last night, showed their quality singing with excellent understanding and balance The use of the head tones by the first tenors produced a delightful effect.—The soloists were all possessors of fine voices and used them well. Mr. Richard Owen may perhaps be specially mentioned for clearness of enunciation and mention must be made of Mr. Walter Evans, the owner of a beautiful baritone. Choruses were magnificently sung and received as deserved."

LETTERS FROM A MISSIONARY PARENTS HERE

Miss Luella Rorke Came Through The Japanese Earthquake Safely and Writes Home.

A TRYING TIME

Rev. S. J. Rorke of this city, has received the following interesting letters from his daughter, Miss Luella M. Rorke, who is a missionary in Japan, and fortunately a survivor of the recent disastrous earthquake. The following letters are addresses to various members of the family, and will be of interest to Miss Rorke's many friends.

Karuizawa, Sept. 3, 1923.

Dear Father: Yesterday I wrote a very hurried letter to mother, and posted it this morning. Now I have a chance to send a letter by a lady who is going to Kobe to-morrow, so I can not tell which will reach you first. However they are both intended to set your minds at rest. I am a very lucky individual to have all my possessions out of Tokyo.

I shall go on with the story from where I left off in mother's letter, though there is not much to tell. We spent another very bad night last night. There were not so many quakes but they were more severe than the night bfore. Twice we were all out of bed and down to the door with our clothes in our arms; in fact we did not undress entirely. The latter part of the night was quieter and we slept some. It was not entirely the fear of the quakes that kept us awake but the horror of the stories that we had heard and anxiety for Miss Robertson and her Japanese friends.

This morning's reports seemed to be worse and worse, but this afternoon a community meeting was called in the hall and a man who has been all over the ground, and only returned this morning at 9 o'clock, gave us a report. It was very interesting to us in some ways. He says that the higher parts of Azabu are not in a bad condition. There was no fire there and the damage in Tokyo was mostly due to fire. Our school is in about the highest place. Of course there is no definite news about it or Miss Robertson, as far as the foreign legations have been able to find, no foreigner has been killed. Besides Azabu there are two or three other parts of the city not much hurt but by far the larger part of the city is entirely wiped out and perhaps half a million people as well. The rest of the people are living in the streets. The fires are practically out now. About Yokohama little is known for certain. We thought the "bluff," the foreign section, is fairly safe. Another report said that only two buildings now remain standing in the city. We do not know. A tidal wave did much damage in Yokohama, and entirely wiped out Kamahura, Hayam and other coast towns. Fortunately the Emperor had been moved lately from Hayama elsewhere. We are very anxious and almost hopeless about Onuki San. We have just had another quite heavy shake. Onuki San is the young woman who is my personal helper this year—teacher, interpreter, etc. You remember I told you she was the choice of all our graduates to my mind; and to most of the others, too. She was in her home at Kamakura as far as we know. Unless they anticipated the wave there is no hope for her at all. Besides her our minds run over scores of others that we know and love in Yokohama and Kamakura. Many of our girls lived there. There is also the priest and his family of whom we haae become very fond. How many of our dear girls in Tokyo are gone, it is impossible to jecture. It is heart breaking to let one's mind dwell on it at all. However Miss Robertson's probable safety has lifted a great load off our minds and I think we will sleep some better to-night.

We are sending a cable from Kobe to the Mission Rooms. I hope you will soon hear of it. I think it reads "Workers safe, Robertson only in

FAILURES AFTER FIFTY GIVE PROOF THAT SUCCESS COMEBACK IS POSSIBLE

TORONTO, October 4. — When capricious Lady Luck flips the dominoes of fortune for an ill toss during the heyday of life, but brief stir is occasioned amid the affairs of men upon Youth's retrieval of victory by a solar plexus success come back.

No one says: "Poor fellow!"

Hope springs eternal in the young heart, the world contends. Therefore occasional buffetings during the journey's start are for the best. Setbacks but strengthen character. And there is still a chance, provided one is under 50.

Past this deadline, popular opinion has decreed that the step detoured from Fortune's highway can never again turn back nor face once once more toward the dreamland goal of heart's desire.

Exceptions to the edict but justify the rule, it is pointed out. And so few and far are these between that when one happens across the skyline a million pens bespeak the pluck of age and dangle it before the eyes of men as a shining example of fortitude in its battle against failure past fifty.—

* * *

Gold was not the ambition of Mrs. Mary McFarlane, 63, who prepared two trousseaus at two ages to marry the same man.

She has just left her home in Kansas City to wed Robert McFarlane, of Toronto, Can., a second time, after a separation by divorce from each other of over 25 years.

She was his bride the first time when 18. Four children were born of the marriage which made departure most difficult.

"It was a struggle with my pride," she says. "No one believed that affection could be rekindled from the dead sparks of my age. But love won out. And love is all. I am successfully happy."

* * *

Nor was age any handicap to Dr. Lafayette Ringle of Chicago, who bordering close on to 60, saw the fortune he had so laboriously accumulated by a generation of hard work slip out to sea when the jade of destiny whacked his wholesale surgical supply business and tossed it down like a house of cards.

LEFT TO RIGHT: FRANCIS M. "BORAX" SMITH, MRS. MARY McFARLANE AND DR. LAFAYETTE RINGLE.

The blow found Dr. Ringle at a disadvantage and sorely put for a rally because his health was poor and likewise all his reserve capital in a large Michigan fruit adventure had been wiped out in the same fell swoop.

But he did not sit back and repine. Action was his rally. And with a double hitch at his galluses the doctor sallied forth and brought back the argosy which had seemingly disappeared in the night.

To-day at 73, he is again master of the situation and merely smiles at the trick fate played on him. His philosophy summed up is this.

"Opportunity does not knock only once. It is constantly knocking. And no door should be barred to it merely because there is a silly superstition about the dead level age past which none may tread fo ambition."

* * *

As for "Borax Smith, creator of the huge borax industry in the United States and one of the most typical and picturesque characters of the west, his story is familiar to almost everyone.

When 65, Smith saw a fortune estimated at $20,000,000—the result of 40 years of hard work—turn to dross in his hands. The reverse left him destitute, and for a time it was said he had "disappeared."

During 1921, however, he staged as spectacular a comeback as his entrance into high finance had been in 1870, and to-day he is regarded king of the borax industry once more, and owns pretentious homes on either end of the continent purely because he had grit and dared to give the lie to the popular belief that for failures after 50 there is no hope.

MUTUAL TRADE WAS DISCUSSED

Membership at Imperial Conference is Complete

LONDON, Oct. 4. — (Canadian Press). — The Imperial Economic Conference sat to-day for a couple of hours. It was officially announced afterwards that the conference, with a view to the development of mutual trade, had given preliminary consideration to mutual co-operation in respect to commercial services comprising matters relating to the provision of facilities for the extended use by the Dominions, India and colonies of British commercial, diplomatic and consular services and vice versa. With the arrival of Premier S. M. Bruce of Australia to-night, the membership in the conference will be completed, and the delegates will be able to go ahead with a long programme of business.

SAYS ALL PETROLEUM COMES FROM FISH

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 4. — (United Press).—There is no danger of the world's supply of oil becoming exhausted, according to Dr. John M. MacFarlane, professor emeritus of botany at the University of Pennsylvania.

Fish constitutes the sole source of petroleum, claims Dr. MacFarlane, who has just completed fifty years of research work to ferret out the source of the world's oil supply.

The scientist traces the origin of petroleum deposits to earthquakes and similar volcanic disturbances which, in early times, killed immense quantities of fish, changed the surface of the earth, and the boundaries of the oceans and fresh water bodies.

"Extensive zones of fish remain that form fish beds and like strata are observed across areas of the northern hemisphere," Dr. MacFarlane said. "These remains are coeval with rich bituminous oil products. Such rocks or strata might be termed 'producer' rocks.

"By subsequent earth movements and resulting oil migrations this oil is often found in porous sandstone and like rocks. It is certain that vegetable remains did not enter into the production of crude petroleum or kerogen, which is wholly of animal origin."

Dr. MacFarlane believes his discovery will enable men to locate with almost scientific accuracy new oil deposits, which will result in the cheaper production of oil and hasten development of its commercial value motive power and heating purposes.

Every new disturbance, like the recent Japanese earthquake, result in the development for new deposits of oil, he said.

STRESEMANN CABINET NOW DEFEATED BY SOCIALIST GROUP

PRESS REPORTS OF CONFERENCE ARRANGED FOR Possible Information Will Be Given Newspaper Correspondents By Minister.

SECRECY A FACTOR.

LONDON, Oct 3.—(Special Cable to the Canadian Press by George Hambleton, Staff Correspondent).—Methods of publicity occupied a large part of the discussion at today's sitting of the Imperial Conference.

It was pointed out that there were two matters to be considered in this connection; first, that the admission of press representatives to the conference when the British relations with foreign countries were under consideration might be decidedly embarrassing, and second, the natural desire on the part of the dominion parliaments and peoples for more complete information of the conference proceedings, than has been given hitherto.

The point was raised that the conference of premiers was in reality a continuation of the imperial cabnet of war days and therefore its deliberations should be conducted with cabinet secrecy. To this view it is understood Premier Mackenzie King objected and claimed that the present conference was entirely consultative, without a cabinet's executive authority.

Press "Minister."

The decision finally reached was that in addtion to the brief communiques usually issued, a member of the British government will attend the conference sessions without participating in any way of the discussions and afterwards will give the press representatives any further information possible. J. C. C. Davidson, chanceller of the Duchy of Lancaster, will be the minister attending in this capacity.

Personal Statements.

Premier Mackenzie King, it is further understood, raised the point that in addition to this arrangement the representatives of the Dominions at the conference should feel themselvs free to give their parliaments or electors any further explanation that they might deem necessary as to their own atttiude on matters discussed. This view was concurred in by the conference.

New Lamp Burns 94% Air

Beats Electric or Gas

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U.S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor, F. S. Johnson, 246 Craig Street, W., Montreal, is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.

REGINA'S GRAIN MOVEMENT.

REGINA, Oct. 3.—Up to date 5,600 cars of grain have been shipped off Regina Division of the Canadian National Railways. It is estimated that 25,000 cars will be required for the crop movement from this district to the end of December. There is no car shortage.

Ruhr Miners Resume Work

ESSEN, Oct. 4.—(Canadian Press).—The miners generally throughout the Ruhr resumed work yesterday, according to a reliable German mining authority. It is said they returned to their jobs with the professed intention of bringing the output up to last year's standard as soon as possible.

The negotiations of the French occupational authorities with the railroad men are said to be at a deadlock with no compromise in sight.

THROUGH CANAL TO VANCOUVER

Commercial Interests Report Successful Freighting From Montreal.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Oct. 3.—"Entirely successful," is the verdict of the commercial interests of eastern and western Canada on the first voyage steamer Margaret Coughlin which arrived here recently from Montreal, inaugurating a direct service between the two Canadian ports, via the Panama Canal.

The vessel brought 5,000 tons of eastern Canadian freight to Vancouver, made up of 500 separate bills of lading. Much of the freight was for delivery to Vancouver firms, but a considerable quantity was consigned to points in Alberta, including Edmonton and Calgary.

The Margaret Coughlin will sail in a few days with lumber, canned salmon and canned vegetables for Montreal, and for the return voyage to this port, it is said 7,000 tons of cargo from eastern Canada has been booked.

Terrific Storm Delays Departure of Liners.

CHERBOURG, Oct. 3.—A terrific storm to-day caused the trans-Atlantic liners Majestic, Reliance and Empress of Britain to delay their departure. The wind blew off the big door of the dock station during the arrival of the Majestic's passengers, one of whom was injured.

A number of small vessels are reported to have sunk or gone aground during the storm.

PUREBRED LIVESTOCK.

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 4.—(United Press).—Purebred livestock made important numerical gains in Canada in the decade between 1911 and 1921, according to agricultural census figures issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Of the total of 3,610,500 horses in Canada in 1921, the report says 47,782, or 13.2 per cent., were purebred. This was an increase of 44 per cent. for the decade. Purebred cattle numbered 296,656, an increase in ten years of 139 per cent. Of 3,198,319 sheep in Canada, 93,643 were classed as purebred. There were 81,143 purebred swine in 1921, compared with 56,457 in 1911, an increase of 43.7 per cent.

GRAIN LOADING HEAVY.

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., October 4—Grain leaving this port by lake totalled 1,812,000 bushels yesterday, of which 620,000 bushels were taken down on two big United States freighters, the Frontenac and the F. G. Hartwell. All the grain with the exception of 204,000 bushels of barley, was wheat. No vessels are now awaiting orders here, but slow service is being given at the elevators, with twenty boats reported as being under the elevator spouts today.

FEAR OF LABOR EXPLOITATION IN THE GOVERNMENT'S PROGRAM OF ECONOMIC REFORM CAUSED SPLIT

Labor Issue Unnecessarily Projected Into Present Situation, Radical Leaders Declare—Stresemann Invited to Form New Cabinet.

LABOR GUARDING 8-HOUR DAY.

BERLIN, Oct. 4.—(Canadian Press).—The Stresemann Cabinet has resigned. The Socialist section of the Reichstag rejected by 61 to 54 the compromise solution proposed by the Government.

President Ebert has charged Dr. Stresemann to form a new Cabinet.

Reichstag circles believe that a reconstructed Stresemann Cabinet without Socialists and wholly dependent upon the support of the bourgeoise parties would be loosely anchored in Parliament, and therefore incapable of putting urgent reform measures into effect.

Talk of a civilian dictator supported by martial law, and consequential dissolutions of the Reichstag, constituted a striking feature of the gossip in th Reichstag corridors tonight.

Socialists' Objections.

While the Socialists demand that the general Government show defiance of Dr. von Kahr, the military dictator of Bavaria, by insisting upon its priority authority, they today centred their opposition on the Chancellor's proposed authorization law, which they think is primarily aimed at the 8-hour day, in connection with the Chancellor's general demand for increased production. The radical leaders declare they cannot expose their following to any exploitation of labor, as provided for in the Government's program of economic reforms, and that this issue has been needlessly projcted into the present situation, as there already exists a wage tariff agreement between workers and employers which makes provision for overtime work.

Compulsory Overtime.

The Socialists do not oppose Dr. Stresemann's plan for getting the nation back on its feet, so far as they concern financial reforms and taxation, but insist that these plans must not obtrude themselves upon the social laws governing the workers. The Minister of Labor, Dr. Heinrich Brauns, champions the extension of the working hours to such limit as is compatible with individual health in the cities and the need of an eight-hour day in coal mining districts. Wherever the character of the work suggests a menace to health he favors the retention of the eight-hour day, but is of the opinion that overtime should be compulsory in industrial branches, as well as in the civil service departments.

Social Conditions Worse.

That the present crisis will not easily be overcome and is likely to develop a chronic condition of Parliamentary impotence is broadly hinted in competent political circles and party organs, especially as the United Socialists are fast succumbing to a pronounced Left orientation, because of social conditions which are steadily becoming worse, and also beeause of more militant communism. For much of this their own party members of the Cabinet are being blamed by the party's popular following, and this circumstance accounts for the sudden indifference among the party's leaders concerning the fate of Dr. Radolf Hilferding, Minister of Finance, who occupied one of the strategic ministries and the one on which the party has its eyes when the Stresemann coalition was formed. Blame also is considered to attach to the other Socialists holding important Cabinet posts, and who, therefore, are finding escape from criticism difficult.

GERMAN OFFICIALS ON SERIOUS CHARGE

Arrested By French For Complicity in Rioting.

DUESSELDORF, Oct. 3—Three city officials of Duesseldorf and two officers of the Security Police who are under arrest in connection with the riot of last Sunday, were formally charged with attempted murder by the French authorities today.

The penalty for this offense under the French military law is death. The five defendants are Chief of Police Herbert Hans, Police Inspector Arthur Wollenberg, Major Adolf Engel who is commander of the Security Police, and Lieutenant Vogt.

Peace League Will Appeal For Funds.

OTTAWA, October 4. Canadian Press. — At a central executive meeting of the League of Nations Society in Canada, held here yesterday, and presided over by Sir Robt. Borden, it was decided to make a strong appeal for support to the leading financial and business interests and a committee for the purpose was appointed under the chairmanship of Sir George Perley.

The society is basing its appeal to financial and business interests on the ground of the desirability of providing up-to-date league of nations literature for its members and for a considerable group of other organizations in the country. These include the Canadian Clubs throughout Canada, the Federated Woment's Society of Canada, the Daughters of the Empire. The literature is also sent to various universities and colleges and is available on application to lecturers, and others interested in the league's activities.

At the meeting this morning preliminary steps were taken with regard to the approaching visit of Dr. Fridjof Nansen, who will address meetings in Winnipeg, Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal between November 24th and Dec. 1.

PRINCE BREAKS JOURNEY WITH ROUND OF GOLF

Also Dines and Dances With Social Set at Winnipeg Reception.

GREETED BY CROWD.

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 3.— The Prince of Wales, who is travelling incognito as Lord Renfrew, lost no time after he arrived at the viceregal suite of the Royal Alexandra Hotel, which he will occupy for one day, in changing into his golf togs. Within half an hour after his arrival he was on his way with members of his party to the St. Charles Country Club, where he enjoyed an afternoon at the royal and ancient game of St. Andrew's.

The royal visitor and members of his staff were the guests this evening of Sir Augustus and Lady Nanton at a dinner, at which were present the Earl and Countess of Strafford, and Lady Elizabeth and Lady Mary Byng. The dinner was followed by a dance which was attended by the leading members of Winnipeg's social set.

Lord Renfrew leaves to-morrow afternoon for the east at 4:50 o'clock.

An hour before the time scheduled for the arrival of the royal train of Lord Renfrew, crowds began to assemble in front of the station and along Higgins avenue, and by the time the smiling guest put in his appearance thousands joined in the cheer which greeted him and followed his progress from the station entrance to the hotel door. After exchanging greetings with officials of the Canadian Pacific Railway, Sir Hugh MacDonald and Mayor S. J. Farmer, Lord Renfrew walked to the hotel, accompanied by Hon. Robert Rogers, with whom he chatted easily as they went along.

Awaiting the visitor at the hotel was a case of peaches which had been sent from Grimsby, Ont., by the Dominion Department of Agriculture. It is expected that Lord Renfrew will visit the golf links.

CANADA'S DOORS OPEN WIDER TO IMMIGRANTS IS MINISTER'S POLICY

Hon. Mr. Robb in Montreal Address Points Out That Exports Are Double Those of 1914.

LABOR IS NEEDED.

MONTREAL, Oct. 3. — "In my judgment conditions in Canada are ripe for a greatly increased immigration. But we must see to it that this increased immigration is composed of people who will fit into our national life and maintain standards of living and civilization such as we have in Canada to-day. What is the use of our vast lands and natural resources unles we have them developed? This is a large country, a land of great opportunities. It seems to me that it would help all Canada, Montreal, the Atlantic ports, and the Pacific ports, and our railways, if we determined, that now conditions in Canada are fairly good, and improving in the old world, we determined to open up the doors for a wider influx of immigration. In my judgment that is what is required to bring greater prosperity to Canada."

"That is the policy I have in mind as Minister of Immigration, and I would like to think that I have the support of all Canada in this. If we are to make Canada a great country, as we hope to do, there must be neither east nor west, neither English-speaking or French-speaking Canadians. What we need is just Canadians, working for the advancement of Canada, and the people we bring in must be of the type that will make just such Canadians, who will become citizens and work for the advancement of our country as well as themselves."

This was the central part of the address on immigration given this afternoon to the Chambre de Commerce, by Hon. James Robb, Minister of Immigration.

Rural Unrest Among Saxon

LONDON, Oct. 3. — While the revolt at Kuestrin has been quelled and no other outbreaks are reported, says a Reuter despatch from Berlin, the state of affairs in the country districts in Germany is far from reassuring, especially in Saxony, where bands numbering from 100 to 200 are daily invading the fields for the purpose of stealing vegetables.

In numerous cases where the police intervened, there has been fighting, says the despatch, and in one such incident thirty policemen were opposed by a thousand men, of which number six hundred were arrested.

MORE ARRESTS IN BANK CASE

R. P. Gough Included in the List—Bail Granted

TORONTO, Oct. 3.—(Canadian Press)—H. J. Daly president, R. P. Gough vice president, F. J. B. Russill and Casey Wood directors and O. G. Smith, chief accountant of suspended Home Bank of Canada have this afternoon all been placed under arrest on charges preferred by federal and provincial authorities in connection with collapse of bank on August 17th. Daly was placed under detention at his summer home on Lake Simcoe.

Gough who is also director of Canadian National Railways surrendered in Toronto this afternoon and was taken to police station. Bail in each of these cases is $100,000. Bail in instances of Russill, Wood and Smith is $50,000 and bonds have been secured. It is understood that other arrests are contemplated.

CREDITS BETTER CATTLE TO EFFORTS CHILDREN

SYRACUSE, N.Y., Oct. 4.—(Associated Press)—Boys and girls enlisted in a nation-wide campaign have been a valuable aid in improving the breed of dairy cattle, Frank O. Lowden, president of the Holstein Friesian Association and former governor of Illinois, told the World's Dairy Congress today.

Calf clubs are being organized by the children, who become owners of pure-bred calves. As a result, said Mr. Lowden, the breed of cattle in these vicinities already has been improved.

The speaker urged upon the farmers greater attention to breeding. He praised European farmers, to whom he said Americans were much indebted for knowledge of how cattle stock might best be improved.

"The pure-breed associations are fighting the scrub bull, a campaign which will add to the country's health and wealth and in which the cooperation of business interest will be valuable," the speaker said in conclusion.

NEW LODGE ROOMS AT CAMPBELLFORD

Social Function Warmed the Home of the Masonic Fraternity.

CAMPBELLFORD, October 4.—The new home of the Masonic Lodge, into which the brethren recently moved, was formally opened on Tuesday evening by a social function, in which over 130 local members and visitors took part. Guests were present from Hastings, Warkworth, Marmora, and other places in the district.

W. L. Diamond was initiated as a member of the order. After the regular business of the evening had been disposed of a social session was held, Bro. F. F. Long, W.M., presiding. A number of speakers called up interesting reminiscences of the society which was first organised about 63 years ago. An entertaining address was given by Bro. Dr. O. C. Watson. Bro. F. C. Bonnycastle paid the lodge his first official visit as District Deputy Grand Master.

Kitchen Shower.

A kitchen shower was held on Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Claud Duncalfe, recently returned from their honeymoon. There were about 35 guests, all of whom thoroughly enjoyed the evening, which was spent with music, games, and guessing contests. A solo and several instrumental selections were given by Mr. Lucy and Mrs. R. T. Cowell and Mrs. C. W. Turner also furnished musical numbers. The first contest was to guess the different parts of a watch represented on slips given to the guests. In the next contest a tag was pinned to each gentleman present and to the bride, and the test was to guess who were represented.

R. T. Cowell rendered several instrumental numbers and Mrs. Cowell sang a solo entitled, "Grandmother's Advice."

Mr. and Mrs. Duncalfe were then presented with a number of gifts, the receipt of which they gracefully acknowledged. The young couple announced that they would be home to all their friends in their new residence.

Another contest, finding the names of different kinds of trees, was won by Miss Stella Keir and Roy Loucks.

After a dainty lunch had been served, the evening closed with all joining hands and singing "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows" and "Auld Lang Syne."

A train of thought arrives no place if it is running local.

If tiny lines appear hateful signs of early ageing . . .

Study how the society woman keeps her skin so young

FINE lines around your eyes, your nose, the corners of your mouth. Do not think of letting them stay—to grow deeper and turn into wrinkles!

These premature lines are only the troubles of a skin allowed to be too dry. You must learn how to give your skin the suppleness it needs. Learn from the women who have discovered how to keep their skin young, how your skin can be kept so beautifully soft it cannot form lines.

The famous method women use who tax their skin the most

The society woman keeps her skin smooth and fresh season in and out. That is because she has learned the two fundamental needs of her skin. And she knows that she must meet them in order to go on exposing her skin to fatigue and weather and still keep it in the fresh supple condition that social usage demands.

These two needs are the basis of the famous Pond's method of two entirely different creams. The daily cleansing that softens and relaxes her skin, frees it from all dust, dryness and cosmetics. Then the protection that prevents all drying out and coarsening and besides has the wonderful property of instant freshening. With this method she keeps her skin smooth and unlined years longer than most women who give their skin far less wear.

Like the society women, you need not allow your skin to betray fatigue, or age, or the harsh effects of weather

Every night cleanse your face thoroughly with Pond's Cold Cream. Apply this cream softly with a piece of moistened cotton. Wipe it off with a soft cloth. Do this twice—already your skin feels less tight and drawn. Now apply more cream and let it stay on. Pat it in especially around your eyes, nose and mouth where wrinkles form first. Feel how your face softens and relaxes as the fine light oil of this cream restores its natural suppleness.

Then in the morning apply Pond's Vanishing Cream very evenly—just enough for your skin to absorb. This wonderful softening cream will prevent your skin from drying out again. The wind cannot whip out its new suppleness. You will love its smoothness. And you need not worry about early wrinkles. They will not form in your soft supple skin.

Keep your skin soft and young with this perfect daily care that women who must have beautiful complexions give their skin. Buy both Pond's Creams in jars or tubes today in any drug or departmental store. The Pond's Extract Company, 146 Brock Avenue, Toronto, Canada.

Every skin needs these Two Creams—

A GREAT RECORD.

During the reception to the Lakeview baseball team last night His Worship Mayor Taylor announced that all the city's champion teams would be fittingly honoured when the schedules are completed.

The majority of citizens will endorse such a programme in view of the splendid record that has been made by the city's baseball organizations this season and of the amount of publicity they have secured for Peterborough.

Out of the six Ontario championships, three—the bantam, midget and junior—are already held by Peterborough teams, and the C.G.E. team has an excellent chance to add another to the list. As the Maple Leafs were finalists in the juvenile series, it will be readily recognized that the boys and young men of Peterborough have set up a mark of achievement that will not be surpassed for some time.

The name of their home city has been carried into numerous centres in the Province this year, from Brockville and Kingston on the east to Niagara Falls and Hamilton in the west, and Peterborough has been advertised far and wide in a most effective manner.

A Provincial-wide reputation as a good sporting town is a very desirable asset, and surely it must be admitted that the various baseball teams of this city have done a great deal towards securing Peterborough such a reputation.

It is only fitting that their success in this respect should be publicly and generously recognized.

RESEARCH INSTITUTE FOR CANADA.

Mr. Hume Croyn of London, ex-member of the Federal House, deserves credit for the consistent endeavour he has been making for some years to interest Canadians in the establishment of a national research institute.

While a member of Parliament Mr. Croyn exerted every effort to impress the Government with the need of action along this line, and since he has been out of the House he has continued his campaign.

The Examiner has frequently referred to this subject, feeling with Mr. Croyn that Canada stands in need of such an institute where research scientists could be employed to solve industrial problems and where the necessary equipment and library would be available.

There is nothing of that nature at present available in this country, and as a result the United States has been claiming many of the brightest graduates from our universities, men who failing to see in Canada the opportunity to advance themselves along the line they have laid out for themselves are forced to accept the openings offered them elsewhere.

It is time that the loss to Canada because of this exodus was realized and some effort made on the part of the Government to keep Canadian scientists at home.

The establishment of a national research institute would go a long way towards that end.

A WONDERFUL SUCCESS.

The success of the new Dominion of Canada refunding loan is even greater than the first enthusiastic reception gave reason to expect, and the result is a remarkable testimonial of the faith of the Canadian people in the future of their country.

It is reported that the subscriptions already total over $200,000,000, an over-subscription of more than $28,000,000, while the keen demand is illustrated by the fact that some subscribers are increasing their original subscriptions.

Whether or not the Minister of Finance will authorize the acceptance of orders over the first objective named is not yet known, but in any event the success of the loan has been most remarkable in the face of the doubts expressed by some financiers that the time was not opportune for the floating of such a loan in Canada.

The result proves not only that the people of this country have an abounding faith in Canada, but it also proves that they have been educated as a result of their Victory loan experiences to appreciate this form of investment as safe, sane and sure.

It is a very encouraging demonstration that should go a long way towards counteracting the effect of the pessimistic publicity campaign of the Montreal Star.

That campaign has not a leg left on which to stand in the face of the reception accorded Mr. Fielding's new bond issue.

SEEKING THE BANDITS.

A serious case of "nerves" is reported to have developed in the Police Department of Toronto as a result of the robbing of the branch of the Nova Scotia Bank in Toronto recently. Following so closely, according to criminal chronology, upon the sensational hold-up of the Toronto bank messengers a few weeks ago, the affair is certainly of sufficient significance to cause uneasiness to anyone entrusted with the preservation of the lives of citizens and the protection of public property.

The situation is, of course, aggravated by the fact that none of those who participated in either robbery has been apprehended. In addition, four desperate convicts escaped from the Portsmouth Penitentiary at Kingston during the interval between the hold-ups and none of the four has been re-captured. Identification of the robbers in the latest episode as the convicts who escaped from the Kingston prison, is valuable if the identifications are accurate, since the search is thereby limited to two distinct bandit groups, the antecedents of one of which are known to the police.

Until these desperadoes are captured or until the passing years have cast a film of indifference over their crimes, not only the Toronto police and the Provincial police of Ontario, but the guardians of the law in every city and hamlet in the Province will be constantly on the alert. Desperadoes are at large and no man knows where they will strike next. Perhaps it was one of these gangs who burglarized a store at Hamilton on Sunday night. If one of these groups is not responsible, then there is a third gang to be sought.

In the meantime the Provincial and municipal police elsewhere in the Province are in something of a quandary. They never know when the bandits will appear in their districts and they consider it their duty to carefully investigate every rumor, despite the fact that the rumors are invariaby born in the minds of impusive or imaginative persons.

Unfortunately the police officers in many districts, including Belleville, are kept so busy making war upon bootleggers and rum-runners that they cannot devote a great amount of time to the search for the bandits. Under the existing circumstances it would seem advisable to create an auxiliary police force either to patrol the highways for the purpose of apprehending rum-runners and speeders or to devote their time exclusively to the search for the bank robbers and the escaped convicts.—Belleville Intelligencer.

CHAMPIONS AGAIN.

The annual struggle somewhat too ambitiously called the world's series is getting to be as regular a fixture of New York life as the opening of the Follies, says the New York Times. For the third successive year Mr. McGraw's Giants and Mr. Huggin's Yankees will fight for the world championship. It is getting to be old stuff, yet the proprietors expect to pack in fifty or sixty thousand people at each game, many of them at five dollars and a half a head. The sporting public of our city can take a lot of punishment, and does.

New York complacently accepts her supremacy in baseball, but how do other cities feel about it? They have mixed emotions. They obviously desire New York to have teams that will attract the great audiences which mean such welcome receipts for visiting nines, but they do not enjoy the spectacle of the New York players winning monotonously. They profess to see in this a malign power of the purse. The New York baseball treasuries are so filled to overflowing that star players can be bought at any price demanded. This is said to be bad for the game; and there is already reported a movement to compel the strong clubs in New York to help out the weaker members of the leagues by giving or lending to them some of their superfluous players. Such a step is not likely to be taken; and if it were, with the result of cutting down the attendance in New York, and thereby reducing the income of out-of-town clubs, the latter would be sure to make a loud protest.

The undisturbed triumphal progress of the Yankees toward the American League pennant was far less picturesque than the protracted effort of our often-slipping-but-never-falling Giants. More than once Mr. McGraw seemed on the verge of ruin, but at the critical moment Cincinnati failed this year, as St. Louis had failed last year and Pittsburgh the year before. Whether or not this centralization of glory is bad for the game, as some contend, Mr. McGraw's triumph this year must be satisfactory to all conservative thinkers. He won by virtue of the discovery that three three-inning pitchers are numerically equal to one nine-inning pitcher. In this age when all established institutions are under fire it is well to have the multiplication table so handsomely vindicated.

THE CROW.

Outside of his work as a scavanger there is not much to be said in favor of the crow, says the Quebec Telegraph. Convincing evidence of his destructive and rapacious habits as an enemy of game and song birds has been collected by Dr. B. H. Warren, ornithologist of Pennsylvania, who for some time past has been investigating wild life in the duck breeding grounds on the Virginia coast. Dr. Warren spent two days in looking for crow victims on the islands in that region and found no less than 675 eggs of rail birds, green herons, killdeer, meadow larks, domestic chickens and wild black ducks, and also egg remains of some few other small song birds on the ground under the trees in which were crow's nests. "Under and near one pine tree," said Dr. Warren, "where a pair of crows had four young, nearly able to fly, we picked up 352 egg shells mostly clapper rails. Under another nesting tree where a crow's nest had four eggs nearly ready to hatch, sixty-seven empty shells of birds' eggs and a few chicken eggs were gathered. On the ground under a third crow's nest we found 153 egg shells. The balance of egg shells were found on meadows and under trees about the island where crows had eaten contents before their young were hatched. We also found under these crows' nests young rails' wings and other remains of several kinds of birds, adult and young." The crow is generally regarded by naturalists and sportsmen as one of the most destructive robbers of birds in the country and his depredations occur chiefly during the nesting season when the young are helpless. As a result of the enormous damage caused by crows in the destruction of game and useful birds, movements have been started in several parts to conduct a vigorous warfare against them. In some States there are already bounties on crows. Anti-crow clubs are being formed in localities everywhere throughout the country where the crow has become a pest. Dr. Warren, who has made extensive studies in bird life, believes that the crow is the worst of all destroyers and his conclusions have led him to denounce this predatory species in severe terms. Farmers and all friends of game and song birds will agree with Dr. Warren, as also do the authorities of the Department of Agriculture at Washington.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

A Frenchman has invented an automobile that can jump three feet in the air. For the sake of the public it is to be hoped that that type does not become too common.

Somebody, somewhere, ought to be able to get hold of the bandits who are cutting a wide swath through Ontario.

Only 52 hats and 62 suits per every 100 men in the United States were sold last year. As the Wall St. Journal puts it, the gasoline bill must be paid somehow.

Coal at Herschel Island costs $80 a ton, and the winter lasts about 11 months a year. Ontario seems like the tropics after that.

Judging by the reported remarks of J. A. McCausland, M.P.P. for Southwest Toronto, that gentleman is not a very fervent admirer of the Ontario Temperance Act.

Premier King's plea that the fullest publicity should be given the proceedings of the Imperial Conference is an expression of the views of Canadians generally.

Many a father who has been called upon for assistance will be relieved to learn of Hon. G. Howard Ferguson's intention of cutting down home-work for public school pupils.

TORONTO CATTLE.

TORONTO, October 4. — This week's market at the Union Stock Yards gave no evidence of bringing up yesterday. Receipts are keeping close contact with the sales, and unless the buying increases there will be another carry-over this week.

With Tuesday's arrivals all in, there were 3,533 cattle on hand and the weigh up was only 1,400. Receipts yesterday morning were 445 cattle, 283 calves, 1,573 hogs, and 1,401 sheep and lambs.

The cattle on sale yesterday totalled 2,578.

Packers were engaged yesterday morning in picking up a few of the best of the grades of butchers on offer, and some presentable heifers sold at 5 cents a pound. The buyer wanted a few good heifers at around 6 cents, but could not find them. The stocker and feeder dealers had no difficulty in making up loads, and 800 pound steers of a fair type were had at $4.65 a cwt.

The report that a heavy shipment of Western cattle is about due to arrive has had a dampening effect on the trade, and buyers are reducing bids to meet the occasion.

Olie Atwell, who has returned from a trip to Winnipeg, does not think the future shipments from the West will be as heavy as some expect, and points to a falling off in Western receipts this week.

There were a few loads of heavies in the market since Monday. The exporters took these at a price to meet the drop made in the Old Country. Two loads were bought from Corbett & Hall at $7.00 and $7.50 a cwt. and two loads from McDonald & Halligan at $7.40 a cwt. Three loads of medium weight Western steers went up to Harris Abattoir at $5.35 a cwt. The decline in prices generally is difficult to estimate, but in the several grades of butchers it runs all the way from 25 to 50 cents a cwt. from a week ago.

There is a slightly easier feeling in the calf section, and prices on tops are down half a dollar a cwt.

Lambs were unchanged yesterday with the bulk selling at 11 1-2 cents and some at 11 3-4 cents a pound. Sheep were also quite steady.

Packers would like to drop hogs another 2 cents a cwt., but the runs are too light to offer the opportunity, and prices are holding quite steady.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3. — While United States Government issues, with the exception of the tax exempt 3 1-2's, which improved, continued to be offered freely, bond traders noted a slightly better demand for the general run of railroad mortgages and industrial liens in today's trading on the New York Exchange. Outside dealers reported also a fair sale of over-the-counter bonds.

Moderate gains result from the increased demand for railroad mortgages and a number of sugar and oil company liens moved upward. Utility company liens and the bonds of a number of industrial specialties, however, were reactionary.

Continued uncertainty over the European situation was reflected in the relative heaviness of foreign issues, most of the French municipals falling off fractionally.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—Prospects of Government help for wheat growers led to active buying of wheat to-day and to decidedly higher prices for all grain. Wheat closed firm 1 1-2c. to 2c. and 2 1-8c. up; corn scored a 1 1-2c. to 1 3-4c. advance, and oats were up 1-4c. to 1-2c. In provisions, the outcome varied from 10c. decline to a rise of 5c.

With news at hand that President Coolidge had today directed the War Finance Corporations representatives to leave Washington at once to discuss with wheat growers of the central northwest more extensive use of Government funds under the Rural Credits Act, the wheat market went rapidly upward almost as soon as trading began. On the ascent of prices heavy profit-taking sales brought about moderate temporary set-backs, but the offerings were readily absorbed and new upturns ensued. Bearishly inclined traders seemed to lack courage for aggressive action in the face of continued talk of Government measures for farm relief and in view of diminishing receipts at primary terminals.

In some quarters the absence of any definite moves toward an increase of the wheat tariff or toward a reduction of freight rates on wheat were commented on as significant, but such comment appeared to have no bearish effect on the market. Little attention, either, was apparently given to assertions that bolstering of prices in this country would drive export business to Canada and to other cheaper markets, and would increase the domestic seeding of wheat this fall.

In sympathy with wheat and as a result of scarcity of offerings, all deliveries of corn rose to a new high price record for the season, and so, too, did May oats. No. 2 Yellow Corn brought as high as $1.01 1-2 a bushel, the first time since October ,1920, that the price has reached $1.00 or above.

Provisions were firm, with grain and hogs.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

CHICAGO, Oct. 3. — Cattle, receipts 10,000; active; fed steers and yearlings and fat she stock, 15c. to 25c. higher; top matured steers 12.75; best yearlings 11.65; bulk better grades to stocker and feeder dealers, 6.75 and 7.50; bulk about steady; heavy native bologna bulls 4.00 and 4.50; vealers mostly 50c. lower at 11.50; bulk stockers and feeders 5.50 and 7.00.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Oct .3.—The trade in cash grain in the domestic market here to-day was slow, but the tone was firm. The feature of the local flour trade was the weaker feeling that developed for winter wheat grades of flour. The volume of business transacted for domestic account was not large. The market for millfeed was steady. Business was quiet in the baled hay market and prices were steady. A fairly good trade was done in eggs. A fair trade was reported in potatoes and the tone of the market was steady. Trading in butter and cheese was decidedly quiet.

WINNIPEG LIVE STOCK.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 3. — Receipts 2,400 cattle and calves, 985 hogs and 720 sheep and lambs.

Better class offerings were on the cattle market this morning and trading was more active. Prices however, showed little change and held about steady with Tuesdays' close.

The hog market was unsettled. Packers were bidding $9.00 for thick smooths, or 25 cents below yesterday's close.

Sheep and lambs sold on a steady market. Top lambs made from $9. to $9.60 and handyweight sheep ranged from 5.00 to $6.50.

EGG MARKET.

OTTAWA, Oct. 3.—Further sales is reported of storage firsts for export at 37 and 38 f.o.b. seaboard. Some United States storage arriving local points. United States dealers anticipate unfavorable report on storage stocks on hand October first. Market will likely be unsettled until this report is favorable.

HORSE SHOW FEATURE OF THE OTONABEE FAIR ATTENDANCE FELL OFF

Annual Exhibition at Keene on Wednesday Brought Out Fine Class of Livestock — And a "Quality Crowd."

WEATHER HELPED.

KEENE, Oct. 4. — By Staff Reporter — The annual exhibition at Keene, under the auspices of the Otonabee Agricultural Society, was held on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. Tuesday was opening day, with a small crowd, but yesterday was a fine, warm day of good weather for the Fair. Although Keene, lik the majority of small district fairs this year, did not come up in attendance totals to last year's aggregate, having only about a thousand people passing the gate, still, as one of the directors expressed it: "look at the quality we have here."

The main feature of the fair this year was the splendid showing of horses. Otonabee is said to be noted for its horseflesh, and yesterday's exhibition at Keene brought out a greater number than usual of fine, clean-cut beasts, in the best of condition. The action of the directors in raising the entry fee resulted, it was said, in a showing of extra fine horses. There were well over a hundred entries to be judged in the ring, the drivers and agricultural purpose horses standing out pre-eminently. Messrs. Shaw Brothers, R.R. No. 8, Peterborough, had a fine showing, carrying off ten first prizes. Hope Brothers of Indian River and Frank Walsh of Keene, also had good entries. Miss Helen Shaw with "Herman,' was the only lady driver. There was an excellent showing of colts and foals, trained by young boys. The little chestnut that won first in this class had a mania for devouring cardobard tags, that delighted its audience.

Cattle Numerous

The cattle were better and more numerous also this year, with a preponderance of fine Holsteins. S. Comrie, F. Easson and H. J. Miller of Keene showed some good specimens.

Poultry also was about double in number of last year's exhibits. Some fifty or sixty birds were shown all of fine quality including White Wyandottes, that the judge declared would take prizes anywhere, a number of extra-good Toulouse and Emden geese, and a quartette of dignified bronze turkey gobblers.

The hogs had a washed look. It is improbable that the exhibitors took the trouble to launder their entries, but the pigs were very clean, even the short little black Berkshires, described as the handiest to keep, looking quite neat. There were some thirty swine entries, the majority of the Yorkshire breed, and about the same number of sheep.

V. McKinnon of the Canadian Packing Company's staff here, put on a Dominion Government demonstration, showing the various types of hog demanded for the domestic and foreign market, with particular reference to the Wiltshire side, most suitable for export.

Display of Autos

There were four or five cars on view; Fords and Chevrolet, a couple of small tractors, and a caravan that excited much comment was the procession that made its way around the track; the demonstration of Ford models that made its way to Peterborough through Hastings and Keene yesterday, and that included every type of Ford commercial conveyance in tractors threshing machines, moving vans, ambulances, trucks, a tallyho 'bus, and delivery rigs of every description.

Compared with last year, the inside exhibits were poor particularly in the section devoted to women's work. The big building had a forlorn appearance, its small exhibits forming oases of attraction in the midst of vast arid expanses, its patrons blithely disregarding the printed signs which read; "anyone handling exhibits will be prosecuted."

Fancy Work Good

The fancy work, what there was of it was very good, making up in quality what it lacked in quantity. Four or five quilts and bedspreads were draped over a high rack and included a knitted specimen a dainty padded blue eiderdown quilt, and a bedspread cleverly contrived of factory cotton on which gaily colored chintz cut outs were buttonholed in place. There were beaded pincushions and dainty samples of crochet of tatting silk-embroidered pieces and some babies' wear. Pink and red raspmerries were pen-painted on white satin, and a spray of late-growing real red raspberries, large and luscious, were on view from the garden of William Connal in the village.

The collection of apples was very good, in yellows and ruddy reds and greens and there was an interesting note in the waxed collections on large sheets of paper, of various specimens of leaves. Dried corncobs flanked a very small but pretty exhibit of fresh flowers, including some fine comet asters, and foliages.

Pungent Onions Too.

There was a noble display of onions in varied tints and an equally large and notable exhibit of turnips including the curiously-curved cow horn and varieties of the mangelwurzel and the rutabaga. Squashes and pumpkins ran to extraordinary sizes, the latter forming central figures in floor decorations of circularly placed turnips.

In the railed-off portion of the hall the Ladies' Orange Lodge of Keene, their tables decorated with flowers and topped with pendant streamers of blue and orange, served dinner and tea.

Medicine Man There

Outside, the big building, his exhortation interrupted by the whinnying of horses and the crowing of cocks, the portly gentleman who appears betimes on Peterboro's open market place with his samples of bottled tapeworms, held forth on the merits of an East Indian remedy, and entertained his audience by means of a ventriloquial exhibition and a series of sleight-of-hand tricks, performed with the aid of a small impressed boy, whom he addressed as "brother," whose service were commandeered and whose promise not to tell how the tricks were done was rewarded by the sum of "two bits."

A couple of booths for the sale of fruits and soft drinks were well patronized, and there were two kewpie doll stands, the one where a sort of shuttlecock affair decided one's right to a gaily-painted doll getting the crowd.

Grafton & Company had a big tent, filled with the most up-to-date specimens of mens' and boys' clothing, gay in red and yellow coloring and bright with dozens of fluttering small pink flags.

Card of Two Races

There were two races run off, the first taking the better portion of two hours to complete, the last about ten minutes. A free-for-all, open to trotters and pacers, caused a little excitement at the end of the fifth heat, which stood "best three out of five for two entries, and resulted in a sixth heat being run off. The race-course, with its third of a mile circumference, is grass-grown at Keene, and the protection for crowds is wonderfully inadequate. Only the unceasing vigilance of a quartette of watchful custodians of the track prevented a series of accidents, the crowd surging back and forth under the hoofs of racing horses and nervous beasts coming into the ring for judging.

The free-for-all was a closely contested race, all in the Elmhurst family connection. Two horses owned by Dick Elmhurst of Keene were entered; Polly Stout, driven by himself, and Lady of the Manor, driven by A. J. Bowen. William Elmhurst of Indian River drove his horse Cy Winger which took first place in the final decisive sixth heat, and took first money, Polly Stout getting the second place, the heats resulting as follows: Cy Winger; 2-2-2-1-1-1; Polly Stout; 3-1-1-3-3-2, and Lady of the Manor, 1-3-3-2-2.

The second race was a four-wheeled event, with seven entries. Winners of first, second and third place, with prizes of $15, $10 and $5 respectively, were Jack Winger, owned by Richard Elmhirst, Lady of the Manor, his horse also, and Herman, owned by Shaw Brothers of Peterboro. Judges in the stand were George Whittie of Stirling and W. A. Richardson of Norwood. The starter was George Fife of Lang.

The Judges

Judges of horses in the ring were George Bailey of Harold and Dr. Lumsden of Springbrook; Richard Honey of Dartford and F. Easson judged the cattle the former judging the sheep and swine also, J. R. Hope of Villiers judged the poultry and roots and vegetables were judged by F. C. Kitney of Peterboro, L. J. Squair of Lang, judged the grains. Walter Oke of Peterboro, judged the fruits, and ladies' work and flowers were judged by Mrs. R. E. Birdsalls', and Mrs. Vernon Dawson and Miss Clara Armstrong of Peterboro In the ladies' work, fourteen prizes out of eighteen entries went to Mrs. J. Thornton of Keene, and Mrs. F. J. Jamieson of Peterboro, exhibited fancy work that took twenty-four first prizes and seven seconds.

A notable figure at the Fair yesterday was that of an Ontario Provincial office, resplendent in gold braid and fixings, whose highly ornamental presence earned for him the soubriquet of "Lord Renfrew."

Visitors were present yesterday from Peterborough and Norwood and South Monaghan. Many farmers in the distrinct were tied up with threshing operations at home, and it was suggested that the withdrawal of the passenger boats from the river had something to do with a smaller attendance than usual at Keene's Fair.. However, all visitors were accommodated in the usual excellent fashion at the Victoria House by mine host Kennealley.

The Fair Officers

Officers for 1923 of the Otonabee Agricultural Society are R. A. Nelson, president, J. J. Moore, 1st vice president, G. E. Kent 2nd vice president, and J. A. Drummond, secretary-treasurer. Directors are Messrs. R. Humphries, W. A. Nelson, R. E. Drummond, J. Manley, G. Adamson, D. Neish, S. Comrie, F. A. Easson, G. Howson, M. O'Keefe, W. A. Drummond, E. A. Wood, C. Nelson, A. Doris, M. Pimmett, L. J. Shaw. Lady Directors: Mrs. H. McLaughlin, Mrs. S. Taylor and Miss M. Bryce.

CANADA'S DOOR

Maintain Standard.

Proceeding he said that if he interpreted the ideas of the Canadian people correctly their great desire, in every city, town, village and in the country districts, was for more population by immigration. The question was how to secure this increased imigration,-and at the same time maintain our standard of living and citizenship.

The first thing to do, said Hon. Mr. Robb was to make life in Canada so attractive and prosperous that her own people would stay here. The early pioneers had made a magnificent country out of the Canadian wildnerness. They had not done this by sitting around and grouching.

"We are told that Canada has a heavy debt," he said. "We have a considerable debt; but submit to you as businessmen, is there any country in the world that participated as we did in the great war for freedom that has recovered more rapidly than has Canada?"

Mr. Robb quoted the success of the recent domestic loan of two hundred million which had been so extraordinarily successful as "sufficient to show that this country is not on the verge of poverty or anywhere near it."

The manner in which conditions had changed was shown by the fact that to-day 80 per cent. of Canada's public debt was held by the people of Canada, so that the interest was paid in Canada and remained in circulation here.

Money Is Invested.

Claims that people were tying up their money, afraid to venture into commercial investment were not borne out by trade statistics. These showed that for the year ending 31st August last, Canada had a foreign trade of a billion dollars, two hundred and twenty-one million dollars in excess of the previous year, with a balance on the right side, exports exceeding imports by one hundred and seven million dollars.

Another comparison which the Hon. Mr. Robb said should be of interest here was that in 1914 Canada's imports were $563,000,000. This past year they were $880,000,000, an increase of $137,000,000. In 1914, before the war, our exports were $431,000,000, while for the same period during the year just past they were $994,0000,000 more than double. In 1914 there was an adverse balance of trade. Canada imported $132,000,000 more than she exported, while during the past year the reverse was the case.

Labour Is Needed.

"I quote these figures to show that Canada is in a position to require and welcome more labour," said the Hon. Mr. Robb. "Both this and previous Governments have been criticised because they did not go out and seek immigrants."

But after the war Canada had her problems. Trade had dropped, about four hundred thousand returned soldiers had to be assimilated, as well as the people employed in the munition factories which closed at the end of the war. Millions of dollars had to be voted to help the unemployed in Canada, and exports dropped because foreign nations could not buy.

Door Cautiously Opened.

"In such conditions no Government would have been justified in encouraging immigration, but to-day conditions are changed and there is a demand for more labour. We opened the doors fairly wide, and let in 11,500 men to help garner the Western harvest. Many of them will remain. There were some grouchers. They seemed to prefer getting doles in the Old Country to working for $3.50 a day here."

Canada must have more immigration declared Mr. Robb. There was little land in the West, but he did not know whether the farmers now there would remain if they had to pay present high wages, because grain could not be profitably produced with wages of $6.00 a day. Only by getting in more men could such wages be brought to a point where production could be made profitable. While complaints were made as to transportation costs it actually cost as much to thresh the wheat as it cost to get it to the head of the lakes, 13 cents a bushel. The only way to avert this situation was to bring in people and give the farmer more and cheaper labour.

LAND FOR GREEK REFUGEES

A Commission will Control 1,235,000 Acres.

GENEVA, October 4. — The vast humanitarian project of settling almost a million Greek refugees in Greek territory was launched when officials of the League of Nations explained the plan made necessary by the displacement of populations following the Greco-Turkish war.

The project calls for a loan of from 3,000,000 to 6,000,000 pounds, which is to be floated by the Greek Government with the assistance of the League of Nations, the Bank of England making a provisional advance of 1,000,000 pounds. The Greek government will hand over to the commission, which will be headed by Henry Morgenthau of New York, 500,000 hectares (1,235,000 acres) of land, probably in Macedonia. Interest on the loan is to be guaranteed, first by the Greek government, and then by the commission's income from rent paid for the land. Greece pledges herself not to create charges upon its revenues, except to meet external obligations, until exchange has regained its normal rate.

TWELVE-YEAR-OLD BOY KILLED BY LIVE WIRE

TORONTO, Oct. 4. — (Canadian Press).—Twelve-year-old Alonzo H. Verrain, 213 Pearson Avenue, was almost instantly killed yesterday afternoon when a length of fine galvanized wire in the hands of Joseph F. Harris, aged 12, entered the back of his neck and pierced upwards into his brain. The unfortunate lad was discovered by his father, who pulled out the wire and then called for a doctor. The lad's body was removed to the morgue, where an inquest will be held by Coroner McConnell.

Where Weston's are making biscuits as they are made in England, the George Weston Biscuit Bakery at Richmond and Peters Streets, Toronto.
Like Shackleton and his famous ship in Antarctic seas, Weston's are blazing new trails in Canadian endeavor.
A little over a year ago, when with the importation of English baking machinery, and the employment of famous Old Country master-bakers, we introduced our English Quality Biscuits to Canadian Homes, we took the lead as the foremost Canadian biscuit makers. That lead we have consistently held ever since as producers of the most delicious biscuits confections ever made in Canada—biscuits that rival the famous English lines—the world's standard.
It's only these famous Old Country lines that can match Weston's, because only these are made with recipes that demand such pure, rich ingredients. Weston's are indeed "biscuits as they are made in England." The taste will tell.
The "Quest" is Weston's latest English biscuit creations—a delectable shortbread wafer, thin, crisp and oven-fresh, stamped with a reproduction of Shackleton's famous ship.
We do not believe we have ever produced a more delicious biscuit or one that will prove more popular.
Ask for the "Quest" to-day at your neighborhood grocer's. Look for the distinctive package. Just try them once. Until you've tried Weston's you can't appreciate that biscuits could be so delicious.
We Wrote to Lady Shackleton
—telling her of our idea of making a biscuit with a reproduction of the "Quest" and named after it. She graciously replied:
"I am sure Sir Ernest would have been interested in your idea of making a biscuit reproducing the "Quest" and named after it. I send you my best wishes for its success."
On receiving the biscuits, Lady Shackleton wrote:
"The biscuits were delicious and the design quite unique."

"I Had Bilious Attacks and Stomach Weakness"

Mrs. Wm. Robinson, Yonker, Sask., writes: "I suffered from stomach and liver trouble, and used to have bilious attacks so bad that I could do nothing for weeks at a time. My stomach would be so weak that not even a drink of water would stay on it. On my sister's advice, I began to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and must say that they have made me feel like a new woman."

STRESEMANN'S GOVERNMENT RESIGNED LATE LAST NIGHT

Chancellor Will Form a Small Cabinet Similar To Directorate—Abolish Eight Hour Day.

BERLIN, Oct. 4. — (Canadian Press). — President Ebert, at one o'clock this morning, asked Herr Stresemann to form a new Government. Stresemann's Cabinet was unable to agree, so resigned late last night. Herr Stresemann's spokesman shortly after talked to the press, saying, "Herr Stresemann has no intention of forming another party Cabinet."

It is said that the Chancellor will form a small Cabinet, similar to a directors, and its policies will include the seizure of economic values, control of prices and increased production, and the giving up of the eight-hour law. It is asserted that the Bavarian question is not a subject of controversy.

Accomplished Little.

The Stresemann Government retired from office with the relinquishment of passive resistance in the Ruhr and the Rhineland as the only active accomplishment to its credit. While criticism of its usefulness on this score would seem to be not entirely fair, in view of the hopelessly tangled legacy assumed by it as successor of the Cuno Ministry, the Stresemann coalition of productiveness in the nature of financial and economic reforms on account of conflicting currents which hampered its deliberations.

CANADA REPRESENTED AT A LONDON DINNER

LONDON, Oct. 4. — (Canadian Press).—Members of the Imperial and Economic Conference were entertained at dinner last night in the Mansion House by the London Chamber of Commerce. R. L. Barclay, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce, presided, and the company numbered about 350. Canada was represented by Hon. Geo. H. Graham, Minister of Railways, who responded to the toast, "Imperial Communications." As far as transportation of freight and passengers are concerned, Mr. Graham said Canada was probably better equipped than any other country in the world per head of population. He described what Canada was doing in regard to aerial navigation and wireless.

ANOTHER GOLD STRIKE IN NORTHERN ONTARIO

TORONTO, Oct. 4.— (Canadian Press.)— Information has reached the Provincial government of a new gold strike in Harker township, which appears to have very promising aspects. Men who have been in the area where the strike has been made, have reported optimistically as to the value of the find from surface indications.

Harker township is in the Swastika recording office agency and is situated between Upper Lake Abitibi and Swastika. It is in Larder Lake mining division. While the department finds that there have been previous reports of gold indications in the township, this one, full information upon which has not yet reached the department, appears to be a discovery of major importance.

ACID STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Sufferers From Indigestion or Stomach Trouble CUT THIS OUT

"Stomach trouble, dyspepsia, indigestion, sourness, gas, heartburn, food fermentation, etc., are caused nine times out of ten by chronic acid stomach," says a well known authority.

Burning hydrochloric acid develops in the stomach at an alarming rate. The acid irritates and inflames the delicate stomach lining and often leads to gastritis accompanied by dangerous stomach ulcers. Don't dose an acid stomach with pepsin or artificial digestents that only give temporary relief from pain by driving the sour, fermenting food out of the stomach into the intestines.

Instead, neutralize or sweeten your acid stomach after meals with a little hot water and Bisurated Magnesia and not only will the pain vanish but your meals will digest naturally. There is nothing better that Bisurated Magnesia to sweeten and settle an acid stomach. It soaks up the harmful excess acid much as a sponge or blotting paper might and your stomach acts and feels fine in just a few minutes. Bisurated Magnesia can be obtained from any reliable druggist in either powder or tablet form. It is safe, reliable, easy and pleasant to use, is not a laxative and is not at all expensive.

JURY DISAGREED.

PARRY SOUND, Oct. 4.—(Canadian Press). — The jury which for two days has been engaged in the trial of John Stevenson for the murder of his wife and mother-in-law failed to agree last night, and a new trial will be necessary.

ANNUAL CONVENTION PETERBOROUGH W.M.S

Goodly Number of District Delegates Attend Successful Gathering of Women Workers at Bethany.

MILLBROOK, October 4. — The Peterborough District Women's Missionary Society held its annual convention in the Methodist Church, Bethany, on Tuesday, the morning session opening at ten o'clock and the afternoon gathering at 1.30. A goodly number of delegates, representative of the auxiliaries, circles, and bands of the district were in attendance, and a splendid spirit of enthusiasm, coupled with a desire to learn more about the work and the workers on home and foreign fields and to advance the interests of the Kingdom, prevailed throughout.

Mrs. J. K. Moore, district superintendent, occupied the chair, and associated with her as district secretary, was Mrs. Morton, of the Mark Street Auxiliary, Peterborough, who was taking the place left vacant through the removal of Mrs. Wagar, for many years faithfully filling this office most capably, but who has removed to Toronto to reside.

Mrs. Thorndyke of Bethany and Miss Estelle Hetherington of Millbrook presided at the organ during the sessions.

Rev. S. G. Rorke and Rev. R. M. Patterson led in the opening prayer, Mrs. Rowe of Peterborough reading the Scripture lesson from the 103rd Psalm.

Membership increase.

The superintendent, in her brief opening remarks, mentioned several cases of auxiliaries which would this year report an increase in membership and finances, for which she, personally, felt a deep sense of thankfulness, because earlier in the season there had been a feeling of discouragement and an opposite result had been anticipated. The district had to report a slight decrease in funds at the branch meeting held in Cobourg last June, but this was on account of two bequests, one for $500.00 from the late Mrs. (Rev.) A. R. Campbell, and another for $300.00 from Mrs. Shields, which together had added considerably to the amount reported the previous year. A warm tribute to the late Miss Jessie Munro, who was so long connected with W.M.S. work in this conference was feelingly made by Mrs. Moore, who also stated that the entire Women's Missionary movement is a living example of the power of prayer, and urged that prayer, knowledge, and enthusiasm be the watchwords for the ensuing yar. Reference was made, in closing, to the special offering for the Japanese sufferers which, in conjunction with the general board, is to be taken up on Sunday, 10th October, and a liberal response was requested in view of the great need.

Reports from the auxiliaries were then called for, the following responding: George Street, Trinity, St. James, and Mark Street, Peterborough, Fairmount, Millbrook, Bethany, Lakefield, Mount Pleasant, and Warsaw. Circles and bands, where such are in active operation, also made their annual statement re work done, members on the roll, and money raised. In every case the reports were most encouraging, showing unselfish service, careful planning, and consecrated effort, which were a stimulant to enlarged zeal and devotion.

A solo, "There is a green hill far away," by Miss M. Lee, was much appreciated, after which Mrs. Moore, who has given many years of faithful service to the work in the district, and who because of failing health felt she must resign this year, asked Rev. Mr. Wickett of Tyrone to lead in prayer for guidance before nominations for this important office snaoo elreiasdlvBBfithmarfodwdww and that of secretary, were called for. There being a general unwillingness to let Mrs. Moore's resignation stand, she was finally prevailed upon to retain the position of district superintendent, providing an assistant was given her, Mrs. W. Seymour of Fairmount being elected by ballot to fill the office.

Mrs. Morton was elected as district secretary, a fact that gave much satisfaction to all present.

The offering having been taken up, the lateness of the hour made it necessary to postpone other items on the programme until the afternoon session, and Rev. William H. Dafoe, pastor of the convention church, dismissed the gathering with the benediction.

An Excellent Dinner.

The ladies of the Bethany Auxiliary served an excellent hot dinner in the basement of the church, to which full justice was done, and a pleasant social hour enjoyed before reassembling for the final session at 1.30, which opened with prayer by Rev. Mr. Patterson. Instead of the usual Scripture lesson, Mrs. Carver, of Peterborough, recited a beautiful poem, "The Vision," illustrating the text from Daniel 12, 3: "And they that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament, and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars for ever."

Words of Welcome.

Mrs. Reynolds, of Bethany, was called upon for the "Words of Welcome," voicing the warm-hearted greeting extended to the convention in expressive terms which left no doubt as to the sincerity behind the well-chosen words, while Mrs. Monk brought greetings from sister auxiliary of St. Paul's Anglican Church.

Suitable reply was made by Mrs. Kidd, of Trinity Auxiliary, who gave as one thought which all would carry away from the "day at mission school" the quotation

"The work of the world is done by a few,
And God ask sthat this work be done by you."

Letter from Japan.

Mrs. S. G. Rorke read a most interesting letter from her daughter, Miss Luella Rorke, a missionary in Japan, written on 2nd September, the day following the earthquake, fire, and tidal wave in that stricken empire. Fortunately Miss Rorke, with other missionaries, was in the mountains eighty miles from Tokio, and so was "all right and perfectly safe." But even at that distance disturbance was felt, houses shook, doors opened, and the earth rumbled so that "we expected the ground to open up and swallow us." All that night also tremours continued to be felt, and the missionaries held themselves in readiness for a sudden exodus Miss Rorke, who has been a teacher in the Azabu school in Tokio, was to exchange for evangelistic work at Nagano; but of her three young Japanese teachers and the Bible woman who were to have assisted her, she has as yet no word—probably they have perished in the great disaster.

The arrival of Miss Hamilton and two new workers from Canada was hailed with delight, though they had had a terrible experience; their steamer was docked in Yokohama harbor at the time of the quake, and, taking soundings, found the ground dropped twenty-four feet in one hour. They had given away all their extra clothing, money, etc., to needy refugees, and, finding their way through fire and flood to the mountain home of the missionaries, were as grimy and unkempt as any who fled from the stricken area. A vivid description was given of the trains packed with refugees, bound on with ropes on top of the cars and on the platforms; so overcrowded that none could be put off at the stations unless through the windows, and indeed those wishing to get on had to do so in the same manner. For this reason the missionaries were hindered from leaving for their respective fields of labor which they are most anxious to reach in order to find out what may be done in relief work and where the cause of the Master may again be taken up.

A solo, "Jesus Still Remembers You," by Miss Marie McBain, of Fairmount, was much enjoyed, and helpful discussions on the "Best Methods of Conducting Auxiliaries, Circles and Bands" followed those leading being Mrs. (Rev.) S. T. Tucker, Mrs. Speer, Mrs. Richardson, Mrs. Brown, Miss Giles and Mrs. Stinson.

Promising Plans.

Miss Scott, a missionary now on her second furlough from work in Japan, addressed the convention, stating that great plans had been made by joint action of the American and Canadian W.M.S. Boards of Management for extending the work of the Bible school at Yokohama, with which since last Christmas Miss Jost, a missionary of several years' experience in that empire, became connected. But now the city has been wiped out and Miss Jost is on her way home, expecting to land in Vancouver on Friday, October 5th. Our first Methodist church was established at Yokohama, it is the seaport through which our incoming and outgoing missionaries must pass, and it is where they have many friends, do their shopping, and where splendid work has been done for Christ. Now it is gone and probably three-fourths of Tokio as well. The latter is a tremendous loss, the capital city, very beautiful with its parks and gardens, the pride of the Japanese, the centre of their industrial life, the seat of the Royal residence, and what they chiefly relied upon for their prestige with other nations. Azabu school in Tokio was the strongest centre of W.M.S. work in Japan, crowds of girls entering each term and big classes graduating each year, practically all of whom are Christians and become centres through which a knowledge of the Saviour is spread abroad wherever they make their homes. It has been damaged, but to what extent is not yet known. The fine big Tabernacle, the first Christian church to be built in Tokio, and with which Rev. Dr. Armstrong is connected, was near the arsenal, and when the latter exploded, was totally destroyed. Then there were the Methodist churches dotted all over the city, with the native pastors residing, in most cases, in houses immediately beside their church; how many of these have been burned is not known but far more serious than any property loss is the fact that very many of the most faithful native workers and Christians have undoubtedly perished.

Had the disaster occurred three days later, or six weeks earlier, a large number of missionaries of all denominations would have been in the cities, and the tragic circumstances multiplied a thousand-fold. That this was averted should call forth earnest expressions of thanksgiving to God from every heart. Some personal incidents of those who have suffered loss of friends and property were given by Miss Scott in her closing remarks, together with an urgent appeal for "giving until it hurts" in response to the special call next Sunday.

A Helpful Paper.

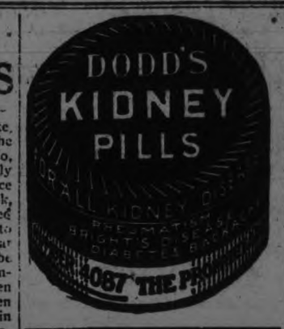
Mrs. Bamforth read a helpful paper on "Our Objective," and Mrs. A. J. Langford conducted the "Quiet Hour" in a most impressive manner, emphasizing the thought of rest by coming to Christ and thus gaining strength, patience and power for the great task of missions.

A chorus, "America For Christ," by the girls of the Mission Club, brought a successful convention to a close, Rev. Mr. Dafoe offering a brief prayer and dismissing with the benediction.

Tea was provided in the basement for those who had a distance to drive and a renewal of the social good fellowship enjoyed at the noon hour was indulged in by the delegates, and others, who took advantage of the hospitality of the Bethany ladies who so kindly arranged for the well-being and comfort of their guests.

A CIVILIAN DICTATOR.

BERLIN, Oct. 4. — (Canadian Press).—There is talk of the appointment of a civilian dictator, supported by martial law, to take charge of affairs following the retiring of Chancellor Stresemann's Cabinet.



BRIDGE FALLS ACROSS CANAL

And Stream of Western Grain Pouring Into Montreal Elevators is Suddenly Dammed.

MONTREAL, Oct. 4.—(Canadian Press.) — The stream of western grain pouring into Montreal elevators by water route was suddenly dammed yesterday afternoon by the 900 counter weight on Bascule bridge at Ville St. Pierre on the Lachine Canal, which broke away from its bearing and crashed to the canal bank, allowing the bridge which it supported to fall across the canal.

The bridge fell a distance of seven feet, narrowly missing the stern of the steamer Beauharnois. Already 35 40 grain vessels have been held up by the bridge which blocks the only passage to the St. Lawrence from the Great Lakes.

Why Stay Fat? You Can Reduce

The answer of most fat people is that it is too hard, too troublesome and too dangerous to force the weight down. Marmola Prescription Tablets overcome all these difficulties. They are absolutely harmless, entail no dieting, exercise, or absurd greases and salves, and have the added advantage of cheapness. A case is sold at one dollar by all druggists the world over, or send the price direct to the Marmola Co., 4613 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich. Now that you know this, you have no excuse for being fat, but can reduce steadily and easily without going through long sieges of tiresome exercise and starvation diet or fear of bad effects.

HEAVY GALE SWEEPS BRITISH COAST LINE

LONDON, Oct. 4. — (Canadian Press).—Heavy gales are prevailing in the vicinity of the British and French Atlantic coasts, seriously interfering with the movements of shipping. Transatlantic liners are being held up at their quarters owing to the bad weather. There are unconfirmed reports of serious losses to the fishing fleets and small craft. Storms did much damage in various parts of Britain and France.

THOUSANDS LACK SUFFICIENT VITAL FORCE AND DON'T KNOW WHY.

They think they need a tonic, a vacation or a change of scenery, but they don't. It's old indigestion that's the matter with them and six days of Dreco will prove it. They don't get the strength out of their food. It's like running corn through the mill with the rollers too wide apart, the corn goes through but the mill doesn't grind.

DON'T THINK YOU MUST HAVE A PAIN TO HAVE INDIGESTION.

Lack of flesh, too much fat, pimples, blotches, sallow complexion, lack of nerve force, impoverished blood, sleeplessness, headaches, backaches, sideaches, weak brain power, dizzy spells, spots floating before the eyes, may all be due to the faulty digestive process either in the stomach or the bowels.

Take Dreco with your other food for a week and find out how your digestive organs are working. If the Dreco helps you greatly, gives you more force, strength and brain power, you may set it down that your liver and bowels are not doing their duty.

Only yesterday your head may have felt dull and heavy, you had the "blues," were cross, nervous and irritable, everything seemed to go wrong and you couldn't tell why.

It's ten to one it was old dyspepsia slyly getting in his work, not enough to cause you pain, but just enough to dull your brain, rob you of your vitality, upset your liver and deplete your nerve force. Maybe you don't think so, but try a bottle of Dreco and see if it doesn't change "blues" to a bright, cheery red, make the old world laugh in a merry glee, and put new vigor in your life again.

Lewis A. Todd, the travelling salesman, had stomach trouble so bad he practically had to live on liquid foods. He couldn't even eat vegetables without suffering terrible pain. He took two bottles of Dreco and can now eat anything he wants and without any distress whatever—sounds like a miracle? Well, we have Mr. Todd's own signed statement to that effect.

C. L. Matlick, the B. & O. conductor, says he had rheumatism so bad that he had to use a cane to get around at all. On his fourth bottle of Dreco he said: "I am now feeling fine — have thrown away my cane." These are only two of hundreds, yes thousands.

TEST THIS MEDICINE FREE.

Mr. Sufferer, have you ever heard of the wonderful medicine that talks, that really tells you itself what it can do — that's Dreco. Five minutes after you take it the medicine begins to unfold its virtues, and it will by actual demonstration, unfold to you more in regard to its merits in ten minutes than we could probably make you believe if we wrote you ten books as large as the dictionary.

"Words cannot tell you how glad we are for Dreco," declared Mrs. Treasa Copley. "The first bottle fixed me up," said Walter F. Dixon, "Am a changed man now," states Rev. Joseph L. Butler.

You may know something of these people, or know somebody who knows them. We'll send you their full addresses if you want them, so that you can find out about Dreco and the wonders it has wrought.

Probably you are now thinking whether all this can be true; stop it. Come at once to the Druggist listed below. Here you will receive absolutely free, a good-sized bottle of Dreco. This offer is open to every man and woman in this vicinity. There are no ifs, ands or buts attached to it, except that you come early before the generous supply of free bottles has been used. You don't have to buy anything if you don't want to. All we ask is that you step in and test this wonderful medicine, and see for yourself what it can do for you. So please come as early as possible.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

St. Andrew's W.M.S. Met —Daughters of Empire Held Session—Field Day This Afternoon.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 4—The regular monthly meeting of the W. M. S. of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, held in the ladies' parlor on the afternoon of Tuesday, was in charge of the life members of the society. One life member occupied the chair another acted as secretary and another as treasurer.

Special music was furnished by Fred Wigglesorth, organist of the church Rev. C. F. McIntosh addressed the gathering taking as his subject "Life service and devotion to duty."

A special feature of the meeting was the presentation by the society of a life membership to Mrs. Gillespie, a past president and a junior life membership presented by Mrs. Andrew Haig, to Margaret Isabell McIntosh, the infant daughter of the St. Andrew's Manse. Mrs. Gillespie feelingly replid, thanking mmbers of the society for their thoughtfulness and token of esteem. Mr. McIntosh also thanked the donor and the society on behalf of his little daughter, this being the first junior membership to go through this society.

At the close of the business session, refreshments were served and a social half hour was spnt.

I.O.D.E. Held Session

The regular mteting of the Senior Chapter of the I.O.D.E. was held in the rooms of the Public Library Wednesday afternoon, where the plan of activities for the coming season was outline. Mrs. J. P. Archer, Past Regent, presided in the absence of Mrs. Ashley, the Regent this year.

It was decided to hold a bazaar on the 7th of December the proceeds to go to the Soldiers' Memorial Fund The members found that they have now on hand for the purpos, over $1200 all of which has been raised by their own efforts.

There was a large attendance and all the members present showed an enthusiasm that speaks well for the future success of the work.

Mission Workers to Meet.

A meeting of the missionary societies in the Anglican churches of the Peterborough Deanery will be held in the Parish Hall of Christ church here on Friday, 12th of October. Twenty-two parishes will be represented at the gathering. The programme will be announced later.

Annual Field Day.

The annual field day of the High School Athletic Association will be held this afternoon on the Fair grounds. All the schools will close for the day at noon. A fine programme of sports has been arranged and there is a prize worth striving for in each event. No admission fee will be charged. Parents and others are requested to show their interest in the training of the rising generation by attending this exhibition of athletic sports.

Personals.

Edward Skitch, who has been confined to his home for several weeks on account of serious illness, is able to be out again for a short time each day.

Architect S. B. Coons of Toronto, who prepared the plans for and is supervising the construction of the new High school, was in town Wednesday inspecting the work already done by Contractor Brown.

TWO MORE MINISTERS HIT NORTHERN TRAIL

Will Spend Eight or Ten Days Looking Over the Backwoods.

TORONTO, Oct. 4. — (Canadian Press).—While there is only an even chance that Premier Ferguson will be in a position to return to Northern Ontario to continue his personal observations of conditions in the nearer settlements, two of his Ministery, Hon. Jas. Lyons, Minister of Lands and Forests, and Hon. Chas. McCrae, Minister of Mines, purpose leaving on the 13th of this month to make a comprehensive eight or ten days' survey of things throughout the entire near north country.

The ministers propose to start out in the north-west corner of Ontario at Fort William and work east and south, taking in everything that affects their personal departments on the way. Roads, transportation facilities, settlers' conditions, the pulp industry, mining in the various sections and municipal development, all are on the agenda of observation of the two Ministers for the north, and, according to official announcement, they will take just such time as is necessary at each point to familiarize themselves with local conditions and needs.

The medicine of which William Bronson said, "It is the only medicine that eased my stomach and stopped the gas, wiped away stomach troubles and put strength and vitality into my blood."

A highly efficient stomach medicine made from roots, herbs, barks, leaves and a few other good things for the nerves, stomach, kidneys and bowels

You may be straving your blood in the midst of plenty. It isn't how much you eat that counts, but it's how you digest the food you eat.

You cannot get steam out of water without fire; you can't get brain power, nerve force, and red blood corpuscles out of food without digestion.

DR. TOLD NURSE TO TAKE DRECO

Crippled Up By Rheumatism So She Had to Hold on to Banisters — Feet Swollen, Limbs, Ankles, Elbows Full of Pain.

"I am writing to say a few words in praise of your wonderful medicine, Dreco. I have often been asked to endorse this or that medicine, but always refused, but Dreco is different," said Mrs. D. S. Simpkins of 1442 Law Avenue, Evansville, Indiana.

"I have suffered greatly from rheumatism and been treated by excellent physicians, finally tried a change of climate, but always my relief was temporary. While nursing, I've had doctors pity me, saying I should be the one in bed with a nurse to attend me. My feet were so swollen and painful I could hardly keep my shoes on, my ankles and limbs were so sore and stiff I had a limp in my walk. I often had dark circles under my eyes and that tired look in them.

"Constipation was a source of great annoyance and I couldn't secure relief from it. I was often nauseated and had a repulsion at the sight of food.

"Today my feelings are entirely changed. I have taken two bottles of Dreco and I am so much better the doctor told me to keep on taking it. Every ache and pain is gone, the constipation is completely relieved. I am no longer nauseated, but eat and relish every meal. Instead of being a sore, crippled creature, limping around, I am happy, and can nurse cases today which I was forced to refuse before. I give all the credit for my grand relief to Dreco, and unhesitatingly recommend it to everyone who suffers as I did." Free samples given.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Peterborough by Bond's Drug Store. Call at their store today and ask for free sample bottle of Dreco and let them explain the merits of this great remedy. Dreco is sold by a good druggist in every town and every Dreco agent should have samples of Dreco, which he will give you free. Dreco is also sold in Lakefield by E. L. Northey. Call on the Dreco agent in your town and ask for sample bottle.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

THREE GREEDY PIGS

"Let's talk about something to eat," said Piggy Wig Pig.

Piggy Wig Pig and Saucy Snout Pig and Twisty Tail Pig were all lying side by side in a cool, muddy puddle in Squealy-Moo Land.

They looked like three sausages that had been stuffed too tight and were ready to burst if you touched them.

Piggy Wig Pig was black. Saucy Snout Pig was white and Twisty Tail Pig was black and white, but just now they were brown all over, the three of them, for they had rolled in the mud and dried off and they were sights to behold!

"Let's talk about something to eat," said Piggy Wig Pig.

"Yes, let's!" agreed the others.

But to Nancy and Nick and Mister Dodger, the fairy man, on the other side of the fence, it just sounded as though one pig was grunting, another squealing and another snorting, such funny noises they made when they talked.

"I like buttermilk with corn cobs floating in it!" said Piggy Wig Pig, smacking his lips.

"And I like the days they have apple pies!" said Saucy Snout. "Then they dump all the apple peelings and apple cores into the trough. Um!"

"Oh, I like anything!" declared Twisty Tail. "I'm not particular. Clover's good, though. I like that!"

Now, I didn't tell you that there was another little pig in the field, but there was! A nice, clean little red fellow, who wasn't very fat, or very big, or very curly—his tail wasn't—and he wasn't dirty at all! But he was very hungry.

Farmer Brown had bought him from a neighbor, and he felt very lonely and forlorn, for the other pigs wouldn't look at him at all!

Just then there was a loud bumping. It was Farmer Brown emptying his slop pails into the trough at the pig-sty.

Instantly there was a scrambling, and off started the four pigs for their lunch.

"Get out!" squealed Piggy Wig Pig at the stranger.

"Wait till we're through," grunted Saucy Snout over his fat shoulder.

"We'll give you what's left," called Twisty Tail.

That's the way it always was. No wonder poor Reddy Pig was so thin and hungry! For there never was anything left!

But suddenly something happened. Nancy grabbed one greedy pig by his hind foot, and Nick grabbed another and Mister Dodger grabbed the third.

"Go on, Reddy, and eat your fill," cried the fairy man.

Which he did without any coaxing. There was never any more trouble after that, for the pigs all promised to be good.

Cobourg and District

COBOURG, Oct. 4.—Through the efforts of the Cobourg Branch of the Ontario Motor League Cobourg streets are to be considerably improved. The local Motor League has made a grant of $100 towards dragging some of the streets in the town in order to improve them for auto traffic. A large dray belonging to the Cobourg Motor League is being used for the work.

Death at Trenton.

James Sidney Vantassel, a well-known citizen of the Bay of Quinte district, passed away at his home at Trenton in his 66th year. He had not been in good health for a year or two and a stroke hastened the end. He is survived by his widow, before her marriage, Elizabeth Cavalier, and by three sons, Edward of Sudbury; Joseph and Bruce of Trenton, and two daughters, Mrs. G. Duquette of Smithfield and Mrs. R. Bartt of Trenton.

Inter High School Sports.

The pupils and staff of the Trenton High School have arranged to hold their annual day of sports next Friday, the programme to start at 2 p.m. sharp. It is expected that both Belleville and Brighton High Schools will declare a half holiday and go to Trenton to participate in the big event. In the evening there will be basketball games, followed by a social gathering when the Trenton students will entertain the visitors and ending with a dance in the Assembly Hall.

Residence Burglarized.

The residence of the late General Charles Fitzhugh, situated on the lakefront just east of the town of Cobourg, was entered by burglars one night last week and a quantity of household effects were carried off, including several valuable rugs. It is stated that there were traces of the rugs having been dragged to the lakeshore and it is thought that the thieves may have carried off their plunder by boat.

Double Wedding at Trenton.

An unusual event, a double wedding, took place at the parsonage of Wesley Methodist church, Trenton, Rev. W. G. Clarke officiating, last Wednesday. Mr. Young was married to Miss Annie Elizabeth Landry, both of Campbellford, and Mr. Joseph Angus Landry of Campbellford was married to Miss Mary Ellen Young of Madoc.

Perry—Forster.

Recently at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Forster, Belleville, the marriage took place of their only daughter, Lucenda Ann, to Mr. George Perry, mail clerk at Trenton. Rev. H. B. Kenny, pastor of the Tabernacle Methodist church, Belleville, officiated. Only immediate relatives were present. The happy couple left for Toronto, Buffalo and other western points before taking up residence in Trenton.

Marriage at Burnt River.

At St. Luke's church, Burnt River, a pretty Autumn wedding was solemnized when Miss Eva Barr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Barr, was married to Mr. Roddie Wright, son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Wright, by Rev. G. Hatcher of Kinmount. After the reception and wedding breakfast, Mr. and Mrs. Wright left on a motor trip to Oshawa, Peterboro and other points.

Trenton K. of C. Officers.

At a meeting of the Trenton Knights of Columbus held on Tuesday evening the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Grand Knight, O. E. Fortune; D.G. K., E. E. White; chancellor, H. Desjordin; recorder, J. J. McNab; Fin. Sec., E. McDonald; treasurer, T. McAuley; advocate, J. Holmes; warden, James Armstrong; inside guard, Arthur Doran; outside guard, J. J. Gordon; trustees, Dr. Driscool, P. J. Shannon, P. J. Monahan; lecturer, F. Delisle; chaplain, Rev. Dean Connolly.

Bibles on Market.

An innovation at the weekly market at Trenton was the presence of Mr. Cecil Dalby of Streetsville, Upper Canada Bible Society Corporation, who had with him an assortment of Bibles, Testaments and the Psalms for sale.

C.P.R. Construction.

About three hundred men are engaged at the present time widening and re-ballasting the C.P.R. tracks between Trenton and Smithfield. This is in accordance with the programme for track improvement that the company is carrying out this season, by means of which, it is stated, they will spend some $800,000 in improvements on the line between Perth and Oshawa. It is expected that work will be in progress on the Trenton section for some three weeks or a month. A number of the men come from towns along the line in the locality.

Local and Personal.

Peter Grass, of Murray Township, passed away recently and the remains were laid at rest in Frankford cemetery.

The members of St. Alphonsus Church, Wooler, held a forty-hour devotion service last week.

Rev. J. F. Belford preached at the annual harvest festival service held in the Anglican church at Wooler.

The Cobourg Citizens' Band will furnish music for the Port Hope Fair which takes place to-morrow.

A special train that passed through on the C.P.R. on Saturday had about four hundred passengers going west, among whom are stated to have been some from most of the nationalities in Europe. Canadianized they will add their quota to the expected ten million population towards which Canada is fast attaining.

General and Mrs. Phipps have returned to Washington after spending the summer here.

Mr. G. E. Fox of this town is relieving Mr. H. Freeman, manager of the Dominion Store at Trenton, for a short time.

Mrs. Neave has returned to her winter home at Cincinnati, Ohio, after spending the summer here.

DUFFUS MOTOR SALES BANQUETS 125 GUESTS AT EMPRESS HOTEL

Representative Men Of Peterborough City and County Enjoy the Hospitality of a Genial Host At a Function in the Premier Class.

HAPPY OCCASION

Some 125 guests sat down to the banquet in the Empress Hotel last night, tendered by Duffus Motor Sales to owners of Fordson Tractors, and other prominent citizens of Peterborough city and county. The four corners of the county and intermediate sections were represented, and the function was presided over by Joseph J. Duffus, proprietor of Duffus Motor Sales, with Mayor W. H. Taylor seated at his right. W. Murdock, B.S.A., in charge of the big travelling exhibit, his genial staff of expert help, together with F. I. Fox, the jolly manager of Ford's Toronto branch, were also in attendance.'

Mr. Duffus made a capital host, and consequently his guests quickly felt quite at home, and settled down in enjoyment of a really dainty menu followed by an after-dinner programme consisting of song, speeches and movie pictures. While some business experiences entered into the speeches, not a dull moment was experienced throughout the whole affair, and anecdote and humorous reminiscences provoked considerable merriment and fun. Vocal selections were contributed by John Smith and Robert Henry, to piano accompaniment by W. H. Barry, all renowned in Peterborough for the acceptable character of their entertainment.

His Worship the Mayor had great pleasure in welcoming the visitors to the city and opined that the great strides agriculture had made in this county were due in no small measure to Fordson tractors.

Advent of Tractor

Joseph J. Duffus, in a reminiscent mood, recalled that some half a dozen years after he undertook the sale of Ford cars he gave a banquet to Ford car owners, at which some 123 sat down. "But," he continued, "were I today to banquet all Ford car users in Peterborough city and county, the market square would not be large enough to accommodate them."

Turning to the subject of Fordson tractors, Mr. Duffus said he believed his firm was the largest distributers of those machines in the Province of Ontario, although the first year he handled them he only sold three. Tractors, he contended, are a necessary adjunct to the farm, shortening the time of labor, a great consideration these days when the seasons are getting shorter. Plowing, cultivating and power work—the hardest jobs on a farm—can be all done with the Fordson tractor more expeditiously than by horses and at a saving of horse feed, which is a considerable item of expense. Then by their speed and high quality of work, these tractors render practicable that double plowing of every square inch of tillable land so necessary when farms are old and have been cultivated for years.

Mr. Duffus here stressed that after fall work the tractor can be stored n the barn without further expense, whereas a horse from the middle of November till the middle of April is a white elephant on the hands of a farmer, who has to feed him whether working or not. In conclusion, he contended that farming is the greatest industry in the world today, more scientific than the professions, more complex than manufacturing, and more uncertain than merchandising.

Cheap in Price

F. I. Fox, manager of Ford's Toronto branch in stressing the cheapness of Ford products, said Ford cars are sold at 33 cents a pound, and tractors at 12½ cents a pound. It cost, he asserted, Henry Ford $7,000,000 last year to sell his Fordson tractors. But Henry Ford is a farmer's son, born on a farm, where he made his first money; consequently he was willing to make a sacrifice with his tractors to help farmers solve their weather and labor problems by producing products at the lowest possible cost. Prices today, he concluded, are low and will not rise much higher for several years to come; therefore, a farmer must rely on making profit by a low cost of production, which machinery fosters, rather than in high selling prices.

Economic Conditions

W. Murdock, in charge of the exhibit caravan, explained that this fiscal year Fordson tractors will be increased in price from $395 to $420 to, in some measure, make good Ford's losses on them last year in the farmers' interests; and he was quite confident that in five years from now one would be found on every farm in Ontario where conditions are favorable.

Turning to Canada's economic condition, we are not doing so badly, he said. For during the first five months of the Dominion's fiscal year our total business with other nations amounted to $785,000,000, an increase of $160,000,000 more than that for the corresponding period last year. Our exports and imports are about even, but considerable of material imported is again exported in manufactured goods. Then, in the fiscal year ending February, 1921, Canada was about $54,000,000 in the hole, last year about $164,000,000 to the good; and at present we are already $160,000,000 ahead in business with other nations. All of which, he concluded, spells coming prosperity for farmers, who may look forward to steady, if slow, increased prices for their produce.

Mr. Clarke, of the Oliver Plow Co., claimed that his firm's implements gave equal service with the Fordson tractors; in fact, the Oliver plows are invariably used with these tractors to unqualified satisfaction.

Profitable Investment

President Quinn of the Peterborough U. F. O., owns a complete Fordson tractor outfit, which he said gave no trouble and produced the necessary work in less time than by horse power. This machinery, he recommended as a profitable investment to any farmer, complete in every respect and a delight to operate.

Growing in Favor

C. E. Moore of Smith township, has operated a Fordson tractor outfit for four years and today he is more in favor of it than ever before. Highly appreciating the service of Duffus Motor Sales, he said last night that threshing with the Fordson machine averages him but $3 a day of 10 hours for power. It eliminates 5 horses in the field and 14 or 16 on the belt, and is economical in fuel consumption.

Bought First Tractor

C. Bailey of Emily, who bought the first tractor sold by Duffus Motor Sales, claimed that the machine is the best on the market, as also is the repair service available through the Fordson people.

Highly Recommended

Deputy Reeve Austin of Port Hope testified that with his Fordson outfit he plows, grinds, cultivates, threshes and cuts wood, and he recommended the machine to all farmers as absolutely the best obtainable.

Similar experience to this was also that of Reeve Eason of Otonabee. He testified that his experience with a Fordson tractor had been most satisfactory indeed, far in excess of that obtainable from horses.

Quality and Quantity

Mr. Winslow of Cavan said his experience with the Fordson tractor had been very favorable, in fact the machine had more than come up to his most sanguine expectations in quality as well as quantity of work accomplished under the most unfavorable conditions.

Deputy Reeve Lillico of North Monaghan asserted that with a Fordson he worked 115 acres at a cost of $75 for fuel and oil, which outlay would no more than buy oats for horses during the plowing of the same acreage.

Mr. Duffus here remarked that of the 80 tractors sold in this district, 18 had been purchased by South Monaghan farmers, one of whom, Mr. Greer, declared that in plowing his 250 acres, he had only to work two days a week.

Manifold Operations

Messrs. Benson of Hamilton township, Scollard of Ennismore, and McCall of Asphodel, all spoke highly of the manifold operations of the Fordson, while Mr. Staples of Manvers, who purchased the second machine sold by Duffus Motor Sales, heartily endorsed all previous commendations of the Fordson.

Wilfrid Brown, who farms near Millbrook, had purchased the third Fordson sold by Duffus Motor Sales, and Harold Monerief of South Monaghan, who had purchased his tractor from the same firm in their second year's handling, of the machines, both expressed satisfaction with their purchases. The latter, in commending the "standing up" qualities of the Fordson, said that practically the only repair expense he had suffered was the replacing of a worn-out outside bearing on one of the front wheels.

Moving Pictures

The evening closed with exceedingly informative pictures showing the big Ford exhibit caravan in every detail. One saw ton trucks with twelve different bodies, including fire fighting equipment, agricultural tractor and complete line of power farming equipment; every model of the passenger car; also the industrial section depicting complete equipment for the Fordson Tractor, including trailers, dump bodies, and tractors with rubber wheels for heavy hauling. There were also pictured factory construction of the tractor and varied tractor operations.

Perhaps one of the most interesting and certainly an altogether instructive item on the exceedingly lengthy programme was a picturization from nature showing the proper preparation of seed beds for the germination of corn, thereby assuring a gain of seven days in the crop's maturing ready for market. In the case of wheat a gain of at least three or four days is the result of correct plowing and harrowing by the Fordson tractor, creating a bed firm and mellow which allows the moisture to rise in the soil and surround the seed kernel.

Mrs. Leblanc Wouldn't Take $50,000 For It

"It has been a year now since Tanlac helped me back to good health and I have never had a sick days since," is the high tribute paid the famous treatment, recently, by Mrs. Corine Leblanc, highly esteemed resident of 126 Stirling Ave., Ottawa, Ont.

"My stomach had troubled me for four years and I seemed to be right on the verge of a nervous breakdown. I scarcely ate enough to keep soul and body together, and I would not want to go through what I suffered from pain, shortness of breath and nervousness again for fifty thousand dollars.

"Since taking Tanlac I eat more heartily than I ever did, get eight and nine hours' peaceful sleep every night and am enjoying wonderful health. I give Tanlac all the credit for my recovery."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

LETTERS FROM

Tokyo." That is the best we can do in the present uncertainty. It will serve to relieve your minds, though I am comforted to think that you have no reason to imagine me in danger.

The hard thing is that we can do so little to help. You may think: "Why are not all in Tokyo to help do relief work?" We are not wanted there as there is not enough food for those that are there. We are sending down provisions, and we hope to make bandages. We have offered our services to the authorities as soon as there is anything to do. I expect to go to Bragana on Thursday; though we don't know about any of my three Japanese helpers, whether they are alive or dead. That is Onuke San and the three Bible women. Love to all.

Karuizawa, Sept. 3, 1923.

Dear Evelyn: I have written very fully to mother and father of our dreadful experiences of the last two days. You will get the letter, no doubt. This is just to say, Have no anxiety about me; even my goods are safe at Nagano. The first shock was dreadful, even here with a mountain range between. We have had two days of frequent shocks that have kept us on the jump day and night; of course the anxiety and horror of the thing are dreadful, but we must consider ourselves wonderfully fortunate. We can not think of our own fortune however for thinking of half a million dead, and another million suffering. We don't know about our school, and Miss Robertson, but Azabu i said to be pretty safe. It is difficult to get authentic information as there is no rail or wire communication. Love to all. LUELLA.

Karuizawa, Sept.4

Dear Aunt Annie: The news this morning is good. Miss Robertson is living and our school is standing. It seems like a miracle. That rickety old building! It is wonderful how many mission properties are safe. Of course we are hearing terrible stories, but in the midst of it we can rejoice at our own good news. We were turned out of bed once last night, but it is our nerves that makes it impossible to lie still during a quake. I can hardly write yet. We have so much to be thankful for. Love to all. LUELLA.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By SISTER MARY

SQUASH

In choosing a squash one runs about the same risk as in choosing a melon, for there is no accurate way of determining whether the squash be dry and mealy or watery and stringy.

However, it's a "safer bet" if the shell of the squash be very hard and the vegetable heavy in proportion to its size. A winter squash often has such a hard shell that it takes the hatchet to break it.

The yellow summer squash or vegetable marrows as they are called in England are delicious cut in slices and fried like croquettes, then sprinkled with grated cheese and browned quickly in the oven. But the summer squash will not keep as the winter squash will. Winter squash can be kept in a perfectly dry cool place for several weeks.

Squash is usually better baked than boiled. If there is any reason to believe it is watery try baking it. No extra water is added to increase the natural amount and the squash will bake quite as tender as it will boil tender.

If pumpkins are scarce try a squash pie. Squash custards are a delightful change and squash croquettes or scalloped squash make a delicious entree.

Squash Pie.

One cup cooked and sifted squash, ¼ cup sugar, 1¼ cups milk, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 egg, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon ginger, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, ½ teaspoon cinnamon.

Mix sugar, salt, spices and lemon juice with squash. Add egg slightly beaten. Stir in milk slowly, mixing until the mixture is smooth. Pour into a pie pan lined with rich pastry and put into a hot oven. After the first five minutes reduce heat and bake in a slow oven until custard is firm to the touch. The oven should be hot at first to bake the crust before it has a chance to become "soaked" with the custard.

Squash Custards.

Two cups cooked and sifted squash, 2 eggs, 1 cup brown sugar, ½ cup raisins, 1 teaspoon grated orange rind, 1 cup rich milk, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon mace, ½ teaspoon ginger.

Mix sugar, salt, spices and orange rind. Stir in raisins. Add yolks of eggs beaten until thick and lemon colored. Add milk, stirring until perfectly blended. Beat whites of eggs until stiff and dry and fold into first mixture. Turn into buttered custard cups and bake in a pan of hot water in a moderate oven until firm to the touch. It will take about 40 minutes.

Squash Croquettes.

Two cups cooked and sifted squash, 1 cup chopped nuts, 1 tablespoon butter, salt and pepper, dried bread or cracker crumbs, 1 egg.

Mix squash with nuts, salt and pepper. Form into small balls. Beat eggs slightly with one tablespoon water. Roll squash in crumbs, dip in egg and roll again in crumbs and fry in deep hot fat. Drain on brown paper. The fat should be hot enough to brown an inch cube of bread in 40 seconds.

Scalloped Squash.

Two cups cooked squash, 1 cup cracker crumbs, 2 tablespoons butter, ½ teaspoon salt, 1/8 teaspoon pepper, 1 egg, milk.

The squash should be boiled or baked and well mashed. To be sure of perfect smoothness rub through a potato ricer. If the squash is watery more cracker crumbs may be needed and very little milk should be used. Mix squash, crumbs, butter, salt and pepper and beat well. Add milk to make moist. Add egg unbeaten and beat the whole until light. Turn into a buttered baking dish and bake 20 minutes in a hot oven.

FIREMEN TESTED OUT STEAMER ON TUESDAY

The Big Engine Turned in a Good Performance.

Yesterday at 12.14 the fire department were called out to a small fire at 514 Weller Street. The fire was caused by sparks from the chimney lighting on the roof of the barn. In a short time the firemen had the fire extinguished. The loss was estimated at about $5 or $10.

This morning the fire department was called out to a small fire at 541 Water Street. This fire was caused by hot ashes in the cellar. No damage was done. The fire was soon put out by the use of chemicals.

On Tuesday morning at 7 o'clock the fire department took the steamer down to the George Street Wharf and tested it. They laid four lines of hose with 200 feet in each line. They used one and one-eighth inch nozzles at 100 pounds pressure and 900 gallons per minute. They also used a 2-inch nozzle on a 250-foot line, getting a pressure of 850 gallons per minute. Out of 1,000 feet of hose only one length burst. The engine was running for one hour and worked satisfactorily from start to finish.

The Million Dollar Doll

By C. N. and A. M. Williamson

Authors of "The Lightning Conductor"

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY

Miles Sheridan, aware of his wife's infidelity is attempting to facilitate her obtaining a divorce by creating a scandal about himself. To this end he offers $20,000 to

Juliet Divine, a beautiful showgirl known as the Million Dollar Doll, if she will take a yacht trip with him. Juliet is unable to go herself, but greedy for the money, she persuades

Teresa Desmond (Terry) her lovely and unbelievably innocent half-sister an exquisite counterpart of herself, to go in her stead, masquerading as the Million Dollar Doll. Ever since a kindness Miles did her in childhood, Terry had made him her Dream Prince.

Betty Sheridan, Miles wife, is in love with

Paul Di Salvano, a handsome Italian.

Eustace Nazlo, a wealthy Greek, who does not know of Terry's relationship to Juliet, is in love with the younger girl, and is surprised to meet her at Monte Carlo with Miles.

Mrs. Harkness, Miles' old servant, prepared to hate the "Million Dollar Doll" is won over by Terry's sweetness and charm. Miles has stipulated that he will have nothing to do with the girl, on the voyage, but his resolve is wavering although he does not recognize the little girl whom he befriended so long ago.

Miss Caroline Sheridan, his aunt, sojourning at Monte Carlo, is horrified at Miles' action, and comes on board the yacht to talk to Terry.

Miss Caroline's well-meaning advice to the "Million Dollar Doll" leaves Terry bewildered and miserable.

Nazlo reviews what had gone before between him and Terry. The girl had run away from him one night, back in New York and her unscrupulous father Desmond, had told Eustace she had gone to stay with friends.

CHAPTER LVII.

The Shoe King, A Detective

After questioning Terry's father, Nazlo returned to New York, but from his apartment he called up a detective agency. It wasn't difficult to discover that no telegram such as Desmond described had been delivered, in fact he had received none at all on the morning in question. The next step was not so easy; and more than a week passed before the detective engaged to run the girl to earth, could learn from an old gardener at the convent that Teresa Desmond had not returned to the fold.

Desmond had lied. Nazlo wondered why. The girl's father had trusted her to him in the first place, knowing that he had not the reputation of a saint. The proprietor of the Blue Moon couldn't be shocked at what happened in New York, even if he'd heard an exaggerated story. There was a different reason for his evasions. Nazlo racked his brains for it; and news of Natalie's illness in Marseilles found no room in his thoughts. She'd been ill before, and the nurse was on hand to look after Eustace junior.

It occurred to Nazlo that Desmond wished to turn his attention from New York, therefore he deduced that Terry was there. But New York was a big haystack in which to find one needle.

Because the task looked hopeless, Nazlo never ceased thinking of it and the girl. Mentally he lived through every moment of their evening together, hoping to stumble upon some clue. Then, at last, he recalled her interest in Riverside Drive, how she's asked to pass along slowly and look at the houses.

Now he asked himself: Among the thousands of dwellers on Riverside Drive, in which she had been so interested was there one likely to be a friend of little Teresa Desmond's? He reviewed names, and finally that of Juliet Divine sprang into his head. That likeness! What a tenth-rate fool he'd been not to put two and two together, before this

He jumped to the conclusion that Juliet Divine, the Million Dollar Doll, and Teresa Desmond of the Blue Moon Inn were closely related, probably sisters, and that the father wished to conceal the fact, either because he was ashamed of Juliet, or because she was ashamed of him.

The detective was consulted, and sent out on the trail once more. It sounded like a soft job, if the two were living in Juliet's apartment, but it proved baffling. If the younger girl was there, she was being hidden.

The one servant in Miss Divine's employ was not to be "drawn"; and before anything definite had been learned, a cablegram from Marseilles had to be answered by Nazlo in person.

Natalie had had an apopletic fit, the nurse wired, and had passed away without regaining consciousness. Nazlo was free, without scandal. He had never dared hope for such luck. It had seemed to happen only in books.

He left at once for the South of France, to settle affairs, and to take charge of the child, whom he determined to educate in America. The boy was not well, however, and what had seemed a feverish cold developed into scarlatine. Waiting at Marseilles bored Nazlo; and as none knew that he ought to be a mourning widower, there was no harm in killing time at Monte Carlo.

Natalie Coreze had been dead a fortnight, when he met Miles Sheridan and Terry on the Casino Terrace: and only the day before he had received a telegram from his employee in New York: "J. D. supposed married to Spaniard. Certainly has left home. Rumour younger girl with her. Apartment let strangers. Will send further news promptly."

If Juliet were married, she would not quite so soon be at Monte Carlo with Miles Sheridan. Besides, she would not have started at sight of a face from New York. Where she went, she flaunted herself. No. The girl with Sheridan was Terry Desmond.

As Nazlo accepted this supposition, a real sadness was in his heart. The thought that she had been taken from him by another man—a man above his social "climb"—made him sure that he really loved the child. He could not remember caring as much for any girl, as he cared for her. She was different from the rest. Though he had made up his mind to marry a "swell" if he could get one, he felt that if Terry had been kind he might have been tempted to offer her Natalie's place. She was so beautiful, so attractive, that with his money she might make a brilliant success. Now it was too late—because of Miles Sheridan. As things were Nazlo would not want Terry for his wife; yet he could not bear to give her up, having found her. Something that he thought was his heart, ached with a grinding ache.

He determined to learn what he could about Sheridan and the girl, without approaching them again, until he should know his own mind. Throughout the morning he heard nothing. Every one he knew, who knew Sheridan, seemed surprised at the arrival of the pair. In the afternoon, in the bar of the Sporting Club however, he came across an acquaintance who spoke of Sheridan. This man was able to tell that Sheridan had brought his yacht, "Silverwood," into Monaco harbour early that day.

Nazlo had seen Miles and the girl playing roulette in the Club, though he had kept in the background, out of sight. They looked absorbed and he counted that the "tables" would hold them for some time to come. He was stopping at the Hotel De Paris, and a car he had hired was in a garage close by. Five minutes after he had hurried out of the Club, and in his car, reached the port.

He had no intention of going on board the yacht. There would be nothing to gain by trying that game. But there was a detective strain in the Greek Shoe King, and an instinct that told him he might "pick up something" down at the harbour.

Having arrived, he got out of the car and walked about, pretending to interest himself in the small, brightly painted boats lying ready for hire. He had eyes to spare, however, for other things, and he blinked in the sunshine as he stared at "Silverwood," white as a great swan in the green water.

As he gazed, a woman's figure slowly descended the gangway, and seated itself solidly in a waiting boat; the figure of an elderly woman, he thought. Two smart sailors began to row her swiftly towards shore, and they had not taken many strokes, before Nazlo was inspired. A taxi was standing near his car. He went to it, and offered a hundred francs to the chauffeur. "Go up to the Hotel du Louvre and ask if Mr. Eustace Nazlo is staying there," he ordered. "If not, you needn't come back to tell me. I shall expect you only if the answer is 'Yes'."

The man drove off grinning, though he had been engaged to take a woman to Mentone. He would not have received more than forty francs for that service, counting return fare.

Nazlo was sure that the taxi would not come back.

Lakeviews Capture Junior O.B.A.A. Pennant

DECISIVE VICTORY AT HAMILTON IN THIRD GAME OF THE FINALS

Lakeviews Earn Another Championship For Peterboro By Taking Two Out of the Three Games From Niagara Falls.

PLAYED GOOD BALL.

Showing a fighting spirit that would admit no possibility of defeat and standing up nobly under the nervous tension of their most exciting game of the year, Lew Lebarr's Lakeviews captured the Junior Ontario championship for Peterboro by defeating the Niagara Falls crew at Hamilton yesterday by 11 runs to 6 in the final game for the O.B.A.A. title.

It was a victory that reflects the greatest credit upon the Peterboro youngsters. Although the margin was large at the finish the final score conveys little impression of the closeness of the battle or of the feverish excitement that characterized the day's proceedings. It was not until the Petes scored three runs in the last half of the eighth and increased their lead to five counters that they could begin to feel that the honors were won.

The Falls crew got a one run lead in the third only to have the Lakeviews come back with two. In the next frame the losers tied it in the first half but Lew Lebarr's youngsters shot two markers over. The Cataract representatives cut one run off the lead in the fifth and the score remained at 4 to 3 until the last half of the seventh when the Petes clouted four runs over giving them an 8 to 3 advantage.

That looked safe enough but Frankie Whitehouse's good left arm went suddenly lame in the eighth and when the first three Niagara Falls batters combined a triple, a single and a home run for three quick runs it was necessary to send Doug. Moore to his relief, Whitehouse finishing the game at second.

Moore went in cold with the Falls only two runs behind, nobody out and the Niagara rooters splitting the skies with their war whoops as they imagined they saw victory coming, but the rescue pitcher went calmly to work, using a curve ball to good advantage and shut down the Falls rally like a veteran, getting the side out in the eighth without further scoring and blanking the losers in the final frame.

Meanwhile the war clubs of the Petes had hammered three more counters home in their half of the eighth and the championship was won. Moore's steadiness in a critical situation was a big factor.

Up to the time his arm went back on him Whitehouse had pitched great ball, keeping the Falls hits well scattered and allowing them only one earned run, a homer by Clark that was none too clean as Whitlow badly misjudged the drive. The Petes' left hander was resorting to his hook ball much more frequently than usual and two much curving had its effect on his arm. Whitehouse has had a wonderful season with the Lakeviews and his work yesterday was in keeping with his record throughout the long schedule that ended with the Ontario title.

Every man on the Peterboro line up had a share of the glory yesterday and the whole team came through in the pinch like real champions, outhitting and outfielding the western representatives.

The "wrecking crew" Moore, Whitlow, Collins and Whitehouse had a field day on the attack the four getting eleven out of the fourteen hits collected by the Petes. Whitlow with a triple and two singles drove in five runs, Collins drove in four with a homer and a timely single and Cameron supplied the punch that chased in the other two. Moore and Whitehouse each had three hits in four times up and the former scored three runs while McIntyre had two safeties in four appearances.

The team played nice ball in the field, being at their best in a tight corner. The feature play and one that had a great deal to do with the final result was pulled off in the first inning by Lew Lebarr. The Falls had got away to a good start when Clark led off with a double and Clunie bunted safely and stole second, Whitehouse struck out Dumas but Niagara still had runners on second and third. It was at this stage that the Petes first baseman interjected his sensational play. The Falls strategy was to "squeeze" the run over and get the jump on the Easterners. Clark sent sail for the plate as Whitehouse delivered the ball and Arscott bunted a pop fly towards first. Lebarr, however, had outguessed the opposition and had dashed in with the pitch. Running at top speed he reached over and grabbed the fly with his gloved hand an inch off the [illegible] and then doubled [illegible] of quick [illegible] games, six errors being chalked up against them.

Orville Smith the left hander who won Saturday's game for them was sent back at the Petes but although he struck out eleven men, the Lakeviews bunched hits on him very effectively and finally drove him out of the box in the seventh with a fusilade that included a clean homer by Collins down the first base line. Hudson, a right hander ended the scoring in that frame but the Petes jumped him for three earned runs in the eighth, demonstrating that all pitchers looked alike to them yesterday.

The game was played at Victoria Park, a fast hard field without a blade of grass anywhere and on which ground balls gather up speed as they roll.

A crowd of over 2500 people saw the battle and the rooting was something to remember. Mayor Newman of Niagara Falls declared a half holiday for the occasion and His Worship led a delegation of four or five hundred lusty lunged fans over to Hamilton, a special train bringing a large number while other Falls supporters motored over. The Petes had no following with them but they did not lack for support the Hamilton fans who were there in hundreds swinging in behind them and rooting as lustily as if a Hamilton team was in action. The Lakeviews thoroughly appreciated the help they obtained from the good people of the Ambitious City.

The umpires Jackson and Hennessy of Hamilton handled the game in good style and there was not a yelp from either team during the afternoon.

Excellent arrangements for the play off were made by Mr. W. J. Snyder of Hamilton, the Western O.B.A.A. representative whose kindness and courtesy were appreciated.

First Innings.

Niagara Falls. — Clarke doubled through third. Clunie bunted and was safe when Whitehouse threw to third too late to get Clarke, Clunie stole second. Dumas fanned. Arscott bunted to L. Lebarr, who made a sensational one-handed catch and doubled Clark off third. No runs, one hit, no errors.

GIANTS WIN IN BENEFIT GAME

Four Home Runs in Game With Baltimore in Tuning Up Series.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—The New York Giants, National League champions, to-day defeated Baltimore, International League pennant winners, in a exhibition game 9 to 3.

Babe Ruth, Aaron Ward and Elmer Smith of the Yankees, took part in the contest, which was for the benefit of John B. Day and James Mulrie, who were associated in the ownership of the Giants in the early days of the club. Ruth retired after knocking out a home run in the fifth innings.

Emil Meusel, Kelly and Cunningham also hit home runs.

The Giants will go to Baltimore to morrow to play two additional games with the International League champions before returning to New York to put the finishing touches on their tuning up for the world's series. Score:

Baltimore 3 3 4
New York 9 10 0

Groves Ogden, Frank and Cobb; Scott, Ryan and Gaston.

Umpires, Klem and Wilson. Time of game 1.44.

DESPERATE RACE FOR KANSAS CITY

Only Half a Game Over St. Paul and Five to Go.

CHICAGO, Oct. 3. — St. Paul, fighting desperately, kept pace with Kansas City in the close American Association pennant race to-day by winning 4 to 2 from Indianapolis, while the Blues won from Columbus 11 to 6, and retained their advantage of one half a game over their rivals. The season will close on Sunday. Each club has a postponed game with its next opponents, Kansas City being trying to play Toledo five innings. SPEAKER EQUALS WORLD'S RECORD

Cracked Out His 56th Double of the Season.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 4.—(Canadian Press)—By knocking out his 56th two-base hit of the season at St. Louis today, Tris Speaker, star outfielder and manager of the Cleveland Indians, equalled the world's record. Ray Kolp was pitching for the Browns when Speaker drove out the hit in the third inning.

The former world's record was held by E. Delehanty, who established it in 1899. Speaker broke his own American League record of 53 doubles in one season at Philadelphia, September 26, when he knocked out a two-bagger in each game of a double-header.

Speaker established the former American League record in 1907, when he was a member of the pennant-winning Red Sox.

Five games remain on the Indians' schedule.

CLEVELAND AND DETROIT WINNERS

Tigers Made It Three Straight Victories From White Sox.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 3. — Cleveland hit Kolp timely and often, winning to-day's game, 9 to 2.

With the bases filled in the fourth inning, Summa hit over the right field fence for a homer, scoring behind O'Neill, Uhle and Jamieson. Score:

Detroit's Third in a Row.

CHICAGO, Oct. 3. — The Detroit Tigers defeated the Chicago White Sox for the third straight time today, 8 to 4. Robertson was hit hard in spots and retired after seven innings. The Sox could do nothing with Whitehall, a recruit left hander who held them to three hits until the eighth inning. Heilman was forced to remain out of the game because of an injured arm caused by his stumbling over first base in yesterday's game. Score:

Swept Entire Series.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3. — The baseball season closed in this city today, Philadelphia taking the final game of the series from Washington 12 to 8. The victory gave the home club a clean sweep of the final sweep of the final series on the local grounds and was largely due to the wildness of Roe, a recruit pitcher for the Senators, who walked six men in the second inning. Score:

Roe, Warmouth, Ochmenski and Ruel, Hargrave; Meeker and Perkins.

BASEBALL

The Brockville Recorder and Times comments as follows on the C.G.E. games here, Monday.

Over half of the spectators at the gam, were from Brockville and the supporters of the local team stuck to their rooting task from start to finish.

Th, Peterboro team had eight left on bases, while Brockville had 10 left helpless on the sacks.

Rose struck out seven and walked four.

Barrie, second base, made a thrilling stab at Taber's drive over the second base line in the ninth and made a nice peg to first sack for the out.

Simon retired Rose in the first and fifth innings with sensational catches and in the third pulled down a mean looking hit by Jackson. Hunter in left field grabbed one off Halls bat that was labeled for the outer garden.

Rose, the Peterboro hero of yesterday's game, works a side step in the box which gives him an advantage over the batter. It is questionable if his delivery is entirely legal and the Brockville management should keep their eyes on him if he pitches the next game.

FOUR YANKS CRIPPLED WITH A WEEK TO REST

Ruth, Pipp, Meusel and McNally All Nursing Injured Ankles.

READY FOR GIANTS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Four members of the New York Yankees, including Babe Ruth, their star of stars, were on the casualty list to-day but with a week remaining before the opening of the World's Series, all are expected to round into condition again by the time the club takes the field against the Giants.

Wally Pipp, whose ankle injury was reported to be so serious that he might not be able to start the series, hobbled into the Yankee offics today, aided by a cane, to announce that he was improving rapidly and would be at first base for the American League champions in the opening game. Pipp twisted his ankle in the series with the Red Sox at Boston recently.

Ruth, who was discussed as a likely substitute at the initial bag in case Pipp is kept out, also has a tender ankle. The injury is not serious, but he will give it all the rest it needs, however, for the next few days. The Babe also developed a slight infection of the hand in Boston, but this was said to have practically disappeared.

McNally, utility infielder, and Bob Meusel, outfielder, are the others on the casualty list, both with sprained ankles.

The Yankees return tomorrow to the Stadium for a series with the Athletics that will wind up the season for both clubs.

LAKEVIEWS WERE LOUDLY WELCOMED

Crowd at C. P. R. Station Escorted Them Up Town Last Night.

Lou Lebarr's champion Lakeviews were welcomed home from Hamilton last night by seevral hundred fans armed with fireworks, bands and that glorious feeling that breaks out in cheers and songs.

When the C.P.R. midnight train arrived the station platform was crowded by regular followers of the team and many other citizens who wished to show their appreciation of the gameness and ability that brought to Peterboro its first junior O.B.A.A. championship.

Mayor Taylor, G. N. Gordon and W. H. Bradburn told the Lakeview team how highly the people of Peterboro regarded their performance by going through the long season of home games followed by the playoffs in all the rounds down to the final series.

Something was said of the local pride in the team on account of their string of victories and of the example the Lakeviews had set for the boys of the city. In the roars of cheers somebody called for a speech from Manager Lebarr but he had dodged that part of the impromptu programme. He emerged again at the Lakeview car as the automobile procession started up George Street from the station.

It was headed by the Caledonian Band at full strength and they playing gay, stirring tunes like the "Cock of the North." Bob Hendry himself was out in front of the pipers and he looking as pleased and happy as on a Burns night celebration. Down the line came the Hensley-Dugan Jazz Band, otherwise known as the shock corps of the rooters' chorus, who so incensed the Niagara Falls boys here that they went home and told their papas they had been boo-ed, with the result that Niagara Falls handed the Lakeviews in the second game the roughest razzing any team got all season. However, the Lakeviews won out on the diamond, so that leaves the razz title on the pates of the Falls pah-pahs.

Another band was composed of a collection of clarinets and other instruments, but whether they were Rangers or the Melody Band some one else must know. It doesn't make much difference. They were part of the welcoming crowd, and that included the whole happy company.

Eddie Wright, manager of the Adanacs who were put out of the running in the local series by the Lakeviews gave another proof of his sportsmanship by opening up a big box of Roman candles, that lit up the reception at the station and nearby all the way up George street.

Unwittingly the parade wound up at the Empress Hotel after circling Hunter street and Water, and had the boys known of the illness of the proprietor's wife they would have chosen another course. In the circumstances the concluding incidents were hurried and hushed. Mayor Taylor announced that the Lakeviews would be fittingly entertained (by whom, he didn't state) when the O.B.A.A. season is all over. Evidently His Worship is counting on the C.G.E. adding the intermediate pennant to Peterboros' 1923 collection.

$100,000 Movie Offer Is Accepted By Firpo

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—(Canadian Press)—Luis Angel Firpo has forsaken, temporarily, the resined arena for the silver screen.

It was learned today that the "Wild Bull of the Pampas," has accepted an offer of $100,000 from a Los Angeles motion picture concern for a silent drama, to be filmed in the pugilist's native Argentine.

AMERICAN ENTRY IN SCHOONER RACE

"Columbia" Eligible For Fishermen's Cup Sailing Contest.

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 3. — The trustees of the International Fishermen's Cup to-day, declared the American schooner Columbia eligible to compete for the trophy.

Following a meeting of the trustees this afternoon the following wire, signed by the secretary of the trustees, E. A. Saunders, was despatched to Wilmot A. Reed, secretary of the American Race Committee, Gloucester:

"Telegram received. Measurements given for Columbia make her eligible as challenger under this year's rules, except slight difference in freeboard, which trustees are willing to concede. If any other previously constructed vessel nominated she must comply with last year's rules regarding draught, water line, sail area, etc. October 20 suggested date first race. Telegraph soon as possible if you propose challenging so we can make the necessary arrangements."

The Nova Scotia fleet race which will decide a defender for the fishermen's trophy now held for the province by the schooner Bluenose, will be held off Lunenburg this year at a date yet to be set, but probably around October 12.

Kid Gleason Retained As White Sox Manager.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—(Canadian Press)—Kid Gleason will not be dropped as manager of the Chicago Americans, nor will he replace Ty. Cobb as manager of the Detroit Americans, according to the Chicago Herald and Examiner today.

Ty Cobb is collecting $60,000 a year for leading the Detroit team and is serving the first year on a five-year contract as manager. Gleason was offered the Tiger managership three years ago, and declined to accept the leadership of the White Sox.

"Ty Cobb can manage the Detroit Club just as long as he lives," the Herald and Examiner quoted President Frank Navin of the Detroit Club as saying.

Rumors that Gleason was to be retired as Chicago's manager have resulted from the position of the team in the second division, the newspaper stated.

RUETHER GETS $1,000 BONUS

Finished the Season With His Fifteenth Victory.

BOSTON, Oct. 3. — Ruether brought his season's string of victories to 15 to-day by defeating Boston, 8 to 6. The Brooklyn Club accordingly will pay him the promised $1,000 bonus for this number of wins. Fournier's hitting and McInnis' work at first base were the only features of the game. The score:

P.C.I. FIELD SPORTS TO BE HELD FRIDAY

Sport is booming around the local Collegiate at this time of year. Friday afternoon the students will stage their annual Field Day of sports at the Exhibition grounds. The entries this year are exceptionally large and the competition keen. All those interested in port and especially the friends of the school should be on hand Friday at 2.30 to see the Collegiate athletes perform. The jumps have already been held and provided some excitement although no previous records were broken.

Monday after school the cross country race will be run off. This race is over a three and half mile course for seniors and a distance of about two miles for juniors. This race is hard grind and the boys sepnd many hours preparing for it. It generally turns in a big surprise at the finish.

BECKETT ALLOWED A SHARE OF PURSE

Was Held Up Because Towel Tossed Into Ring.

LONDON, Oct. 4.—(Canadian Press)—The boxing officials today decided that Joe Beckett, British heavyweight champion, should receive his share of the purse for his fight with Georges Carpentier, payment of which was held up after the fight Monday night.

It appears that the money, amounting to between £3,000 and £4,000, was withheld because the officials considered that the action of Beckett's seconds in throwing a towel into the ring as a signal of defeat after the Englishman had been knocked down three times, was unjustified. Upon further consideration, however, it was decided that Beckett could not be held responsible for this "indiscretion."

The bout was scheduled for twenty rounds, but ended twenty seconds after the opening bell was sounded.

THURS.--FRI.--SAT.

THE G. W. V. A. LAUNCHES CAMPAIGN

To all veterans of Peterboro and district surrounding this is addressed, yet it is hoped that many others will read and perhaps find something worth serious thought.

The G. W. V. A. is launching a campaign for membership. The objective to be attained is 1000. It is hoped that the advance will be carried much farther.

The reasons for this campaign fall into two divisions—our duty to ourselves and our duty to our neighbor—our King and Country if you wish to express it so. Yet these two are so closely related and interwoven that no good end may be attained by trying to define them in this way, nor will I now attempt it.

In the first place, my experience of veterans' affairs has impressed it upon me that, if only for self defense, the need for the veterans being strongly organized will never be greater than for the next five or ten years. The strong light thrown by the Ralston Commission and the many side-lights revealed during its sittings showed that very thoroughly. Further proof of a most convincing character was had in the passage of the resultant bill through the Dominion Parliament. This passed the Commons quite well, had some trials and tribulations in the Senate, but after several complimentary opinions expressed to the Pension Commissions was finally passed in its main provisions. Then it was sent to the law clerk to see that it was without technical mistake, and what happened? The law clerk had some of the Pensions people at his elbow and they very materially altered the bill in two of its important provisions to the detriment of the returned men; the dear old Senate not suspecting anything being put over them, ratified it in the dying hours of the session and the royal assent sealed it.

Do many of you know how the rulings under the Workmen's Compensation Act adversely affect the partially disabled man? It is a very proper subject for the study of all veterans. I could quote many other things and I dare say many of you could quote more things than I can. We do not want the earth nor even all of Canada—we could not use it if we had it—but we do want justice. We desire that the intentions of the people of Canada, of which we are a part, shall be duly carried out. If we fall asleep on the job, who is going to stay awake and watch for us? Why, no one. We cannot complain of the attitude of the ordinary man on the street which is largely this: I know you had a hard job over there and that many of you will never be as fit as when you went away; I want to do right by you; you claim that no one can as well judge of the needs of the returned man who is in any degree disabled as the returned man can, I am willing to grant that, but if you are able to judge you should also be able to prove your case, or in other words, show me and I will help you. If we are to do that we must be organized for it is not given to every man to be able properly to state his case.

It seems to me, however, that we have a more important function to perform and that it is time for a real forward movement of the veterans. In time of war, as expressed by that French veteran, we offered our lives for our country; she has not taken them, those of us who returned—at most she took part of our bodies, part of our health. In the case of most of us we may say we are re-established in civilian life. When we returned from overseas we found the fellow who worked along side us, had prospered and owned a flivver or had started buying a house or was wearing silk shirts and otherwise spending his surplus in more or less riotous living. We have lived through some hard times since and have seen the unsuccessful efforts of the flivver owner to keep his car. We have seen the mortgage foreclosed on the partially paid for house. The man who wore the silk shirt now wears the same kind as the rest of us. Gradually in the general leveling process that first galling sense of wrong (upon which throve such agitators as J. Harry Flynn) has passed. It is coming to be felt that it is time to take stock of ourselves and our surroundings.

We find that the real voice of the returned man has not been heard. Yet we feel and know that we learned quite a few things over there—things that would be much to the general advantage of Canada if they could find expression. Considering the general attitude on many things and the opinions voiced thereon, we feel that there is still much truth in Shakespeare's old adage that "Home-keeping youths have ever homely wit." Now what do we see when we look about? In the heart of the empire is a conclave of representatives of the countries of this Empire. New Zealand sends the only war premier of them all, who still holds his job. Australia's premier walks with a limp well obtained at the front. South Africa sends Gen. Smuts. Canada's delegation—composed of "Home-keeping youths," so to speak, who fear to think of a voice for Canada in shaping the foreign policy of the Empire, lest they be reminded that such a voice carries certain responsibilities as to the defence of that policy. Don't imagine that I am talking politics. The veterans are not in politics as such. But we must remember that we are part of the body politic of our country, and that as such it is our duty to consider such things and bear our part of the responsibility for determining the policy followed.

Cone closer home. Is there a returned man on the city council? Is there one on the school board? Yet have we not noted several good points in regard to town management, town planning, etc.? Have we not accumulated several good ideas on the matter of the education of children?

Why then is it that our ideas remain unexpressed, our accumulated knowledge not made available for the general service of our country? Is it not because we have left it so to speak, in solution and failed to crystalize or boil it down. It seems to me that we have not been pulling our proper weight in the country and that it is high time that we did so, that the call "Your King and Country need you" has not lost its force, but has altered its application, that the ideal of "service" must still be ours though directed to new channels, that must concentrate not solely or even largely on compelling the righting of grievances, but to so order ourselves that this work will automatically be done because we have become a strong and vibrant force in the land serving no interest before the general good, respecting the rights of others, tolerant of frailties and mistakes because we have seen many of the one and made many of the other, but intolerant of wrongs, not afraid of that which is new nor ridiculing that which is old. This, comrades, though ill expressed, will serve to show somewhat of what I mean when I say it is time for a general advance by the veterans.

Here are the plans for starting it locally. We want a large membership; otherwise we can't get your views, we can't carry on the work we should be doing. We want every one—the ex-officer, the ex-N.C.O., the ex-private. One thousand would be good, two thousand would be better. We have done a good deal of housecleaning to get the local headquarters all ready for you; if it is not quite finished to your liking when you come in, perhaps you might turn in and help. We are cutting our overhead and when you all come in our income will be considerably increased although we have cut our fees to $1.25 per half year.

With the hall filled each monthly meeting night, we will have no trouble in getting good speakers from far or near to address us (after an hour's business meeting) on some live subject of which they are masters—a sort of Veterans' Canadian Club. When an election is on what would be more interesting than to hear leaders of opposite parties on the same night explain their policies. When a municipal contest was on, where could the candidates better show of what stuff they are made. Why not train speakers of our own in a debating division and hold contests and meet the debaters of other organizations? But why enlarge further. When you are all with us there will be so many constructive ideas advanced that it will only be a matter of choice which to put into effect.

The past is past, the present is with us, the future before us. We must learn from the past to act in the present and so prepare for the future. Swing in with the membership drive, then stay with the steady push forward.

N. H. SUTTON,
President G.W.V.A.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND.

A GREAT AUTHOR, A GREAT ACTOR, AND A GREAT PLAY.

Our acquaintance with the Old Country will be removed next Saturday afternoon and evening at the Grand Opera House, when the leading British actor, Bransby Williams, and his London company who are making a tour of the Dominion, will present Charles Dickens' "David Copperfield." On opening the tour recently in Montreal, the Canadian public was quick to respond to Bransby Williams 'invitation to witness the presentation of Charles Dickens' characters in the flesh, and by vociferous applause showed that they thoroughly appreciated his splendid efforts to imbue them with the spirit of the great novelist and humanitarian. In "David Copperfield" we have examples of the finest British humor, pathos, love and unselfishness. What character could be more lovable than the old Yarmouth fisherman, Peggotty? who so full of mannerisms, grandiloquent speech and piquant humor as Wilkins Micawber? Bransby Williams, himself, has devoted his life to the study of Dickens, is a vice-president of the Dickens Fellowship in England, and owns many souvenirs of the famous novelist, among which may be mentioned the author's table silver, the window through which Bill Sykes pushed Oliver Twist to commit the robbery, and the original window through which the immortal Dickens himself gazed for hours at at time when a poor boy in London. Box office now open. Prices 50c to $2.00.

AT THE REGENT.

WHEN YOU GAMBLE DON'T USE YOUR OWN MONEY

Robert Edeson, as Broker, Gives Sound Advice in "The Silent Partner."

He says he never gambles for pleasure. And in his office hangs the sign, GAMBLE WITH THE OTHER FELLOW'S MONEY — NOT YOUR OWN.

He is mercenary and merciless in business transactions. And he makes up his mind to manipulate the stock market so as to break his best friend —and wreck his home.

This is the kind of villain Robert Edeson depicts in the powerful Paramount picture, "The Silent Partner," a Charles Maigne production, which comes to the Regent Theatre to-day. Leatrice Joy, Owen Moore and Robert Edeson are featured.

More than 25 years of prominent stage experience has well equipped Robert Edeson for his screen carer: He was first seen in a Paramount picture in "The Call of the North," and has appeared for most of the large producers. His role of the silent money power and juggler of stock quotations in the picture gives ample scope for his ability.

AT THE ROYAL.

"MASTERS OF MEN" MORGAN ROBERTSON'S GREAT SEA STORY

AT ROYAL TO-NIGHT

A splendid cast has been afforded "Masters of Men' the great sea story by Morgan Robertson, which the Royal Theatre will show to-day, Friday and Saturday headed by Earle Williams, Alice Calhoun, Cullen Landis and Wanda Hawley. The story is striking, vivid picturization of life at sea with the background of a heart stirring love drama involving the four principal characters.

It is a picture of youth and it is as fresh and wholesome as a breath of sea upon which the action occurs. Dick Halpin, an orphan living in a small town, is falsely accused of a theft committeed by the brothers of thegirl he loves. He accepts of a theft, committed by the brother of thegirl he loves. Te accepts theblani the girl he loves. He accepts the blame, in order to spare her humiliation, runs away and joins the Navy While on shore leave Dick and Lieutenant Breen his superior are shanghaied and flung into the forecastle of the "Mary Earl" commanded by one of the most brutal of old time sea masters. The boys fight their way out of their difficulties and man age to escape and rejoin their ship just as the Spanish fleet is coming out of the harbor of Santiago. Dick's heroism helps save the day.

Two phases of sea life are realistically portrayed: the clean, wholesome conditions on board a United States battleship and the brutality and cruelty men suffered on board a sailing ship. Vitagraph has spared no expense in staging the ordinary seaman's days before the mast and assisted by the United States Navy Department the producers have been enabled to show the most authentic scenes of naval life ever filmed.

A novelty baseball comedy featuring Buddy Messenger is listed among the added attractions. Two performances will be given Saturday night at 7 and 9.

"MERRY-GO-ROUND" BLEND OF TEARS AND OF SMILES

"Candy ice cream, chewing gum, popcorn and peanuts——"

"— Right this way ladies and gentlemen ,to see the only living Amazon — "

"The show is just starting, folks —step right in—Bozo, the king of the leopards and Pinky, the baby giraffe that everybody is talking about will do their famous trick of — ".

Carnival, circus, Coney Island — whatever the place is the atmosphere is one thing—to children and to most grownups. It means playtime—the time to act like kids whatever the age.

Whats behind these clown clothes —aching hearts? The painted smiles—do they hide bitter tears? Can these "freaks," these crazy, gambolling funsters be human?

The smiles and the tragedy the happiness and the sorrow in the lives of these people are shown dramatically and graphically in the Universal Super-Jewel spectacle, 'Merry Go-Round," which is coming to the Royal Theatre on Monday "Merry-Go-Round" is a drama of the merry-go-round is life, the whirligig of fate and it is laid in the great amusement park of the famous old world capital Vienna. The Prater is what it's called there—it is the same thing as America's Coney Island.

The heroine of the "Merry-Go-Round' is one of these people. She is an organ grinder who provides the melody as the revolving platform whirls around. Her father, her mother, one of her sweethearts and all of her friends are of this place.

"Merry-Go-Round," though a spectacle in proportions is not a spectacle in the average sense. The story is simple, dramatic, compelling —but not loaded with spectacular scenes. The love story is the thing all other features being subordinated to that.

C.G.E. OFF TO NAPANEE.

The C.G.E. team will leave the C.G.E. gate Friday morning at 6.45 for Napanee, where the play-off with Brockville will take place. The following players are requested to be there on time and warmly dressed for the long drive by motor: Frost, Galbraith, Rose, Ross, Rogers, Dugan, Barrie, Ranger, Jackson, Hall, McCarney, McPherson, Webb and Primeau.

MOVING PICTURES ON THE FARM

CHICAGO (United Press).—The National Farm Bureau plans to show motion pictures in 15,000 townships this winter in its campaign to take "city joys" to the farms.

Methods of distributing the films were perfected at the meeting of the publicity department held here recently.

At the present time the bureau has a library of 31 films adapted to rural audiences. Many of the films were made by the bureau's own company.

The officials expressed hope that they would be able to place a motion picture machine in every farming community in the United States.

C. O. BALL LEAGUE EXECUTIVE MET

Unanimous Opinion that Central Ontario Would Revert to One Group Next Season.

OSHAWA, October 4. — At the executive meeting of the Central Ontario Baseball League held in Cobourg yesterday afternoon the following members attended:

Past Presidents, A. C. Kimmel, Cobourg, and E. Parsons, Oshawa; President M. J. Dedman, Lindsay; 2nd Vice-President, J. J. Solomon, Peterborough; Sec.-Treas., J. G. Nott, Oshawa; F. C. Convery, Peterboro; W. P. Henderson, Leaside; C. M. Anderson, Oshawa; T. J. Turpin, Cobourg. R. D. Adams, Belleville.

It was the unanimous opinion of those present that the Central Ontario would revert back to one group for the season of 1924, and that the anual meeting would be held either in Bowmanville or Lindsay, the second Wednesday following the semi-anual gathering of the Ontario Baseball Amateur Association, and that clubs must deposit their entry with fees on the new date of the annual meeting.

W. P. Henderson and Secretary Nott were appointed delegates to attend the O.B.A.A. and were instructed to work for a residence rule of March 1st, and later Secretary Nott was instructed to notify Kingston Baseball Association they were suspended until the fees due the league are forthcoming.

The treasurer was ordered to refund one-third of the gate receipts taken at the Belleville-Peterboro game at Cobourg, the same to be equaly divided between the two teams; also that Belleville and Oshawa's mileage for the game in Peterboro be paid.

A committee will be appointed to go over the constitution and make recommendations to the annual meeting taking in amendments that are filed with the secretary two weeks previous.

RUGBY

The following players are requested to be on hand for a practice in uniform at 5.10 in preparation for Saturday's City League game, also for short signal practice to-morrow evening: Rishor, Cowan, McClellan, Mulholland, Green, Browne, Sheehy, Sloan Ward Holland, Ashmore, C. Griffin, G. Griffin, Perry, Collins, W. Clancy, J. Clancy, MacPherson, Fitzgerald, Eastwood.

P.C.I. Play T. C. S.

Saturday local rugby fans will have an opportunity of looking over the local rugby material and of figuring their chances in the O.R.F.U. race. The Excelsiors meet the combined Belmont and Crescent teams at Riverside.

The P.C.I. team journey to Port Hope to play Trinity College an exhibition fixture Saturday. Trinity College is in the "Little" Big Four League and play under different rules than the O.R.F.U. In Saturday's game a compromise on rules will be made and this game will have the benefit of initiating some of the P.C.I. "Lefties" into the melee of a real rugby game. Last year playing under the same condition Trinity trimmed the local school. This year also they have a strong team.

The P.C.I. squad have been practicing regularly at the Oval under the coaching of Mr. Browne. Many of last years stars have graduated and the coach is faced with the task of training an almost new team. However, the back field is formed of experienced players and the squad is getting the rough edges worn off. Howard Young the quarterback, who played the same position last year, has been elected captain.

Belleville Quits.

Surprise was felt in local sport circles when it was discovered that this year Belleville High School has not entered the Junior Interscholastic. The Beleville school has for years been the feared rival of the local school. Rugby flourished strongly in the Quinte town of few years ago and the team consisted of some fast players. The Belleville High School and the P.C.I. were the nucleus of the eastern Interscholastic group. This year the group consists of Oshawa High School, Lindsay C.I. and tthe P.C.I. with C. S. Browne as convener.

SOCCER NOTES

It was officially announced last evening that the Peck Cup final between G. W. V. A. and Canadian Woollens will be played at King Edward Park, not Riverside park, as formerly announced.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

EMBARGO OR HARD TIMES.

Sir,—

So much valuable space has already been given up by the press of Canada to the cause of forest conservation that I shall refram from attempting to answer the columns of specious and factitious statements that have recently appeared in some newspapers in opposition to the proposed embargo on the exportation of unmanufactured wood. These so-called arguments have been answered time and again in the press. If their authors have not already been convinced there is nothing that anyone can say at this time that will convince them. I will, however, ask your indulgence to put two or three questions that will perhaps do more to make the matter clearer to the people than any long columns of statistics could do.

In one of my recent letters which has been printed in practically every leading newspaper in Canada I asked this question: "Is there a man or woman in the whole Dominion of Canada who will say that it would not be better for the country to have our pulpwood manufactured at home, thereby leaving $50 in the country for every cord of wood cut, instead of having it exported and leaving only the $8 to $15 per cord which is now being obtained?"

Despite the very wide publicity given to this question no one has yet undertaken to answer it.

I will now further ask, "Is there a man or woman in Canada who is satisfied with living and business conditions as they now exist, and what is being done by the Provincial or Dominion authorities to bring about any improvement?"

The next question naturally suggested is, "How can such a change be brought about?" My reply is that such an improvement can be brought about by increasing the number of our industries, thereby giving employment to a larger population and creating better markets for agricultural products. In building up manufacturing industries we build up the agricultural industry as well, which is of greater importance now than ever since the United States has placed an embargo on our farm products, cattle, fish, etc.

The next question is, "How can we secure these additional industries?" The answer to this is that they can be secured in no easier, quicker or less expensive way than by the very simple process of the Government at Ottawa passing an order-in-Council to prohibit the export of unmanufactured wood from Canada. I personally know of at least three pulp mills that would be built in one of our Provinces if such an embargo was put in effect and other pulpwood Provinces would doubtless fare as well. This would lead not only to still other pulp mills being built, but also to the establishment of additional industries which would necessarily follow in their wake.

Competition for the purchase of pulpwood under these circumstances would become so keen among the home mills that such wood would advance in value and not decrease as some of the American interests are trying to make the farmers believe. If there is a farmer in Canada who really believes that such an embargo would not add to the value and demand for his timber land and his wood then that man is lacking in the acumen that should characterize the average Canadian farmer.

When Canada is still called a "young country" it reminds me of the man who raises a colt and begins by calling it "the colt" and the animal continues to be called "the colt" as long as it lives. Canada has been settled just as long as has the United States. The U. S. has a population of one hundred and twenty million people, while Canada has less than nine million. We have been largely exporters of raw materials which they have manufactured and grown rich on. Americans are today operating nearly fifty pulp and paper mills in the U. S., with a daily capacity of one hundred tons newsprint each, wholly on Canadian raw wood. We supply the U. S. with the most precious of all raw materials. We are used as a dumping ground for their surplus manufactured goods, coal and other surplus products and have an embargo placed by them against our farm products, cattle, fish, and in fact everything that we would really like to export.

Verily, "Yes, we have no brains today."

If the people of Canada are satisfied with present business and living conditions and do not want any change for the better then there is nothing more to be said, but unless my hearing has become defective and my eyesight is failing this is very far from being the situation.

TO DEVELOP BOXERS.

LONDON, Oct. 4.—(Canadian Press).—A London newspaper is welcoming the efforts of Francois Descamps, Georges Carpentier's manager, to develop championship boxers in England. The Daily Mail says the death of real boxers in Britain is lamentable.

Fight fans paid $1,200,000 to see the Dempsey-Firpo mill. The Wall Street Journal figures out that $400,000 of this will go to the national government eventually, including admission taxes and income taxes of Dempsey and others involved.

However, this is the last word in painless extraction.

MILLBROOK NOW MINUS A HOLIDAY

Stores Will Operate On Full Schedule for Balance of Year.

MILLBROOK, October 4. — The half-holiday on Thursday afternoon during the months of May, June, July, August and September, which were generally taken advantage of by the merchants in the village have now been discontinued. The stores will remain open on Wednesday evenings for the fall and winter months beginning next week. For this week on account of the fall fair they will be open on Friday evening for the convenience of those who wish to do their shopping, or make use of the stores as a convenient meeting place during the evening hours.

Rev. Richard Bamforth, B.A., of Mark street church, Peterboro, will preach anniversary sermons at 10.30 a.m., and at 7 o'clock in the evening. Special music is being prepared by the choir for the occasion. The annual thank offering will be taken up. Following their usual custom the Cavanville congregation will observe a Sunday of special services near the Thanksgiving season with the annual fowl supper the Monday evening immediately afterwards. Further announcement will be made as the date approaches. Rev. R. T. Richards will take Rev. Mr. Bamforth's work at Mark street church next Sunday.

Mr. B. Dawson of Warsaw, was in town for the week-end leaving by motor on Sunday for his school in that section.

The Millbrook baseball players went to Port Hope for a friendly game on Tuesday afternoon, and received a bad beating at the hands of the local team. Foster Russell, Ernest Burnham, Bob Shaw, A. McCorry and G. W. Sayles were those who went from here, completing the nine when Port Hope was reached.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Hunter, Messrs. Melville McCorry, W. Whyte, R. Edmunds, Mrs. T. H. Bradley were among those who motored over to see the game.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Hatherly were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Hatherly on Tuesday.

Mrs. (Rev.) Tucker, Mrs. B. R. Raper, Miss E. Hetherington and Miss P. Burnham represented the Millbrook W.M.S. at the convention at Bethany on Tuesday.

Mrs. J. J. Russell, accompanied by her daughter in law, Mrs. Fred Russell and baby girl, Aileen, are in Millbrook at Mrs. Russell's home for a brief stay, returning to Peterboro next week.

Mr. J. Perrin of Peterboro, was the guest of her sister-in-law, Mrs. James Dawson, for the week end.

Mrs. J. Hunter of Huntsville, with her little niece, Wanda Hammond of Toronto, are visiting her sister, Mrs. P. Stinson, this week. Mrs. Hunter has been visiting her sister-in-law, Mrs. J. Hammond, in Toronto, for the past three weeks.

Card of Thanks.

Mrs. John Gray wishes to thank her many friends in Peterboro, Millbrook and vicinity, the nurses and sisters of St. Joseph's Hospital, and the attending physicians, Dr. A. Moir, and Dr. J. H. Eastwood, of Peterboro, and Dr. A. Russell of Bailieboro, who so skilfully performed the serious operation she recently underwent, for their unfailing kindness during the weeks she spent in the hospital.

STOCK MARKET WAS STRONGER

The General List Showed a Better Tone—Oil Issues Led.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Bears were in a rather benumbed sttae of mind as the result of the punishment which had been meted out to them at the private session, and they showed a disposition in the early dealings to-day to retire from the market to see just how far the rally would go. This tendency was stimulated by the optimistic survey of the Federal Reserve Board, which reported that the banks in the agricultural districts were in a strong leading position, saying the advance in crop prices had more than offset the decrease in output. Steel Dupont, American Woollen, American Can and other industrial leaders scored further gains on the initial transactions, while the Rails were generally higher. Stocks in the general list continued to show a confident tone in the first hours. The Oils were helped by the announcement that the daily average crude oil production for a week ended September 22nd, had fallen off 22,450 barrels. Considerable encouragement was derived from the fact that Standard Oil issues were the leaders in the group. Some impulse was given this strength from the movement on foot to list Standard Oil of New York on the stock exchange. It is now on the curb. National Supply is another issue expected to make its initial bow on the big board shortly. For some time past reports have been current that there was inside buying of high class Standard Oil. It is known that banks have made large loans on collateral containing large blocks of Rockefeller securities, particularly Standard Oil of California and New Jersey, Standard Oil of New York and Indiana. Oil issues have been under pressure since the initial cut in crude oil last spring. Change in trend would go a long way toward strengthening the general stock market. Opening prices included: U.S.S. 89 1-2, up 3-8; Studebaker 99 1-2, off 1-4; American Can 93 5-8, up 1-4; Pan Am. 12, up 1-4; N.Y.C. 101, off 3-4; American Woollens 77, up 1-8; Continental Can. 50 1-4, up 1-8; American Sugar 65 1-4, up 1-4; Pan American B 56 3-8; Bethlehem Steel 49 3-4, up 1-4; Union Pac. 130 12, up 1-2; Penn. 42 3-8; Reading 77 3-4, up 1-8; Maryland 25 3-4, up 1-8; Southern Railway 35 7-8, up 1-8; Can. Pac. 144 3-4, up 1-2; Dupont 129 7-8, up 7-8; United States Rubber 40, up 3-8; Gen. Motors 14 3-8; Atchison 99, up 1-2; Baldwin, 119 3-4, off 1-4.

FORD PICTURES SHOWN TONIGHT

The Duffus Motor Sales and Mr. Wallace Murdock, B.S.A., manager of the Ford Caravan, now on Exhibition on the Peterboro' market square, desire to express their sincere regrets at being unable to put on the moving pictures on the square last evening.

Arrangements had been made to operate two machines, one on the square and one at the Fordson owners' banquet in the Empress Hotel, but owing to one machine not being suitable we undertook to put the films on at the banquet first, before the conclusion of which the rain came on, which made it impossible to show them on the market square.

The films will be shown, however, this evening continuously from 7.15 on until as long as anyone desires to see them.

The large tent for this purpose has been erected, which will furnish every comfort, and the public generally are cordially invited.

OBITUARY

JOHN THORNE.
The death of John Thorne, of Otonabee, occurred this morning at 10 o'clock at Nicholls Hospital. He was the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Thorne. The funeral will take place from the family residence, Concession 16, Otonabee, to the Little Lake Cemetery on Saturday, October 6, at 2 p.m.

SYSTEMATIC HOUSEKEEPING
Have a plan for every day's housekeeping routine. It saves time and keeps order.

Society

Mrs. W. W. Doherty, who was called to her former home in Kingston on account of the sudden death of her father, has returned to Peterboro, bringing her mother, Mrs. Jas. Scruton with her for a visit.

Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Allen and son Fred have returned from a week's motor trip to the Adirondacks.

The first meeting for this season of the Otonabee Chapter of the I. O.D.E. was held yesterday afternoon in the green room of the Y.W.C.A., the regent, Mrs H E. Stenson, presiding.

The Chapter decided to co-operate with the 57th Regimental Chapter in the Armistice Tea to be held on November 9th, in aid of the National Educational Fund, and appointed a committee to look after arrangements composed of Mrs. J. H. Seels, Mrs. N. H. Sutton, Mrs. Reason and Miss S. A. Tomkins.

It was also decided to take a membership in the Canadian Council of Child Welfare.

Miss S. A. Tomkins was appointed delegate from the chapter to the provincial meeting in Windsor on October 30th and 31st.

The King George Home and School Association held its first open meeting for this year on Tuesday evening of this week at the school, with Mrs. V. Hamilton in the chair. Arrangements were made to hold a large open meeting on Friday evening, October 12th, Mrs. Joseph Grierson to look after the programme. It was announced that Dr. A. Y. McNair would give the society an address on Social Hygiene some time in November.

Mr. Joseph Clancy of Toronto, was in the city for a few days this week, leaving for Lindsay yesterday, on a business trip.

A very successful tea and sale of fancy and useful articles was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. W. Crawford, 304 Maitland avenue under the auspices of the Elizabeth Bell Auxiliary of St. Andrew's church. In the absence of Mrs. Jas. Rollins, the president, the guest, were received by the vice president, Mrs. B. McClellan, assisting Mrs. Crawford. The tea room was prettily decorated with pink and white asters and cosmos, the living-room with yellow zinnias, the hall with autumn leaves. Tea was poured in the afternoon by Miss Edmondson, in the evening by Mrs. H. Morgan assisted by members of the society. The sale of work was in charge of Mrs. E. Mesley and Miss B. King. During the afternoon and evening, an enjoyable musical programme was rendered with vocal solos by Mrs. F. Turner, Miss Ina Allen and Miss Dorothy Engel, and pianoforte selections by Miss Cora Smith and Miss Frankish.

Among the Peterborough people who attended the Keene Fair yesterday were noticed: Mrs. R. H. Turner, Mrs. T. Paton Mr. Jas. Garrow, Mr. G. A. Gillespie and party; A. A. McIntyre, W. H. Dunsford, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Mathias Adjt. A. A. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. R. Cotton and Miss H. Wedlock.

A visitor to Keene Fair yesterday was A. H. Helson of Sherbrooke street. Mr. Helson, who was born Keene, has not been in his own home town for the last twenty-three years. He spent the afternoon in visiting old spots of interest and in renewing old acquaintanceships.

Mrs. William Carscadden of Pontypool, is spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Dodd, 679 George street.

Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Moncrief and Mr. R. A. Dobbin attended the Keene Fair yesterday.

FOX FARM OPEN YET

A few days ago a severe storm swept over Prince Edward County and among other things delayed a shipment of black foxes to Peterboro. This will mean that the Patte and Wolf black fox farm in Smith township will be open to the public on Sunday. This is a last opportunity to inspect the interesting features of the ranch as by another week the foxes will be here and owing to the nervous temperment of the fox, the public will be excluded.

Your Health

By DR. CLIFFORD C. ROBINSON

CARBOHYDRATES

A careful consideration of the food problem in relation to body building and health is worth all the time you can spare. People of middle of the middle and lower walks of life do not give proper amount of earnest thought to food selection.

Carbohydrates (starch and sugar) form one of the great groups of fuel foods. If we divide the fuel group for the purpose of estimating the value of each, we find starch is first, fat next and sugar third.

The balance or ratio between the different groups in order to sustain a proper health regimen is what you must select and use in your daily menus. Most people use too much sugar and not enough starch. In fats, the other fuel food, the majority of people who need it seem to be able to hit a fairly good average.

The carbohydrates form a chief part of the fuel or energy foods for muscular work. In ordinary cases mental work requires comparatively little extra fuel. The different food elements are of course found in certain proportions in many different groups. For example, most foods contain some protein. There is a nutritive amount in cereals and bread. Other foods not classed as sugars contain some sugar in their elements, but are low in value as carbohydrates.

Select the starchy foods from cereals, including oatmeal, hominy, rice and wheat products. This group also includes macaroni, spaghetti, dried lima beans, split peas, potatoes and some bananas.

Sugar is abundant in sirups, most fruits, molasses and candy. Be careful of overeating sweets. It is much better to take your daily protein at meal times. Overeating of sugar leads to over-nourishment and overweight.

CHOIR OUTING OF ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

50 Members and Friends Of Choir Journeyed to Cobourg.

On Tuesday night, through the kindness and courtesy of several warm friends, which was very much appreciated, St. Paul's Church Choir enjoyed a unique and very pleasant outing in the form of a weiner and marshmallow roast on the beach near Cobourg, in which the choir of the Methodist Church there participated and co-operated most heartily.

Some fifty members and friends of the choir left the church about 6.15 p.m. and motored to Cobourg, where the Methodist choir had made the necessary arrangements for the feast. The beach was lighted up with several bonfires, and a congenial and happy crowd awaited the preparation of the repast.

Some impatient, or possibly hungry, members anticipated the meal by roasting weiners on wire forks specially prepared for the occasion, and a moving-picture of the scene would be popular in either Cobourg or Peterboro.

At length, everything was in readiness for the combined allied attack on the viands, and the rapidity with which the food disappeared was amazing and somewhat amusing.

After the meal, some time was spent in music—solos, quartettes and community song—to the accompaniment of the lapping waves on the beach.

Some may think the evening was rather cool for such an outing, but just ask any of the many who were privileged to participate and see if they will not vote an encore.

The occasion was unique in the fact that two choirs of different denominations, over thirty miles apart, should unite in this manner.

If you wish to know the reason for this musical combination, just ask any member of the Cobourg choir what they think of Mr. M. B. Chenhall, their former organist.

STATE TO TEST

A few minutes before Berk arrived at the colony the Boyettes and Sassman made their escape, M. S. Tyler, a pillar, gleefully informed the deputy. The trio had arrived a short time before and had spent several hours in consultation with Mary Purnell and Francis Thorpe in Shiloh. Investigators believe they brought direct word from the "Seventh Messenger" and his orders for the management of the sect's affairs during the present session of the one man grand jury.

The trio were observed coming out of Shiloh by a newspaper correspondent who informed Judge Dingeman. The subpenas were hastily issued in the hope of bringing them immediately before the investigators. All are former Israelites.

"SHOULD WIFE HOLD THE PURSE STRINGS"

Subject of an Interesting Debate at U.F.Y.P.O. Meeting.

The regular meeting of the U. F. Y. P. O. was held on Tuesday last, with a fairly good attendance.

To the regret of all the members of the Club, Miss Gladys Lewis handed in her resignation as secretary. Miss Hazel Ackison was elected to fill the vacancy.

After the business of the evening was dispensed with, the following programme was enjoyed by all.

Reading—Miss Jean Hamilton.

An impromptu debate—"Resolved that the Wife Should Hold the Purse Strings"—was entered into with a great deal of zest, the victory naturally going to the ladies, who were on the affirmative side.

A contest—"Names of Cars," was won by Mr. Arthur Simpson, and Miss Mae Muir.

After a solo, which was rendered by Mr. Alan Milburn, everyone joined in community singing.

Refreshments were then served, after which the meeting was adjourned with the singing of the National Anthem.

TO CLEAN SINK.
Remove all bits of vegetables that may have escaped the sink strainer with a small piece of cardboard. Sprinkle your favorite cleaning powder over surface of sink and scrub with a whisk broom. Rinse sink with scalding water and brush over with broom. Hold broom under scalding water, shake out and hang up to dry.

COUNTERFEIT VS. GENUINE TUBES.
"Fake" tubes can be identified through the trade-mark on the glass. The trade-mark on the genuine tube is blown into the glass and cannot be removed. The counterfeit tube has the trade-mark stenciled in white paste and can be scraped off.

KITCHEN CLEANLINESS.
Scald and air the dish cloth after each dish washing. Scald, rinse and hang up all metal cloths used for cleaning pots and pans. Wash, scald and wipe dry all cooking utensils. Thoroughly scald, dry and air the coffee pot if you would have delicious coffee.

W. S. FIELDING IN CONFERENCE RE HOME BANK

Met Attorney General To-day and Discussed Question of Federal And Provincial Action.

DIVIDEND TALK

TORONTO, October 5 (Canadian Press). — Hon. W. S. Fielding, the Dominion Minister of Finance, had a conference to-day with the Hon. W. F. Nickle, Attorney-General for Ontario, and also with H. J. Scott, K.C., who is acting locally for the Dominion Government in the matter of the suspended Home Bank.

Various aspects of the situation were considered, and the question of Federal and Provincial action fully gone into.

It was announced this afternoon that arrangements had been made for the fullest co-operation between the Dominion and Provincial authorities in regard to the collapse of the bank.

Attorney-General Nickle stated that proceedings for the present would continue along the line of the prosecutions against the directors and the officials of the institution.

Chartered accountants' investigation would present every assistance in this direction.

At Osgoode Hall proceedings to secure the winding up order on behalf of the various screditors were adjourned until Monday next.

Consider a Liquidation.

Several petitions to wind up the Home Bank came before Mr. Justice Fisher to-day, but as another petition is to be filed an adjournment was made until Monday, when they will all be presented. His Lordship directed the Curator to call meetings of the shareholders and creditors, and in the meantime to retain all assets of the bank.

At these meetings the appointment of a liquidator will be considered. He thought, however, that it would be advisable for the meetings to deal with the appointment of counsel to look after their interests. That should be left to the liquidator.

Interim Dividend.

One of the counsel appearing on behalf of returned and crippled soldier depositors, asked when the first dividend might be expected.

The reply was that this could not be stated at present, but other banks were arranging for an interim dividend of 25 per cent. as soon as proper arrangements had been completed.

G. Lyn Osler, K.C., solicitor for the Curator, said that it was uncertain whether or not shareholders would be called upon for double liabilities.

Daly Seriously Ill.

The condition of H. J. Daly, the president of the Home Bank, who is ill at his summer cottage on Lake Simcoe, shows little improvement.

During the night he suffered several attacks, and this morning he is reported as being very restless.

Orders have been given by his physician that no callers are to be admitted to the sick room for the present.

CONCERT ATTRACTION OF REAL MERIT

Rotary Club Is Bringing Artists For Event in Grand on October 27th

Probably the very best Concert attraction of the season wil be given under the auspices of the Rotary Club, in the Grand Opera House, on Monday, October 29th.,

Two outstanding artists, together with Pianist and Accompanist, will give the programme.

Of Jules Falk, Violinist, the Indianapolis Star says: "Mr. Falk is a musician of undoubted distinction, dignified in manner and interpretaton seeking no sensational effects, making no bid for popularity. He possesses a beautiful instrument from which he draws beautiful tones His playing is direct and unmarred by mannerisms."

With Mr. Falk is Vanette Van Sweringen, Soprano, one of the most gifted sopranos in the concert field. Of Welsh and Dutch parentage, born in Chicago, she has studied in New York for four years under the eminent singer and teacher, Herbert Witherspoon. This concert attraction promises to be exceptionally well patronized.

Universal Peace In Hundred Years Worth Hoping For

VICTORIA, Oct. 5.—(Canadian Press).—If the League of Nations can bring about universal peace in a hundred years, it is surely worth striving for, because what is one hundred years in thousands of the life of the world declared Sir George Foster, during the course of an address here last night.

"The league of nations has already stopped four wars," said Sir George. "It has already proven itself easily the most practical measure of linking nations of the world in comradeship that has ever been devised.

ANOTHER PEEP NOW PROMISED

Communique Will be Issued Tonight on Conference Matters.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—(Special cable to the Canadian Press by George Hambleton, Staff Correspondent).—When at the opening of the Imperial Conference of Premiers, Stanley Baldwin, British Premier, viewed the course of the British foreign policy, he lifted the curtain on the famous Baldwin-Poincare conversations in Paris only to let it fall again. To-day Lord Curzon, Foreign Minister, continued the Premier's story, and the official communique thereon which will be issued to-night is being awaited with interest. It is unlikely, however, that the official summary of Lord Curzon's remarks will cover all the points in the matter. A certain amount will be communicated to the Dominion Premiers in confidence for their information and guidance.

The Times says to-day in this connection that the Dominion Premiers are bound to speak with restraint on the questions of the foreign policy, but the value of their counsel is not to be under-rated on that account.

"There are three special points to be remembered about them," it continues. "First, they are here to speak for peoples who all have borne their share of strain of war and directly committed to the treaty of peace. Second, they have the advantage of regarding Europe from the position of greater detachment than is possible in this country. Third, their agreement on a definite line of policy would immensely strengthen the hands of the British Ministers to whom it will fall to carry out from day to day.

The Dominion Premiers will consider Lord Curzon's statement over the week-end and discussion on it will begin Monday.

FISH AND GAME MEN IN SESSION

Association Held Interesting Meeting Last Night

A meeting of the Fish and Game Association of Peterboro was held last evening in the Empress Hotel. Mr. C. B. Coon presided, and about twenty other members were present.

Several matters of importance in reference to the Fish and Game Association of this district were brought up.

A resolution was passed and sent to W. H. Bradburn, M.P., asking him to take up the matter of extra protection for the Peterboro district. The fish and game of the County of Peterboro is one of the largest assets we have, it was contended. Hundreds of tourists come each year to the lakes and the surrounding diotrict to hunt and fish each year.

It is expected that Mr. Bradburn will be able to arrange with the Minister of Game and Fisheries, Mr. McCrae, and the Deputy Minister, Mr. D. J. McDonald, to visit Peterboro and discuss all the different game changes the Association have in mind for the benefit of this county.

A discussion took place as to the advisability of stopping fishing from motor boats. It was also discussed that the limit of four lunge to a person be changed to four lunge to a boat.

The Association intends to try and get many of its members to raise pheasants and prairie fowl, so as to stock them up in the different parts of the county.

A committee was appointed to look over several ponds suitable for brook-trout, so that these could be stocked with brook-trout and used by the members of the association for fishing. Several other items were brought up, and the Peterboro Fish and Game Association will be quite busy following the programme they have outlined for themselves.

HUNTER'S DEATH NEAR RICE LAKE A SAD TRAGEDY

Companion's Gun Accidentally Discharged As Victim Lost His Balance In Frail Canoe.

TORONTO RESIDENTS

While duck hunting on the Otonabee River near Jubilee Point at 5.45 this morning, Walter H. Saunders, aged 30, of 148 Redpath Avenue, Toronto, was shot and killed by the accidental discharge of a gun in the hands of his companion, Melville W. Waddington, 144 Lawton Boulevard, Toronto. Saunders lost his balance as he shot at two ducks flying overhead and fell into the water, nearly upsetting the canoe and causing the accidental discharge of Waddington's gun, the charge from which entered his back and side.

Coroner Dr. D. C. King, accompanied by Provincial Poice Constable R. F. Davis, of Peterboro, after examining the body and questioning Waddington, permitted the removal of the remains to Peterboro, where they await the arrival of W. J. Saunders, Toronto, brother of the dead man.

Story In Detail.

Telling the story of the accident to the authorities and The Examiner, Waddington said:

"We left our cottage at five o'clock this morning and paddled to the Blind Channel on the Monaghan side of the river, just north of Jubilee Point. There we crouched in the canoe to wait for the ducks. At about a quarter to six two flew almost directly overhead. 'Walter, poor chap, stood up and fired at them and I fired almost immediately after. Walter lost his balance and pitched forward, falling over the left side of the boat, and wabbling the canoe considerably. I endeavored to grab the gunwale of the careening boat, and in so doing discharged the other barrel of my gun accidentally.

Thought Only Stunned.

"His face was in the water and the reeds, and I thought that he was only stunned by the fall. I immediately pulled him into the boat and called to him, but got no response. Not knowing what had happened, I made him as comfortable as possible, putting his feet under one thwart and his head on a pillow on the other thwart. Then I paddled to the nearest wharf (the C. G. E. Anglers' Club cottage directly opposite where the shooting took place).

"On arriving there I pulled the body onto the dock, and it was then that I realized that he had been shot, as I saw the blood on his clothes. I felt his pulse and then, finding that breathing had ceased, I ran up to Fred. Kylie's house nearby, and notified Mr. and Mrs. Kylie of the accident. Mr. Kylie telephoned to Walter's brother in Toronto, who agreed to come down to Peterboro at once. Mr. Kylie also called John Trombley, at whose cottage we were staying, and Mr. Trombley notified the authorities in Peterboro."

Was Visibly Affected.

Mr. Waddington held himself under control at first, but the recital of the accident affected him visibly, and he stated that he could not realize yet the full horror of it.

Both men were employed as auditors by the same firm in Toronto, George A. Touche and Company, chartered accountants, with offices in the Bank of Hamilton Building, and the dead man had postponed his holidays in order to come on this shooting trip with his friend Waddington. They had arrived in Peterboro Saturday evening and rented John Trombley's cottage at Hiawatha, going down there Sunday and intending to return home next Sunday. Mr. Trombley brought Waddington to Peterboro this morning.

Accustomed to Firearms.

Waddington stated that both he and Saunders were accustomed to the use of firearms, having served overseas, and that this was his fifth autumn hunting trip. Saunders, however, was not used to canoes, he said.

PREPARATORY SERVICE.

Service preparatory to Communion will be held in St. Andrew's Church to-night at 8 o'clock. Rev. Robert Pogue will give the address. At the close of the service new members will be received.

LLOYD GEORGE IN "TRAINING" FOR HIS TOUR OF AMERICA

Has Slept Fifteen Hours Out Of Every Twenty-Four on Voyage Across the Atlantic on the Mauretania—Seas Were Mountainous.

(By Webb Miller, United Press Staff Correspondent).

Aboard the S.S. Mauretania Nearing New York, Oct. 4.—David Lloyd George has been "training" for his American tour by sleeping 15 hours out of every 24 on his voyage across the Atlantic, realizing he will face a programme calling for a considerable test of his physical resistance. The former British Prime Minister, under the supervision of his wife, Mrs. Lloyd George, has bent every effort to training for the round of speeches and banquets which will crowd every day of his stay in New York. Lloyd George said to-night he felt the "fittest in years."

The Mauretania has plowed through mountainous seas for the last eighteen hours, and it was only by a great exertion of will power, Lloyd George admitted, that he kept from getting sea-sick. Hundreds of people have been in their cabins with sea-sickness. The whole Lloyd George family have been reading up on America during the voyage. The former Prime Minister chose "The Life of Lincoln" to give him additional insight into the character of the people of the United States, while his daughter Megan has been industriously perusing the pages of "Main Street."

PAPERS DEFIED "BLUE PENCIL" OF STATE HEAD

And Governor J.C. Walton Backs Water When His Attempted Censorship Of Press Failed.

KU KLUX INCIDENT

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 5.—Governor J. C. Walton made a lot of threats before he clamped a rigid press censorship on any newspaper.

Several weeks ago he tried it on a small newspaper and the editor submitted. Then the Governor tackled the Tulsa Tribune, put the blue pencil in the hands of a man with a uniform for 24 hours, and stirred up such a mare's nest that he apparently is off censorship for good.

The first case of military censorship in Oklahoma at the instigation of Governor Walton was the Free Lance, a small daily newspaper published at Henryetta. During July, when the Executive was conducting his first martial law experiment at Okmulgee, the Free Lance published an advertisement of a Baptist Minister, announcing a sermon on "martial law." This pastor was something of a fire-eater, and the general impression was that he did not plan to eulogize the occupation of Creek County by the guardsmen.

This, published inadvertently, according to the editor, after an order had been issued preventing incendiary assemblies, caused the establishment of a military censor in the office of the Free Lance for a week.

But the Henryetta account was only a curtain raiser. The climax came at Tulsa last week when Governor Walton, enraged because the Tulsa Tribune, in a city under absolute martial law, dared to publish "The Story of Walton," a penny dreadful, written by Aldrich Blake, the Governor's executie expected to bring Tulsa to her knees.

"The Story of Walton" reviewed the Executive's history as a City Commissioner and Mayor of Oklahoma City, and gave choice morsels of the pardon and parole history of Governor Walton's incumbency.

The Major, selected as censor, had hardly sharpened his pencil and passed on his first batch of proofs when things began to pop. Richard Lloyd Jones, publisher, immediately announced a fight in Federal Court to break Walton's infringement upon constitutional rights, and the first word of the Governor's interference with a free press hit the trunk wires.

Within 12 hours many big Eastern newspapers, bitter enemies of the mask and the whipping squd, realized there was something more than a fight against the Ku Klux going on in Oklahoma. Editors who had been patting Walton on the back demanded to know what censorship of the press had to do with his battle against mob rule. The Governor couldn't explain. He saw his river of Page One publicity drying up like rain in a desert, and he backed water immediately.

Walton's stock in trade on the stump is the "kept press." Every newspaper that does not support him and agree with his everchanging whims is "a tool of Wall Street," tainted with Standard Oil, "or the slimy fangs of the Money Trust."

Recently a newspaper likened Walton in placing the civil in subservience to the military authorities to King George III., quoting from a paragraph of the Declaration of Independence. Referring to that remark in a speech a few days ago, Walton declared he would like to have the power of George III., and observed that the first use of his power would be on "some of the editors of this State."

Since the Daily Oklahoman and the Oklahoma City Times are the largest in the State, and they have consistently fought his undermining of the Constitution, his reckless extravagance, his amazing use of the pardon and parole power, they are his first and daily target for cheap villification.

His last remark today was that he wished he could lock the door to the building occupied by the Oklahoma Publishing Company (the paper's corporate name) and throw the key in the river.

Call Meeting Soon For Discussion of Sales Tax Problem

A meeting of the Manufacturers' Association of the Chamber of Commerce was held last evening, when the committee decided to obtain some capable person from Toronto to explain the applications of the new Sales Tax, which will come into force, January 1, 1924.

This meeting will be held on November 1, and will be open to all those interested in the Sales Tax problem.

LAW THE SAME FOR EVERYONE

And Home Bank Directors Found Themselves Confined in Cells, With Routine Treatment.

TORONTO, Oct. 5.—Liberty is sweet and the law is no respecter of persons.

These truths were brought home to the Home Bank officials who were arrested here.

Ordinary people are arrested every day, thrust into police cells, sent to prison on remand, tried, convicted or acquitted as the case may be, and the world gives no sign. But yesterday's arrests touched the high places of society. All of the "wanted" men were prominent men,—prominent in social, fraternal and financial circles—men who have comfortable homes, automobiles, luxuries, hosts of friends and presumably the means to gratify every reasonable human desire.

The iron hand of the law had never been laid upon them. Then something happened to change the whole tenor of their lives.

Did They Know?

Perhaps, during Tuesday night or Wednesday morning, they felt that great events were impending. But they gave no sign. They rose and dressed and had breakfast and went to their usual places of business in the usual manner. Suddenly came warning that the law was moving in their direction. Between 12 and 1 o'clock noon, Provincial Police officers came to F. J. B. Russill and Casey Wood, K.C., and took them into custody.

Both men were removed to Court St. police station. Pending arrangements for bail, both were placed in the cells just like "ordinary" prisoners. They might have been permitted to sit under guard behind the desk or in the orderly room at the police station. They were not dangerous men. They were not likely to attempt to escape. But they were treated just as others accused of breaking the law. They were put into cells reserved for drunks and vagrants and all the class of unfortunates who constitute the daily gleanings of the police. Why?

The Iron Law

Because the law says this must be done. Because, in the eyes of the law, all men are equal—theoretically. And so Mr. Wood was detained in the cell until 3.30 p.m., and Mr. Russill unti 4.25 p.m.

J. F. M. Stewart, when arrested at Sunnyside Pavilion, was taken to Cowan Ave. police station. There, after being searched and relieved of his gold watch and chain and one or two other trinkets, he was escorted to a cell, where he remained until 6 o'clock. H. Scully and J. Gibson arrived and made an effort to have Mr. Stewart brought from the dingy cell into the police room, but the reply of the sergeant was "Not on your life." At 6 p.m., Ald. W. H. Shaw, his father-in-law, accompanied by Magistrate Jones,

KIWANIS CLUB HEAR ADDRESS LIVE SUBJECT

J. A. McQuaig Gave a Vigorous Address On Fundamental Issues Of Life.

BALL TEAM PRESENT

Peterboro's latest acquisition to championship baseball honors, known as the Lakeviews, were guests to-day of the Peterboro Kiwanis Club. Two war-songs celebrating their victory over Niagara Falls and extolling their ability were produced for the occasion. The boys joined heartily in the singing, led by Kiwanian Verne Morphet. President J. A. McKone, who is attending the Kiwanis Convention in Quebec, sent a telegram congratulating the boys on their achievement. The chair was taken by Dr. J. J. Craig.

Mr. G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., was called upon to address the boys. He referred to the honor they had brought to the city, and said that winning success in sport was a path to a more enduring citizenship later in life. In reply, Manager Lou LeBarr said the boys appreciated the honor of being present, and promised they would go out and win a championship next year.

Kiwanian Carl Browne was called upon to make a presentation speech to Kwanian Robert Neill, who is leaving for Milwaukee, where he intends to reside for a time. Hope was expressed that Kiwanian Neill would put Milwaukee on the map. He was presented with a fountain pen. Kiwanian Neill's reply was brief and to the point. "I hope to come back bigger and better than ever," he said.

The guests to-day, besides the Lakeview team, were Rev. R. Pogue and Dr. A. Y. McNair.

A feature of the meeting was the address by Mr. J. A. McQuaig, the celebrated engenist of New York. Mr. McQuaig will be in the city for several days, and will give adresses in the George street Methodist church and St. Paul's Presbyterian church.

The one great lesson of life is control, said the speaker. We enter the world in a small way, but in our bodies is the great dynamic forces that govern our destiny. We must all travel along the path of control like the infant who first learns to perform the normal functions of life. It is the law of control that makes the great surgeon or the great musician. The path of achievement lies along the path of control. We travel the path of failure when we fail to realize this. So long as we live we may be learning and learning and never come to a knowledge of the truth.

Dealing with the quqestion of the marriage state, the speaker said the war struck the most severe blow at marriage. Canada is short thousands of children as a result. Babies are an asset of the nation. When fewer babies come into the country than people dying each year that country is tottering on the verge of bankruptcy. War also wrecked the social structure with one result that divorce and annulment of marriages is on the increase. The speaker discussed the technique of application. This deals with facts rather than the general application of principles.

A vote of thanks to the speaker was moved by Dr. Graham Macdougall and Walter Kidd.

JUDGE UPHOLDS PRESS.

Refuses to Bar Publication of Any Occurrence in Court.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5—Federal judges have no power to prevent newspapers from publishing reports of what transpires in open court, Judge J. Stanley Webster, of the Federal District of Eastern Washington, ruled at Spokane when he held that newspapers had a right to publish evidence taken while the jury was out of the room and which had not been admitted.

The request that such evidence be barred from the press was made by H. E. T. Herman, attorney for Frank Kepl, on trial in a liquor conspiracy case. The witness, Chester Gilmore, a farmer boy, asserted he was offered a bribe by an airplane pilot who said he was being "chased by the bulls," and the Government sought to establish connection with an airplane that escaped in the liquor raid after unloading liquor near Spokane.

"I have no power to prevent the newspapers from publishing whatever transpires in open court," Judge Webster held. "Trials are public and my control is limited to the jury. I have found in the past that newspaper accounts of trials in Spokane have been accurate."

Kiwanis Speaker

MR. J. A. McQUAIG,
Noted Speaker at To-day's Kiwanis Club Luncheon.

DISPERSE THE SYMPATHIZERS

Republicans Gather and Denounce Great Britain In New York.

NEW YORK, October 5. Canadian Press. — Irish Republican sympathisers gathered at the city hall park a few minutes before Lloyd George was due to arrive there, and began marching in a long column, displaying placards denouncing Great Britain. The police quickly destroyed the placards and dispersed the marchers. The demonstrators arrived in autos, formed their line of march and paced slowly along Park Row. The placards were held by women. Each was mounted on a long pole, and had denunciatory phrases painted in black on a white back ground. Instantly the big crowd which had gathered to greet the former premier surged towards the paraders. A dozen policemen streamed across the park at the double quick, and one after another the signs were jerked down, smashed to bits, and trampled under the feet of the crowd which followed the police. The women made no resistance. Five minutes later the "battle field" was occupied only by street cleaners engaged in gathering up the fragments into their scuttles. More than twenty women carried banners, some of which read "Don't let England pull the wool over your eyes," and "British bootlegers are flooding America with British booze." The police grabbed the banners and tore them to shreds. There were no arrests.

LOCAL ENGINEERS TO HOLD MEETING

Montreal Man Will Review the Fuel Situation

The Peterborough Branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada will open its regular series of meetings on Thursday evening next at the Chamber of Commerce.

The subject will be "Review of the Fuel Situation in Canada." The speaker, F. A. Combe of Montreal, is a Consulting Combustion and Steam Engineer and has a wide grasp of his subject.

Some moving pictures illustrating the Mining of Coal will be shown.

Many very interesting meetings promised in the future. On Oct 25th J. B. Minns of the C.G.E. Head Office Toronto, will deliver a paper on "Electric Welding."

On Nov. 20th. the annual Banquet wil be held, at which many well-known engineers will be present. Among others Frank C. Wight, editor of Engineering News-Record New York City will give an address.

On Dec. 13th A. F. Brigham of the Hollinger Mine, will talk on "Gold Mining in Northern Ontario."
